Calvin Amory Stevens, on behalf of the Holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company,

versus

The Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company et al.,

BILL FOR RELIEF.

E. L. ANDREWS and
GEORGE HOADLY,
Solicitors, and of Counsel for Complainant.

United States Circuit Court,

Sixth Judicial Circuit, Middle District of Tennessee.

IN EQUITY.

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Sixth Judicial Circuit and Middle District of Tennessee.

Your orator, Calvin Amory Stevens, who is a citizen of the State of New York, brings this, his bill of complaint, against the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad Company, which are citizens of the State of Tennessee, and corporations organized, existing, and transacting business in said State by virtue of, and under, an act of the General Assembly of said State.

And thereupon your orator, complaining, shows unto your Honors that he brings this bill of complaint, as well on behalf of all other holders of the Internal Improvement bonds issued by the State of Tennessee to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, who may join in the prosecution of this suit and contribute to the expenses thereof, as on his own behalf as a holder of said bonds.

Your orator shows that the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company is a body, politic and corporate, chartered by acts of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee. The object and purpose of the creation of said corporation was the construction, completion, and, thereafter the operation and management of a line of railway for the transportation of passengers and freight from the city of Nashville, in the State of Tennessee, through the territory of the State of Tennessee, to a point on the Mississippi river in Obion county.

For this purpose powers were granted to said corporation, as are declared in the several charters and acts of incorporation. The said corporation was authorized to borrow money for the purposes of the enterprise. It was likewise authorized to impose liens and execute mortgages upon its property to provide for, and insure the payment of, its liabilities.

Your orator makes part of this, his bill of complaint, the said several charters and acts, with their several amendments, passed by the legislature of Tennessee, and attaches copies thereof, marked Exhibit A.

Your orator shows that the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, by an act, passed the 11th of February, in the year 1852, determined to lend to the railroad companies within said State, and specified in said act, the aid of its credit, for the completion of their several lines of railway.

The plan of that legislation was that each railroad company should procure a certain amount of bona fide subscriptions for its capital stock, and that it should have graded, bridged, and ready for the reception of rails, a certain number of miles of its road. By means of these preliminary requirements, assurance was obtained that each railroad company would be competent to fulfill the obligations it was to incur under the statute hereinafter set forth. The period of four years was allowed for the completion of each section of a road, the first section being required to be thirty, and the others twenty miles in length. The act proceeds to authorize and give validity to bonds of the State, which the governor was required to issue to each company. The amounts of the bonds were to be ascertained by the length of each railroad within the State, and the proceeds of the bonds were to be exclusively applied to the payment of the railroad iron, and equipments of the road to which they were issued. The president of each railroad company, assisted by a commissioner appointed by the governor, was to negotiate the sale of the bonds issued to his company. The act was made a public law for all purposes of notice, and a system of numbering was adopted for distinguishing each bond, and identifying the company to which it was issued. The tenor of the act which gave existence to the bonds, was, that each company became liable upon, and bound to perform, the obligations contained in, and represented by, the bonds loaned to it. Each company was to pay, from its own means, the interest upon the bonds loaned to it, as the same matured from time to time, and also to pay and discharge the principal debt, as it was expressed upon said bonds, when the same matured.

Your orator shows that the sale of the said bonds was to be the means of raising the money requisite for completing the superstructure, laying the rails, and providing the equipment of the roads. The bonds loaned to each company were to be payable in such places in the United States as its president might designate. In order to insure the said sale, and make a market for said bonds, and to create confidence in the public, and on the part of persons to whom said bonds might be offered for sale, and who might become the purchasers of the same, that each company would punctually pay the principal and interest of the bonds loaned to it, or, in case of its failure, that ample security should be provided therefor, which might be easily realized, it was provided by the statute, that "so soon as the bonds of the State shall have been issued for the first section of the road, they shall constitute a lien upon said section, without a deed from the company," and the "State of Tennessee, upon the issuance of said bonds, and by virtue of the same, shall be invested with said lien or mortgage, without a deed from the company for the payment by said company of said bonds, with the interest thereon, as the same becomes due, and with a like mortgage or lien, without a deed from the company, upon the additional sections, and upon the entire road, including the stock, for the payment of all the bonds issued to the company, and for the interest accruing thereon." This statutory lien was to be operative at once, and without conveyance or assurance of any kind from the corporations, and was to be superior to all other liens, upon the entire road and property of any corporation so receiving such public assistance, in the State of Tennessee. The statute was to be a substitute for a mortgage executed by each railroad company, for the purposes named in the act.

By the terms of an act of the same session provision was made for a public and official record of the issues of bonds to the several roads. The Comptroller of the State was required to sign and number the coupons of the bonds issued to each railroad, and the Secretary of State was required to number and countersign the bonds; and upon delivering bonds to the several companies, the Secretary of State was required to take a receipt, reciting the number, date, and amount of the bonds so delivered. These receipts were to be taken in a well-bound book, to be deposited in the office of the Secretary of State.

The General Improvement law, above referred to, is herewith set out fully and at length, to wit:

AN ACT to Establish a System of Internal Improvements in this State.

SECTION I. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That whenever the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company shall have procured bona fide subscriptions for the capital stock in said company to an amount sufficient to grade, bridge, and prepare for the iron rails the whole extent of the main trunk line proposed to be constructed by said company, and it shall be shown by said company to the Governor of the State that said subscriptions are good and solvent, and whenever said company shall have graded, bridged, and shall have ready to put down the necessary timbers for the reception of rails, and fully prepared a section of thirty miles of said road at either terminus, in a good and substantial manner, with good materials, for putting on the iron rails and equipments, and the Governor shall be notified of these facts, and that section, or any part thereof, is not subject to any lien whatever, other than those created in favor of the State by the acts of 1851–2, by the written affidavit of the Chief Engineers and President of said company, together with the written affidavit of a competent engineer by him appointed, at the cost of the company, to examine said section, then said Governor shall issue to said company coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, to an amount not exceeding eight thousand dollars per mile on said section, and on no other condition, which bonds shall be payable at such place in the United States as the President of the Company may designate, bearing an interest of six per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and not having more than forty nor less than thirty years to mature.

Sec. 2. Be it enacted, That the bonds before specified shall not be used by said company for any other purpose than for procuring the iron rails, chairs, spikes, and equipments for said section of said road, and for putting down said iron rails, and the Governor shall not issue the same unless upon the affidavit of said President, and a resolution of a majority of the Board of Directors, for the time being, that said bonds shall not be used for any other purpose than for procuring the said iron rails, chairs, spikes, and equipments for said section, and for putting down said iron rails, and the Governor shall have power to appoint a commissioner to act under oath, in conjunction with said President, in negotiating said bonds for the purposes aforesaid, and to act in any other matters pertaining to said company, where the interest of the State, in the opinion of the Governor, may require it.

SEC. 3. Be it enacted, That so soon as the BONDS of the State shall have been issued for the first section of the road as aforesaid, THEY shall constitute a lien upon said section so prepared as aforesaid, including the road-bed, right of way, grading, bridges, and masonry, upon all the stock subscribed for in said company, and upon said iron rails, chairs, spikes, and equipments, when purchased and delivered, and the State of Tennessee, upon the issuance of said bonds, and by virtue of the same shall be invested with said lien or mortgage without a deed from the company, for the payment by said company of said bonds, with the interest thereon as the same becomes due.

SEC. 4. Be it enacted, That when said company shall have prepared as aforesaid a second section, or any additional number of sections, of twenty miles each of said road, connecting with a section already completed for the iron rails, chairs, spikes, and equipments, as provided in the first section of this act, and the Governor shall be notified of the facts as before provided, he shall, in like manner, issue to said company like bonds of the State of Tennessee, to an equal amount with that before issued under the first section of the act for each and every section, of twenty miles of said road so prepared as aforesaid, but upon the terms and conditions hereinbefore provided, and upon the issuance of the said bonds, the State of Tennessee shall be invested with a like mortgage or lien without a deed from said company, upon said stock, and upon said first and additional section or sections of said road so prepared, upon the rails and equipments put, or to be put, upon the same, for the payment of said bonds and the accruing interest thereon. Provided, that if the last section of said road shall be less than twenty miles, or if the railroad proposed to be constructed by any company hereinafter specified, shall be less than thirty miles in extent, bonds of the State shall be issued for such section, or such railroad, as may be less than thirty miles in extent for an amount in proportion to the distance, as provided in this act, but upon the same terms and conditions in all respects, as required in regard to the bonds to be issued for the other sections of said road. And when the whole of said road shall be completed the State of Tennessee shall be invested with a lien, without a deed from the company, upon the entire road, including the stock, right of way, grading, bridging, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chairs, and the whole superstructure and equipments, and all the property owned by the company as incident to or necessary for its business; and all depots, and depot stations, for the payment of all of said bonds issued to the company as provided in this act, and for the interest accruing on said bonds. And after the Governor shall have issued bonds for the first section of the road, it shall not be lawful for the said company to give, create, or convey to any person or persons, or body corporate whatever, any lien, incumbrance, or mortgage of any kind which shall have priority over, or come in conflict with, the lien of the State herein secured; and any such lien, incumbrance, or mortgage shall be null and void as against said lien or mortgage of the State, which shall have priority over all other claims existing or to exist against said company.

SEC. 5. Be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of said company to deposit in the Bank of Tennessee, at Nashville, at least fifteen days before the interest becomes due from time to time, upon said bonds issued as aforesaid, an amount sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange or necessary commissions, or SATISFACTORY EVIDENCE THAT SAID INTEREST HAS BEEN PAID OR PROVIDED FOR, and if said company fail to deposit said interest as aforesaid, or furnish the evidence aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to report that effect to the Governor, and the Governor shall immediately appoint some suitable person or persons, at the expense of the company, to take possession and control of said railroad, and all the assets thereof, and manage the same and receive the rents, issues, profits, and dividends thereof, whose duty it shall be to give bond and security to the State of Tennessee, in such penalty as the Governor may require, for the faithful discharge of his or their duty as receiver or receivers, to receive said rents, issues, profits, and dividends, and pay over the same, under the direction of the Governor, toward the liquida- tion of such unpaid interest. And if said company fail or refuse to deliver up said road to the person or persons so appointed by the Governor, the person so appointed shall report that fact to the Governor, who shall forthwith issue his warrant, directed to the Sheriffs of the counties through which the road shall run, commanding them to take possession of said road, fixtures, and equipments, and everything pertaining thereto, and place the said receiver in full and complete possession of the same, and said receiver so appointed shall continue in the possession of said road, fixtures, and equipments, and run the same, and manage the entire road, until a sufficient sum shall be realized, exclusive of the costs and expenses incident to said proceedings, to pay off and discharge the interest as aforesaid, due on said bonds, which being done, the receiver shall surrender said road and fixtures and equipments to said company. The comptroller shall from time to time settle the accounts with the receiver, and the balance shall be deposited in the treasury of the State. The comptroller is authorized, and it is made his duty, upon his warrant to draw from the treasury any sum of money necessary to meet the interest on such bonds, as may not be provided for by the compauy, as provided for in this act, and the comptroller shall report thereof to the general assembly from time to time.

SEC. 6. Be it enacted, That if said company shall fail or refuse to pay any of said bonds when they fall due, it shall be the duty of the Governor to notify the Attorney-General of the district in which is situated the place of business of said company of the fact; and thereupon, said Attorney-General shall forthwith file a bill against said company in the name of the State of Tennessee, in the Chancery or Circuit Court of the county in which is situated said place of business, setting forth the facts, and thereupon said Court shall make all such orders and decrees in said cause as may be deemed necessary by tho Ceurt, to receive the payment of said bonds, with the interest thereon, and to indemnify the State of Tennessee, against any loss on account of the issuance of said bonds, by ordering the said railroad to be placed in the hands of a receiver; ordering the sale of said road, and all the property and assets attached thereto or belonging to said company, or in such other manner as the Court may deem best for the interest of the State.

Sec. 7. Be it enacted, That at the end of five years after the completion of said road, said company shall set apart one per centum per annum upon the amount of bonds issued to the company, and shall use the same in the purchase of bonds of the State of Tennessee, which bonds the company shall pay into the treasury of the State, after assigning them to the Governor, and for which the Governor shall give said company a receipt, and as between the State and said company, the bonds so paid in shall be a credit on the bonds issued to the company; and bonds so paid in, and the interest accruing thereon, from time to time, shall be held and used by the State as a sinking fund for the payment of the bonds issued to the company, and should said company repurchase any of the bonds issued to it under the provisions of this act, they shall be directed as aforesaid, AND CANCELED. And should said company fail to comply with the provisions of this section, it shall be proceeded against, as provided in the 5th section of this act.

Sec. 8. Be it enacted, That the President of the company shall make semi-annual reports, under oath, to the Governor, until the completion of said road, setting forth fully the condition of the road and the company, and after its completion he shall report to the Governor annually, showing the financial condition of the company, giving a statement of the trade and travel upon the road, the receipts and expenditures, net earnings, and dividends, and what per cent. is paid on the stock to the stockholders. And said reports shall be consolidated every two years by the President of said company, and said consolidated reports shall be laid before the Governor by the first of September, every two years after the completion of the road, and the Governor shall lay said report before the Legislature for its action, at the next meeting thereof, after said report is made.

Sec. 9. Be it enacted, That it shall not be lawful for any officer of said company to engage in any speculation or dealing, directly or indirectly, in any real estate on or along the line, at any of the depots or depot stations, or at either terminus of said road, until after the road is completed, and every officer of the company, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take an oath in writing, before any judge or justice of the peace in this State, that he will not knowingly violate the provisions of this act, and that he will faithfully perform the duties of his office; and if any such officer of the company, or other person taking an oath as herein provided, knowingly swear falsely, he shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and subject to all the pains and penalties thereof, and every affidavit required under this act may be sworn to before any judge or justice of the peace in this State.

SEC. 10. Be it enacted, That the provisions of this act shall extend to and embrace the Chattanooga, Harrison, Georgetown, and Charlestown Railroad Company, the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, the Southwestern Railroad, the McMinnville and Manchester Railroad Company, the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, the Nashville and Southern Railroad Company, the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, the Nashville and Memphis Railroad Company, the Nashville and Cincinnati Railroad Company, the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Company, the Memphis, Clarksville, and Louisville Railroad Company, and the Winchester and Alabama Railroad Company, so far as the main trunk roads to be constructed by said companies lie within the limits of this State, and not otherwise, and said companies shall have all the powers and privileges and be subject to all the restrictions and liabilities contained in this act.

SEC. 11. Be it enacted, That the gauge of all of said railroads (unless connecting with roads in other States of a different gauge) shall be the same as that of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, and not otherwise, and the iron rails to be put upon said road shall not be less than eighty tons to the mile, if the U rail is used, and not less than one hundred tons to the mile if the T rail is used.

SEC. 12. Be it enacted, That the State of Tennessee expressly reserves the right to enact by the Legislature thereof, hereafter, all such laws as may be deemed neces- sary to protect the interest of the State, and to secure the State against any loss IN CONSEQUENCE OF THE ISSUANCE OF BONDS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THIS ACT. BUT IN SUCH MANNER AS NOT TO IMPAIR THE VESTED RIGHTS OF THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE COMPANIES.

SEC. 13. Be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Governor, from time to time, when there shall be reliable information given to him that any railroad company shall have fraudulently obtained the issuance of bonds of this State, or shall have obtained any of said bonds contrary to the provisions of this act, he shall notify the Attorney-General of this State, whose duty it shall be forthwith to institute, in the name of the State, a suit in the Circuit or Chancery Court of the county of the place of business of the company, setting forth the facts; and when the fact shall satisfactorily appear to the Court, that any of said bonds shall have been fraudulently obtained, or obtained contrary to the true intent, meaning, and provisions of this act, then, and in such case, the Court shall order, adjudge, and decree, that said road lying in the State, with all the property and assets of said company, or a sufficiency thereof, shall be sold, and the proceeds shall be paid into the treasury, and it shall be the duty of the comptroller immediately to vest the same in stocks, creating a sinking fund, as provided for in the 7th section of this act; and said company shall forfeit all rights and privileges under the provisions of this act, and the stockholders thereof shall be individually liable for the payment of the bonds so fraudulently obtained by such company, and for all other losses that may fall upon the State in consequence of the commission of any other fraud by such company, excepting such stockholders as may show to the said Court that they were ignorant of or opposed to the perpetration of such frauds by the company.

SEC. 14. Be it enacted, That in the event any of the roads, fixtures, or property belonging to any of said roads shall be sold under the provisions of this act, it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint an agent for the State, who shall attend said sale and protect the interest of the State, and shall, if necessary to protect said interest, buy in said road or property, in the name of the State; and in case said agent shall purchase said road for the State, the Governor shall appoint a receiver, who shall take possession of said road and property, and use the same as provided for in the 5th section of this act, and said receiver shall settle with the comptroller semi-annually until the next meeting of the General Assembly.

SEC. 15. Be it enacted, That this act shall be deemed and taken to be a public act as to all purposes of notice: Provided, That should any of the companies hereinbefore enumerated have, bona fide, and before the passage of this act, purchased or otherwise contracted for, upon their own credit, the necessary iron, rails, spikes, equipments, for the road or roads, or any section or sections thereof, the bonds of the State shall be issued to such company or companies, as hereinbefore prescribed.

SEC. 16. Be it enacted, That the railroad companies specified in this act, and all other railroad companies hereafter incorporated in this State, shall have power to construct their roads so as to cross each other, if necessary, by the main trunks or branches, or to unite with each other, or with the branches thereof; and it shall be the duty of said companies, when required, to receive on their roads and branches, the full loaded freight cars from each other and the branches thereof, and transport the same to their destination, and return them, without charging for the transportation of the goods, wares, merchandise, and produce therein, any greater rate of freight than they charge for similar goods, wares, merchandise, and produce in their own cars. Provided, that said companies shall not be compelled to receive such cars on their roads, unless they are constructed with the same gauge, and are of equal strength with their own cars, of which the principal engineer of the road of which it is proposed to require said cars to be transported shall be the judge. Provided, that the bonds of the State, proposed to be issued to the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company under the provisions of this act, shall, in event of their issuance to said company, be divided between the main trunk line, proposed to be constructed by said company, and the branch thereof, from the town of Moscow to the town of Sommerville, in the county of Fayette, according to the respective lengths of said main trunk line and said branch; and the lien of the State, as herein secured, shall continue upon said main line, and also upon said branch, until said bonds and interest are paid, as heretofore provided.

SEC. 17. Be it enacted, That in all cases where bonds may be issued to any of said companies, as provided in this act, the State of Tennessee shall be entitled to two directors in each company, to be appointed by the Governor of the State, to which bonds may be issued.

SEC. 18. Be it enacted, That when the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company shall have completed twenty-five miles of their road, in addition to the eighty miles specified in the second section of the act, passed the 4th of February, 1848, chapter 169, then the Governor of the State shall indorse and guarantee, in the name and on behalf of the State of Tennessee, the bonds of said company to the amount of one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars, and in like manner, when another section of twenty-five miles of said road shall have been completed, the Governor of the State, in the name and on behalf of the State, shall indorse and guarantee the bonds of said company to the additional amount of one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars, and said bonds are to be indorsed and guaranteed in the same manner, and the same indemnity is to be furnished by said company for the protection of the State, and the like lien is to be given, and the same character of bonds are to be indorsed and guaranteed, as provided in the said act of the 4th of February, 1848.

SEC. 19. Be it enacted, That the aid contemplated by the first section of this act, shall only be extended to one of the roads chartered under the names of the Nashville and Southern Railroad Company, and the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company. Provided, That the first of said roads which shall secure the subscription of the capital stock, for the construction of the same, shall be entitled to such aid. Provided further, If the Nashville and Southern Railroad Company first obtained the stock in their railroad, as provided in the first section of this act, and shall construct their road to the Tennessee river, to the Mississippi State line, or to a point between the

Tennessee river and the Mississippi State line, then the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company may construct their road from the Alabama State line to intersect with the Nashville and Southern Railroad, at such point as said company may select, and the provisions of this act shall extend to the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad, from said Alabama State line to said point of intersection. But if the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company first obtain the stock in their railroad, as provided in the first section of this act, and construct their road to the Alabama line, in the direction of Florence, then the Nashville and Southern Railroad Company may construct their railroad from the Tennessee river, the Mississippi State line, or any point between the Tennessee river and the Mississippi State line, so as to intersect the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad, at such point as the company may select, and the provisions of this act shall extend to said railroad from said point of intersection to the Tennessee river, the Mississippi State line, or to any point between the Tennessee river, and the Mississippi State line. And the Nashville and Southern Railroad Company, and the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company, shall have power to unite or consolidate their stock if they deem it advisable, and upon such terms as the companies may agree upon. Provided also, that if the Memphis and Nashville Railroad Company shall not comply with the requirements of this act, and complete thirty miles of their road within four years; or if the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company shall, in like manner, fail to complete thirty miles of their road within four years, then the Tennessee Central Railroad Company shall have all the rights, powers, privileges, and benefits intended to be given by this act, to those companies respectively, under the same restrictions and limitations; but the said Tennessee Central Railroad Company shall be allowed two years longer time, in which to prepare thirty miles of their road-bed for the reception of the iron rails, and may then receive the aid of the State, in the issuance of bonds for their benefit, as prescribed in this act. Provided, That this provision shall not preclude any subsequent legislature from extending the time of four > years, in which to complete any section of thirty miles of said Nashville and Memphis, or Nashville and Northwestern Railroad. That each of said companies is hereby authorized and required to appoint an agent or agents to whom the bonds shall be delivered, and whose duty it shall be to control said bonds, and see that they are exclusively applied to the payment of the railroad iron and equipments, as provided for in this act, and for no other purpose whatever. And the said agent, before he receives the bonds of the State, shall give bond and security, to be approved by the Governor and payable to the State of Tennessee, for the application of the bonds, or the proceeds thereof, to the purposes aforesaid. Provided, That before any bonds, under the provisions of this act, shall be issued to any agent of any railroad contemplated by this act, the president of any such company shall first deposit in the office of the Secretary of State, a full, true, and accurate list of all the stockholders, with the sums subscribed by each and every stockholder.

> SEC. 20. Be it enacted, That no road embraced in this act shall be entitled to State aid unless it shall, within four years, complete at least one section of thirty miles, or the whole length of the road, if less than thirty miles long.

Those portions of the act of February 21st, 1852, providing for identification of the bonds, by means of public records, are as follows :

> SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, That the different Internal Improvement Companies, to whom the bonds of the State may be loaned under the different acts of the present Legislature, shall pay the expenses of engraving and preparing the same.
> SEC. 8. Be it enacted, That the Governor of the State shall cause to be engraved and printed, the bonds which may be issued under the acts of the present General Assembly, as a loan made to Internal Improvement Companies, and the said bonds shall bear date on the first day of January prior to their issuance, and the coupons thereto shall be payable on the first days of January and July of each year.

SEC. 9. Be it enacted, That the coupons shall be signed and numbered by the comptroller, and the bonds shall be countersigned, sealed, and numbered by the Secretary of State, and upon delivering said bonds to the company authorized to receive the same, the Secretary of State shall take a receipt, reciting the number, date, and amount of said bonds, in a well-bound book to be deposited in his office, and the Comptroller and Secretary of State shall each be entitled to receive twenty-five cents for each bond so prepared, to be paid by the party receiving the said bond.

Your orator shows that the State of Tennessee, by act of its General Assembly, passed on the 8th of February, 1854, increased the amount of bonds to be issued to the several "internal improvement companies from $8,000 to $10,000 per mile," and provision was made for an issue of similar bonds to be used for bridge purposes. The said act was amendatory of the act passed 11th of February, 1852, "to establish a system of internal improvement in this State," and required that the increased amount of bonds should be received, "upon the terms and conditions mentioned in the act, which this was intended to amend." By the act of February 17, 1854, the length of the sections which it was necessary for the railroads to complete before obtaining bonds of the State, was decreased from twenty to ten miles, after the completion of the first section of thirty miles. By the act of January 19, 1855, the foregoing act was amended so that the grading only of ten-mile sections was required, in lieu of the completion of said sections, as a preliminary to obtaining the issuance of bonds. The act of October 29, 1855, was amendatory of the bridge law, above mentioned.

Your orator attaches hereto copies of said acts above referred to, marked Exhibit B, and makes them a part of his bill of complaint.

Your orator shows that there was delivered on account of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and to the company of that name, internal improvement bonds of the State of Tennessee, being of the numbers, dates, and in the amounts hereinafter set forth:

A copy of one of the said bonds and coupons is hereto attached, marked Exhibit C.

Your orator shows that the said bonds, to the amount of $3,222,000, were received by or on behalf of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, through the officers appointed in the act of February 11, 1852, and were, by the said company negotiated and sold, in pursuance of law, to bona fide holders. The proceeds of these bonds were to be so applied as to enable the company to which they were loaned, to earn the interest and principal moneys of the said obligations.

About sixteen hundred and fifty-three of the said bonds are now outstanding in the hands of bona fide holders. Your orator is the owner and holder of thirty of said bonds, each for $1,000, being of the numbers, dates, and descriptions in all respects of the bonds heretofore described and issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company by the State of Tennessee; all of which bear date on or before January 1, 1860.

Your orator is likewise the holder of seven coupons, attached to each one of said bonds, the same representing the installments of interest for three and one-half consecutive years, beginning with the installment that fell due on the 1st of January, 1876, and including the installment of the first day of January, 1879, and amounting in the aggregate to twenty-one per cent. of the par or principal amount of each one of the aforesaid bonds.

Your orator shows that holders of said bonds are very numerous, and reside in foreign countries, as well as in different parts of the United States. Their names are in great part unknown to your orator, and they are therefore not made parties hereto.

And further complaining, your orator shows that the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and the other respondent herein, has failed to comply with the provisions of the general internal improvement law above recited, for the payment of the said installments of interest on your orator's bonds, and on the bonds of other holders in like situation; and the coupons of the bonds aforesaid are now in default and unpaid.

Your orator charges like defaults upon the coupons of all other of said bonds issued to said company, that have fallen due and have become payable by the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, according to the terms of the statute, on the first day of January, 1876; on the first day of July, 1876; on the first day of January, 1877; on the first day of July, 1877; on the first day of January, 1878; on the first day of July, 1878; and on the first day of January, 1879. The State of Tennessee is likewise in default on said coupons.

Your orator is entitled to the enforcement of the lien aforesaid, for the payment of interest on his bonds, and those of other holders, and for the appointment of receivers, under the powers and according to the usages of courts of equity, and for the purposes described in the statute.

Your orator further shows that it is provided by the statute, that upon default in the payment of interest by any of the Internal Improvement Companies, upon the bonds issued to it, the right to impound the rents, issues, profits, and dividends shall accrue, for the purpose of paying over the same toward the liquidation of the unpaid interest. For the execution of that purpose, it provides that some suitable person or persons shall be appointed as receivers, to take possession and control of said railroad, and all the assets thereof. Said receiver is to continue in possession and manage the entire road, until a sufficient sum shall be realized, exclusive of the costs and expenses incident to such proceedings, to pay off and discharge the interest due on the bonds.

And now your orator shows that the said railroad company pretends and claims that the aforesaid lien on its property is satisfied and discharged, without payment of the interest or principal of your orator's bonds, and that it is also absolved from the obligation which it assumed by the acceptance and use of the said bonds to pay the interest thereon.

It claims that the discharge of said incumbrance has been effected by and through the means of certain legislation, enacted in the years 1870 and 1871, many years after the sale of the said bonds, and while the same were outstanding and unpaid, as they still remain, in the hands of bona fide purchasers thereof.

Your orator shows that the said pretense is invalid and fraudulent, and he charges the case to be as follows:

During the late civil war the railroad companies did not pay the interest on the bonds issued to them, and after the war they still continued in great part in default in making the payments of interest on the said bonds. The State of Tennessee had likewise been in default during the same time. The market value of the bonds had meanwhile fallen very greatly, and the securities were very much depreciated, to about fifty per cent. or less of their par value.

Under these circumstances, the project was conceived of avoiding the liabilities of the corporations for the payment of the bonds loaned to them, and of enabling the State to reduce her unsecured debt at the expense of the holders of the internal improvement bonds. That project was to be enforced by treating the lien on the railroads as the absolute property of the State, without regard to the trust in favor of the holders of the bonds whose moneys the companies had received. The legislature was to be induced to proceed upon this basis, and to sell and assign the lien on each road, in consideration of the receipt by the State of an amount of its bonds from each company, without regard to whether they were the bonds issued to and the obligations of the company delivering them, and were entitled to the lien on its road. The procurement of such acts of the General Assembly of Tennessee was sought, as it was deemed would assist in the accomplishment of this project.

Your orator shows that, in pursuance of the above scheme, the General Assembly of Tennessee was induced to pass an act, on July 5, 1870, authorizing certain commissioners, therein named, to sell the interest of the State in all the railroad companies that had failed for two consecutive years to pay the interest upon the bonds that had been issued to them severally. The act further provided "that the said commissioners can dispose of the interest of the State of Tennessee in the defaulting railroads, for a sum of money equal to the amount of the bonds of the State of Tennessee, with unpaid interest due upon them, and which bid may be discharged and satisfied by an equal amount of the bonds of the State of Tennessee, with accrued interest, legally issued by the State of Tennessee in aid of said railroad, or for any other purpose."

Your orator shows that the commissioners named in said act were unable to obtain the minimum price contemplated by the above legislation, and consequently could not effect a sale thereunder.

Your orator shows that the act of December 22, 1870, was thereupon passed, and in and by the provisions of the said act, the commissioners therein named were authorized to sell the delinquent railroads for any amount of bonds of the State, including those not secured by liens upon these roads respectively, leaving the bonds so secured by liens still outstanding and unpaid. By those provisions such legislative purpose and mandate was expressed and was directed to the commissioners named as the executive officers to carry it into effect. This was the scope and design of the legislation, and the administration of these objects was intrusted to the Governor, Comptroller, Secretary of State, and three other commissioners.

The commissioners were authorized to dispose of the roads at public or private sale, as they might judge most advisable. These sales were to be legislative acts, deriving their entire force and efficacy from the statute.

By an act subsequently passed, on November 17, 1871, "the sales made by the commissioners" were, under certain conditions, "ratified, sanctioned, and confirmed, and said commissioners are authorized and fully empowered to place said purchaser or purchasers in full possession of said road so purchased." These directions were to be executed without any other authority than the will of the General Assembly. The said acts are hereto attached, marked Exhibit D, and are prayed to be taken as a part of this bill.

Your orator shows that, in pursuance of the above legislation, and by virtue of the claim of authority derived therefrom, the commissioners proceeded to effect a sale of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, to parties who took the same with full knowledge of the trusts in favor of the holders of the internal improvement bonds, as will more fully hereinafter be set forth. Of all the legislation in reference thereto, and all the proceedings thereunder, your orator has but lately become cognizant.

Your orator shows that all of the above acts and doings are void in law and fraudulent in fact. The purpose of the legislation was to convert the lien held in trust by the State for the State's benefit. The acts denominated it "to sell the State's interest," and this was to be done for any obligations of the State. The commissioners were, therefore, authorized to make such sale, and, in substance, to sell and assign the mortgage held by the State. This was a violation of the trust reposed in the State by contract with the purchasers of the bonds issued by it to the several companies. Its duty as the trustee of the security was merely to preserve it and enforce it as directed in the statute constituting the deed of trust. It could not so transfer the security, which it held in trust, as to confer a title upon another divested of the trust. The trust was embodied in a public law, and constituted express notice to everybody. No sale of the statutory lien was authorized by the acts constituting it, and no realization or enforcement of the lien, in any manner, contemplated, save and except for the benefit of the bondholders. All of the above legislative provisions for the transfer of the lien in consideration of other obligations of the State, whether for an amount equal to the issue of the internal improvement bonds, or for a less amount, are violations of contract, unconstitutional, and void.

Your orator further shows that the said act ordered and directed a sale of the said railroad, though the principal of the internal improvement bonds had not become due. For the failure of the corporations to pay interest, the general improvement law provided that a receivership should continue until the unpaid installments of interest had been satisfied. The investment of the bondholders was based on the continuance of their security for the life of the principal debt; they were not to be forced to call in their loans for non-payment of interest, but were to be entitled to all the benefits which could accrue from the property. There was a like provision for defaults in sinking fund payments, as for failure to pay interest. These were the rights of the bondholders, fixed by the contract in the general improvement law. The amendment of that law, providing for a sale for non-payment of interest installments, was enacted in 1867. The amendments to a similar purport, for non-compliance with the sinking fund requirements, were not sought to be enforced by the acts in question, for the sale of delinquent roads for the non-payment of interest, nor did those sinking fund provisions contemplate a sale of the roads.

Your orator shows, that the said acts sought to alter and impair the contract with the internal improvement bondholders, contained in the general law of 1852. They were a violation of the federal constitution, and conferred no right or authority on the commissioners to make the sales referred to, and could not enable them to give any title to purchasers thereof, save and except, it may be, in trust, for your orator and the other holders of the internal improvement bonds issued by the State of Tennessee to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company.

Your orator shows, that the acts purporting to confer jurisdiction of a judicial nature, as hereinafter set forth, violated the constitution of Tennessee, and were and are not laws of the land, and gave no jurisdiction to entertain the said special proceeding. For so it is that the constitution of the State of Tennessee provides against the passage of special laws inconsistent with the general laws of the land.

Your orator further shows that said acts likewise attempted to constitute a court of special andl limited jurisdiction. They defined its powers, and did not authorize any notification of the proceedings to be given to the holders of the State bonds issued to the companies. Without such authority no such notice could be given with any legal effect. The act prescribed a tribunal, which proceeded to pass upon the rights and property of the internal improvement bondholders without any provision for enabling them to be heard in defense of their rights. The said proceeding is void as respects the rights of the internal improvement bondholders, and they are entitled absolutely to disregard it.

The acts violated the constitution of Tennessee, and were void, because they sought to constitute a court of an officer who had already, as counsel, given an opinion upon the questions which it was sought to have formally adjudged, and that opinion was in favor of the views which the legislature sought to enforce.

The said acts also violated the Constitution of Tennessee in this, that they attempted to confer power, in its character non-judicial, upon a judicial tribunal.

Your orator shows that the said acts could not confer any judicial power to determine or adjudicate upon questions that might arise in the future. No judicial power exists for any such purpose, nor any judicial machinery which can be lawfully used therefor. Neither a legislature nor a court can create questions for the purpose of predetermining them and cutting off the rights of parties not aware of such a sham proceeding. In all the above respects the legislature did, in legal effect, provide only for the opinion of Edward H. East individually, and as advisory to those who were about to risk moneys in the attack upon the security of the internal improvement bondholders.

In all the above respects, those portions of the statutes in reference to judicial proceedings were void. They did not create any court or authority, or give any validity to the proceeding contemplated.

Your orator shows that, pending the said sales by the legislative commissioners, it was deemed advisable to elicit an expression of opinion from an incumbent of some judicial office in the State of Tennessee, in reference to the vailidity of the attack made upon the liens and rights of the internal improvement bondholders.

The general improvement law of 1852 provided that when a bill should be filed to obtain a sale of the roads in the enforcement of the lien of the bonds issued to them, and to receive the payment of said bonds, with the interest thereon, the proceeding should be instituted in the Chancery or Circuit Court of the county in which is situated the place of business of said company.

Your orator shows that about the time of the passage of the act hereinafter referred to, and during the year 1870, an opinion of Edward H. East and others, counsel for the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company (the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company being one of the corporations whose roads had been built with the moneys of bondholders who had purchased the bonds issued to it and its several integral parts), had been printed and extensively circulated in the State of Tennessee, That opinion was to the effect that the lien of the bonds on the several roads to which they were issued, and which lien was vested in the State for their payment, was the absolute and peculiar property of the State of Tennessee, which she could treat in any manner she saw fit, without regard to any trust in favor of the bond-holders.

Edward H. East had become the Chancellor or Judge of the Chancery Court at Nashville, and then and thereupon the General Assembly enacted that a bill "shall be immediately filed in the Chancery Court at Nashville," although Nashville was not within the county wherein the places of business of nearly all said companies were situated. The said Court was adopted as a special tribunal for the purposes of the act, and "invested with exclusive jurisdiction to hear, adjudicate, and determine all questions of law and matters of controversy of whatever nature, whether of law or fact, that have arisen, or that may arise," in respect to the subject-matter therein referred to.

The act proceeds: "The judge of said Court is hereby empowered and especially requested to appoint a special term of said Court, to be held on the first Monday in March, 1871, for the purpose of expediting a speedy determination of the various matters contemplated by this act."

The parties defendant to the bill are to be "all the delinquent companies, the respective stockholders, holders of the bonds, creditors, and all persons interested in the said several roads."

The questions whose determination was sought to be anticipated and foreclosed were those to arise between the State and any or all of the parties interested in said roads;" and the judge was "to define as may be thought proper what shall be the rights and duties and liabilities of a purchaser of the State's interest in said roads."

Without exception as to fact or law, it was further provided that "the parties, or any of them, may, in person or by attorney, with the consent of the attorney for the State, make an agreed case, submitting all such questions as they may think proper to the immediate decision of the Court."

The time for prosecuting an appeal or writ of error was limited to thirty days from final decree, "in view of the urgent public necessity for a speedy determination." In case of appeal or writ of error, the Supreme Court "is specially empowered and respectfully requested to take up, and finally dispose of the case, in preference to all other cases on the docket, and, if not in session, to appoint a special term for the immediate hearing of the same." But your orator shows that all of the above ceremony was to be "preliminary to a sale of the State's interest in the road, as declared by the said act."

There was no provision in the acts for making any of the holders of the internal improvement bonds parties to the said proceeding. By the amended bill in the cause, the complainant alleged that it could find only one holder of the State bonds issued by any of the delinquent railroads. This single holder of a single bond on but two out of eleven of these roads was made a defendant, and an order of publication directed for "holders of bonds issued by the State to said companies," to be made in two Nashville newspapers.

Dempsey Weaver, the bondholder aforesaid, filed a form of answer in which "this respondent submits to the honorable court the whole question of his rights and lien, if any, in said roads."

On the 6th day of July, 1871, a decree was entered, reciting as follows:

> "It further appearing that of the roads whose debts have thus been ascertained, the East Tennessee Company and Western North Carolina Railroad have declined a contest with the State in regard to the sale of the State's interest in its road, and a decree has been rendered accordingly for a sale of such interest by the commissioners at once; that all the residue of said companies, except the Southwestern Railroad Company, have consented to a sale of their said several roads, with all their rights, privileges, and franchises, and decrees have been entered accordingly, preference for a limited time being, by such decrees, conceded to the said companies respectively, and then to their stockholders, or such of them as choose to join in the purchase, to become > the purchasers of their said several roads at the minimum price fixed by the Court, in accordance with the act of December 21, 1870, chapter 23, and that a decree has been made for a sale of the South-western Railroad Company. It further appearing that it is made the duty of this Court, by the said act, to adjudicate and determine all questions of law and matters of controversy of whatever nature, whether of law or fact, that have arisen, or may arise, touching the rights and interest of the State, and also of the stockholders, bondholders, creditors, and others, in said roads, and likewise to define, as may be thought proper, what shall be the rights, duties, and liabilities of a purchaser of the State's interest in said roads, or either of them, and what shall be the reserved rights of said companies, stockholders, and others, respectively, as against said purchasers, after such sale, under the existing laws of the State; and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the Court, that the holders of the State bonds issued by the State to the said several companies are properly made defendants to this suit, and are sufficiently represented by the holders of such bonds as are made defendants by name, or have come in and answered."

Your orator shows that the proceedings before Chancellor East are null and void, and do not constitute any bar of the rights of the complainant, inasmuch as the bill was filed by a trustee, in disaffirmance of his trust, and preliminary to an attempted destruction of the trust security for his own advantage. In that proceeding the cestuis que trust were necessary parties. The statute gave no authority to bring them into the cause, and the service and publication and appearance were coram non judice, and lent no authority to the judgment which was entered.

The proceedings were not judicial, nor within the jurisdiction of the Court, but were purely matters of convention and agreement, as appears on the face of the decree itself.

There was no Court organized under the constitution of Tennessee, because Edward H. East, the sole presiding judge, had given an opinion as counsel in favor of the claims, which the State sought to exercise.

And so it was that the said Edward H. East proceeded to reiterate from the bench an opinion to the same effect as the one he had pronounced as counsel. And the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, being the lessee for years of the said Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company, availed itself of the said opinions to become the purchaser of one of the largest properties sold by the commissioners, to wit, the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad.

The Court had no authority to confirm the sales made by the commissioners, and all its action in that respect was coram non.

Your orator shows that the litigation was purely fictitious. The chancellor confessedly passed upon all questions that might arise after everything had been consented to, and there were no questions before him.

Your orator shows that the entire transaction, both in its legislative and judicial forms, exhibits violations of trust and patent fraud, and binds the purchasers of the property as trustees for the Internal Improvement bondholders.

The complainant sought an expression of opinion from an officer of Court, to facilitate her in obtaining a better price for property of which her legislature had directed a sale to take place for her sole benefit, and in violation of her trust. This sale was accompanied by a ceremonious litigation, but was not made by virtue of the same, nor was any power conferred on the Court to prevent or in any manner affect the sale or the receipt of the trustees' obligations for the property of her cestuis que trust. The defendants united in this purpose, and consented to its being carried out, upon condition that they should have the advantages of it, by delivering depreciated State obligations at their face value for them. Other benefits were to be received by the corporations and their stockholders, as appears from the record of the proceedings, of which your orator will bring proof on the hearing. The expenses of the respondent were, by like consents, paid out of the proceeds of the property.

The purchaser was the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, which was also a recipient of bonds under the Internal Improvement Laws aforesaid. The Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company had appealed from the decree to the Supreme Court, but, at a special meeting of the stockholders, a resolution was passed to abide by the result, if the purchaser would pay the stockholders five per cent. on the par of their stock. This was done with a majority of the stockholders, but, in some instances, the stockholders received ten per cent. on the par of their stock. Thereafter consolidations with the purchaser were effected which placed the property in the custody of the respondent, the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad Company.

Your orator further avers and shows that the said pretenses and claims are illegal, void, and fraudulent. The defendants never had, nor have they, any right to affect or impair the contract and lien which was created and entered into by and between the holders of the internal improvement bonds loaned by the State of Tennessee to the railroad company, and the State of Tennessee as trustee of the said lien or mortgage, and the railroad company as the debtor under the said contract and lien.

Your orator further charges that by the terms of the general improvement law of February 11, 1852, the State of Tennessee constituted herself the trustee for whomsoever might become the holders of the bonds loaned to the several railroad companies named in the act. The terms of that trust were defined and set forth in the sections of the statute.

By the acceptance of the bonds, and the use of their proceeds by the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, a mortgage lien attached to the property of the company, without a deed from the company, and the conditions of that mortgage were as prescribed in the statute. By the purchase of the said bonds, the holders thereof became entitled, by contract, to the lien rights set forth in the internal improvement law. That lien was distinctly specified to be for the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds issued to them.

Your orator charges that the acts, of date subsequent to the issuance of said bonds, in so far as they attempt, or may be construed to have authorized the satisfaction of the statutory lien established for the benefit of the holders of the internal improvement bonds of Tennessee loaned to the said company, by any other means than payment, impaired or sought to impair the obligation of the contract aforesaid, and were in violation of the federal constitution, and void, and all acts committed thereunder are illegal and null.

And your orator furthermore shows that no advisory proceeding of a chancellor, declaring his opinion of the legal effect of the acts of the Tennessee General Assembly, and of the execution of those acts, can affect your orator's rights and those of the other internal improvement bondholders, especially when he and they were not parties to the proceeding nor cognizant of its existence, and when the opinion of the sole presiding judge had already been elicited as counsel adversely to the rights of the bondholders.

Your orator likewise shows that, by virtue of his right in equity as a lienholder and the terms of the statutory mortgage above described, he is entitled to have the possession of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, in the State of Tennessee, secured by a receivership, for the benefit of the holders of the internal improvement bonds aforesaid, issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and for the payment of the interest thereon, for which the said company became bound. The receiver or receivers so to be appointed should apply the revenues of the property to the payment of the overdue interest on said bonds.

Your orator shows that the officials of the State of Tennessee, named in the internal improvement law for the execution of the trusts pertaining to the statutory receivership, to wit, the comptroller and the governor, claim to be bound by the subsequent acts of the General Assembly of Tennessee, passed in the years 1870 and 1871, to abstain from any action toward the enforcement of said trust, and your orator is unable to obtain the action of the said officials, or of the State of Tennessee, as trustee for the execution of the trusts aforesaid. Your orator shows that he is remediless at law and without the intervention of a court of equity.

Wherefore, your orator prays that the priority of the said lien of the internal improvement bonds and coupons aforesaid, upon all the railroad equipment, incomes, tolls, rights, privileges, property, and franchises of said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, within the State of Tennessee, may be established above all other claims and demands, as constituting the first and paramount incumbrance on said property and rights. That the income of said property, arising from its use in said State, may be applied to the payment of interest accrued and to accrue upon the bonds hereinbefore described, and as may appear by proofs before a master to be still outstanding and unpaid. That the said property may be seized by order of this Court, and placed in the hands of receivers, to be administered according to the liens and trusts declared upon it, and to which it has been pledged and covenanted to be applied.

And, may it please your Honors, to grant unto your orators such further or other and different relief in the premises, as the nature of the case may require, and be consistent with equity and good conscience.

May it please your Honors, to grant unto your orator writs of subpœna of the United States of America, to be directed to the said Nashville and Northwestern, and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad Companies and against all other persons interested in this matter and amenable to the jurisdiction of this Court, when discovered, thereby commanding them and every one of them, at a certain day and under a certain penalty therein to be specified, personally to be and appear before your Honors, in this honorable Court, and then and there to answer all and singular the premises, and to stand to, perform, and abide such orders and decrees therein as to your Honors shall seem meet.

Solicitors, and of Counsel for Complainant.

The provisions of this Act shall extend to all railroad companies mentioned in the aforesaid Act, passed February 11, 1852, whose charters, routes, or names have been, or may hereafter be, changed; and if any two or more of said companies shall be consolidated, they, or the consolidated company, shall still be entitled to the provisions of this Act.

ACT OF JULY 5, 1870.

AN ACT authorizing the sale and transfer of the interest of the State in delinquent railroad companies.

WHEREAS, Under an act of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, passed December 7, 1867, entitled "An Act to amend the Internal Improvement Laws of this State, passed February 11, 1852," the Governor, Secretary of State, and Comptroller are empowered, in their discretion, upon the failure of any of the railroad companies mentioned in said act, "for two consecutive years, to pay the interest that may accrue upon the bonds loaned to them severally," to sell the railroad track, railing, rolling stock, etc., upon such terms and conditions as they may deem best to secure the interest of the State, "and shall retain of the proceeds of said sale the amounts loaned to said companies, and the interest due on the same, with expenses of said sale;" and,

WHEREAS, "The time has arrived when it is necessary to protect the interests of the State, and to secure the State from loss, in consequence of the issuance of bonds to the several railroad companies of the State, that a sale should be made of the interest of the State in each and every railroad company in this State, which has heretofore failed to pay the interest that has accrued on the bonds of the State loaned to it, or which may hereafter fail to pay the interest as it accrues on the bonds of the State loaned to it;" and,

WHEREAS, It is important to relieve the people of the burden now upon them, and by wise legislation endeavor to restore the public credit, which can be done by a proper enforcement of the legal rights of the State of Tennessee as against said railroad companies so in default; therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the Governor of the State, Secretary of the State, and Comptroller of the Treasury, and Robert J. McKinney, of Knox county; Francis B. Fogg, of Davidson county, and Archibald Wright, of Shelby county, be, and the same are hereby appointed commissioners to sell the interest of the State of Tennessee in all the railroad companies of the State, "to whom the bonds of the State have been loaned, by the act of December 7, 1867, or former acts, and which have failed, for two consecutive years, to pay the interest that have accrued upon bonds loaned to them severally;" and also in all railroad companies that may hereafter fail to pay the interest that may, or has, accrued on the bonds loaned to them severally, or that are now in default of payment of the interest which has accrued upon the bonds loaned to them severally, with full authority to make and perfect said sales in all cases where the said commissioner can dispose of the interest of the State of Tennessee in the defaulting railroad, for a sum of money equal to the amount of the bonds of the State of Tennessee, with unpaid interest due upon them, and which bid may be discharged and satisfied by an equal amount of the bonds of the State of Tennessee, with accrued interest, legally issued by the State of Tennessee, in aid of said railroad company, or for any other purpose, and with full power to place the purchaser or purchasers in the quiet possession of the railroad so purchased.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That if any receiver, who shall have control of any or either of the railroads of the State, and which road may be sold by the commissioners, under the first section of this act, shall refuse to give possession of said railroad track, railing, rolling stock, etc., to the purchaser, upon demand the Governor of the State shall issue his warrant to the sheriffs of the different counties through which the road may run, commanding them to put the purchaser or purchasers in possession of the railroad, its property and effects, and the receivers so refusing shall be guilty of a high crime, and, upon conviction, shall be fined in a sum of not less than one thousand dollars, and imprisoned at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That in the event said commissioners can not sell said defaulting railroads, or either of them, for the amount and upon the terms as prescribed in the first section of this act, then the said commissioners are authorized, after giving such public notice as they may deem advisable or necessary, to receive sealed bids from any person, persons, or corporation for the purchase of either of the delinquent railroads of the State, and, after giving thirty days' notice of the time and place, shall open the bids so made, and the said commissioners will report to this or some subsequent General Assembly the best bid offered, with such recommendation as to them may seem best for the interest of the State, for the approval or rejection of the General Assembly.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That no less than four of the commissioners named in this act shall be competent to perform any duties required by this act.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, That the commissioners, in making a sale of the interest of the State in any of the railroads, shall give the preference to the purchaser or purchasers, who will obligate himself or themselves, to operate the road so purchased over its entire line, from terminus to terminus; and that as the public welfare demands it, this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

An Act to Amend the Act of 1870, chapter 79, for the sale of Interest of the State in Delinquent Railroad Companies, passed July 1, 1870.

WHEREAS, In the recent attempt to sell the State's interest in said roads, various legal questions arose, presenting serious obstacles to a sale under the act of 1870, which it is deemed expedient and necessary to obviate before the interest of the State in said roads shall be again offered for sale; and, whereas, by the act of 1862, chapter 151, section 12, the right is expressly reserved to the State to enact all such laws in the future as shall be deemed necessary to protect the interest of the State, and to secure the State against any loss in consequence of the issuance of bonds under the provisions of said act, in such manner as not to impair the vested rights of stockholders of the companies, therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That a bill shall be immediately filed in the Chancery Court at Nashville, in the name and on behalf of the State, to which all the delinquent companies, the respective stockholders, holders of the bonds, creditors, and all persons interested in the said several roads, shall be made parties defendant, and shall be brought before the Court, in the mode prescribed by the rules of practice in chancery established in the State, except as otherwise herein provided. And said Court is hereby invested with exclusive jurisdiction to hear, adjudicate, and determine all questions of law and matters of controversy, of whatever nature, whether of law or of fact, that have arisen or that may arise touching the rights and interest of the State, and also of the stockholders, bondholders, creditors and others in said roads; and to make all such rules, orders, and decrees, interlocutory and final, as may be deemed necessary in order to a final and proper adjustment of the rights of all the parties, preliminary to a sale of the interest of the State in said road. Also, to declare the exact amount of indebtedness of each of said companies to the State; and likewise to define, as may be thought proper, what shall be the rights, duties, and liabilities of a purchaser of the State's interest in said roads, or either of them, and what shall be the reserved rights of said companies, stockholders, and others respectively, as against said purchasers, after such sale, under the existing laws of this State.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That the judge of said Court is hereby empowered, and specially requested to appoint a special term of said Court, to be held on the first Monday in March, 1871, for the purpose of expediting a speedy determination of the various matters contemplated by this act; and it shall be the duty of the clerk of said Cuort, immediately on the filing of said bills, to issue process and make publication in the manner before indicated, requiring the defendants to appear at said special term; and the defendants shall be severally required at said term to put in such defense to said bills as they may respectively deem proper, provided that it is consistent with the code. And in order to save expense, said parties, or any of them, may, in person or by attorney, with the consent of the attorney for the State, make an agreed case, submitting all such questions as they may think proper, to the immediate decision of the Court. And it is further provided, that in the discretion of the Court, formal pleadings may be dispensed with by a simple statement on the record of the points or matters relied upon by the parties, and sought to be decided by the Court.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That if an account, on behalf of either of the parties, shall seem to the Court proper and necessary, touching any matters of fact in issue between the parties, an immediate reference of the same shall be made to the clerk and master, or, if thought preferable, to such special commissioner as the Court may appoint, who shall proceed at once to take such account, and make a report to an adjourned term of the Court, within such period as the Court shall limit, not exceeding twenty days from the date of the decree ordering the account. And at such adjourned term final action shall be had upon said report. But the taking of such account shall not postpone the determination of all such questions of law presented by the parties as are not involved in the matters of account ordered to be taken.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That competent counsel shall be retained on behalf of the State, by the commissioners, whose duty it shall be, immediately on the passage of this act, to file a bill in said Chancery Court, so framed as to elicit a determination by the Court of all questions of law and matters of controversy now existing, or that may hereafter arise between the State and any or all of the parties interested in said roads, and to conduct the suit and superintend its progress, with a view to the speediest practicable determination; and for such services said counsel shall be paid a fair compensation out of the public treasury.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, That, upon a final decree being made by the Chancellor, settling the rights of the parties, either party shall have the right of appeal on writ of error to the Supreme Court, in the usual mode, except that the time for prosecuting a writ of error is hereby limited—in view of the urgent public necessity for a speedy determination—to thirty days from the final decree, and in case of an appeal or writ of error to the Supreme Court, a transcript of the record, or such part thereof as may be thought necessary, shall be filed in the office of the Supreme Court at Nashville, within said period of thirty days.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, That in the case of an appeal or writ of error to the Supreme Court, as herein provided for, the judges thereof, in view of the pressing exigencies of the State, are hereby specially empowered, and respectfully requested, as soon as the transcript of the record shall be filed in the office of said Court, if then in session, to take up and finally dispose of the case, in preference to all other cases on the docket, and if not in session, to appoint a special term for the immediate hearing of the same.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, That in case any of the said railroad companies should decline a contest with the State in regard to the sale of the State's interest in their roads, a sale may at once be made, and, upon the final determination of any controversy that may arise between the State and any of said railroad companies in the Chancery or Supreme Court, the interest of the State in such roads shall immediately be brought to sale by the commissioners.

SEC. 8. Be it further enacted, That a specific value shall be fixed upon the State's interest in each of said roads by the decree of the Court, and the commissioners shall be authorized to dispose of the same at such valuation, either at public or private sale, as they may judge most advisable; and if a sale of any of the roads can not be made at such valuation, the same shall be sold for the highest price that can be obtained.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, That the interest of the State in either of said railroad companies may be sold on time, and the amount agreed to be paid by the purchasers may be discharged in any of the outstanding legal bonds of this State; but a sale on time shall be upon the following express conditions: The purchaser at the time of sale shall pay, or deliver to the governor, at least one-fourth of the amount agreed to be paid, in legal bonds of the State, and shall execute a bond with sufficient security to the governor for the delivery of the remainder of the bonds to be paid at intervals of one, two, and three years from the date of the sale, in like legal bonds of the State, and also to pay into the treasury from the time of his purchase an amount equal to the interest accruing semi-annually from the remaining three-fourths of the bonds, to be thereafter delivered by him, until the whole amount shall be delivered to the Governor, said interest to be paid as the bonds mature; and it is expressly declared that the failure of the purchaser to pay or deliver to the Governor any subsequent installment of bonds as above provided, when the same shall fall due, shall work an absolute forfeiture to the State of all and every payment previously made; and, in addition, his interest in such road shall be resold by the commissioners, after forty days' notice, to meet the default in payment by him.

SEC. 10. Be it further enacted, That upon the sale of any of the franchises of either of the railroad companies, by the commissioners, under the provisions of this Act, all the rights, privileges, and immunities appertaining to the franchise so sold under its Act of incorporation, and the amendments thereto, and the general improvement law of the State and Acts amendatory thereof, shall be transfered to and vest in such purchaser, and the purchaser shall hold said franchise, subject to all liens and liabilities in favor of the State, as now provided by law against the railroad companies.

SEC. 11. Be it further enacted, That whenever hereafter, any existing railroad company, to which bonds of the State have been issued or loaned, or any railroad company to be hereafter created, shall fail to pay the State the interest due thereon, for the benefit of the bondholders, or should fail to pay in as required by law, the sinking fund, they may be proceeded against, in the Chancery Court at Nashville, in the same manner as above provided in regard to existing delinquent railroads.

SEC. 12. Be it further enacted, That this Act shall take effect from and after its passage, the public welfare requiring it.

Governor.

AN ACT to enable the Railroad Commissioners for the State, for the sale of delinquent railroads, to perfect their sales, and place the purchasers in possession. Passed November 17, 1871.

Whereas, The Commissioners are hindered to some degree in the final consummation of one or more of their contracts of sale, by reason of litigation on the part of adverse claimants; and

Whereas, In one or more instances of sale, the option is reserved to the purchaser or purchasers of taking the interests of the State, in the road contracted to be purchased by him or them; and

Whereas, It is manifestly to the interest of the State that the work entrusted to the said Commissioners should be completed at the earliest day practicable; therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That with the view of removing all embarrassments and facilitating the accomplishment of the purposes above indicated, the said Commissioners, viz: the Hons. Robert J. McKinney, Francis B. Fogg, Archibald Wright, the Governor, the Comptroller, and the Secretary of State, or a legal quorum of their number, be and they are hereby authorized and fully empowered to make and carry into full effect, on the part of the State, any settlement or adjustment with parties litigant adversely to the State that to them may seem equitable between the parties, and advantageous to the interest of the State.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That in the event the purchaser or purchasers in any of the sales so made by the Commissioners, in which was reserved to him or them the option of taking the State's interest, should elect to take the interest of the State, then the sale is hereby ratified, sanctioned, and confirmed; and said commissioners are authorized and fully empowered to place the said purchaser, or purchasers, in full possession of said road so purchased, and all its appurtenances, in the manner provided for in sections 1 and 2 of an act passed July 5, 1870, entitled "An Act authorizing the sale and transfer of the interest of the State, in delinquent railroad companies," any act, or acts, with regard to the qualification or appointment of receivers to the contrary notwithstanding.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That in any instance where the said commissioners, including specially the Governor, Comptroller, and Secretary of State, may have contracted to sell the railroad track, railing, rolling stock, etc., of any railroad company, which, for two consecutive years, prior to said sale, may have failed to pay the interest accrued upon the bonds loaned to it by the State, and which may have accepted aid from the State under an act passed December 7, 1867, entitled an "Act to amend the Internal Improvement laws of the State," passed February 11, 1852, in such case the sale so made shall be valid and operative, as against the State, and said company, to all intents and purposes, to transfer (without warranty of title to the interests of said company) said railroad track, railing, rolling stock, etc., to the purchaser or purchasers in said sale.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That upon the consummation of the sale of any railroad, or the State's interests therein, that may have been leased by act of the General Assembly, with the reserved right to the State to terminate the same, then the said lease shall instantly terminate, and the State be no further liable for any expenditures by the lessee upon said railroad, nor for any further losses resulting thereafter from the operation of the same.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That this act take effect from and after its passage, the public welfare requiring it.

Calvin Amory Stevens, on behalf of the Holders of Internal Inprovement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company,

The Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company et al.

ANSWER.

EAST & FOGG,
R. McP. SMITH,
Solicitors, and of Counsel for Respondents.

THE ANSWER OF THE NASHVILLE, CHATTANOOGA AND ST. LOUIS RAILWAY (SUMMONED, IN THIS CASE, BY THE NAME OF "THE NASHVILLE, CHATTANOOGA AND ST. LOUIS RAILROAD COMPANY"), DEFENDANT, TO THE BILL OF COMPLAINT FILED BY CALVIN AMORY STEVENS IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE MIDDLE DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

This respondent, for answer unto so much of said bill as it is advised is material for it to make answer unto, answering, says:

This respondent is a corporation chartered by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee on the 11th day of December, 1845, to construct and operate a railroad from the city of Nashville to Chattanooga, on the Southern border of the State, by the name of "The Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company," its name being afterwards changed to that of "The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway."

On the 22d of January, 1852, the said General Assemby chartered a company to build and operate another railroad from the city of Nashville in a northwesterly direction, "and terminating on the Mississippi River in Obion County," under the name and style of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company.

Whether said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company is now a corporation in the State of Tennessee, respondent submits to the Court, under its history, as given herein. Respondent admits that said two companies were endowed with all the capacities and powers charged in the bill.

Respondent admits that on the 11th of February, 1852, the General Assembly passed an act known as the "General Internal Improvement Law," referred to in complainant's bill as "An act to establish a system of internal improvements." This act applied to railroads. Long prior to said act the General Assembly had passed an act relative to giving aid to turnpike companies.

Respondent says that said two acts were passed in obedience to art. XI, sec. 9, of the then Constitution of the State, which was as follows: "A well regulated system of internal improvement is calculated to develop the resources of the State, and promote the happiness and prosperity of her citizens, therefore it ought to be encouraged by the General Assembly."

Respondent admits that the act of the 11th of February, 1852, is substantially set out in complainant's bill, but not that the same is literally set forth, and respondent especially denies the punctuation and italics with which it is set out in said bill, and the construction sought to be put upon the same therein. Respondent will, at the hearing, produce the same, together with its amendments, as published in the statutes of the State.

Respondent is content to deny to complainant the rights he claims under said acts, without specifying herein the arguments or reasons for its conclusion, or taking up said act and its amendments, section by section, and commenting upon the same, but will submit respondent's views in the briefs of its solicitors.

Respondent does not know what bonds, or how many, were issued to said company, or at what time or under what circumstances, or whether the same were lawfully issued or not; nor does it know whether the bonds so issued were sold at par or less; nor does it know whether the officers of the State kept any record of the bonds so issued in any form, nor whether the same can now be traced or identified, nor whether the bonds now claimed by complainant were ever issued to said company; but will require complainant to prove these facts, so far as they are material to his rights.

Respondent says that it is informed, believes, and charges, that the bonds issued in aid of railroad companies by the State were purely and simply State bonds, the State being the payor and the bearer the payee, and were negotiable without endorsement, and that the names of the railroad companies to which they were issued did not appear upon the same in any manner; and respondent admits that Exhibit C to complainant's bill is a true copy of one of said bonds.

Respondent further answering says that the bonds so issued were put upon the market and sold as obligations of the State of Tennessee alone; and respondent says that while the State issued many bonds for different purposes, and many of these were not supported by any lien, real or pretended, all of her bonds sold alike in the market.

Respondent further answering says that none of said bonds were put upon the market and sold, or were negotiated, with the understanding or agreement that the same were secured by any lien whatever, and that the idea of a lien is an afterthought—not conceived until the State became financially disabled, and there arose an apprehension of repudiation, and that even then all the bonds retained the same market value, so far as the question of a lien was concerned, and if there has been any appreciable difference in the value of said bonds, it arose from political considerations solely. The bonds issued for general purposes, the bonds issued to solvent companies, the bonds issued to insolvent companies, were all of the same market value.

Whether complainant has a lien upon said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad or the property of the company, has now become n judicial question.

to be determined upon the acts of the General Assembly relative thereto; and complainant is content to deny said lien, but will cheerfully submit said acts to the Court.

Respondent has always understood that as these bonds were issued to the respective companies when just coming into life and unknown to the money lenders of the world, and having neither property nor reputation to secure the loans, while the State, before the war, was of good repute in the money markets of the world, its bonds selling at par or nearly so, the State made and issued her obligations and put the same in the hands of the company or its officers, as set out in said acts, to be sold and the proceeds applied as directed therein; and to secure herself as creditor of the companies she retained a lien in her own favor, and coupled the issuance of the bonds and the rights of the subsequent holders thereof, with the right on her part "to enact all such laws as may be deemed necessary to protect the interest of the State, and to secure the State against any loss in consequence of the issuance of bonds under the provisions of this act, but in such manner as not to impair the vested rights of the stockholders of the companies."

It is certain that the most casual reading of said Act of February 11, 1852, and its amendment, will disclose to the reader the fact that the State did preserve a lien to herself as creditor, not as endorser or surety, and it would be somewhat surprising if the bondholders have a lien also, as we should then have two independent liens arising upon the face of the same act and by the same words. Sec. 3 of said act does declare "that so soon as the bonds of the State shall have been issued for the first section of the road as aforesaid, they shall constitute a lien upon said section, etc." But in whose favor does this lien arise? Said section declares, "and the State of Tennessee upon the issuance of said bonds, and by virtue of the same, shall be invested with said lien or mortgage without a deed from the company, for the payment by said company of said bonds, with interest thereon as the same becomes due." Sec. 4 of said act, among other things, provides that the State's lien shall have priority over any other lien, and that any such lien "shall be null and void as against said lien or mortgage of the State, and the said lien or mortgage of the State shall have priority over all other claims existing or to exist against said company." If complainant can establish any lien whatever, it must, if there be any power in language, be subordinate to that of the State. If complainant has any "claim" against said road or its property, no matter when the same came into existence, it must yield to the "priority" of the State. Complainant submits to the Court whether said act and its amendments do not clearly assert the State's lien upon the road, its property, etc., and the priority of the same, over all other claims or liens; and this being true, whether it is necessary thereafter ingeniously to construe the statute to ascertain whether by some verbal legerdemain it connot be made to yield a lien by implication in favor of some one else.

Respondent has no knowledge, information or belief as to the number of bonds now outstanding against said company, and will require complainant to prove the number held by him as claimed, and to identify them. Respondent admits that said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company has paid neither interest nor sinking fund, and that the State has paid no interest from January, 1876, to the present time.

Respondent denies that either the company or the State ever conceived the project of avoiding the liabilities of the corporation or of enabling the State to reduce her unsecured debt at the expense of the holders of the internal improvement bonds.

Respondent denies that it was ever supposed in Tennessee by the Legislature, that the lien on the railroads was other than the absolute property of the State. The claim on the lien on behalf of the State has been asserted in almost every act relating to the subject of State aid to railroad companies passed since the incorporation of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company. Respondent admits that Exhibit D to complainant's bill is a true copy of the acts of the General Assembly which it purports to give in relation to the sale of the roads, but insists, and will show at the hearing, that these are not all the acts on that subject, but that the determination to sell said roads originated and was enacted as early as December 7, 1867, and not as complainant alleges on the 5th of July, 1870.

Respondent knows nothing of the number, residence or names of persons holding any of said bonds.

Respondent says that heretofore, on the ——day of ————, 18—, the said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, because of its failure to comply with the internal improvement laws, and because it had made default in paying according to said laws, interest or sinking fund, was, by virtue of said laws, put into the hands of W. P. Jones, as receiver of the State, and afterwards into the hands of D. B. Cliffe, as receiver, and, it may be, into the hands of other persons as such receivers, and was operated by said receivers.

Respondent further says that said road was operated by receivers as aforesaid at a great loss to the State and those interested; that it wholly failed to pay expenses, and that it became necessary for the State to make some disposition of the same in order to prevent a ruinous loss. Thereupon the State and the stockholders determined to lease the same, as it had but little rolling stock and credit, and, being out of repair, had become proverbially dangerous to persons passing over the same. In this condition of affairs a lease was made of said road, etc., to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company. Said lease commenced September, 1868, and continued until January, 1870, a period of sixteen months, and was operated at an excess of expenses over receipts of $31,828.10; and under a second lease said road was operated from January 1, 1870, to June 30, 1871, at an excess of expenditures over receipts of $377,079.23. This respondent expended upon said road, over and above receipts, from July 1, 1871, to 30th of June, 1872, $476,957.25, making a total spent by respondent, over and above all receipts, of $885,864.54.

The receivers appointed from time to time to operate the delinquent railroads accounted to the State alone, nor was any attempt ever made by any bondholder of the State to hold any of them accountable, nor has any such bondholder ever manifested any concern as to who was appointed receiver of any road, or ever complained of the management of any receiver, though it is perfectly notorious that divers of said receivers were guilty of gross mismanagement, if not of even worse.

Any surplus in the hands of any receiver has always been appropriated by the State to its own uses, but no complaint has ever been made of this by any bondholder, nor has any attempt ever been made to reach the funds in any receiver's hands, though the State at the time made default in payment of the interest on the bonds issued to the particular road, among others.

When the receivers did not realize enough to pay the operating expenses of their roads and to keep them in safe condition, it was notorious that the State frequently made large appropriations of additional bonds to make up the deficiency, thereby increasing the incumbrance upon the roads,—and indeed the indebtedness for which the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad was sold was thus greatly swollen;—yet no bondholder ever manifested the smallest concern at any thing of the kind.

Respondent says that the State of Tennessee was in good credit before 1861-2, and that her bonds sold readily in the markets at par; that during the war the State paid no interest on her bonds, and the railroads no portion of the sinking fund or interest; that few if any of the roads were during this time operated by the companies or receivers, but that they were used by the military forces of the contending parties.

Respondent further answering says that the State, at the conclusion of the war, found her interest unpaid, and many of the railroads to which she had given aid hopelessly insolvent, without rolling stock or other means of operation; and that the respective companies were unable to mend their fortunes or improve their condition. Many railroads thus situated fell into the hands of the State which to meet the emergency appointed Receivers, gave further aid, although her bonds were at a large discount, and did all she could, in every department of the government, to relieve these roads; but all these efforts were futile, and the State had no alternative but to sell said roads. Not a single road in the State that was put in the hands of a Receiver, (and there were many, fully a dozen), paid its expenses, and all were run at an immense loss. The respective companies could not operate them except at a loss. The interest on the State debt was accumulating annually; and the State had been forced to fund the same, amounting to many millions, and thus to swell the principal debt. It was under this condition of distress that the State was compelled to make sale of her roads, and not for the wicked and fraudulent purpose imputed to her in the bill. Respondent denies that the State, in instituting judicial proceedings against said roads to have a sale made of them, acted with any intent to injure or impair the rights of complainant or other bondholders; she sought thereby to discharge herself of her debts, not to release any liens that the bondholders might have. To have held said roads longer would have been suicidal; to have ceased to operate them would have been to connive at and voluntarily permit their total loss. The legislature hoped, and her best citizens expected, that the sales of the roads would enable her to take up a large number of her bonds, and thus prevent the accumulation of interest. The roads did sell for nearly or quite nine millions of dollars, payable in bonds, which were canceled, and no road would now bring, or at any time since would have brought, as much as it sold for at said sale. Respondent denies that the project was conceived, at this time, of treating the lien as the absolute property of the State. Such had always been the conception of the Legislature which enacted the original law and its amendments, and respondent might add, of ninety-nine per cent. of those persons who had thought about the matter. The State, nowhere in the act, is denominated a trustee for the benefit of the bondholder. It is recognized everywhere as the lien holder; and such was the contemperaneous and subsequent understanding. Respondent says that so far from its ever having been conceived that the bondholders had any lien, the latter idea only originated after the State stopped payment and allowed herself to be presented as likely to repudiate, and countenanced the notion that the entire debt of the State might be put upon the railroads, and the people exempted from its payment. Respondent admits that this view has met with some individual and official favor in the State not wholly unexpected, and complainant may find some comfort in this fact; and doubtless some persons have already persuaded themselves, if not others, that such has been their opinion all along.

Respondent denies all the insinuations of fraud or fraudulent projects or conceptions on the part of the State in selling said roads as she did.

Upon the theory now put forward by complainant, that the State was but a trustee for the benefit of the bondholders, she could have done no less. Here was a dozen railroads or more, to which she had before the war advanced her bonds amounting to many millions of dollars. Crippled and broken down by the war, and otherwise, she applied the statutory remedy of Receivers; she called to her aid the stockholders and directors, tried leases, advanced millions more, which as trustee she was not bound to do; and when all her efforts failed she had but one alternative left—either to allow the property to waste and go to ruin, or to sell it.

In the original acts under which the bonds were issued, she had preserved her right to legislate further, so as to save herself from loss. The time had arrived when it became absolutely necessary to exercise this right, not only to save herself in fact, but to make this vaunted security available, and prevent its waste and destruction. Respondent says that it was under these circumstances and conditions that the State passed the several acts looking to a sale of said roads.

Respondent admits that under said acts a bill was prepared and filed in the Chancery Court at Nashville, January 20, 1871, against the delinquent railroad companies and the other persons mentioned therein, and that the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company was made a party thereto, and says that publication was made for the bondholders and other unknown or non-resident parties, in the mode usual in equity cases of a similar character; that the cause proceeded to a final hearing, and a sale was made of said road on — day of November, 1871, to respondent, at the sum of $————, payable in the bonds of the State of Tennessee; and respondent has paid the same. Respondent here files as a part of this answer a perfect copy of said record marked Exhibit X, and pleads and relies upon the same, as a purchaser for value and in good faith.

Respondent does not feel called upon to answer the criticism of complainant upon said proceedings, much of which has no application to this case.

The said Chancery Court at Nashville belonged to the general judicial system of the State, and was not a special court created for the occasion. In its organization it was assigned to a territorial division, in which division was the chief office of said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and much of its road bed, and the residence of its chief officers. Had this not been true, respondent submits to the court, whether a State is bound by the laws of venue, created and established for the convenience of its citizens and litigants, and whether it may not institute litigation in its own behalf at any point it may choose to select in the State.

Respondent submits to the court whether, in a proceeding such as is presented in Exhibit X, to enforce liens or trusts upon realty, or a railroad in the State, when the parties are non-residents, numerous and unknown, and are brought before the court by publication, or other substitute for service of process, and the property seized and sought to be reached is under the control of the court, and judicially condemned and sold, the title thereto does not pass to the purchaser at such sale.

Respondent admits that the presiding Chancellor had, before said proceedings were commenced in said court, expressed, by endorsement upon the back of a manuscript opinion prepared by a distinguished lawyer of Alabama, his belief that the State had the sole lien upon the railroads, but he was not at that time the attorney of the railroad company with reference to which said opinion was expressed, nor was he before or afterward, nor was said railroad company a party to said suit subsequently, nor was said opinion prepared to be distributed in Tennessee, nor was it distributed in said State; but it had been prepared by an Alabama lawyer, and sent to Ed. Baxter, the attorney of said company at Nashville, to be examined by him, and such other lawyer as he chose to submit it to, and then to be forwarded to New York, to distinguished lawyers resident in that city, who had been called upon to examine the question of the bondholders' lien, and to determine the priority of a mortgage which the company proposed to execute, and did execute, and with the proceeds took up the State's debt against the same. Neither respondent nor any of its officers ever saw said opinion, and they do not believe that any member of the Legislature ever saw the same, as it was only published in pamphlet form, and the number was very limited. To show conclusively that said opinion did not operate upon the mind of the Legislature, long before it was given, and on the 7th of December, 1867, the State had passed an act, which is quoted in the preamble to the act of July 5, 1870, set out in Exhibit D to complainant's bill, "empowering the Governor, Secretary of State and Comptroller, in their discretion, upon the failure of the railroad companies mentioned in the act for two consecutive years to pay the interest that may accrue upon the bonds loaned to them severally, to sell the railroad track, railing, rolling stock, etc."

Respondent says that all of the acts passed by the Legislature to sell said defaulting roads, commencing with the act of December 7, 1867—including the act of July 5, 1870, and the act of December 21, 1870—were each and all passed in pursuance of the right secured to the State under the original act, to enact all such laws in the future as shall be deemed necessary to protect the interest of the State, and to secure the State against loss in consequence of the issuance of bonds. In this the State was left to determine what enactments were necessary to protect herself. She did not limit herself to any particular enactment. As the original act had given her the right to appoint receivers in case of default, the rights she reserved must have been something more. If complainant and the other bondholders had liens as claimed, and the State was but a trustee, then by virtue of this law the State was empowered to act with the rem, as she deemed necessary to protect her interest, and secure herself against partial or total loss. Respondent is at a loss to conjecture what this reservation was intended for, if not for the purpose indicated herein. So, that even if complainant had a lien originally, the very act which gave such lien empowered the State, if it was deemed necessary, to pass an enactment to secure herself as the payor of the bond, and subordinated this lien to the State's subsequent necessities and discretion.

But respondent has so far been considering complainant's rights as based upon the act of February 11, 1852. Respondent now denies that said act governs any bonds held by complainant, as it is informed and believes that no bonds were issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company under that act, and that the bonds issued first to said company were issued December 22d, 1859, at which time said original act had been greatly modified and changed, and several of the features thereof, brought out in italics by complainant, had been repealed or amended.

Respondent says that so far from the State's having been actuated by the motives ascribed to it by complainant, the report of the Comptroller shows that to aid and help the defaulting railroad companies, after the close of the war, she issued to them bonds as follows:

Edgefield and Kentucky,	$ 525,000
Nashville and Northwestern,	1,767,000
Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville	540,000
McMinnville and Manchester,	400,000
Winchester and Alabama,	856,000
Southwestern,	503,000
Knoxville and Kentucky,	2,150,000
Knoxville and Charleston,	816,500
Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston,	1,241,000
Rogersville and Jefferson,	226,000
Total	$8,024,500

As before stated, on the theory of complainant, that the State was a trustee for the bondholder (as such she was not bound to uphold and support the trust property by additional aid) it must be marvelous that she did make these large advances. And she did more: she funded twice the unpaid interest due on the bonds she had issued before the war to the companies mentioned above, as well as the interest on these bonds issued since the war, making many millions more, besides making two payments of interest on each. Never did a trustee make such large investments to preserve the trust property for another. The State literally exhausted herself in her efforts to preserve these railroads, and sold them only when she could no longer hold them. Certainly, complainant was not aware of these facts when he charged the State with concocting fraudulent and dishonorable schemes to injure the bondholders. If the court should hold that the State was a trustee, and that under the enlarged powers she reserved to legislate in the future, she did expend large sums to preserve the trust property, prudently and in good faith, then she had the right to reimburse herself out of the proceeds of the sales; and certainly, in order to prevent waste and loss to said property, to sell the same as she did.

Respondent says that the State of Tennessee is a necessary party to the bill of complainant, being interested in the subject matter of the suit. If complainant desires a receiver, the act under which he claims points out the mode of obtaining the same, and is his exclusive remedy, unless he can show by proper averments that the officers of the State whose duty it is to put in force the statutory remedy cannot be sued in this case, or have been applied to in the mode pointed out in the statute; and respondent submits whether the averments of complainant on these points are sufficient in law to give this court jurisdiction.

Respondent, further answering, says that the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company did receive bonds to the amount of $350,000 under the act of December 7th, 1867, and that by virtue thereof it became amenable to the section of said act, which is to the effect that any railroad company receiving bonds thereunder and then failing to pay the interest thereon for two consecutive years, shoud be sold; and said railroad did fail to pay interest as required, and thereby became liable to be proceeded against for the entire indebtedness. As respondent has not indicated what bonds he holds, so that the defendant can trace or identify them, or ascertain whether they were issued under the original act of 1851-2, or that act as modified before aid issuance, or whether or not they were issued in the of a bridge, which fact, complainant insists, will vary the alleged lien as to the property upon which it is claimed to exist, respendent asks that complainant be required either to file the same or give such particular description of the same upon the records of of the court as will enable them to ascertain how these matters are.

Respondent further answering would show that, as it is informed, complainant is, and has been, the secretary of an association in the City of New York representing the great bulk of the bonds of the State of Tennessee issued to railroad companies by the State of Tennessee, and that he and the said association have been perfectly familiar with the claim of said State to the exclusive benefit of said lien, as evidenced by nearly every statute upon the subject of State aid to internal improvements. It was notorious, and was well known to them, that for several years prior to the actual sale of the delinquent railroads, it was the intention of said State to enforce its lien, claimed exclusively as aforesaid, by a sale of said roads. From the passage of the act of February 25, 1869, to the sale of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad in November, 1871, nearly three years elapsed, during which divers acts were passed in furtherance of this intention, creating a commotion with which the entire railroad world was astir. The proceedings to effect a sale of the delinquent railroads was notorious, and were well known to complainant and his associates. They were well aware, as everyboby else even remotely interested, that in consequence of the purchases of said roads, to be paid for in Tennessee bonds, the bond markets in New York and elsewhere were greatly excited,—and that immense fluctuations occured in the prices of Tennessee bonds—in a short period some $9,000,000 of such bonds being purchased by respondents and others in open market with the avowed purpose of using them in payment for said railroads including The Nashville and Northwestern Railroad,—such payments being claimed to be in full discharge of the lien of the State of Tennessee.

It was notorious, and perfectly well known to complainant and his associates, that the purchasing companies, including respondent as the purchaser of The Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, were claiming to have purchased the delinquent roads, including that last named, free from every encumbrance, and that in order to raise the means wherewith to procure the necessary State bonds to pay their purchases, they were issuing their own bonds, purporting to be first liens upon the purchased roads—the amount of such railroad bonds so issued being some $20,000,000, which were sold in open market mainly in New York City,—this respondent so issuing and selling some $7,000,000 of such bonds, purporting to constitute a first lien on The Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and containing on their face the certificate of the Secretary of State of the State of Tennesee that the State's lien upon said road was discharged.

Complainant and his associates passively suffered, without any protest, said bonds to be so sold, and they are now outstanding in the hands of bona fide holders for value.

The purchasing companies, as was notorious, and well known to complainant and his associates, including respondent as the purchaser of The Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, went into the possession of their purchases, claiming them free of every incumbrance; and, finding them in wretched condition, expended enormous sums in repairing,— in some instances, as in that of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, almost reconstructing them,—and they have since been at great expense in developing their business.

Yet down to the commencement of this suit—some ten years after the passage of the act of February 25, 1868,—not a single bondholder of the State of Tennessee ever took any step, or uttered any word, showing that he supposed that he had the smallest concern in any of the foregoing matters; and respondent insists that, other questions aside, after such laches, complainant should not now be heard to set up this stale and discredited demand.

And now having fully answered, respondent prays to be hence dismissed with costs.

That your petitioners are owners and holders of Internal Improvement Bonds issued on account of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company for the construction and equipment of its said road.

Your petitioner's said bonds are identified and numbered according to the description in the bill in this suit, and have the like number of overdue and unpaid coupons attached thereto. The schedule hereto attached and prayed to be taken as a part of this petition exhibits their ownership and holdings of said bonds.

Your petitioners likewise constitute a majority of the Committee of Tennessee Bondholders, representing thirty-nine (39) owners and holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, owning and holding one hundred and sixty-five bonds issued to said company by the State of Tennessee.

Your petitioner desires to unite in the prosecution of the bill herein, and to be joined as co-complainant, according to the frame of the suit and the course and practice of this Court, with leave to amend the title and formal allegations of the bill to conform to this petition. A copy of said amendments is hereto attached..

And your petitioner accordingly prays for the foregoing relief and such other order as may be appropriate in the premises.

Amendments to Bill.

On page 17, at the end of the fourth paragraph after the number "1860," insert

"Your orator, John T. Terry, is the owner and holder of (22) twenty-two of the said bonds, and which are alike in character and description to the bonds of your orator Stevens as above set forth."

In the last paragraph on the same page after the word "orators" insert the words "Stevens and Terry," and after the word "likewise" on the same line insert the word "respectively."

After the word "bonds," on the second line of the same paragraph, insert the words "alleged above as belonging to them respectively."

On the second line of the eighteenth page, thirty-seven lines from the bottom of the page, insert the following:

"The said bonds are numbered and identified respectively as follows: Those belonging to John T. Terry are numbered 86, white bonds, series C; and numbers 11,420, 11,522, 11,534, are white bonds, series B; and numbers 207, 2,363, 2,391, 3,733, 4,147, 5,637, 8,228 are green bonds, series "No letter;" numbers 152, 183, 185, 3,222, 3,357, 3,381, 3,435, 3,465 are green bonds, series B.

At the end of the word "orator," wherever it occurs in the bill, add the letter "s"; and after the name "Stevens" add the following: "John T. Terry."

Make the pronoun and verb to which the word "orators" relates plural, instead of the singular number.

FOR THE MIDDLE DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.—SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT.

IN EQUITY.

The answer of the NASHVILLE, CHATTANOOGA AND ST. LOUIS RAILWAY, in the case of the NASHVILLE AND NORTHWESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY, defendant, to the bill of complaint, as amended, of Calvin Amory Stevens and John T. Terry, on behalf of themselves and the other 7 holders of the Internal Improvement bonds issued by the State of Tennessee to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, who may come in and contribute to the expenses of the litigation against the said defendant.

This defendant, answering the said bill as amended, here repeats and makes part of this answer the original answer which it heretofore filed 8 to the said bill before the amendment thereof as such bill was filed by the said Calvin Amory Stevens, without joining the said John T. Terry, the now co-complainant, and a printed copy of which original answer is hereto annexed, and everything in the said original answer contained, as fully and with like effect as if such original answer and everything therein contained were set forth at large and embodied in this answer, and, in addition thereto, this defendant 9 hereby makes the like allegations, statements, objections, defences and claims respectively as to and in respect of and against the complainants in the bill as now amended, and each and every of them, and as to and in respect of the Tennessee State bonds and the coupons thereof by the amended bill alleged to be held or owned by the complainants respectively, or by any of them; and as to and in respect of all former owners and holders of such bonds respectively, or the coupons thereof; and as to and in 10

respect of all and each of the claims asserted in the bill as amended by or on behalf of the complainants respectively, as in the said original answer filed by this defendant were contained, as to or in respect of or against the said original complainant, Calvin Amory Stevens, or as to or in respect of the Tennessee State bonds or the coupons thereof, in the said original bill alleged to be owned or held by him, or as to or in respect of any former owner or owners of such bonds or coupons respectively; or as to or in 11
respect of all and each or any of the claims asserted by the said Calvin Amory Stevens, in his said original bill; and this defendant hereby repeats and makes the said original answer, and everything therein contained, applicable to the present complainants and each of them, and to the bonds and coupons alleged to be owned or held by them respectively, and to the alleged claims and causes of suit now alleged by the complainants, or any of them, as fully and completely as the same were by said original answer 12 applicable to said Calvin Amory Stevens and the bonds and coupons alleged to be owned or held by him, and the alleged claims and causes of suit which were set forth in his said original bill.

And this defendant, further answering the said bill, as now amended, makes additional answer thereto as follows:

13 This defendant has no knowledge or information that the complainants, respectively, or any or either of them are, or at the time of the filing of the bill, or of the amendment thereof, by bringing in the new complainants, were the owners or holders of the bonds of the State of Tennessee issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, or any of the same, or of the coupons thereof, or any of the same, which in the bill, as amended, are alleged to be held 14 or owned by the complainants, respectively; and these defendants are wholly ignorant and uninformed of the truth of the allegations of the bill, as amended, in this behalf, save that it has been informed,
and believes, and therefore avers, that the complainant, Stevens, was not at the time of the filing of the bill, nor at the time of the amendment thereof, and is not now the owner or holder of the said bonds and coupons which he claims to own, nor of any of the same; and the other 15 complainant, at the time of his uniting in this suit, was not, and now is not the owner or holder of said bonds and coupons, which he claims to own, nor any of the same; and this defendant denies each and all of the allegations of the bill relating to the alleged ownership or holding by the complainants, respectively, of said bonds and coupons, and require the complainants to make strict proof thereof.

And this defendant further answering says, that before and at the time of the enactment of the said 16 Internal Improvement law of February 11th, 1852, it had been ascertained by experience, and was at said time well known and understood and perfectly notorious, both in Tennessee and New York, that Tennessee State bonds pure and simple, resting upon the faith and credit of the State and upon that alone, and not secured to the holder by any lien upon a railroad or upon anything else, had a better credit and brought and would bring a higher price 17 in the market, than the bonds of Tennessee railroad companies, secured by mortgage liens upon their railroads, and further secured by the endorsement or guaranty of such bonds by the State of Tennessee, and that at that time the price in the market of the Tennessee railroad companies' mortgage bonds, endorsed by the State of Tennessee under legislative acts antecedent to said Internal Improvement Act of February 11th, 1852, of which endorsed bonds

there was then a considerable amount outstanding, 18 was materially less than the market price of Tennessee State bonds pure and simple, resting alone upon the faith and credit of the State, and in respect of which there was no lien, or pretence of a lien upon a railroad or upon anything else, and that the said Internal Improvement Act of February 11th, 1852, was shaped as it was with the design and purpose of gaining in the negotiation of the bonds issued thereunder such advantage in price of Tennessee State bonds, pure and simple, and for 19 which the State was primarily and alone liable, over railroad mortgage bonds on which the State was or should be liable as surety ; and that the actual sale and negotiation of such bonds by the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company and by the other railway companies respectively, of the Tennessee State bonds received by them respectively under said Internal Improvement Act of February 11th, 1852, and under the amendments thereof, from time to time, were made under and in conformity with the idea, 20
design, and purpose hereinbefore last above stated, and the purchases and takings thereof were in like conformity, and with the like idea, and said bonds upon the original sales and negotiations thereof by the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and by the other railroad companies receiving bonds
under said act respectively, were accordingly sold

21 and purchased upon the understanding that they were Tennessee State bonds, pure and simple, for which the holder was to look to the State, and to it alone, and not bonds primarily payable by a railroad company, and for which the State was to be regarded as a surety, nor bonds in any way secured to the holder by or connected with a railroad lien or by any responsibility of a railroad company for the payment thereof to the holder, and said bonds accordingly commanded and brought in the market
22 the aforesaid advantage in price borne by Tennessee State bonds, pure and simple, for which the State was primarily and alone liable, over railroad mortgage bonds, upon which the State was surety, and that all subsequent purchases of and dealings in said bonds were upon the same understanding and footing, and that the idea of said bonds being anything else than Tennessee State bonds, pure and simple, or that there was any personal liability of the railroad companies to which said bonds had been lent 23 by the State, for the payment of either the interest or principal of such bonds to the holders, or any lien upon the railroads respectively, in favor of or in any way available to or for the benefit of the holders of such bonds, was not entertained nor conceived by the complainants or by any of the holders of the bonds they now claim to own, nor by any other holders of Tennessee State bonds issued under such Internal Improvement Acts of February 11, 1852, until very shortly before the commencement
24 ment of this suit.

And this defendant, further answering, says, that as early as the year eighteen hundred and sixty-five, the State of Tennessee made a settlement with the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company for and in respect of the entire amount of its indebtedness to the State for and in respect of the principal and interest of the Tennessee State bonds which had been loaned to said company under the 25 Internal Improvement Act aforesaid, by receiving, in payment and satisfaction of such indebtedness, Tennessee State bonds at par, not being the identical bonds which had been loaned to that company, unless in so far as some small amount of those bonds may accidentally have been included in the bonds so received in settlement, and thereupon giving to said railroad company a full release and discharge for such indebtedness, and of the lien therefor, under the Internal Improvement Act, and in such transaction 26

the State of Tennessee distinctly asserted or assumed the existence of the State's full, complete and unqualified ownership and control of such debt and lien, with the right thus to deal with and discharge the same, and the non-existence of any right on the part of the holders of the State bonds, which had been loaned to said railroad company, to interfere with or question or complain of the same, the State of Tennessee then being and for several years having been in default in respect of the payment of 27
the interest on said bonds as well as upon its other indebtedness. The acts and proceedings of the State of Tennessee, under which this settlement was made with and discharge given to the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, were open, public and notorious, and included joint resolutions of the legislative bodies of the State and proceedings of a Board of State officers, all distinctly proceeding upon such basis of complete ownership, control and right of settlement and discharge vested in the 28
State, and of non-existence of any right or interest of the State bondholders, and the same covered a period of many months before the settlement was actually effected and the discharge given ; and during all this period the assertion or assumption of the existence of such right and power on behalf of the State and the State's intention to exercise it,

29 were open, public and notorious, as well in New York and elsewhere where Tennessee State bonds were held as in Tennessee, and well known to and understood by the great mass of Tennessee State bondholders, including the complainants respectively, and the then holders of the bonds which they now claim to own, and neither the complainants, nor any of them, nor any holder of Tennessee State bonds ever raised or intimated any objection to, or denial or question of such right or power on 30 the part of the State, or gave notice of, or asserted, set up, or even intimated or suggested that the lien upon the railroads under the Internal Improvement Acts was one in which the State bondholders had any right, title or interest, but they each and all willfully and knowingly refrained from so doing, and stood by and saw the said transaction take place without objection, and fully and completely acquiesced in, admitted and assented to the claim, assertion and exercise by the State of such right
31 and power on its behalf, thus to control, deal with and discharge such debt and lien, and after such non-notification of claim and acquiescence, and practical recognition of and assent to such claim, right and exercise of power by the State, and non-existence of any interfering right or title on the part of the bondholders, and after the many years of subsequent delay and acquiescence, the holders of said Tennessee State bonds, including the complainants respectively, are now equitably estopped

And this defendant hereby sets up and makes part of this answer with like effect as if here recited at large the Act of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee, entitled, "An Act to fund the past due bonds and coupons of the State, and to sustain the credit thereof," approved March 17, 1873.

And this defendant further says, that the complainants respectively, and the respective holders at the time being of the bonds which they now claim to hold, as well as the other holders respectively of the Tennessee State bonds, issued and loaned under the said Internal Improvement Act of February 11, 1852, and its amendments respectively, from time to time, to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, as likewise to the other railroad companies respectively, funded respectively the past due coupons of their said bonds, under and in pursuance of said Act of March 17, 1873, and received new State bonds therefor, as by said Act provided, and likewise registered, or procured to be registered, under and in pursuance of such Act of March 17, 1873, the said Internal Improvement bonds of the State of Tennessee, so by them held, and accepted and assented to said Act of March 17, 1873, and that such action on their part respectively, was with full notice and knowledge of the previous Acts of the Legislature of Tennessee, before referred to herein, and in the original answer of this defendant herein, and particularly the said Acts of March 20, 1860, February 25, 1869, January 2, 1870, July 5, 1870, December 22, 1870, and November 17, 1871, and of the several acts and proceedings had in pursuance thereof, including the proceedings in Chancery under which divers of the Tennessee railroads, upon which liens were held, under said Internal Improvement Act, including the Nashville & Northwestern Railroad, had been sold out for prices payable in State bonds not issued to the railroads whose roads were thus sold, and with full notice and knowledge that as to the said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, as likewise, in respect of nearly all the other railroads upon which liens had been created under the said Internal Improvement Act and its amendments from 33 34 35 36

37 time to time, the State had made settlements for such indebtedness, and discharged or assigned the said lien therefor, or sold out the roads as aforesaid in enforcement of such lien, upon the basis and assumption of such lien being wholly owned by and controllable by the State at its pleasure, and that the State bondholders had no right or interest therein, and that by such transactions the State had, before such funding of coupons and registration of the bonds, become, as between 38 itself and the railroad companies or their assigns, bound to pay or discharge such State bonds originally loaned to the railroad companies, as the proper debt of the State, without any recourse over against the railroad companies or their roads in respect to the same, and that by such registration of the bonds and funding of past due coupons, under and in pursuance of said Act of March 17, 1873, the said complainants respectively, and the said other holders of Tennessee State bonds, which had been 39 issued under the Internal Improvement Act, with its amendments from time to time, recognized, treated, and dealt with the State as its sole debtor for the principal and interest of such bonds, and made new bargains and agreements with the State in respect of the same varying the original terms, and acquiesced in and assented to the practical construction which had been put upon the Internal Improvement Act in respect of the lien and its discharge as aforesaid, and the settlements and dis-40 charges which had been made by the State as aforesaid, and that by reason of the premises aforesaid the complainants respectively and the said other holders of Tennessee State bonds are estopped and precluded, if otherwise they would not be, from impeaching or setting aside such settlements and discharges and sales, and particularly the said sale, made of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, in enforcement of the State's lien as aforesaid; and 41

from setting up or asserting as against this defendant or its property any such claims as are set up or asserted by the complainants in this suit.

And in addition to the matters alleged hereinbefore and in the original answer of this defendant herein, relative to the practical construction placed upon the Internal Improvement Act of 1852 by the State, the railroad companies and the State bondholders, in respect of the character and ownership and control of the statutory lien upon the railroads, 42
created under or in virtue of said act, and relative to the acquiescence and assent of the complainants and the former holders of the bonds they claim to own, and the other holders of Tennessee State bonds issued under said Internal Improvement Act, and its amendments from time to time, and as to the several acts, doings, and proceedings of the State in respect of such lien, and the settlement and discharge of such debt and lien, this defendant further answering says that the complainants re- 43
spectively, and the holders at the time being of the bonds, which they now claim to own respectively, and the other holders respectively of Tennessee State bonds, issued under said Internal Improvement Act, and its amendments from time to time, have in various other ways acquiesced and concurred in the practical construction placed by the State as aforesaid upon the said Internal Improvement Act, in respect to the character, ownership and control of the statutory lien 44 created thereunder, and in the acts and proceedings of the State by which it has settled with the railroad companies for the indebtedness, and released and discharged or transferred the statutory lien therefor, or sold out their roads under the lien, and particularly that after many of such settlements and discharges and sales had taken place, and

with full notice and knowledge thereof, not only have they respectively fully acquiesced in and assented to the same, but some of the said State bondholders, and especially the complainants, or some of them, have, in communications with the State officers or authorities, urged the making of further settlements between the State and the railroad companies, under and in pursuance of the said Acts of 1869 and 1870, and the discharge thereby of so much of the railroad companies' indebtedness to the State, and of the statutory mortgage lien therefor, upon terms of payment in any State bonds at par, which further settlements have accordingly been made and discharges of the lien given accordingly, and the complainants and the holders at the time being of the said bonds, which they now claim to own, and the holders of a great amount or proportion of the other Tennessee State bonds issued under said Internal Improvement Act, with like full notice and knowledge as aforesaid, have, in other dealings with the State, and communications with the State officers and authorities, recognized and treated their said bonds as obligations of the State alone, and in no respect liabilities of the railroad companies nor liens upon their roads, and have accordingly entered into negotiations with the State for the settlement of such bonds and for the reduction and compromise and extension thereof, as being debts of the State alone and not of the railroad companies, and have in other ways, the particulars whereof this defendant has not as yet been able to discover, but which, when discovered, they crave leave to give in evidence, manifested acquiescence in and assent to the aforesaid practical construction placed by the State upon the said act, and the settlements and discharges of such debts and liens and sales of the roads made and given by the State as aforesaid.

And now come the following-named defendants, Charles Burckhardt, of Basle, Switzerland, Sophie Mylius Von Willer, of Milan, Italy, Charles Diggelman, of Zurich, Switzerland, and Louise Iselin, of Basle, Switzerland, who appear voluntarily by leave of the Court, in their own names and in their own behalf, and also on behalf of those whose names are set forth in the list of names herewith attached, marked "Exhibit No. 1," by Matthews, Ramsey & Matthews, their solicitors, and also on behalf of all others similarly situated, having a like interest, who may come in and be made parties hereto. And reserving and saving all benefit, advantage, or exceptions, or otherwise, that can or may be had, or taken to the many errors, uncertainties and imperfections in the said bill contained, for answer thereto, or to so much thereof as these defendants are advised it is material to make answer unto, jointly and severally answering, say:

1. That these respondents hereby adopt the answer to said bill heretofore filed by their codefendant, the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company, sued by the name of the "Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad Company," and the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, and all the matters and things therein set forth, as fully as if the same were here particularly repeated, and affirm and declare the same, and each allegation therein, to be true in substance and in fact, according to their information and belief, and rely upon the same as a complete and perfect answer and defense to said bill.

3. These respondents further answering say, that on or about the first day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three, the said, The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company, a corporation created, organized, and operated under and in pursuance of the laws of the States of Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and Kentucky, their codefendant herein, entered into an indenture with Adrian Iselin, Richard T. Wilson, and Vernon K. Stevenson, all citizens of the State of New York, wherein it was recited that, whereas, as the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company purchased the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad; and, whereas, in pursuance of law, the name of the combined roads has been legally changed to the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway; and, whereas, by virtue of said purchase, and of the laws under which the said The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company, the party of the first part was created, and of its organization, and in the exercise of its corporate rights, powers, and franchises, the said first party became and is vested with all and singular the corporate rights, powers, privileges, and franchises, and likewise vested with, and owner and occupier of, all property, real, personal, and mixed, and of all debts due, choses in action, rights of way, contracts, and all and every other interest whatsoever, which were held, owned, and lawfully possessed or exercised by, or which in any way or manner belonged or appertained respectively to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, and the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, corporations created and organized under, and by virtue of, the laws of the respective States of Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, and Kentucky, as fully and as effectually as the same rights, powers, debts, contracts, rights of way, and other interests were held, owned, and exercised by the said last named corporations, or either of them, at the time of the comsummation of the organization and executing said indenture; and that, whereas, said Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company has paid in part, and will pay in full, to the State of Tennessee the purchase-money for the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and has also paid in part, and will pay in full, under the laws of the State of Tennessee, the indebtedness of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company for all bonds loaned it by said State, and will likewise deposit in the hands of the comptroller of the State of Tennessee, as prescribed by the Act of 1871, chapter 144, section 2, of the laws of the State of Tennessee, fourteen hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars of this issue of first mortgage bonds, therein secured, being equal to the amount of bonds indorsed by the State of Tennessee for said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, now outstanding, and which fourteen hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars of six per cent. bonds and one million dollars, bearing four per cent. annual interest, and held by the United States government, against which latter sum an equal amount of the issue of bonds hereby secured are to be reserved and set apart to be hereinafter issued by the party of the first part, to be used only in paying off and discharging the said one million dollars, so long as the aforesaid liability of one million dolllars, or any part thereof, remains unpaid; these two amounts of fourteen hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars and one million dollars are all the bonded obligations of any kind, other than the issue therein secured, of said corporation; and that to enable the said party of the first part to raise money with which to liquidate, pay, satisfy, and fully discharge the indebtedness incurred in the purchase, reconstruction, and equipment of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and also for the purpose of perfecting its line of railway, and enlarging the capacity and extending the operating facilities for the business thereof, and also for the purpose of paying at maturity the present outstanding bonds and indebtedness, as above stated: the said party of the first part, acting in its regular annual convention of its stockholders, and by and through its board of directors, has resolved to issue and dispose of its bonds to an amount not to exceed twenty thousand dollars per mile on the main line and branches of its railroad, and to secure the payment of the same by a first mortgage or deed of trust on all property and franchises of said company; and that the party of the first part has prepared and executed, or will hereafter prepare and execute, its bonds of one thousand dollars each, numbered from one to six thousand eight hundred, inclusive, to the amount of six millions eight hundred thousand dollars, dated July 1, 1873, one million dollars of which to be set apart as aforesaid, to be hereafter issued, shall be of such rate of interest not exceeding seven per cent. per annum in currency, or six per cent. per annum in gold, and in such form as may be hereafter prescribed by the said party of the first part; but falling due at like times with the bonds of five million eight hundred thousand dollars, hereinafter mentioned, and the remaining five million eight hundred thousand dollars, payable in lawful money of the United States, in New York, forty years after date, bearing interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, with coupons or interest warrants attached, payable semi-annually in lawful money of the United States, in New York, or payable in gold coin of the United States, and bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable in like gold coin of the United States, at New York, or with the coupons to be thereto annexed, and the certificates to be indorsed thereon in the forms therein set forth, which coupons are to be issued with the engraved signature of the secretary of the said company; and when thus issued by said company, are to be as binding upon it as if such signature were written by the secretary.

Therefore, the said indenture witnesseth, that for the purpose of securing and making more sure and certain the payments of the sums of money mentioned and provided for in the above-mentioned bonds, to the aggregate amount of six million eight hundred thousand dollars, bearing even date therewith' and each and every one of them with the interest thereon, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, and in consideration of the recited premises, and the sum of one dollar to the said first party in hand paid by the said Adrian Iselin, Richard T. Wilson, and Vernon K. Stevenson, the receipt whereof was thereby acknowledged by the said party of the first part, the said Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company, the party of the first part aforesaid, granted, bargained, sold, assigned, transferred, and conveyed by the said presents to said Adrian Iselin, Richard T. Wilson, and Vernon K. Stevenson, the parties of the second part, their heirs and assigns forever, and to their successor or successors, in the trust, and assigns, all and singular, the estate and property, real, personal and mixed, and all fixtures, rights, privileges, franchises, easements under leases, terms, and parts of terms, agreements, covenants, and contracts, of all and every kind, held and owned or occupied by said party of the first part, or whereunto it is entitled; including especially all and singular the railroads and railways of said company, with the appurtenances thereof, from and including the terminus and depot at Chattanooga in the county of Hamilton, in the State of Tennessee, and thence, via Stevenson, in Jackson county, in the State of Alabama, to the city of Nashville, in Davidson county, in the State of Tennessee, thence, via McKenzie, Carroll county, in the State of Tennessee, to and including the terminus in the town of Hickman, on the Mississippi river, in Fulton county, State of Kentucky; being a distance of about three hundred and twenty-one miles of main line, and also and including the line from the town of Wartrace, in Bedford county, State of Tennessee, to the town of shelbyville, in said Bedford county, State of Tennessee, the distance from said Wartrace to Shelbyville being eight miles; also including the line from from the town of Bridgeport, in the town of Jackson, in the State of Alabama, to the town of Jasper, in the county of Marion, in the State of Tennessee, said distance from Bridgeport to Jasper being eleven miles, including the terminus and depot in each and all of said towns, making a total length of main line and branches of three hundred and forty miles.

Together with all and singular the appurtenances thereto belonging, and more fully described in said indenture. To have and to hold the said railroad and appurtenances and equipments, estate, property, rights, privileges, franchises, and interests therein conveyed or transferred unto the said parties of the second part, their heirs, successors and assigns, for the equal pro rata security and benefit of all such persons or corporations as should become or be from time to time the lawful owners or holders of the above-described bonds, to the aggregate amount of six million eight hundred thousand dollars, or any of them, without preference or priority of any such bonds over any of the others, by reason of priority in the time of issue thereof, or otherwise, and upon the trusts and for the uses and purposes therein declared.

These respondents further say that the said indenture, deed of, trust, or mortgage, was duly registered, and became, and is, in accordance with the laws of Tennessee, as well as the laws of the States of Alabama, Georgia, and Kentucky, a full and effectual conveyance for the uses and purposes therein mentioned, and that a copy thereof is hereto attached, marked "Exhibit No. 2," as a part hereof, to which reference is hereby made.

3. These respondents, further answering, say, that the whole amount of bonds described in the said indenture and deed of trust or mortgage, and intended to be issued, were and have been from time to time issued, sold and disposed of by the said The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company, for the uses and purposes therein mentioned, and were negotiated and sold in the city of New York and in Europe, to bona fide purchasers for full value, and the proceeds thereof were used for the purpose of purchasing bonds of the State of Tennessee, to be used in payment to said State for the purchase-money for the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, which was bought by the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company, under judicial proceedings instituted by said State for that purpose, and in pursuance of the laws of the State; and also for the purpose of paying under the laws of the State of Tennessee the indebtedness of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company for all the bonds loaned to it by said State, and the bonds and coupons of the State of Tennessee so purchased by said Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company, were bought in open and public market in the city of New York, at the prevailing market rates, and were afterward delivered to and accepted by the State of Tennessee, through its comptroller, in accordance with law, in payment and satisfaction of said debt due to the State from the said Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway Company, on account of the purchase aforesaid of the said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and on account of internal improvement bonds of said State originally loaned to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company; fourteen hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars of said bonds, secured by said indenture or mortgage and deed of trust, however, have been deposited in the hands of the comptroller of the State of Tennessee, in accordance with law, as security against an equal amount of the bonds of said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company then outstanding and indorsed by the State, and for which the said State had reserved a lien on said railroad property in its own favor, and one million dollars of said bonds, in accordance with the terms of the said indenture being reserved unissued, for the purpose of being used only in paying off and discharging an indebtedness of that amount to the government of the United States, as therein recited; and,

These respondents say that the said Charles Burckhardt purchased originally and still holds of said bonds the amount of thirteen thousand dollars, and the respondent, Sophie Mylius von Willer, purchased and still holds of said bonds the amount of fifteen thousand dollars, and the said Charles Diggelman purchased and still holds of said bonds the sum of five thousand dollars, and the said Louise Iselin purchased and still holds of said bonds the sum of fifteen thousand dollars; and that the several respondents whose names are in the list marked "Exhibit No. 1," each purchased and still holds of said bonds the several amounts set opposite their respective names in said list; and

These respondents say that they and other purchasers and holders of said bonds bought the same in good faith and for full value, and in the assurance and belief that the said bonds were lawfully issued for the purpose authorized, and relying upon the representation contained in the certificate of the Comptroller of the State of Tennessee, annexed to each of said bonds, in the words and figures following, to wit: "This is to certify that the lien of the State of Tennessee on the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and on the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, now merged in the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway, has been paid and satisfied as follows, to wit: By the payment in full to the State of Tennessee for the purchase money of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and by payment in full for the loan of the bonds of the State of Tennessee to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, and by the deposit in my hands, in the manner required in the Act of 1871, chapter 144, section 2, of dollar for dollar of the issue of consolidated bonds, to be held against the outstanding bonds of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, endorsed by the State,"—which said certificate was duly signed by the Comptroller of the State of Tennessee, as required by law; and

These respondents, further answering, say and insist, that the said indenture, or deed of trust and mortgage securing said bonds so as aforesaid held by these respondents, has become, and is the first and best lien upon the said railroad and other property described therein, anything in the bill of complaint of said complainant to the contrary notwithstanding.

4. These respondents admit that the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, on the 11th of February, 1852, passed an Act entitled "an Act to establish a system of Internal Improvements in this State," and various other statutes amendatory and supplementary thereto and in execution thereof, but does not admit that the copies thereof set out in the bill are correct, or that those referred to therein are all that are material to be considered, and denies that the construction thereof claimed by the complainants in said bill is the true and rightful interpretation thereof, and particularly that the same created any debt or obligation from any railroad company, to which they were loaned to the holders of any bonds of the State of Tennessee, loaned to said company by the State, and sold and put in circulation by said company, or that the lien reserved and declared in said laws was reserved and declared in favor of the holders of the bonds of the State, or in anywise inured to them, either by the terms of the said statutes or in virtue of any agreement or contract with the holders of said

State bonds, expressed or implied, made by and between them and said railroad company or the State of Tennessee, or otherwise; and on the contrary thereof, these respondents insist that the said statutes, according to the true meaning thereof, are laws of the State of Tennessee, defining, declaring, and regulating the duties and obligations toward said State alone, of the several railroad companies, to each of which it loaned its bonds, for the uses and purposes therein named, and reserving and securing to the said State, and to it alone, its rights and interests, as against said railroad companies, in consequence of the loan to each thereof of any of its own bonds; and the only contract to which the holders of the bonds of the State of Tennessee are parties, or in which they have any legal, or equitable or beneficial interest, is directly with the State, and is contained only in the bonds themselves, whereby they agreed for the payment of the interest and principal, as therein stipulated, to look alone to the faith and credit of the State, thereby pledged for the same.

And these respondents further say, as a matter of fact, that all the bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to the said railroad companies under said acts, were sold in the market as straight Tennessee State bonds; that is to say, as other bonds of the State of Tennesssee, issued upon the mere credit of the State and without other security, and on which the State was liable as principal, and as distinguished from bonds of railroad companies, indorsed or guaranteed by the State, and on which both the railroad company and the State were bound, the former as principal, the latter as surety; and this respondent says that, in consequence of this difference, and in virtue of said bonds being what were known in the market by the public as straight Tennessee bonds, the said bonds sold before the war, commanded a premium in the market, and were sold at or above par, while bonds of other descriptions, on which the railroad companies were bound as principals and the State of Tennessee as surety, and secured by a mortgage lien upon the railroad property, directly to the holders of the same, could not be sold except at a very considerable discount; and this respondent insists that it was to meet this condition of the market, which was well known, and to avoid and prevent the loss occasioned by this distrust of bonds, on which railroad companies were bound as principals, and the State merely as surety, that the legislation introduced by the acts of January 15 and February 11, 1852, was shaped so that the bonds of the State to be issued under it should rest alone, without other security, upon the public confidence in the ability and willingness of the people and government of the State of Tennessee to meet and pay at maturity all their obligations and debts, as, at that time, they always had done, and as at that time it was believed they always would continue to do; and all the provisions in said legislation looking to security for the payments to be made by the railroad companies were arrangements to which the State and the railroad companies alone were parties, and for the sole indemnity of the State against loss on account of its liability for this interest and principal of its bonds, issued and loaned to the said several companies.

And these respondents say that it was not in the contemplation of the parties, at the time of the passage of said internal improvement acts of 1851, 1852, nor at the several times when the bonds of the State were issued, in pursuance thereof, to the several railroad companies mentioned therein, nor when any of said bonds were sold by said railroad compvnies, that the State of Tennessee would ever fail promptly and punctually to pay the current interest on said bonds; and that, consequently, it is inadmissible now to construe said acts as if they contained provisions looking to such contingency, and providing against it, more especially as if such construction had been put on said laws at the time of said negotiation, it would have been evidence of such distrust in the good faith or ability of the State to meet its obligations as would materially have affected the market value of said bonds, if not prevented their sale; and, on the contrary thereof, this respondent says that so little room was there for such a construction of these acts, that express provision was therein made, in the 5th section of the act of February 11, 1852, whereby it was made the duty of the comptroller, and he was thereby authorized, "upon his warrant, to draw from the treasury any sum of money necessary to meet the interest on such bonds, as may not be provided for by the company, as provided for in this act; and the comptroller shall report thereof to the General Assembly from time to time."

And these respondents further say that whatever were or may be supposed to have been the rights of the holders of the State bonds, issued under said act of February 11, 1852, after sale thereof by the railroad companies, to which they had been loaned and issued, they were taken subject to the provisions of the 12th section of said act, whereby it was enacted "that the State of Tennessee expressly reserves the right to enact, by the legislature hereafter, all such laws as may be deemed necessary to protect the interest of the State, and to insure the State against any loss, in consequence of the issuance of bonds under the provtsions of this act, but in such manner as not to impair the vested rights of the stockholders of the companies."

And that all the subsequent acts, amendatory of said act of February 11, 1852, and suplementary thereto, particularly the said acts of 1869, 1870, for the retirement of the State debt, and for the sale of delinquent railroads, and all acts and transactions under them, whereby settlements were effected between the State and said several railroad companies, and the indebtedness of the latter, arising in consequence of the loan to them of the bonds of the State was liquidated and satisfied, and the lien to secure the same discharged, were strictly and fairly in execution of the intentions and purposes of the original act, and of the power reserved to the State in the 12th section thereof.

And these respondents further say that said act of February 11, 1852, not only recognizes the lien thereby reserved and creatad, as belonging to the State in law, but also in equity, for its own sole and exclusive benefit, to be dealt with, enforced, or discharged, according to its own discretion, and with a view only to its own interests, as its own property, security, and indemnity; and also that the plan provided in said act for the gradual but ultimate payment and extinction of the obligations of the railroad companies under the same, in making provisions for a sinking fund, according to the terms of the 7th section thereof, explicity admitted the principle of a payment by said railroad companies, on account thereof, of any bonds of the State, whether the identical ones issued to the company or not, and guaranteed to each of said railroad companies, as a right, the opportunity to pay its whole indebtedness, arising under said act, in any bonds of the State of which it might become possessed, and was merely a provision for effectuating the just and lawful exchange of one debt for another, upon the basis of mutual rights of set-off.

5. These respondents further say that immediately after the proclamation of peace, in the spring of 1865, the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, then in session, addressed itself to the subject of the condition of the railroads of the State and of the public debt. The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company was, at that time, the strongest corporation, financially, owning or operating any railroad in Tennessee, for the reasons, that the principal part of its lines were situated in the State of Kentucky, and had suffered less than Tennessee roads from injury inflicted by reason of military operations. Accordingly, the firt step taken was to seek a settlement with that company for the liquidation and payment of its indebtedness to the State, on account of bonds issued to it to aid in the construction of its main stem from the State line to Nashville.

These respondents say that the discharge and satisfaction of the debt, due from the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee, and a lien reserved under said statutes for the security of the same, was effected in the manner following, to-wit: On May 5, 1865, the General Assembly of the State, by joint resolution, appointed the comptroller, secretary of state, attorney-general, and commissioner of public works a board to make a settlement with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, and if a satisfactory settlement could not be obtained, the governor was authorized to have instituted such legal proceedings as might be necessary to protect the interests of the State. On the 18th of November, 1865, said commissioners reported to the legislature that they had effected a settlement; that the bonds loaned said company by the State amounted to $560,500, and the overdue interest thereon to $147,131.25; that the company had proposed to pay the entire principal in straight six per cent. coupon bonds of the State and the interest in coupon bonds of the State then due. The commissioners say: "Believing it to be manifestly for the interest of the State to call in this large installment of its indebtedness) and believing, moreover, that the company had a right under the law regulating the sinking fund to pay off its entire indebtedness of the bonds of the State, your commissioners accepted the proposal, and executed to the company a receipt dated November 17, 1865, for $707,631,25 in bonds and coupons of the State, being the total indebtedness of said company to the State of Tennessee on account of the bonds of the State received in aid of the construction of said road and the bridge across the Cumberland river." Copies of said resolution and report are herewith filed as Exhibits Nos. 3 and 4 respectively. And these respondents say that the said railroad company actually paid and delivered said bonds and coupons as in said receipt is recited.

6. These respondents further say that the facts of this settlement were public and notorious, and were well known at the time to the public at large, to the holders of Tennessee State bonds, and, as these respondents aver and charge, to the complainant and those with whom they are associated and acting in the prosecution of this and similar suits; and that it was equally well known that it was made under a claim of right and in pursuance of an interpretation of the statutes of 1851, 1852, and of the subsequent legislation, which treated the lien upon the railroads reserved thereby as belonging to the State, not in trust for the holders of its bonds, but in its own right, to be dealt with in its own discretion and with sole regard to its own interests; and that consequently, although at the time this settlement was made in 1865, the State was in default for non-payment of the interest on its bonds from July, 1861, no protest or complaint was ever made by any holder of State bonds against the mode of dealing on its part with the said roads, nor against this settlement with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, until the filing of this bill.

7. These respondents further say that the bonds and coupons paid by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee in the said settlement, were not the identical bonds and coupons originally advanced and loaned to said company and by it negotiated and sold, but that the same, in part at least, were other bonds and coupons of the State of Tennessee, of like character thereto; that by the terms of the seventh section of the act of February 11, 1852, the said company was required, at the end of five years after completion of its road, to set apart one per centum per annum upon the amount of bonds issued to it, and use the same in the purchase of any bonds of the State of Tennessee, paying said bonds so purchased into the treasury of the State after assigning them to the governor, taking his receipt therefor, and which bonds, it was thereby declared, so paid in, as between the State and said company should be a credit on the bonds issued to the company; and said bonds, so paid in, and the interest accruing thereon from time to time, should be held and used by the State as a sinking fund for the payment of the bonds issued to the company, but that should said company repurchase any of the bonds issued to it under the provisions of said act, they should be a credit as aforesaid and canceled; and thereby, as this respondent insists, there accrued to the company, in addition to the obligation to pay said one per cent. per annum, the right at its election, with the concurrence and consent of the State, to pay any additional amount of bonds of the State, of any description, into said sinking fund with like effect.

And these respondents further say, that by an act of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, passed March 20, 1860, entitled "an act to provide for the equalization and investment of the sinking fund in the bonds issued to or indorsed for railroads in this State," it was provided that the money or bonds paid in to the sinking fund by the 1st day of January, 1860, with the interest thereon, should be passed directly to the credit of the parties having so paid the same, and be a release to said party for that amount of the debt due by them to the State of Tennessee, all bonds so paid in being canceled; and that after said date of January 1, 1860, the companies who had received State bonds, should be required to pay two and one-half per centum per annum on the amount of such bonds, as a sinking fund, which amount might, at the election of the companies, be paid in cash, or in the like character of bonds that might have been issued to them respectively; if paid in cash, the same to be invested immediately in bonds of the State, to be canceled, and to be of the same character as those issued to the said company making the payment; and it was further provided therein, that the sinking fund, when paid, in all cases, shall be passed directly to the credit of the said company or corporation, and be a release to said company or corporation from that amount due by them to the State, and that, thereafter, each railroad company should provide the interest semi-annually as therein provided by law, on the amount of bonds unpaid at the time said interest falls due, and not on the original amount issued to said company by the State, as theretofore provided: and thereby there was recognized in said companies the right to pay, in manner aforesaid, in any bonds of the State, the entire amount due from it to the State on account of bonds originally issued to it by the State; and it was in the exercise of this right, that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company made its payment as aforesaid, which was accepted by the State in satisfaction of the debt due from it to the State, on account of the bonds issued to it, and in discharge of the lien reserved by the State as its security therefor.

8. These respondents further say, that, at the time said settlement was made, the circumstances of the situation were such as to make it most advantageous to the State of Tennessee, and beneficial to its credit and its creditors. The war had but recently prior thereto definitely closed.

During the period of actual military operations, the railroads had been the prize of contending armies, as instruments of offense and defense. In the course of the struggle, they had been stripped of their equipment, and parts of them destroyed and repaired, as circumstances permitted, to fit them for military use, but so that when they were finally restored, on or about August, 1865, to their owners, they were destitute of rolling stock, cars, machinery, shops and tools, and almost every thing needed for an equipment, nearly everything of that description then in actual use upon the roads being the property of the United States, furnished and employed for its military uses. This they were permitted to purchase and did so in pursuance of executive orders issued by the President of the United States in September and October of that year, but being unable to pay cash, gave their obligations for the purchase money payable in installments and bearing interest. The roads themselves, their road beds, track, trestle-work, bridges, and permanent work of every description, were, to a greater or less extent, out of repair, in need of restoration, in some instances in a state of actual dilapidation. Business of every kind had been suspended by the war, except military transportation, and now, that employment ceased with the cessation of hostilities, but the fruits of peace, in the revival of industry and trade, could only come with the lapse of time, and the gradual accommodation of the community to the new order of things. The general result was that the railroads required large sums of money to put them in a condition to earn an income, and, after that, would have to wait the slow operation of general causes upon the social condition of the people, before any revival of trade would renew their sources of revenue. In the meantime, a large arrearage of debt, for unpaid interest, had accumulated by reason of the default, during the whole period from July, 1861, both of the State and the railroad companies, in consebuence of which the State securities had become discredited in the markets of the world, and their holders, as seen by the quotations in the stock markets at New York, were willing to dispose of them at a large discount. To buy them from those willing to sell, at their own offers, was no injustice to the bondholders; to pay them into the sinking fund, as a credit on the railroad debt, would be a relief to the companies, and would diminish the burden of the State, and reduce the amount of its obligations, so as probably to bring the State debt within the limits which would make it tolerable, and so diminish the motive and temptation to repudiate it, while the demand thus created for depreciated securities would naturally, as in fact it did, raise the prices in the market of those held by others who did not choose to sell; so that the transaction was well calculated, without injury or loss to any one, to prove beneficial to all the important public and private interests affected.

9. These respondents further say, that about the time said settlement was made with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, on November 8, 1865, the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, by joint resolution of that date, appointed a joint committee to examine into the condition of the sinking fund, and ascertain what railroads had paid, and what amount, and if they had due credit, and also that they be authorized to cancel all bonds of the State that had been paid in by railroads; and these respondents say, that while they are ignorant of the exact amount of State bonds that, at that time, had been paid in on account of the sinking fund by the railroads, and for which they were entitled to credit on account of their indebtedness to the State for its bonds loaned to them under the general internal improvement acts, yet, that it amounted to a considerable sum, and that said bonds had been paid in, as by law the railroad companies had the right to do, whether they were the identical bonds loaned to the company paying them into the State treasury, or other State bonds, issued to other railroads, or for the general purposes of the State; and these respondents say, that no other mode of reducing the indebtedness of the State to its bondholders, or of the railroad companies to the State, was in fact practicable, for the reason that no difference was made in the stock market in Tennessee State bonds, as to price or description, on account of having been issued to one railroad company and not another, or between those issued to railroad companies under the internal improvement acts, and those issued by the State for other purposes; nor could any purchaser or seller of bonds have knowledge, without carefully tracing their numbers in the books of the secretary of State, on what account and to whom they were originally issued, so that no railroad company could practically go into the market and purchase exclusively State bonds which had been originally loaned to it, under the internal improvement acts, and it was a fact and practice well known to the complainants, as to all the holders of State bonds, that they were from time to time bought in the market for the purpose, and actually paid into the sinking fund, without discrimination, as stated hereinbefore, accepted by the State as a payment on account of the debt due from the railroad company so paying them into the treasury, and credited to it in account, and treated, as between such company and the State, as paid and canceled bonds.

10. These respondents further say that, at or about the date of said settlement between the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company and the State of Tennessee, to wit, on the 23d day of November, 1865, the General Assembly of said State passed an act entitled an act to amend an act entitled, "an act to establish a system of internal improvement in the State, passed the 11th of February, 1852, whereby the governor of the State was authorized and instructed to issue the six per cent. coupon bonds of the State, similar in character in every respect to the bonds issued under said act of 1852, and maturing at the same time, to an amount sufficient to pay off all the bonds and interest past due, as well as that to fall due January 1, 1866, or on any bonds that might fall due during the year 1867, issued or indorsed by the State prior to the 6th day of May, 1861, said bonds to be dated on the 1st day of January, 1866, and payable on the 1st day of January, 1892, to be sold and negotiated at not less than par or exchanged for the interest coupon bonds thereby provided to be paid, estimating each at their par value. And it was further provided in said act, that the State should have the liens upon each of the roads, their franchises, and property, for the prompt and faithful payment of the principal and interest of the bonds thereby authorized to be issued, to pay the interest on the bonds said company should have paid interest on as it had under the said act of February 11, 1852, for the bonds issued under that law; and the said several railroad companies receiving aid under this act should pay the interest on said bonds, as it matured, in the same manner and under the same rules, regulations and restrictions as they were then required to pay on the bonds issued or indorsed for them under the said act of February 11, 1852, commencing the payment of said interest on the 15th day of June, 1866, the amount of interest due on January 1, 1866, by any railroad company to the State on bonds issued to or indorsed for said company, being charged up to said company on the same terms and conditions of the original loan under the said act of February 11, 1852.

It was further provided by the said act of November 23, 1865, that the obligations on the part of the railroad companies to pay into the sinking fund two and one-half per cent. per annum on the amount of their indebtedness to the State, be suspended until January 1, 1867, and said companies relieved from the payment of sinking fund then past due, and that during the year 1867 each of said companies should be required to pay four per cent. on the amount of its indebtedness to the State, to be paid in any bonds of the State of a like character to those issued or indorsed for said company, with the coupons on the same that have not matured, semi-annually on the first of April and October, and a like amount every year thereafter until the whole of their indebtedness is discharged.

And these respondents say that every holder of bonds of the State of Tennessee, originally issued under the internal improvement laws, including the complainant, if at that time he was holder of any such, accepted the provisions of this act of November 23, 1865, surrendering to the State the overdue and unpaid coupons of said bonds, which had matured from July 1, 1861, to January 1, 1866, and receiving in exchange therefor the said State bonds, authorized thereby, and subject to all the terms and conditions of said act, affecting either said new bonds or the original bonds held by them, and thereby admitted and consented to the expressed right reserved to the railroad companies to pay their indebtedness to the State, on account of said bonds originally loaned to them, in any bonds of the State of like character.

11. These respondents further say, that after the proceedings and legislation of the State of Tennessee, hereinbefore set out, including said settlement with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company of November 17, 1865, and the passage of said act of November 23, 1865, the market price of the bonds of the State of Tennessee, in the city of New York, rose from about fifty cents on the dollar in the month of March in that year to ninety-two cents on the dollar in the month of December in the same year.

12. These respondents further say, that at its same session, on the 18th day of January, 1866, the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee passed another act to amend the said act of February 11, 1852, wherein it is recited that the Memphis and Ohio Railroad, the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad, the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad, the Manchester and McMinnville Railroad, the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, the Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad, the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, the Knoxville and Kentucky Railroad, the Winchester and Alabama Railroad, and the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad were all out of repair, the bridges and trestles on said roads had been destroyed, and the companies were unable to put them in running order, and the State had a large interest in said roads, and it was to the interest of the State and the people of the State that the said roads should remain under their control, and that they should be put in running order. It was therefore thereby enacted that the governor of the State be authorized and instructed to issue the bonds of the State, bearing six per cent. interest, with coupons attached, similar in every respect to the bonds issued under the act intended to be amended, viz., the act of February 11, 1852, and maturing as thereinafter provided, to the said named railroad companies, or receivers of such roads, appointed by the governor under the laws of the State, in the amounts therein named, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of $3,283,000, besides $125,000 to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, for the completion of the branch road from Bridgeport, Alabama, to Jasper, Tennessee, and $75,000 to the Southern Central Railroad, for the purpose of assisting in paying for their bridge.

And it was further provided in said act, that each of the said railroad companies, to which relief was granted by said act, should pay to the treasurer of State, as a sinking fund, four per cent of the amount of its indebtedness under said act, as also the interest on said bonds; the sinking fund to commence on the first of January, 1867, as a fund for the payment of said bonds; and the State thereby reserved a lien on all the profits of said roads, for the money thereby advanced for the repairing of the same, which the State should have the right to enforce, if the said companies should fail to pay the four per cent, and interest, as provided by the said act, and which should be enforced as provided by law, in the internal improvement act of the State, and said lien, thus reserved, was thereby also declared to be cumulative of, and in addition to, the lien declared in the act of 1852, which said act it was intended to amend, which lien—that is, under said last mentioned act —was thereby declared to extend to, and cover, the money or bonds to be advanced to said roads under said act.

13. These respondents further say, that in pursuance of the same policy, to extend and enlarge the aid of the State to its railroads, in order to restore and repair them, the General Assembly of the State passed additional acts, to which reference is here made, viz:

An act to incorporate the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company, and for other purposes, passed May 24, 1866.

An act to amend an act, passed January 18, 1866, entitled, "An act to establish a system of internal improvements," passed February 11, 1852.

Under which two acts, bonds of the State were directed to be loaned to the amount of three millions and ten thousand dollars ($3,010,000), to the railroad companies therein named, upon the same conditions prescribed in the internal improvement act of 1852 and its amendments.

And by an act, passed February 18, 1867, the act of November 23, 1865, above referred to, was amended so as to postpone the commencement of the payment by the railroad companies, of the four per cent sinking fund, from the year 1867 until the year 1870.

14. These respondents further say, that many of the railroad companies were unable to provide the means to meet the interest falling due on the 1st of July, 1867, which by law they were bound to provide, and failed to do so, to the extent of nearly $800,000, but that the State nevertheless paid the whole amount of interest falling due on that date on its bonds to the holders thereof; and thereafter, on the 7th day of December, 1867, the General Assembly passed an act entitled "an act to amend the internal improvement laws of the State, passed February 11, 1852," and thereby authorized the loan in a like manner and under the same conditions imposed by the internal improvement laws of the State, to the several railroad companies therein named, of State bonds, to the aggregate amount of three million seven hundred thousand dollars ($3,700,000), besides an additional sum of $5,000 per mile to the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company; and by section 15 of said act it was "Provided, that if the several railroad companies or either of them to whom the bonds of the State has been loaned by this act or former acts, shall fail for two consecutive years, to pay the interest that may accrue upon the bonds loaned to them severally, then, and in that case, the governor, secretary of state, and comptroller may, at their discretion, sell said railroad track, railing, rolling stock, etc., upon such terms and conditions as they may deem best to secure the interest of the State, and shall retain of the proceeds of said sale, the amounts loaned to said companies and the interest due on the same, with expenses of said sale," and also, on the 26th of January, 1869, passed an act to amend the internal improvement act of 1852, by making it the duty of each railroad company, to whom had been issued the bonds of the State, at least fifteen days before the interest becomes due, from time to time, to pay the amount of such interest, including exchange and necessary commissions, to the Comptroller of the State, instead of the Bank of Tennessee, as originally provided in the acts of 1851–1852.

15. These respondents further say, that on February 24, 1870, the General Assembly of Tennessee passed an act to fund the floating debt of the State, and thereby made provision for funding the interest on the public debt of the State then due, and that which might become due on or before the first day of January, 1874, in new bonds of the State, with coupons attached, redeemable by the State in not less than five nor more than twenty years, at the pleasure of the State, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. payable semi-annually ; and it was thereby also enacted that the amount of interest then due, or that might become due by the 1st day of January, 1872, to the State on bonds issued to railroad companies, might be paid by said railroad companies in the bonds of the State or past due coupons, as the said companies might elect, and the Comptroller of the State was authorized and instructed to receive said bonds or coupons in payment of the said interest due to the State by said railroad companies, provided, that no railroad company in the State should be entitled to the provisions of that section, unless they had paid or should pay, in cash, fifty per cent. of the amount due and owing to the State by such railroad companies on the first day of July, 1869.

And these respondents say that on March 17, 1873, the General Assembly of Tennessee passed an act entitled "an act to fund the past due bonds and coupons of the State, and to sustain the credit thereof," and thereby enacted that all the outstanding legally issued bonds of the State of Tennessee, due, or to become due before the first day of January, 1874, as well as all past due coupons, and coupons maturing on or before the first day of January, 1874, might be funded in six per cent. coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, to be styled "the new series of funding bonds," redeemable, at the option of the State, after July 1, 1884, and due and payable on the first of July, 1914, and bearing six per cent. interest, evidenced by coupons attached, payable semi-annually, on the first days of January and July in each and every year, from and including the first day of July, 1874, to the maturity of the bonds; and it was thereby further enacted, that the faith, honor, and credit of the State of Tennessee was thereby pledged for the payment of said bonds at maturity, and providing a sinking fund for that purpose, and for the prompt payment of interest on said bonds, as well as the interest on the registered bonds thereinafter provided for, commencing with the interest to fall due the first day of July, 1874; and it was thereby made the duty of the Treasurer of the State to set apart for that exclusive purpose so much of the revenues as might be necessary to pay the interest on said bonds, commencing with the interest that falls due the first day of July, 1874; and, by the ninth section of said act, it was further enacted, that no coupons of bonds then due should be paid, other than those coupons falling due on and after the first day of July, 1874, and only such coupons of said bonds maturing after that time as should be presented to the Comptroller, who was required to examine the same, and if found to have been issued according to law, should be registered, and the registration properly indicated thereon by him and the secretary of state. It was also provided by the fifth section thereof, that the said act should not affect the liabilities of any railroad, turnpike, or other corporation or person, for or on account of the bonds issued or loaned or indorsed by the State for internal improvements or other purposes, nor any lien in favor of the State as against purchasers of delinquent railroads.

And these respondents say that all the holders of the bonds of the State, including the complainant, if he then held any such, or, if not, his predecessors in the ownership of any he may now hold, and those associated and acting with him in the prosecution of this and similar suits, accepted the provisions of these acts, and funded their overdue coupons, and received payment of current accruing interest after January 1, 1874, to January 1, 1876, in accordance with the terms thereof, and particularly that they registered their bonds, in compliance with the provisions of the ninth section of said act, and thereby assented to and adopted all the provisions of said act.

16. These respondents further say that in the meantime, on the 10th day of November, 1868, the governor of the State had informed the General Assembly that six railroads in the hands of receivers were at that time indebted to the State, on interest account due July 1, 1868, one million one hundred and twenty thousand nine hundred and ninety-six dollars and eighty-six cents, and stated that he would have seized two other roads for failure to pay the July interest of that year, and placed them in the hands of receivers, but that he had learned by experience that to do so would only entail increased burdens upon the State treasury, and expressed the opinion that the interest of these roads, as well as that of the State, required that they should be sold, and the proceeds thereof applied to the reduction of the State debt. In the same message, he said:

" Leading gentlemen, connected with important railroads largely indebted to the State, are asking for authority to issue second mortgage bonds, with a view of exchanging them for State bonds. Thus purchasing State bonds by the avails of these second mortgage bonds, the debt now due by the State would in like amount be transferred to these railroad companies, and so the State would be relieved of a burden of several million of dollars of debt now resting upon it. I regard this proposition with approval, and advise its adoption by the Assembly.

The payment of large debts now due from the roads alluded to, and the sale of the roads already in the hands of receivers, would reduce the State liabilities at least one-third."

And these respondents say that at that session, in pursuance of the policy thus recommended, the General Assembly passed, on February 25, 1869, the act entitled "an act to liquidate the State debt contracted in aid of railroad companies in the State of Tennessee," and on the 20th day of January, 1870, the act entitled "an act for the payment of the State debt," and on the 1st day of July, 1870, the act entitled "an act authorizing the sale and transfer of the interest of the State in delinquent railroad companies," and on the 8th day of July, 1870, the act entitled "an act appointing commissioners under certain circumstances to lease delinquent railroads," and on the 21st day of December, 1870, the act entitled "an act to amend the act of 1870, ch. 79, for the sale of interest of the State in delinquent railroad companies, passed July 1, 1870," and on the 13th day of December, 1871, the act entitled "an act to further enable railroad companies to pay their debts to the State and complete the construction of their roads."

And these respondents say, that at the session of the General Assembly in 1871, the governor, in his message to that body, stated that under said act of February 25, 1869, as amended by the Act of January 20, 1870, chap. 44, over eight million of dollars in the bonds of the State had been retired and canceled; that other roads had purchased and were then purchasing bonds with which to cancel their liabilities to the State under the said acts; and in order to prevent further delay on the part of solvent roads that had not retired their indebtedness to the State under said act, recommended that the act be either repealed, to take effect at some future time not remote, or that its provisions be so amended as that the roads be required to pay all accrued interest as well as the sinking fund not theretofore paid in. In the same document, the Governor also stated that but three of the delinquent railroads remained unsold, and added: "It will be a gratifying result when the State is entirely divorced from the railroad system. And, although the sales will not realize all that was desired, and leaves a large debt to be provided for, yet the internal improvement system of Tennessee has added millions to her wealth and diffused such energy and enterprise into every class of society, that no intelligent man can regret the policy which inaugurated the system, notwithstanding a large amount of appropriations made since the war have been improperly expended."

17. These respondents further say, that the several railroad companies to whom loans of internal improvement bonds had been made and the State of Tennessee dealt together under the said acts of February 25, 1869, and of January 20, 1870, according to the terms thereof, the various railroad companies who were able to do so, and who were on that account called solvent, purchasing in the open market, at the market price, bonds of the State of Tennessee, without discrimination as to their description, or on what account, or to whom issued, the only practicable mode in which they could make purchases of the public debt of the State, and paying them to the State in satisfaction of the indebtedness of such railroad companies to the State on account of its advances of its own bonds to them, and in discharge of the lien reserved therefor to the State under the Internal Improvement Law of 1852 and the amendments thereto; and in order to raise the means so to do, the said railroad companies issued their own bonds, secured by mortgages on their railroad property as a first lien thereon, in substitution for that of the State, and declared by law and the certificate of the State to be first mortgage bonds, and the same were sold in the markets of this country and of Europe, on the faith thereof, to innocent purchases for value, to the amount of many millions of dollars, now outstanding; and that those railroads known as delinquent railroads, the corporations owning which were not able thus to liquidate their indebtedness to the State, were sold by the authority of the State, by virtue of judicial decrees, duly rendered in proceedings instituted and prosecuted by the State under and according to the provisions of the Act of December 20, 1870, to which all parties in interest, including the holders of State Internal Improvement bonds, were parties and bound thereby; and the purchasers thereof paid for the same, as by said act and decree they were authorized to do, in any bonds of the State.

And the respondents say that by virtue of said dealings and transactions, and in consequence thereof, the result, in regard to the reduction of the public debt reached, was as follows: The total bonded debt of the State, about the first of January, 1870, was about forty millions of dollars. The payments on account thereof, for and on behalf of railroad companies to whom internal improvement bonds were loaned, made into the treasury of the State, in bonds and coupons overdue, amount to twenty-one million four hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars, leaving the unpaid public debt of the State amounting to about nineteen million five hundred and fourteen thousand dollars. The account between the State and the two descriptions of railroads is as follows:

First. Defaulting railroads sold :

Bonds issued	$14,628,000 00
Int. funded, 1866	1,122,306 00
Int. unpaid, July, 1870	3,331,163 12
U. S. claims assumed	511,560 00
Total	$19,593,029 12
Amount realized by sale	6,698,000 00
Loss to State	$12,895,029 12

Second. Roads which have settled their indebtedness:

Bonds issued	$12,742,000 00
Int. funded, January, 1866,	1,850,768 00
Sinking fund paid	493,306 00
Unaccounted for	1,255,700 00

for a more particular account thereof, reference is hereby made to the statements herewith filed and marked Exhibit No. 5.

18. And these respondents further say that during the whole period of these transactions, from and including the settlement between the State and the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, beginning in May, 1865, and during the whole progress of this legislation, and of the liquidation, arrangements, and settlements authorized and required by it, and of the dealing between the railroad companies and the State, and of the railroad companies in borrowing money on the security of mortgages on their property, on the faith that all prior liens on account of the loans by the State of internal improvement bonds had been thereby removed and discharged or transferred by operation of law, to bonds issued by the railroad companies in substitution therefor, the holders of the bonds of the State of Tennessee, in general, had knowledge of all that was taking place; the facts themselves were public, historical, and notorious, and the holders of Tennssee State Bonds, at an early stage in this series of transactions, formed a voluntary organization, represented by a committee, for consultation and co-operation in matters of common interest, and kept themselves well advised of each step in the history of the business; and on or about May, 1870, said bondholders, through their committee, of which J. J. Donaldson, Esq., was chairman, obtained a legal opinion from Hon. Henry E. Davies and Noah Davis, eminent counsel of the city of New York, affirming that they were in equity, beneficial owners of a lien under the act of 1852, reserved nominally to the State, upon each railroad, for the specific payment of the identical bonds issued to that railroad company, by virtue of a contract, protected by the Constitution of the United States; which opinion was printed in pamphlet form and generally circulated among the holders of the Tennessee State bonds, but not otherwise. And these respondents say, that he is informed, and believes, and so avers, that the said or a similar organization of Tennesseee State bond holders, has been kept up ever since, and that the present suit, and other similar suits, now pending are prosecuted in the name of the complainants, by a committee of such organization.

And these respondents say that at no time did the said holders of Tennessee State bonds, or any one of them, including the complainant or those associated and acting with him in the prosecution of this and similar suits, ever make any demand upon any railroad company for the payment of any interest on the said bonds, or receive from any railroad company payment of any coupon, or notify or inform, either directly or indirectly, any railroad company that it was claimed that any such liability, right, or lien existed, or make any objection to any of the acts of the State of Tennessee, inconsistent therewith, or object to the passage thereof, or oppose any payment, settlement, and liquidation, by any railroad company, of its indebtedness to the State, or make public, in any way, their claim as now asserted in this bill of complaint.

On the contrary thereof, these respondents say that they not only acquiesced in all the foregoing acts and transactions, by their tacit approval and consent, but that they actively advised and urged in individual cases, including the present complainant, or some one or more of those with whom he is and has been acting, the consummation of these arrangements, as beneficial to the holders of State bonds, and by frequent and public communications, to and with the authorities of the State, treated and dealt with it as their only debtor, and gave it to be understood that they looked to no other, and had no other to whom to look.

And these respondents say that on the 16th day of January, 1878, there was held, in the city of New York, a meeting of holders of Tennessee State bonds, the call for which was signed by the complainant, and others with whom he was then acting, and with whom he is still associated, and who, jointly with him, are prosecuting this and similar suits—namely, Eugene Kelly, Peter Geddes, John T. Terry, and others—and at which they were present and participating, and at which the following preamble and resolutions were adopted, viz.:

"Whereas, On the 8th March, 1877, at a meeting between a committee of five members of the Tennessee legislature (of which Col. John H. Savage was chairman) and a committee of arbitration (of which

Mr. George S. Coe was chairman), to whom had been referred the question of a fair and equitable adjustment between the Southern States in default and their bondholders, the debt of the State of Tennessee was fully discussed, with a view of ascertaining and determining what a fair and equitable adjustment of it would be; and,

"Whereas, At the conclusion of the conference between the committee of the Tennessee legislature and the committee of arbiters, the committee of arbiters made an award that the debt of the State of Tennessee ought to be readjusted by the issue of new bonds, at the rate of sixty per cent. of the total amount of the debt and interest, the new bonds to bear interest at six per cent., payable semi-annually, and the coupons for interest to be made receivable for all taxes and dues to the State; and,

"Whereas, The session of the legislature expired by constitutional limitation a few days after the award of the arbiters was rendered, and there was no time to enact a law to give it effect; and,

"Whereas, It was very generally understood that an extra session of the legislature would be convened, to accept a proposition from the bondholders to compromise the State debt, on the terms of the award of the committee of arbitration, and to enact a law to fully carry it out, the holders of a very large amount of bonds of Tennessee did make and send to the governor propositions of compromise on the terms of said award, and the governor did thereafter convene the legislature in extra session, to consider said proposition; and,

"Whereas, During the sitting of the legislature, the intervention of other parties, proposing and advocating before it other and different terms of settlement than those considered by the committee of the legislature and the committee of arbitration, and awarded by the latter committee, and agreed to by the bondholders, was prejudicial to the interests of the State of Tennessee, and to her creditors, in so far as it has delayed a settlement; and

" Whereas, The bondholders of Tennessee had neither an agent nor other person to represent them before the legislature, but confided in the legislature, and fully expected that the senators and resentatives of the people of Tennessee would ratify and affirm the award of the distinguished and disinterested gentlemen who had acted as a committee of arbitration, and accept the proposition of the bondholders made in accordance therewith, unhesitatingly; therefore,

"Resolved, That efforts made by any persons who purported to represent the bond holders of Tennessee were entirely unauthorized, and that the declaration alleged to have been made at Nashville, that a settlement could be effected with the bond holders upon a lower basis than that proposed by the committee of arbitrators, of which Mr. George S. Coe is chairman, has no foundation in fact, so far as it relates to the great body of bondholders.

"Resolved, That while we deplore the attitude assumed by the legislature, while assembled at Nashville, in December, toward the bondholders, we believe that it resulted from the influence of unwarrantable interference of other parties than real bondholders, or their representatives.

" Resolved, That we have an abiding belief that the people of the great State of Tennessee will not, by the rejection of honest claims which they are abundantly able to pay, suffer a stigma long to rest upon them, the effect of which will be to paralyze the prosperity of the State, subvert its best interests, and engender that demoralization which must ultimately result in losses to its citizens, even far greater than to its creditors.

"Resolved, That the people of Tennessee be urged to adopt such legislation as will uphold the honor of the State, and evince proper regard for the high integrity which has hitherto characterized her citizens.

"Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed, consisting of Eugene Kelly, John T. Terry (of E. D. Morgan & Co.), J. G. K. Duer (of James G. King's Sons), Peter Geddes (of Geddes & Smith), and Dr. R. S. Moran—Eugene Kelly to be chairman—to take such action as, in their judgment, may be for the interest of the bondholders; but with the understanding that no settlement less favorable than the award of the committee of arbitration be accepted."

And these respondents say that on the 11th day of December, 1877, the complainant, C. Amory Stevens, had addressed, by telegraph, from New York, to the governor of Tennessee, a communication, which was laid before the General Assembly, then in session, as follows:

New York, Dec. 11, 1877.

"Governor Jas. D. Porter:

"I am a large holder of Tennessee bonds, which have been held for years strictly for investment account. I was a signer of the former petition, sent you through the committee of arbitration; and while I would prefer to have that proposition accepted, yet, if it would require a revenue bill that is deemed by the legislature to be higher than the State can afford to pay without seriously retarding the prosperity of the people, I prefer to change the original offer, and hereby do change it. I propose to take fifty cents on the dollar. I think this dispatch represents the sentiments of most of the investment holders. They recognize the embarrassed condition of the State, growing out of the war, and are willing to meet the situation in a spirit of liberality,] and now ask the legislature, through your excellency, to reciprocate this feeling, and make a settlement without further delay.

"Please submit this to the legislature for its action.

"The Estate of Calvin Stevens,
"C. Amory Stevens, Trustee."

And these respondents say that the public deb of the State of Tennessee, which was the subject of these communications and propositions, amounted at that time, as reported to the General Assembly by the Governor, in the same message which transmitted the proposition made through the committee of arbitration, to twenty-three millions two hundred and twelve thousand six hundred and six dollars, on the first day of January, 1878, and which consisted chiefly of bonds issued under the Internal Improvement Acts of 1851, 1852, and the amendments thereto, and those issued for past due interest, and known as funding bonds, constituted what remained of the outstanding bonds of the State, after the payment made by the railroad companies in satisfaction of their indebtedness to the State under the internal improvement acts, and the sale of the delinquent roads and the payment of the purchase-money thereof in the bonds of the State, as provided in the acts of 1869, 1870.

And these respondents say and insist that the construction of the internal improvements act, thus practically established by the subsequent legislation and dealing of the public authorities of the State, with the railroad companies and with its creditors, and universally acquiesced in, has thereby acquired the force of law, and ought not now to be questioned, much less disturbed, to the injury and loss of many innocent persons in this country and in Europe, who have invested large sums of money on the faith and credit thereof; and these respondents say that the complainant and those with whom he is associated and acting in this behalf, have, by their acquiescence in this course of dealing, invited and encouraged others to repose confidence and trust in the same, and ought not now to be permitted, in equity, to question the validity of transactions to which they have thus consented, and that whatever rights they may originally have had, as holders of State bonds adverse thereto, have been lost, by their own laches, acquiescence, and neglect to urge them, when they ought, if they had intended to insist upon them, and the claim now made so to do is, consequently, stale and inequitable.

19. And these respondents, further answering, say they deny all charges and allegation of fraud and bad faith made or imputed in said bill to their codefendants, or to the State of Tennessee.

20. And these respondents, further answering, say, that as soon as practicable after hearing of the pendency of this suit, they, with others, whose names are contained in the list hereto attached, marked Exhibit No. 1, respectfully requested the said trustees under the said mortgage to take the necessary steps to protect their interest against the claim of the complainant and other holders of Tennessee bonds, which he is wrongfully seeking to establish as a lien in his behalf prior to the first lien which the said trustees under the aforesaid mortgage hold for the benefit of the said mortgage bond holders, and further authorized them to use their names or any number thereof conjointly with their own, or if they should so elect alone, in prosecuting the legal resistance which they desired said trustees to make against said wrongful claim of the complainant on behalf of himself and other holders of Tennessee bonds.

And these respondents say, that the said trustees have declined to appear in this cause in their own names, being advised that, as they are all citizens of the State of New York, and of the same State with the complainant, the nature and limits of the jurisdiction of this Court in this case forbids and prevents them so to do, and for that reason these respondents appear in their own names and behalf, and in behalf of all others whose names are in said list hereto attached, and all others similarly situated, who may choose hereafter to come in, and insist that, by reason of the premises, the claim of the complainant in the bill of complaint is without equity, and that the said mortgage to the said Iselin, Wilson, and Stevenson, for the uses and purposes therein mentioned, and for the benefit and security of the holders of the bonds therein described and intended to be secured, is the only subsisting lien on the said railroad and property therein conveyed and mortgaged.

21. And these respondents, therefore, by reason of the premises, pray that this answer may be taken as a cross-bill, and that the complainants and their codefendants may be made defendants thereto, and compelled to make answer unto, and that on final hearing this honorable Court will order, adjudge, and decree that said deed of trust and mortgage, herein set forth, to the said Iselin, Wilson, and Stevenson, trustees as aforesaid, for the benefit and security of the holders of the bonds therein described, is, in respect to the claim of the complainant, and of all other holders of the bonds of the State of Tennessee, the best and only lien and incumbrance on said property therein described, and that these respondents and those whom they represent may be forever quieted in their said right and title under the same and the said mortgage, against the claim of the complainant and all other holders of bonds of the State of Tennessee, aforesaid, and that they be perpetually enjoined from hereafter setting up their claim as aforesaid, and for such other and further relief as these respondents and complainants in said cross-bill may in equity and good conscience, and according to the usages and practice of courts of chancery, be entitled to.

But if the same shall be required, both the said party of the first part and such new trustee, or either of them, and the retired trustee, or his representative, shall make, execute, and deliver all necessary conveyances and agreements and grant all powers and authorities for that purposes.

Provided further, and it is further declared and agreed, any thing hereinbefore contained to the contrary notwithstanding, that it shall be competent for the holders of a majority in amount of the bonds issued under and secured by this mortgage, and, at the time being, remaining outstanding, by instrument, or concurrent instruments, under their respective hands and seals, to remove any of the trustees, at the time being, under this instrument, other than the three original trustees herein named, whether such substituted trustee shall have been appointed by a court or otherwise; and, by the same instrument or instruments, to appoint a new trustee in place of the one so removed ; and every trustee thus appointed by a majority in amount of the bond holders shall stand in the place of the one so removed, and be vested with, and subject to, the like estate, trust, rights, powers and duties.

And it is further understood and agreed by and between the parties to these presents, that the said parties of the second part, their successor or successors in the said trust, shall only be accountable for reasonable diligence in the management thereof, and shall not be responsible for acts or negligences of any agent or agents necessarily employed by them, when such agent or agents are selected with proper discretion, or with the approbation of the said party of the first part. And neither trustee shall be answerable for the act, neglect, or default of the other trustee or either of them.

And the said trustees, and their successors, are hereby released from executing the bond required of trustees under section 1974 of the code of Tennessee, and from giving any bond or security as such trustees.

And the officers of said railroad company shall have, at all times, the right to inspect the books kept by the receivers of the road and their agents.

And this indenture further witnesseth, that the said parties of the second part hereby accept the aforesaid trust, and also covenant and agree to and with the said party of the first part to execute the same upon, and subject to, the terms and conditions hereinbefore as well as hereinafter mentioned and provided, and which said terms and conditions are hereby mutually agreed to and upon by both parties to these presents.

And it is hereby provided and agreed that the said trustees and their successors may employ and advise with legal counsel, and that the expense thereof, as well as other personal expenses of the said trustees, for the time being, in the discharge of said trust, and all other their reasonable charges and expenses thereof, including their compensation, shall be paid by the party of the first part, as they are incurred ; and, if not so paid, then the same may be paid or retained out of the trust estate or income on which, or to which, they are chargeable ; and likewise, that the said trustees or their successors shall not be required to act in the execution of said trust, except at their own option, unless the party requesting them so to do shall furnish them reasonable indemnity against the loss, costs, trouble and expense they may incur or be at in so doing. That they, in the execution of said trust, may employ agents and attorneys in fact, to act in their behalf, whenever required to act as aforesaid, except when they may be, or are, required by law to act personally. And also, that all covenants and agreements hereinbefore contained or implied may be executed specifically by and through any of the said courts of competent jurisdiction, as practised by them in like cases of trust.

It is fully understood that any two of the trustees aforesaid, or their successors, shall be sufficient for carrying into effect the purposes of this trust, except certifying the bonds as being issued under this mortgage, which certification must be by three trustees.

In witness whereof, the said party of the first part, in pursuance of authority given by the law, and in conformity with the order of the stockholders, acting in annual meeting, and the board of directors, has caused this indenture to be signed by its president and its secretary, and the corporate seal of the company to be affixed thereto; and the parties of the second part have hereunto subscribed their names and affixed their seals, the day and year first in this indenture mentioned.

Exhibit No. 4.

SETTLEMENT WITH THE LOUISVILLE AND NASHVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY.

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE, November 18, 1865.

To the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee:

In obedience to a resolution of your honorable body, entitled " a resolution to appoint commissioners to settle with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company," adopted May 5, 1865, the undersigned, as commissioners on behalf of the State, have met the Hon. James Guthrie, president, and Mr. Willis Ranney, secretary of said company, at the State Capitol, for the purpose contemplated in the resolution.

The memorial upon which said resolution is founded, and which, it is said, sets forth the various matters of settlement, has not been furnished to the commissioners, but has been mislaid in one house or the other of the legislature. But from a statement of its contents by Mr. Guthrie, your commissioners are of opinion that the only matter legitimately referred to them, is the indebtedness of said company to the State on account of the aid furnished the company in the shape of bonds loaned to them, and the interest thereon.

It appears from the books of the secretary of State, that said company have, at different times, received the sum of five hundred and sixty thousand five hundred dollars ($560,500) of the bonds of the State, in aid of the construction of their road, and the bridge across the Cumberland, at Nashville. It appears from the books of the comptroller, that the interest on these bonds has been paid up to July 1, 1861. The interest accruing since that time amounts to one hundred and forty-seven thousand one hundred and thirty-one dollars and twenty-five cents ($147,131.25), making the entire indebtedness of said railroad company to the State, seven hundred and seven thousand six hundred and thirty-one dollars and twenty-five cents ($707,631.25). The principal, Messrs. Guthrie and Ranney, on behalf of the said company, proposed to pay over in straight six per cent. coupon bonds of the State, and the interest in coupons of the State now due.

Believing it to be manifestly for the interest of the State to call in this large installment of its indebtedness, and believing, moreover, that the company had a right, under the law regulating the sinking fund, to pay off its entire indebtedness in the bonds of the State, your commissioners accepted the proposal, and executed to the commissioners, on behalf of the company, the following receipt, a duplicate of which is retained in the office of the comptroller:

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE, November 17, 1865.

We, the undersigned, commissioners appointed by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, by joint resolution adopted May 5, 1865. "to meet and make settlement, on behalf of the State, with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company," have this day met and settled with the Hon. James Guthrie, president, and Willis Ranney, secretary of said company, and have received from them five hundred and fifty-one coupon bonds of the State, for one thousand dollars each ($551,000), nine thousand five hundred dollars ($9,500) in coupons of the bonds of the State now due; also, one hundred and forty-seven thousand one hundred and thirty-one dollars and twenty-five cents ($147,131,-25) in coupons of the bonds of the State, in payment of interest due from said company, accruing since July 1, 1861; making in all, seven hundred and seven thousand six hundred and thirty-one dollars and twenty-five cents, being the total indebtedness of said company to the State of Tennessee, on account of the bonds of the State, received in aid of the construction of said road, and the bridge across the Cumberland River.

Given under our hands, this 17th of November, 1865.

S. W. HATCHELL, Comptroller.
T. H. CALDWELL, Att'y-General,
A. W. HAWKINS, Com. of Roads.

The bonds and coupons mentioned in said receipt are deposited with the comptroller of the State, and a list of the numbers and amount of the coupons is filed in the office of the secretary of State.

From the statement of Mr. Guthrie, your commissioners are of opinion that the other matters contained in the memorial, grow out of the consolidation of said road with the Edgefield and Kentucky road, by the acts of December 1, 1855, and December 3, 1859, and should be settled by the two companies, unless the latter road should fall permanently into the hands of the State. At any rate, the adjustment of these matters has been waived for the present by consent.

The last installment of interest, amounting to sixteen thousand eight hundred and fifteen dollars ($16,815), was paid by said company into the Bank of Tennessee, on the 9th day of May, 1861, as appears from their receipt. This was two days after the adoption of the Secession Ordinance; but as the law required the payment to be made to the bank, and as your commissioners can not see that the status of the bank was changed at that early day, they consider the payment legal. The fact that the fund was lost by the bad faith of the bank, does not, in the opinion of your commissioners, furnish any just or legal grounds for recourse on the company.

Respectfully submitted.

A. J. FLETCHER, Sec'y of State.
S. W. HATCHELL, Comptroller.
T. H. CALDWELL, Att'y-General.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS, on behalf of the Holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company,

vs.

THE NASHVILLE AND NORTHWESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY.

The answer of Calvin Amory Stevens to the cross-bill filed by Charles Burckhardt and others, admitted as defendants by stipulation :

This complainant, respondent to the cross-bill which he has consented that Charles Burckhardt and others might file subject to conditions specified in a certain stipulation, for answer to said cross-bill, or so much and such parts thereof as he is advised it is material for him to answer unto, but without waiving any benefit or right of exception thereto that can or may be had to the same on account of the errors, uncertainties and imperfections therein contained, admits the existence of the several statutes, public documents and records and private writings set out or referred to in the cross-bill, but for greater certainty as to the contents thereof, prays leave to refer to the said documents upon the trial.

Respondent denies each and every allegation in the said cross-bill with actual knowledge of which he is charged; and as to the other matters of fact alleged affirmatively in the said cross-bill, except in the particulars above admitted, and respondent has no knowledge or information, and therefore demands strict proof of the same.

And the complainant further says that the telegraphic letter of December 11, 1877, addressed by him to the Governor of Tennessee, and laid before its legislature, was written for his signature by Richard T. Wilson, President of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, and by him procured to be signed by the said complainant, and by said Wilson sent to said Governor at a time when this complainant was wholly ignorant of the substitutions now claimed to have been effected, and by which it is alleged that the liens upon the railroads of the defendant company and other companies in the State of Tennessee have been satisfied, and that said telegraphic letter relates to bonds of the State of Tennessee, then held by this complainant, of which only a very small minority in amount were secured or are now claimed to have been secured by any lien whatever.

Respondent is advised that he need not answer or controvert in this pleading the various conclusions of law and presumptions set forth in the cross-bill, but that the same are best answered by the language of the Statutes of Tennessee.

Wherefore this respondent prays to be hence dismissed with his reasonable costs.

IN THE

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,

For the Middle District of Tennessee.

IN EQUITY.

Calvin Amory Stevens, Eugene Kelly, John T. Terry and Peter Geddes, on behalf of holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of the State of Tennessee issued to railroads,

vs.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company,

and

Fifteen other suits on behalf of bondholders, against Fifteen other Railroad Companies.

SOME OF THESE SUITS ARE PENDING IN THE EASTERN, SOME IN THE MIDDLE, AND OTHERS IN THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

OPINION BY S. L. WITHEY, DISTRICT JUDGE, WESTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN.

SEPTEMBER 25th, 1880.

These are suits in equity pending in the Circuit Courts of the United States for the Districts of Tennessee, brought by complainants on behalf of holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of the State of Tennessee against various railroad companies to whom the bonds were issued, to aid in the construction of their several lines of railroads, and against all other persons interested.

They were argued together in April and May last at Nashville.

The object of the suits is to have a lien in favor of the bondholders declared and established upon the railroads of the several defendant companies, and a Receiver appointed for the collection of the accrued and accruing interest, the interest having been in default since July 1st, 1875. The principal is not due.

The plaintiffs' contention is, briefly, that the Acts passed by the Legislature of the State of Tennessee in 1852, to grant aid to the railroad companies by a loan to them of the bonds of the State, imposed a lien upon the railroads, as security to the holder of the bonds and to the State—payment to the holder would operate as indemnity to the State. Inasmuch as the State and the companies are in default in the payment of the interest since July, 1875, the bondholders by these suits seek to have a lien in their favor established upon the roads.

Statement.

The General Assembly of the State of Tennessee passed, February 11, 1852, an Act known as the "Internal Improvement Act of the State of Tennessee," extending aid to railroad companies by a loan of State bonds, the proceeds to be used in ironing and equipping the roads. Prior to the time of passing the Act, there had been issued State bonds for various purposes, of which above three and a half million dollars were outstanding. The State of Tennessee was now in good credit, her six per cent. bonds brought a premium in the money markets of the world, as did also, subsequently, her bonds issued to the defendant railroad companies under the Act in question, and Acts amendatory thereof, which bonds are the subject of controversy in these suits. The scheme of internal improvement now adopted was to issue to each Company six per cent. bonds to the amount of eight thousand dollars a mile in installments—afterwards extended to ten thousand dollars,—the first when a section of thirty miles of road was completed ready for the ties, and the subsequent installments upon completion of each additional section of twenty miles; afterwards changed to ten miles. The bonds are transferable by delivery, run not less than thirty nor more than forty years from the respective dates of issue. The interest matures semiannually, and, with the principal, is payable in New York. They were paid to the railroad company and old in open market without endorsement or guarantee. The State was invested by the terms of the statute with a lien upon each section of the company's road as soon as the bonds for that section were issued, and upon final completion of the road such lien was to attach to the entire road and its equipments. The company was to be incapable of creating any lien conflicting with that in favor of the State.

The amount of the lien claimed by complainants in behalf of such bondholders upon all the railroads is about fifteen million dollars. The litigation, however, affects the holders of between thirty and thirty-five million dollars of other mortgage bonds secured upon these roads and issued under authority of the General Assembly conferred in 1869–70 to enable the aided companies to repay to the State the bonds loaned to them. The holders of the last-mentioned bonds claim to have a first lien upon the roads, and appear in these suits, with the defendant companies, to contest the lien claimed by complainants and their associate bondholders.

The interest of the State debt was in default from July, 1861, to 1866, during the Civil War, when the price of her bonds had depreciated in value to less than fifty per cent. of their face. The storm of war left the railroads of the State without money, credit or rolling stock, and their roads and bridges going to decay. The first Legislature of Tennessee, after the storm had passed, assembled in 1865, when the State and the railroad companies were alike in a condition of bankruptcy. Provision was now made by the State to fund all her over-due bonds and interest coupons outstanding into new bonds. In 1866 and 1867 the State issued additional bonds to some of these railroad companies to aid them to build bridges and repair their roads, the State reserving a lien and imposing terms and conditions like those in the act of 1852, but somewhat modified.

In 1869–70 none of the principal of the railroad aid bonds issued under the acts of 1852, or acts amendatory thereof, had matured, but now the General Assembly of the State, to enable the respective companies to repay any part of the principal of their indebtedness for bonds loaned to them, passed an act permitting payment in any of the outstanding bonds of the State.

To obtain money to purchase State bonds for surrender, they were severally authorized to issue mortgage bonds upon their respective roads and equipments corresponding in denomination with the State aid bonds, and deposit them with the Comptroller of the State, to be by him delivered to the company or its agent whenever, and as Tennessee State bonds were by the company surrendered and cancelled. These mortgage bonds were by law declared to be a first lien on the road and equipments of the company issuing them, and as evidence to the purchaser the Comptroller was required to and did certify upon each bond that it was "secured by first mortgage."

Many of the companies availed themselves of this legislation, and under its sanction and authority an aggregate of between thirty and forty million dollars of such mortgage bonds were by the companies issued and sold, and are now outstanding.

Other railroad companies did not avail themselves of the provisions of the law of 1869-70. They continued to be in default as to the payment of interest, and as to payment annually into the sinking fund required by statute. Proceedings by the State were therefore commenced in the State Court of Chancery, and decrees of foreclosure and sale obtained.

At the sale the State was purchaser. These foreclosed roads were subsequently sold by the State and new companies organized. Payment by the purchaser was made to the State in any outstanding Tennessee State bonds at their face value, and the purchaser was invested with all the right and title of the State.

The State, as before stated, had funded her over-due bonds and interest coupons into a new bond under the law of 1865, and in February, 1870, another act was passed to again fund unpaid interest that had accrued on the public debt, together with the floating debt of the State, and all that might become due up to 1874. Holders of Tennessee bonds, including holders of internal improvement bonds issued to railroad companies, generally accepted the provisions thus made for retiring over-due interest coupons, as they had done under the act of 1865. The State of Tennessee however, again defaulted in her interest January, 1, 1875, and subsequently openly repudiated her bonded debt, for the payment of which the faith and credit of the State were solemnly pledged.

The Statute.

The Internal Improvement Act of February 11, 1852, will alone be referred to, as it contains all the provisions necessary to be considered. The lien is declared by the third section which is as follows:

> "That so soon as the bonds of the State shall have been issued for the first section of the road as aforesaid, they shall constitute a lien upon said section so prepared as aforesaid, including the road-bed, right of way, grading, bridges, and masonry, upon all the stock subscribed for in said company, and upon said iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments, when purchased and delivered, and the State of Tennessee, upon the issuance of said bonds, and by virtue of the same, shall be invested with the said lien or mortgage without a deed from the company, for the payment by said company of said bonds, with the interest thereon as the same becomes due."

The requirement, by section five, as to the payment of interest is, that fifteen days before it falls due the company shall deposit in the bank of Tennessee—the State's fiscal agent—

> "an amount sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange and necessary commissions, or satisfactory evidence that said interest has been paid or provided for, and if said company fail to deposit said interest as aforesaid, or furnish the evidence as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to report that fact to the Governor,"

who is immediately to put the road into the hands of a Receiver to operate it in behalf of the State until the default is made good, and then to surrender the road to the company.

By the section,

"The Comptroller is authorized, and it is made his duty upon his warrant to draw from the treasury any sum of money necessary to meet the interest on such bonds as may not be provided for by the company as provided for in in this act, and the Comptroller shall report thereof to the General Assembly from time to time."

The requirement as to the payment by the company of the principal of the bonds by section seven is:

"That at the end of five years after the completion of said road, said company shall set apart one per centum per annum upon the amount of bonds issued to the company, and shall use the same in the purchase of bonds of the State of Tennessee, which bonds the company shall pay into the treasury of the State, after assigning them to the Governor, and for which the Governor shall give said company a receipt, and as between the State and said company, the bonds so paid in shall be a credit on the bonds issued to the company. And bonds so paid in and the interest accruing thereon, from time to time, shall be held and used by the State asa Sinking Fund for the payment of the bonds issued to the company, and should said company repurchase any of the bonds issued to it under the provisions of this act, they shall be credited as aforesaid and cancelled. And should said company fail to comply with the provisions of this section, it shall be proceeded against, as provided in the fifth section of this act."

viz, as in case of failure to meet installments of interest.

It will be noticed that as these bonds were to be issued in installments at different periods, they would therefore fall due at different times.

The sixth section provides:

"That if said company shall fail or refuse to pay any of said bonds when they fall due, it shall be the duty of the Governor to notify the Attorney General of the district in which is situated the place of business of said company, of the fact; and thereupon, said Attorney General shall forthwith file a bill against said company in the name of the State of Tennessee, in the Chancery or Circuit Court of the county in which is situated said place of business, setting forth the facts, and thereupon said Court shall make all such orders and decrees in said cause as may be deemed necessary by the Court, to receive the payment of said bonds, with the interest thereon, and to indemnify the State of Tennessee against any loss on account of the issuance of said bonds, by ordering the said railroad to be placed in the hands of a receiver, ordering the sale of said road, and all the property and assets attached thereto or belonging to said company, or in such other manner as the Court may deem best for the interest of the State."

By section twelve,

"the State of Tennessee expressly reserves the right to enact by the Legislature thereof, hereafter, all such laws as may be deemed necessary to protect the interest of the State, and to secure the State against any loss in consequence of the issuance of bonds under the provisions of this act; but in such manner as not to impair the vested rights of the stockholders of the companies."

What the parties claim.

Complainants contend that the statutory lien is to be regarded as an instrument of security taken for the benefit of the bondholders; or more fully stated, that the legislation and action of the State under it were effectual to fix upon the railroads respectively a lien not merely for the indemnity of the State of Tennessee, but also to secure the payment of its bonds to their holders; that the State became trustee of this lien for the benefit of the holder of the bonds, which lien inured to their benefit as costius que trusent of the State, by force of the express contract to that effect in the law creating the security, as well as by necessary legal implication from the relations of the parties, which no subsequent dealings between the railroad companies and the State could discharge. Again it is said:

"the first or primary object of the act was to compel each aided company to pay its debt directly to its true creditor, the lender on the bonds. This was effected by the usual and proper process, a lien pure and simple for the payment of the bonds upon the estate of each aided company enforcible in equity in case of default."

On the other hand defendants' answers state the opposing view thus:

"that the said statutory mortgage was taken by the State in its own behalf and for its own benefit, and not as trustee for its bondholders, and that said statutory mortgage was conditioned solely for the payment by the Company to the State of the company's indebtedness to the State for the bonds loaned to it, and in respect of both principal and interest such payment was conditioned to be made by the company to the State before the corresponding amount of interest or principal would become due or payable by the State to the holders of the State bonds; * * * that by the statute two entirely independent and distinct debts were created, one from the State to the bondholders upon its bonds payable to bearer, resting upon the faith and credit of the State, the other an indebtedness from the railroad company to the State for the amount of the State bonds loaned to it, and that the statutory mortgage was given to secure this latter direct obligation from the railroad company to the State, with which the bondholders had no connection or concern."

It is further said that whether the engagement of the company was to pay to the State or to holders of the bonds is not important, and that if under the terms of the act it shall be held that the companies were to make payment to the bondholders, such payment was to be merely in relief of the State from the ultimate performance of its obligation—but all the while the obligation of the State remained—was to be in exoneration of the State but did not modify its undertaking on the bond and created no privity between the bondholders and the company. That such an undertaking by the company would be to indemnify the State by payment of the bond in its stead, and that the obligation was to the State alone, and one in which no one else had or was intended to have any legal or equitable interest, much less any direct participation and right of intervention or control. That the relation between the railroad company and the holder of State bonds was that merely of vendor and purchaser of negotiable securities, passing by delivery and without endorsement and therefore created no relation between them of debtor and creditor.

I cannot refrain from expressing personally and officially my acknowledgements for the complete and exhaustive arguments by learned and eminent counsel which distinguished the hearing and submission of these important cases. I approach their consideration with all the aid which the most consummate and elaborate arguments can afford. The opinion will not extend over all the debated ground.

Have the holders of internal improvement bonds, loaned by the State of Tennessee to a railroad company, under the act in question, any enforcible right by contract or otherwise in the statutory lien that is reserved to the State of Tennessee for the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds as they matured? Section three provides:

> "That so soon as the bonds of the State shall have been issued for the first section of the road as aforesaid, they shall constitute a lien upon said section * * * and the State of Tennessee, upon the issuance of said bonds, and by virtue of the same, shall be invested with said lien * * * for the payment by said company of said bonds, with the interest as the same becomes due."

This section of the statute relates only to the first division of thirty miles, but the lien there declared is by another part of the act applied and extended to each additional section of twenty miles as fast as completed, and finally to the entire road as security

"for the payment of all bonds issued to the company" (Sec. 4).

The lien upon the property of the company was effected by virtue of the statute upon the issue of the bonds by the State and their acceptance by the company. Unless an intention of the Legislature to secure the purchaser of the bonds can be implied from the act and the dealing of the parties, the claim of complainants to the relief asked in these suits rests upon a mere equity. There is no denial that it was the State of Tennessee which was invested with the lien, but it is said that she occupies the position of a surety holding security for the payment of the debt, which security the creditor—the bondholder—can upon default of the principal debtor—the railroad company—avail himself in equity; that default by the company and by the State in the payment of the interest having occurred, the State becomes and is a trustee of this lien for the benefit of the bondholder. It was the State and the railroad company that dealt together in this matter. The State dictated the terms upon which it would grant aid, and the company accepted those terms without reference to what the purchaser of the bonds would say or claim. The bonds were loaned by the State and passed over to the company to be sold for money to aid or accommodate the company. The bonds were accepted by the company upon the understanding and agreement: 1. That the state was invested with a lien upon the company's railroad and property to secure "the payment by said company of said bonds, with the interest thereon as the same becomes due." 2. That the interest should be paid by the company to the financial agent of the State at least fifteen days before it should become due, or satisfactory evidence be produced that it had been paid or provided for; and 3, that the principal of the bonds should be paid by the company by means of a sinking fund in the State Treasury, created by the purchase and deposit therein of Tennessee interest bearing bonds, supposed to be adequate for the purpose of enabling the State to meet its bonds at maturity.

There is nothing in any of these stipulations out of which the relation of the State to the bondholder is changed from that of a principal debtor to a surety. Nor does it appear how the company becomes debtor to the bondholder in any degree whatever. There is no express promise on its part to the bondholder, nor is any contract relation implied between him and the company. Section three contains no language importing such promise. It declares merely that the State of Tennessee shall be invested with a lien for the payment of the bonds by the company. The State imposes the lien if its aid is accepted, and as a condition of the grant. The language may imply a promise by the company accepting the aid to pay the State, but there is no obligation of the company to pay the bondholder, resulting either from positive law or from contract express or implied.

The lien was clearly "reserved in favor of the State." It was the State of Tennessee that upon the issuance of the bonds was invested with the lien or mortgage without deed. No other lien could have priority over or come in conflict with the lien of the State. The company was to deposit the interest money and exchange with the State's fiscal agent at least fifteen days before it became due, or satisfactory evidence that the interest had been paid or provided. All the suits and proceedings under the Act are given as remedies exclusively to the State. The State might have a decree and sell the road for non-payment of any bond. The bond was made by the State for the accommodation of the railroad company and was sold in open market, without any promise by the company, other than what is implied to the State by accepting the benefit of the Act.

There is no express declaration of trust on the part of the State. It is sought to raise a trust out of the language of the Act, and the principle is invoked applicable to a security given by a debtor to his surety conditioned that it shall be void if the mortgagor pays the debt on which the mortgagee is surety, viz: that in such case the mortgage will be held both as an indemnity to the surety and as a security for the debt; the surety being regarded in equity as trustee for the benefit of the creditor and as having no right to discharge or defeat the trust, unless it be to a purchaser for a valuable consideration without notice.

The rule is not questioned. But it is not conceived that this rule would control the express terms of a mortgage or other instrument of security, nor render wholly nugatory the effect of an express reservation of a right of disposition of the mortgaged property by the mortgagee as is provided in the statute under consideration.

It is not within the province of equity to import conditions into the mortgage. The conditions of this statutory lien were, that the company should deposit the interest money and exchange with the State's fiscal agent or furnish evidence of prior payment, and should also pay into the treasury the means of providing a Sinking Fund for the ultimate payment of the bonds. This dealing was to be with the State—as to the payment of the principal it must have been—as to the payment of interest it was optional with the company—and there being no express covenant by the company a compliance with the conditions named in the mortgage would discharge the lien.

We do not overlook a claim made by one of complainants' counsel, that the intention of the Legislature is to be ascertained by the language of the statute declaring the lien, but we think the statute must be construed together, and that the requirements put upon the mortgagor—the conditions of his mortgage—when read in connection with the declaration, many times repeated in the statute, that the lien is the lien of the State, should have great weight in determining the legislative intention. The meaning of the legislation is to be declared from the words and subject matter of the statute. It is the scope and meaning of the whole enactment, rather than the literalism of words and phrases that are to govern; the signification of the entire Act and not a single clause determines the intention of the law maker. Thus section six, considered with other provisions of the Act, is important as reserving to the State the right through proceedings in Court to sell the road, thereby discharging it from the lien imposed by the statute.

The fact that the State might discharge the lien in such way imports that there was no intention of the law makers to give a beneficial interest in the security to any one but the State. This view applies with peculiar force where the holder of the security is a State not amenable to the ordinary process of Courts.

This view of the effect of section six upon the construction as to legislative intent is not weakened but fortified by section fourteen, which declares that "in the event any of the roads shall be sold under the provisions of the Act, it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint an agent for the State to attend the sale, and, if necessary to protect the interests of the State, buy in the road in the name of the State; and in case the State shall be the purchaser, the Governor shall appoint a Receiver who shall take possession of the road and property, and use the same as provided for in the fifth section of this Act, and said Receiver shall settle his accounts semi-annually with the Comptroller until the next meeting of the General Assembly."

This section imports three things at least as to a sale: 1, a third person may be a purchaser; 2, the State may be the purchaser; 3, that the purchaser obtains a title discharged of the lien. It is manifest that if a stranger buys he takes title freed from all liens imposed by the act upon the property, and there is nothing in the language of the section or in the act to indicate that the State, becoming purchaser, does not take the property equally free from such lien.

The Receiver appointed by the Governor is to take possession of the road and "use the same as provided for in the fifth section," that is, in like manner, viz.: "run the same and manage the entire road." This he is to do until the next meeting of the General Assembly, when by clear implication the future management or disposition of the road is left to legislative action.

The contract between the State and the company is that the State shall have a lien "for the payment by said company of said bonds," but it is nowhere required by the State, and therefore not assented to by the company, that the latter shall pay to the bondholder. It was urged that this language imports payment by the company to the only person then entitled to ask or enforce it. The language must, however, be understood to relate to other parts of the statute which prescribes specifically the manner of payment by the company, viz.: payment annually into the State Treasury of a sum to be employed as a sinking fund.

It is made optional, by section five, with the company, whether it will deposit the interest as it becomes due with the fiscal agent of the State or pay the same to the bondholder, and by section seven the principal was to be paid by setting apart annually after five years from the completion of the road a certain per centum of the amount of bonds issued to the company, invested in any bonds of the State and assigned to the Governor. This sinking fund provision would, within the period which the bonds had to run, place in the treasury of the State an amount sufficient to nearly or quite enable the State to pay the bonds. The Tennessee bonds were generally six per cent., and funded in those the time required would be thirty-three years and two months.

There is nothing in the act to indicate that after the company has complied with these provisions as to interest and sinking fund, and has thus provided the State with the means of payment, that the company was also required to pay to the bondholders. Certainly this was not the condition of the security, as the only way in which a default could occur was by failure of the company to provide for payment of the interest and principal in those specified ways.

But it is said the Sinking Fund was not to be commenced until five years after the particular road should be completed, and that that event might not take place at all or not till half or more of the time which the bonds had to run had expired, so that the period might be wholly inadequate in which to provide a sufficient Sinking Fund for paying the bonds when due, and that this indicates that the lien was not intended as security merely for payment by the company to the State by means of a Sinking Fund in the manner provided. A statute must be construed from the standpoint, the circumstances and surroundings of the lawmakers when it was enacted; and it would be unjust and repugnant to reason and common experience to assume that the Legislature passed the act in the expectation that the roads would never be finished or would not be completed within a reasonable time. Besides section twelve reserved to the State ample powers to make such modifications in relation to the time for the Sinking Fund to commence and the per cent. annually to be paid into that fund as would fully protect the interests of the State against delay on the part of the railroad company.

Whatever might be said in regard to the evidence, adduced in these cases, of contemporaneous construction through the utterances of State officials in public documents, the action of any department of the State government or otherwise, there is, in the judgment of the court, nothing to change the views which have been expressed.

Chamberlain v. St. Paul and Sioux City R. R. Co., 92 U. S., 299, was decided upon a statute and upon facts similar to those in the present cases and is very instructive. The State of Minnesota by a constitutional amendment provided for an issue of its bonds as a loan to the Southern Minnesota Railroad Company, and required such company to convey the lands in question "in trust for the better security of the Treasury of the State from loss on said bonds," and further provided that if the borrowing company should make default in payment of either the principal or interest of the bonds issued by the State, the Governor should proceed to sell the lands held in trust by the State. The company accordingly executed a trust conveyance of the lands to the State, conditioned for the payment of the principal and interest of the bonds issued to that company. The company made default in the payment of interest. The State foreclosed and became the purchaser of the lands which she granted to another corporation, the defendant in the Chamberlain suit. Chamberlain was holder of some of the State bonds, the payment of which was secured by the trust conveyance, and sought to have a lien upon the land declared in his favor.

In the cases at bar, as in that case, the State was primarily liable to the holder of the bonds. In the cases at bar, as in that case, the State reserved to itself the right of foreclosure and disposition of the property. In deciding that case, Justice Field after stating the position of the complainant, viz.: "that the interest which the State took under the trust deed and mortgage was only the right to hold them as security against loss upon its bonds, * * * that this interest was not changed by foreclosure of the mortgage and by purchase of the property by the State," uses the following language:

> "The State was primarily liable to the bondholders; and it was only between her and the company that the relation of principal and surety existed.
> It may be doubted whether the bondholders could call upon the company in any event. The endorsement made by the President simply transferred the bonds; it was not the act of the company. Be that as it may, whatever right the plaintiff had to compel the application of the lands received by the State to the payment of the bonds held by him, it was one resting in equity only. It was not a legal right arising out of any positive law or any agreement of the parties. It did not create any lien which attached to and followed the property. It was a right to be enforced if at all only by a Court of Chancery against the surety. But the State being the surety here, it could not be enforced at all, and, not being a specific lien upon the property, cannot be enforced against the State grantees."

This was said to be the law of that case, even if the bondholders could have called upon the company for payment. But laying this feature aside, the analogies are as before stated, and whatever right the plaintiffs have to claim benefit from the security rests here as in that case as a mere equity; there was no legal right because the law did not impose one, and the company made no promise to the bondholders. Such equity created no lien which followed the property; the liability of the State was to the bondholder. She held no relation as surety to him; as in the Chamberlain case, it was only as between her and the company that in any possible view the State could be regarded as surety, and this view would make it necessary to treat the company as the principal debtor to the bondholder, whereas the company was not the principal debtor, nor indeed a debtor to the bondholder in any degree.

The reasoning in the case of Hand v. R. R. Co., in the Supreme Court of South Carolina—manuscript—referred to on the argument, cannot all be adopted as applicable to these cases if the conclusions might be.

It is not upon its fact authority. The railroad company made its own bonds and the State guaranteed their payment to the holder by endorsement. The State was secured by a lien upon the company's road, reserved by the statute which authorized the guarantee. As a surety the State assumed contract obligations to the creditor—the bondholder. If a creditor has a right to claim the benefit of security given by the debtor to his surety for the latter's indemnity, it does not follow that the right exists where the principal debtor takes the security from the accommodatee and where the security holder holds no other relation to the creditor than that of debtor, and the giver of the security is neither a debtor or surety to the creditor.

It becomes unnecessary to further consider the effect of the reservation of power to the State under section twelve. The court has already stated that such reserved power is ample to authorize a modification of the sinking fund provisions, as has been done by increasing the amount to be paid annually into the Sinking Fund, and changing the time for such payment to commence.

It follows that by this judgment neither the foreclosed or the non-foreclosed roads are subject to any lien in favor of the holders of internal improvement bonds issued by the State of Tennessee, under the acts passed by that State, and to which reference has been made.

Other topics presented in the arguments need not be considered.

A decree will be entered in each case, dismissing the bill of complaint therein, with costs to defendants, and it is directed that such decrees be drawn and presented for approval.

State of New York, County of New York,

Be it remembered that on the 5th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th days of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, I, WILLIAM H. DE LANCEY, a notary public in and for the State and county aforesaid, duly commissioned and qualified under the laws of the United States to take depositions for use in the Circuit Courts of the 2 United States, did call and cause to be and personally appear before me at my office, No. 52 Broadway, in the city of New York, in the Southern District of New York in the State and County aforesaid, CALVIN AMORY STEVENS to testify and the truth to say on the part and behalf of the complainant in a certain suit or matter of controversy now depending and undetermined in the Circuit Court of the United States, for the Middle District of Tennessee, at Nashville, in the district aforesaid wherein Calvin Amory Stevens, on 3 behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, is complainant, and the Louisville, Nashville & Great Southern Railroad Company is defendant.

And also in a certain other suit or matter at controversy, now depending and undetermined in said Circuit Court, wherein Calvin Amory Stevens, on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Central Southern Railroad Company, is 4 complainant, and the Nashville & Decatur Railroad Company et al. are defendants.

5 And also in a certain other suit or matter at controversy, now depending and undetermined in said Circuit Court, wherein Calvin Amory Stevens, on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad Company, is complainant, and the Nashville & Decatur Railroad Company et al. are defendants.

And the said Calvin Amory Stevens, being about the age of thirty-four years, and having been by me first cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth 6 and nothing but the truth, in the several matters of controversy aforesaid, I did carefully examine the said Calvin Amory Stevens, and he did thereupon depose, testify and say as follows, viz :

Hearing to take the deposition of Calvin A. Stevens, pursuant to notice. 12

Present—MR. ANDREWS for complainant.

It is consented and agreed by both parties that the deposition of the witness, Calvin A. Stevens, shall be taken but once, and is to apply to each of the above-entitled actions and be considered as offered as testimony in each.

13 Calvin A. Stevens, being first duly cautioned and sworn, in each of the above-entitled actions, deposes and says:

Hearing adjourned by consent to July 8th, 1879, at 10 A. M.

July 8th, 1879, 10 A. M.

Direct examination by Complainant's Counsel:

1 Q. Are you the plaintiff in these causes?

A. I am.

14 2 Q. Are you the owner and holder of Tennessee bonds?

A. I am.

3 Q. Will you produce before the Commissioner and the counsel here, for their inspection, Tennessee bonds of which you are the owner and holder?

A. Yes, sir; there they are.

15 4 Q. Please furnish the Commissioner with a copy of the bonds or leave the same with the Commissioner to enable him to take a copy?

A. I will.

5 Q. Are there overdue coupons on these bonds?

A. There are.

16 (Counsel for defendants object to Questions 4 and 5, because, first, complainant must file his original bonds, and have them marked, filed and returned as a part of this deposition, the filing of copies not being admissible under the practice; and when said bonds are filed they will be the best evidence as to whether there are any past due coupons on them or not. Defendants will move to suppress this deposition if the bonds are not filed as above required.) 17

6 Q. Are the holders of Tennessee bonds very numerous?

A. They are, sir.

7 Q. Where do they reside, so far as you know?

A. In many different places.

(Counsel for complainant requests the Commissioner to certify in his return the amount of the bonds now produced before him with the 18 amount of overdue coupons on each bond.)

(Counsel for defendants excepts to any such certificate being made, because, if the bonds are filed as they should be, they will be the best evidence of the facts asked for to be certified.)

Notary Public.

Complainant closes his direct examination.

Cross-examination by Mr. BAXTER:

8×Q. Please state your age, residence and occupation? How long have you resided there and how long you have followed that occupation?

A. I was born August 2d, 1845; I reside in New York; I could not tell how long without referring to dates I have not here; I am not in active business.

(Defendants' counsel asks for a continuance of this deposition until the witness can get the dates from which he can tell how long he has resided in New York City; and without waiving his right for such continuance, in order to save time proceeds to put other questions in cross-examination.) 60

9×Q. Are you the absolute, sole and unconditional owner of each and every bond upon which you have brought suit against the Louisville & Nashville or the

61 Nashville & Decatur Railroad Companies? If not, give the name and residence of each and every person who has any interest in any of said bonds, whether as partner, part owner, pledgee or otherwise?

A. I am the absolute owner; I am the absolute, sole and unconditional owner; no one has any interest in said bonds as partner, part owner, pledgee or otherwise.

10×Q. Have not some of said bonds, and which of them, been loaned to you by their real owners to enable 62 you to make a case against each of said Companies? If so, which of said bonds have been so loaned, and by whom?

A. There have not been any of said bonds loaned to me for such purpose; I represent only my own bonds.

11×Q. State when, where, how and from whom you obtained each of said bonds; if you say you purchased any of them, state what you paid for each of them, and give the names and residences of those from whom you purchased each of them; and if you 63 say they were purchased on the stock board give the names of all the brokers or agents through whom you made such purchases?

(Complainant's counsel objects to that portion of the question which interrogates as to what complainant paid for his bonds as immaterial and incompetent testimony.)

A. I could not answer that question so specifically 64 without dates, which I have not here; nor have I any positive means of telling from what particular parties the bonds came; what bonds I bought I bought from different parties; I bought from brokers, H. T. Morgan for one, No. 35 William street; John Buckley—I can't tell his place now; the bonds I bought from him were bought a number of years ago; he was then in Pine street; John B. Manning was another; I have bought bonds from other parties at auction; I cannot tell all of whomI have bought Tennessee bonds from during the past eight years, the eight years may be more or less. 65

(Counsel for complainant objects to the whole of cross question No. 11 as immaterial and irrelevant, and on the ground that it makes no difference from whom the witness bought his bonds and that it is sufficient to establish his case if he is now the owner and holder of the bonds; also moves to strike out the the question and answer for the same reason.) 66

(The defendants' counsel applies for continuance of taking of this deposition until the complainant can get the dates, so that he can answer this question specifically, and will move to suppress this deposition unless this cross-question and cross-question 8 are fully and specifically answered as to dates and other matters inquired of before this deposition is closed.) 67

12×Q. When, where and from whom did you purchase bond 6,303 letter B, which you claim to be a bond of Tennessee?

A. I could not tell you as I never kept so close an identification of the bonds.

13×Q. Did you inherit or purchase said bonds?

A. I could not answer that question either.

14×Q. Did you come into the possession of it within the last three years?

A. I could not answer that question, either. 68

15×Q. How then do you know that the bond belongs to you at all?

A. Because it is honestly in my possession and honestly owned by me.

16×Q. How do you know that you honestly own the bond, if you cannot tell whether you purchased or inherited it, nor when, where, how or from whom you got it, or what you paid for it?

69 (Counsel for complainant objects as to the price of purchase.)

A. For the very good reason that I have no Tennesse, bonds in my possession, except what I have inherited or purchased.

17×Q. When, where, from whom, how and at what price did you obtain the paper which is claimed to be bond number 6,593, letter B?

A. I apply the same answer in the case of that bond 70 as I did to the other.

18×Q. When, where, from whom, how and at what price did you obtain the paper which you claim to be bond number 6284 letter B?

71 A. I cannot answer that question more specifically than I did in the case of the other bonds.

19×Q. When, where, how and from whom, and at what price did you obtain the paper which you claim to be bond number 6,587, letter B?

A. I give the same answer as I did in the case of the 72 other bonds.

(Complainant's counsel asks defendants' solicitor to state what he expects to prove by this line of examination. Defendants' counsel replies that he expects to prove the facts inquired about in the question, either by this witness or by others, and is laying grounds to contradict witness if he can do so.) 73

(Complainant's counsel moves to strike out the cross-examination which relates in any manner to the identity and proof of the bonds, on the ground that it is admitted by the answer that the corporations-defendant, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, and the Central Southern Railroad Company, and the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company received bonds of 74 the State of Tennessee from that State, and negotiated them, and that they are bound to know the bonds which they sold.)

20×Q. When, where, how, from whom, and at what price did you obtain the paper which you claim to be bond number 6,532, letter B?

A. I give the same answer as I did in the case of the other bonds.

21×Q. When, where, how, from whom, and at what price did you obtain the paper which you claim to be bond number 6,570, letter B?

A. I give the same answer as I did in the case of the other bonds.

49×Q. Have you sued upon all the bonds which you own which were loaned to said Louisville and Nashville, and Nashville and Decatur Railroad Companies, or do you own other of such bonds upon which you have not sued? 99

(Counsel for complainant objects to the question as immaterial and irrelevant.)

A. I own other of such bonds upon which I have not sued.

50×Q. Did you own such other bonds at the time these suits were brought? 100

(Same objection.)

A. Yes, sir.

51×Q. How many of said bonds did you at that time own against each of said railroads upon which you have not sued—give their numbers and letters?

(Same objection.)

101 A. I owned as many as was stated in the bills filed.

52×Q. Do I understand that you then sued upon only half of the bonds which you then held?

(Same objection.)

A. I did not wish to give that impression; you were mistaken.

53×Q. To illustrate my meaning, you state in your bill against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad that you were the owner and holder of fourteen bonds
102 loaned to that company; and I understood your bill to be filed to enforce your lien for those bonds, and therefore, I regard them as the bonds sued for in that case; I understand you in answer to cross-question 51, to say that you owned as many of said bonds upon which you had not sued, and therefore, I understood that you had only sued upon half of the bonds you owned; if I am wrong please show me how I am wrong?

A. I did not intend to give any such impression; my meaning was that I owned the fourteen bonds re-103 ferred to in the bill and still own them.

54×Q. Then, do I now understand, that at the commencement of these suits you did not own any bonds that were loaned to either of said companies except such bonds as you mentioned, and sued upon in the bills filed by you?

A. None that I was aware of.

55×Q. Have you bought since the commencement of these litigations or otherwise acquired any bonds loaned to either of said companies; if so how many,
104 from whom, when, and at what price?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.)

A. I have bought other bonds but I could not state the other particulars.

56×Q. Did you buy said bonds through brokers or agents or in person, and if through brokers or agents, who were they?

(Same objection.) 105

A. I have bought bonds since of J. B. Manning, and I think of other parties also, but I am not positive as to the date in reference to the other parties.

57×Q. Please state the names of the other parties referred to in your last answer?

(Same objection.)

A. The parties I had in mind were H. T. Morgan & Co., and the Real Estate Exchange. 106

58×Q. Are they the only parties that you had in your mind, if not who else passed through your mind?

(Objected to for reasons stated as objections to former questions, and for a further reason that the inquiry is directed to matters which have transpired since the commencement of the litigation.)

A. I may have bought some through Newton Duel. 107

59×Q. Are you not quite a large operator or investor in stocks and bonds; what amount of such securities do you own?

A. I frequently invest in bonds and real estate but seldom, if ever, in stocks; I refuse to answer the latter part of the question as an improper inquiry into my private affairs. 108

(Defendants' counsel notifies complainants counsel that he will move to suppress this deposition because of the witness's refusal to answer the last branch of the question.)

(Complainant's counsel insists upon refusal of witness to answer because the inquiry is directed to the complainant's ownership of bonds in gen-

109 eral, and is not confined to the character of bonds in issue in these causes, and therefore involves what seems to be an unnecessary inquiry in regard to his personal affairs.)

110 60×Q. Do you not, either in person or through some clerk, bookkeeper, broker or agent, keep some books, papers or other memoranda to show your purchases and sales of bonds or stocks, and especially of bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to the railroads involved in these suits.?

(Objected to as immaterial.)

A. I keep accounts in respect to Tennessee bonds, 111 but not accurate in all particulars; I mean by that not sufficiently accurate to enable me to answer all the questions asked.

61×Q. Do you keep that account in person or through someone else?

(Same objection.)

A. I keep it in person.

62×Q. Is it contained in a book or set of books, or is it contained in separate paper or memoranda?

112 A. Books and, possibly, memoranda.

63×Q. You will please present to the Commissioner, for his inspection and that of counsel, to enable true copies thereof to be taken and filed with this deposition: all such parts of said book or books, and all such memoranda or papers, as refers to your purchases or other acquisition of bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to either of the railroads involved in these suits.

(Objected to as immaterial, as too broad and general, and the production of these documents is objected to, unless the Court, upon the hearing of the causes, should deem these matters relevant and material.) 113

A. I will produce the papers so far as I can, provided the Court says it is necessary.

64×Q. Do you then decline to produce them now or during the taking of this deposition?

(Complainant's counsel objects to the latter part of the question relating to his probable course during the taking of this deposition.)

A. I do not object, but I shall do as my counsel advises.

(Complainant's counsel offers, if defendant's counsel will indicate just what he wants, what entries he refers to and what particulars in regard to purchased Tennessee bonds issued to these railroads, he will endeavor to comply with the question.) 115

(Defendants' counsel replies that the books, papers or memoranda not being in his possession, and never having been seen by him, he cannot give any more specific designations of the parts thereof which he wishes to be produced than he has already done in cross-question number 63, and his object in calling for said books or memoranda is to enable him to cross-examine the complainant, and he will therefore move to suppress this deposition, unless such production and inspection is allowed in time to enable him to continue said cross-examination.) 116

65×Q. Have you not brought suits in the Federal Courts of Tennessee against several other railroads be-

117 sides the Louisville and Nashville and the Nashville and Decatur railroad companies; if so, what other companies have you sued, and upon how many bonds against each ?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant to the issues in these cases, and as secondary proof, and all answer thereto objected to until the Court can pass upon the propriety of the question.)

A. I object to answer as advised by my counsel.

66×Q. Are you the absolute, sole and unconditional owner of each and every bond upon which you have sued the railroad companies of Tennessee other than the Louisville & Nashville and Nashville & Decatur 119 railroad companies; if not, give the names and residences of each and every person who has any interest in any of said bonds whether as partner, part owner, pledgee or otherwise; state if some of said bonds have not been loaned to you for the purpose of making out a case against said companies, and state if some other person or persons have not some lien upon said bonds or some of them; if so, specify which of said bonds and give the names of such persons ?

120 (Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.)

A. I am the absolute, sole and unconditional owner of each and every bond sued upon; no bonds have been loaned to me for the purposes stated in the question.

67×Q. State when, where, how and from whom you obtained each of the bonds upon which you have sued the railroad companies of Tennessee other than the Louisville and Nashville and Nashville and Decatur;

if you say you purchased any of them state when you 121 bought each of them, what you gave for them and the name or residence of the broker through whom you made each and every purchase?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant, and any answer objected to until the Court can pass upon admissibility of the question, and further objected to because it does not tend to prove any of the issues in the causes, and counsel for defendants is requested to indicate what he proposes to develop by the question.) 122

(Defendants' counsel proposes to show that the three cases in which these depositions are now being taken are but part of set of cases brought in the Federal Courts of Tennessee against the railroads of that State by a combination of bondholders with headquarters in New York, whose real object is to bull this class of Tennessee bonds. That the litigation has not been institut- 123 ed and has not been maintained in good faith for the purpose specified in the pleadings, but complainant has been selected as the figurehead of that organization, and has been provided with bonds by those who are in combination with him to set on foot not only the litigations in these three causes, but in the others, with a view of forcing the railroads of Tennessee to compromise debts which they regard themselves as having already paid the State, and one of the objects of 124 this cross-examination will be to show that such combination exists.)

A. I object to answer only so far as my counsel wishes.

125 (Defendants' counsel will move to suppress the deposition for the refusal of the witness to answer this question.)

68×Q. Have you sold any Tennessee State bonds within the last nine years; if so, why did you make such sales; where, when and through whom were each and every sale of said bonds made by you?

126 A. I have sold bonds within the time specified; I refuse to answer more specifically as it unnecessarily inquires into private affairs.

(Defendants' counsel will move to suppress this deposition for refusal to answer the other matters inquired about in the question.)

69×Q. Have you not at some time or times during the last nine years been engaged in hunting out such 127 of the Tennessee State bonds as were loaned to the various railroads of that State, or some of them, and which of them, and in order to get them have you not been buying Tennessee bonds on the market, and thereafter selecting such of them as were loaned to the companies you have sued, selling the others for the best price you could get for them; if so, give the dates of each and every such transaction, the names of every broker employed by you, and state especially, who advised or persuaded you to that course, and what he or

A. I will answer or not as my counsel wishes; I have bought bonds as an investment, but never at the advice or suggestion of any one but myself; I did it on my own judgment.

Further hearing adjourned to July 9, 1879, 10 A. M.

July 9th, 10 A. M. 129

Present—Counsel for both parties and the witness.

Calvin Amory Stevens recalled, and cross-examination continued by Mr. Baxter.

70×Q. Have you not at some time or times during the last two years been engaged in hunting out some of such of the Tennessee State bonds as were loaned to the railroad companies involved in these suits, and in order to get them have you not been buying Tennessee 130 bonds on the market, and after selecting such of them as were loaned to said companies, or to other companies that you desired to sue, selling the others back upon the market?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.)

A. I have bought such bonds but have not sold all such that were not on the roads referred to.

71×Q. Did you not buy them for the purpose of instituting these suits? 131

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.)

A. I was a large owner of Tennessee bonds long before these suits were instituted or thought of.

72×Q. Did you not own all of the bonds upon which you have brought these suits long before they were brought or thought of?

(Same objection.) 132

A. I should think not, for I have bought a great many bonds since.

73×Q. As to such of said bonds as you have bought since these suits were thought of, did you not buy them for the purpose of instituting these suits upon them?

133 A. I should say that I had amply sufficient bonds to institute suits long before they were commenced or thought of.

74×Q. Did you have enough bonds against each of the railroad companies you have sued in Tennessee to have given the Federal Court jurisdiction of each of them before these suits were brought or thought of?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant to the controversies in these three suits, and also to any answer until the Court can determine whether we are to try other railroad suits in the course of the trial of these three.) 134

A. I object to answer as advised by counsel.

135 (Complainant's counsel offers to proceed instanter with the trial of all the railroad cases in the Federal Courts in Tennessee, in which Calvin A. Stevens is complainant.)

(Defendants' counsel replies that he is not of counsel in all of said cases, and has no right to control the trial thereof, but that if complainant is in earnest in stating that he is ready to proceed instanter to trial in the five cases of which defendants' counsel is engaged, meaning by the word instanter before this deposition is closed, defendants' counsel is ready to go to trial.) 136

(Complainant's counsel agrees to proceed with those five cases if defendants' counsel will set them for hearing on the 26th day of July, 1879.)

75×Q. Did you have enough bonds against each of 137 the railroad companies involved in these three suits to have given the Federal Court jurisdiction against each of said companies before these suits were brought or thought of; I mean did you have bonds enough against each of said companies for the past due coupons thereon to have amounted to five hundred dollars against each company?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant, and in addition, that it assumes a question of law 138 which complainant's counsel thinks untenable.)

A. I owned between one and two hundred thousand Tennessee bonds long before these suits were begun or thought of; I don't know how many of such bonds were issued to the railroads involved in these three suits.

76×Q. Then, do you know at all that you had enough bonds against these three companies to have given the Federal Court jurisdiction as explained in cross-question 75? 139

A. I do not positively know that I had or had not, but out of so large a number of bonds, it is very fair to suppose that I had.

77×Q. Did you file your bills against these three companies upon the mere supposition that out of the large number of bonds that you did hold, you had bonds enough against each of them to cover the number of bonds that you stated in your bills you held against them?

A. I did not file any bills on any such presumption; 140 I was the absolute owner and still am of the full number of bonds mentioned in the bills when filed.

78×Q. Out of the fourteen bonds which you stated in your bill that you held against the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, how many of them had you held for as long as three months before said bill was filed?

141 A. In answer to that question I would state that I don't know, and would have no objections in stating if I did know.

79×Q. Were there any of those bonds that you had not held for as long as three months before bringing said suit?

(Objected to because the question has been already answered.)

A. I don't know; if I did know I would have no objections in stating. 142

80×Q. Did you buy any bonds of the State of Tennessee that were issued to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company within three months preceding the filing of said bill?

(Same objection.)

A. I do not know.

81×Q. How many of the thirteen bonds which you claim in your bill against the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad did you hold for three months prior to your filing your bill against that road? 143

(Same objection.)

A. In answer to that question I would state that I do not know, and would have no objection in stating if I did know.

82×Q. Did you buy any bonds of the State of Tennessee issued to the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad within three months prior to your filing your bill against that road? 144

(Same objection.)

A. I do not know.

83×Q. How many of the thirteen bonds which you claim in your bill against the Central Southern Railroad did you hold for three months prior to your filing your bill against that road?

(Same objection.) 145

A. In answer to that question I would state that I do not know, and would have no objection in stating if I did know.

84×Q. Did you at any time within three months prior to your filing said last-mentioned bill buy any Tennessee State bonds issued to said Central Southern Railroad?

(Same objection.) 146

A. I do not know.

85×Q. Did you not within three months prior to your filing the three bills in these cases buy some Tennessee State bonds, and is it not more than probable that some of the bonds that you did buy were bonds that had been issued to these three companies?

(Same objection, and as asking for the opinion of witness.)

A. I do not know. 147

86×Q. Please give me your best belief?

(Same objection.)

A. I prefer to state only facts of which I have positive knowledge.

87×Q. Do you decline to give me your belief in answer to the question?

(Same objection, and because question has been already answered, and because it assumes that the witness has a belief, which is not proven.) 148

A. I have no objections in giving my belief if I had any particular belief on the question.

88×Q. Do you believe that any of the Tennessee State bonds that were bought by you within three months prior to the institution of these suits were issued to either of the three railroad companies involved in them?

149 (Objected to, as witness has said he had no particular belief on the question.)

A. I would gladly answer your question if I could; I have given all the facts I know.

89×Q. I am not now inquiring for facts; I am asking for your belief whether any of the Tennessee State bonds bought by you within three months prior to the institution of these suits were issued to the companies involved in them, and defendants insist that they have 150 the right to call upon the complainant to state whether he has any belief whatever as to the matters inquired about, and state what the belief is, if he has any, whether it be a general or particular belief, whether it be vague or definite?

(Objected to as not calling for testimony, and on the ground that the witness's belief, of whatever character, could not affect the facts as to whether Tennessee bonds purchased by him within 151 in the time named in the question were issued to these three companies, and on the ground that he has already said he has no belief on the subject.)

A. I decline to answer the question further, except as to any facts which I may know.

(Defendants' counsel will move to suppress this deposition, because the witness declines to state his belief upon recent transactions affecting 152 his title to the bonds in suit, the particulars of which transactions are exclusively within his possession.

90×Q. Will not the books, papers, memoranda or account kept by you of your bond purchases, and to which you referred in the previous part of this deposition, give some information as to when and how you became the owner of at least some of the bonds which you claim to hold against these three companies or either of them? 153

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant; that there is no question of title involved in these cases, the bonds have been produced before the officer of the Court, and no foundation has been laid to dispute their ownership.

A. I have not the numbers of all the bonds which I have bought and sold recorded in either my books or memoranda, and therefore they would not give the information sought. 154

91×Q. Do you not keep a list of the numbers of all or at least some of the Tennessee bonds which you have bought?

A. I have the numbers of many of the bonds, and of others I have not. That is, I have kept a list of numbers of many of the bonds, but there are others of which the original numbers I have not; that is to say, so that I can distinguish where I bought them, and whether I bought them myself or whether they were given to me by my father. 155

92×Q. What is meant by the expression "original numbers"? Do State bonds carry more than one number?

A. I mean that I have not the numbers of the original bonds given me by my father, such bonds have been mixed with recent purchases, and other bonds which I have individually owned for years before my father's death, so that I cannot distinguish them. 156

93×Q. Have you a list or any memoranda of the numbers of the bonds, or any of them, that you have purchased or otherwise acquired since your father's death, and excluding those which you got by inheritance from him.

157 (Objected to as being too broad, not relating to the bonds in these suits, immaterial, and that the bonds themselves will be the best evidence.

A. I have a list of all the bonds which I at present own, but I have not a list of many bonds which were given me by my father, as also many bonds which I have sold.

94×Q. Have you a list or memoranda of the bonds which you still hold, but which you did not acquire 158 from your father?

(Same objection.)

A. I have not such a list. The bonds have all been mixed more or less.

95×Q. Have you a list of any of the Tennessee bonds inquired of in the cross-question 94, and if so, please produce it and give us a copy?

159 duction of any such paper as not directed to bonds involved in these suits, and such a list of numbers would be immaterial.)

A. I will furnish all my books and papers in reference to my Tennessee bonds, if the Court shall so order, but otherwise I decline to do so, as I consider it an unwarranted intrusion into my private affairs.

96×Q. If said list was produced, would it show the dates when you purchased or otherwise acquired any 160 of said bonds?

(Objected to as hypothetical.)

A. My books would show the dates in many instances.

97×Q. Would your books show from whom or through whom you acquired any of said bonds?

(Same objection, and as immaterial.)

A. My books would show the amount of bonds received from different parties, but not in all cases the numbers. 161

98×Q. Would they show the numbers obtained from particular parties in any case or cases?

A. By my books I think I could trace them in many cases.

(Defendants' counsel here notified complainant's counsel that his object in calling for said books and papers is to see if they will not 162 furnish some evidence that will aid in ascertaining when, how and for what price the bonds sued on in these cases were obtained, and will move to suppress this deposition because that information is withheld.

(Complainant's counsel cannot waive any objection to the production of books to show when, how and at what price the complainant bondholder obtained his bonds, the material question 163 being, was he a bondholder when these suits were commenced and is he a bondholder now?)

(Complainant does waive any objection to any question which defendants may put purporting to show that the bonds were obtained for the bull movement claimed by defendants, and defendants may ask without objection whether any of complainant's bonds were obtained from any member of the committee of Tennessee bondholders or from Brown Brothers, or Maitland, 164 Phelps & Co., or Ward, Campbell & Co., or from the firm of Barings, of London, or from any of the combination of Tennessee bondholders, or any one acting on their behalf.)

(Complainant's counsel notifies defendants' counsel that he will ask for the same privilege of examination of Richard T. Wilson and the other 165 parties interested in railroad rings that have been engaged in "bearing" Tennessee bonds since 1870.)

99×Q. I understand you in your previous examination to have stated in substance that within three months preceding the bringing of these suits you had 166 purchased some Tennessee bonds on the market? Please state what your object was in making said purchases?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant, and as not affecting the issues, whatever complainant's object in affecting the purchases may have been.)

A. I bought them because I had funds to invest, and thought them a good investment.

167 100×Q. Was the State of Tennessee paying the interest upon her bonds at the time?

(Objected to as not the best evidence and immaterial.)

A. She was not three months before the filing of the bills.

101×Q. When was the last time prior to the filing of your bills that the State of Tennessee paid her semi-annual interest on her bonds here in New York?

(Objected to as not primary evidence and because the defaults of the State of Tennessee on her bonds are admitted by the pleadings in these suits, and any answer objected to.)

A. I object to answer by advice of counsel.

102×Q. Is it not a fact that the State of Tennessee had not paid the interest upon her bonded debt for more than two years prior to your filing the bills in these cases? 169

(Same objection.)

A. I object to answer by advice of counsel.

(Defendants' counsel will move to suppress this deposition because of the refusal of the witness to answer this question.) 170

103×Q. Is it not a fact that with the exception of some interest paid in 1867 and 1868, and some paid in 1874 and 1875, the State of Tennessee has paid no interest since the commencement of the late war?

(Same objection.)

A. I object to answer by advice of counsel.

(Defendants' counsel will move to suppress this deposition because of the refusal of the witness to answer this question.) 171

104×Q. Are you in the habit of investing your capital in the bonds upon which the interest has been in default for a series of years prior to your purchase, or do you generally seek interest-bearing and interest-paying securities?

(Objected to as not calling for testimony as immaterial and irrelevant, and because the witness is not bound to furnish the principles on which he proceeds in investing his capital, and further, because it assumes that these bonds are not interest-bearing securities with paramount liens on the railroads of Tennessee, and I object to any answer on the same ground.) 172

A. I object to answer by advice of counsel.

173 (Defendants' counsel will move to suppress this deposition because of the refusal of the witness to answer this question.)

105×Q. Is it not a fact in regard to every Tennessee bond issued to the railroads involved in these suits, that you bought at any time within twelve months preceding the institution of the suits, that it was bought by you with the express purpose of instituting suits to enforce the lien which you claim to exist upon said 174 railroad, and did you not look to the proceeds of such litigations as the means of realizing upon your investment, and is not that your real meaning when you say that you bought them as an investment?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.)

A. I could not say that that was the real fact.

106×Q. Was not that your principal, chief motive?

175 (Same objection.)

A. I could not say as to every bond bought within twelve months before the litigation; but as to the majority of bonds bought immediately before or after the litigation. I bought such believing them to be a first mortgage lien on the roads to which they were issued, and believing them to be a good investment.

107×Q. What length of time are we to understand that you mean to cover by the word "immediately"?

176 A. Well, within a few months—after I read the statute under which the bonds were issued.

108×Q. What do you mean by a "few months"?

A. Less than twelve months; within the twelve months.

109×Q. You state in cross-question 106, that you bought such bonds "believing them to be a first mortgage lien on the roads to which they were issued, and believing them to be a good investment;" now, do you believe that they would be a good investment unless they are 177 a lien, as you claim them to be?

(Objected to as calling for witness's opinion, and as immaterial.)

A. I would not regard any except Tennessee lien railroad bonds a prudent investment.

110×Q. Would the lien add anything to the value of the bonds as an investment unless said lien could be enforced? 178

A. I should say that it would not, but I believe that it will be enforced.

111×Q. Then, I asked you in cross-question 105, did you not buy your Tenessee railroad lien bonds with the express purpose of instituting suits to enforce such liens?

(Objected to because it is based on an inference not warranted by the previous answer that the witness, and not other bondholders, might insti- 179 tute suits for the enforcement of the liens on the railroads.)

A. Many of my Tennesssee bonds were owned long before I anticipated any necessity of instiutting the suits to enforce my rights.

112×Q. Please answer my question then as to such of said bonds as you did not own long before you anticipated the necessity of bringing such suits?

A. I have every reason to believe that I owned a suf- 180
ficient number of bonds to fully test the question without making any additional purchases; I made such additional purchases because I believed them to be a good and legitimate investment.

113×Q. You are again asked to state if you did not make such additional purchases with the express purpose of instituting suits to enforce said lien?

A. No, sir; not for the express purpose, as I have 181 every reason to believe that I already owned sufficient bonds to test the question.

114×Q. When you bought said additional bonds, did you do it with the express purpose of embracing them with your original bonds in the suits which you afterwards brought to enforce said lien?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant, and because it does not appear from the proof adduced here that other bondholders did not intend 182 to file bills to enforce their railroad liens, and because it has already been claimed by the defendants on the taking of this deposition that these bills were filed in pursuance of a combination among the bondholders; and further, because these bills are filed on behalf of other bondholders in like interest with the complainant.)

A. I bought them as a legitimate investment, not for the express purpose of instituting these suits; I 183 should never have instituted any suits had I not been a large owner for a long time before I anticipated the necessity of enforcing my rights.

115×Q. My question was, did you not buy said bonds with the express purpose of embracing them with your original bonds in the suits which you afterwards brought to enforce said liens; you answer that you did not buy them for the purpose of instituting these suits; please answer the question as asked?

184 (Same objection.)

A. Not necessarily for the express purpose, though of course, if I afterwards decided to institute suits, I expected to include any bond that I owned.

116×Q. Had you not made up your mind to institute such suits before you made these additional purchases?

A. I had not; I awaited Charles O'Conor's opinion—

after a thorough examination on his part of the question—before I decided to institute the suits. 185

117×Q. Do you refer to the printed opinion of Mr. O'Conor published in New York, in pamphlet form in March, 1879?

(Objected to as immaterial, and because the complainant is not bound to give all the mental processes by which he reached a determination to compel these railroad companies to pay the bonds made liens on them respectively by the 186 Statute. And further, because Mr. O'Conor's opinion furnishes the best evidence of its own contents. I waive the production of the original and consent that defendants may put in a copy, and I object to any answer.)

(Defendants' counsel declines to file either the original or a copy of said opinion of Mr. O'Conor, because as complainant's counsel has so often said, it is immaterial and irrelevant to the issue.) 187

A. I object to answer by advice of counsel.

(Defendants' counsel will move to suppress this deposition, because this question is not answered.)

118×Q. Were you aware prior to your purchase of any of the bonds sued on in either of these cases that the railroads which you have sued denied that said bonds were a lien upon their property? 188

A. I cannot answer as to these particular bonds.

119×Q. Did you not know at the time of said purchases that the said railroad companies denied that any Tennessee bonds loaned to them were a lien upon their property?

A. I cannot say as to these particular bonds, for I don't know how long I have owned them.

120×Q. For how long a time prior to the institution

189 of these suits were you aware of the fact that said railroad companies denied that the bonds loaned to them by the State of Tennessee were liens upon their property; if you cannot state exactly come as near to the time as you can?

A. Somewhere within three years, I suppose.

Adjourned by consent to July 10th, 1879, 10 A. M.

JULY 10th, 10 A. M.

Present—Counsel for both parties, witness and cross-examination continued by Mr. Baxter.

121×Q. In cross-number 110, you answer that you believe that the lien which you claim to exist in favor of your bonds will be enforced; upon what do you 191 ground that belief?

A. First, because the Statute under which the bonds were issued in plain and positive language declares the bonds themselves to be liens; secondly, because the highest legal advice that I could obtain advised me to that effect.

122×Q. Have you any other reasons than those you have just stated for the belief you entertain?

A. The arguments and briefs which I have read from counsel on the other side further strengthen 192 that belief.

123×Q. Have you still any further grounds for that belief than those you have just stated, if so what?

A. I have; the active interest which the several railroad companies have shown towards affecting a State settlement since the filing of the bills, further strengthen my belief; also the getting up of the Delmonico dinner, and the placing there of mere figureheads who misrepresented the bondholders as generally assenting to the fifty-and four per cent. compromise also strengthen my belief; also the misrepresentation as to the number of bondholders and the amount of bonds which are represented to have assented to the proposed State settlement strengthen my belief. 193

124×Q. Have you not still another secret reason for your belief which you have not yet divulged?

A. I have not a secret reason, though I have other reasons.

125×Q. Will you please state all of those other reasons? 194

A. I refer to the delays and obstructions of the railroad companies in order to postpone the hearing of the causes.

126×Q. Have you not received either from your counsel or from others certain assurances upon which they and you contemplate success upon the peculiar line of attack which you have adopted, that you have not yet disclosed, and are you not relying with very great confidence upon these assurances?

A. The fact that the railroad companies snatched this question away from the Supreme Court of the United States, while that body had the case under advisement, and that the companies were apparently unwilling that the Court should render a decision, are additional reasons for my believing that this great wrong will finally be righted by that Court; I have no secret reasons whatever. 195

127×Q. I again ask: have you not received either from your counsel, or from others, certain assurances upon which they and you contemplate success upon the peculiar line of attack which you have adopted; please answer that question? 196

A. I deny having received such assurances.

128×Q. Have you not heard either in person, or through others, certain facts which you have not yet communicated that tend to strengthen your confidence?

A. I have endeavored to give the facts which strengthen my convictions as to the right of our cause;

197 I will gladly state any particular facts to which counsel may have reference, if he will state them.

129×Q. Have you no reasons for anticipating success other than your own belief in the justice of your cause, the strength of your own counsel's argument, the weakness of the arguments of your adversaries, and the panicky conduct of the railroads which you have described above?

(Objected to as question is already answered, 198 and as immaterial and irrelevant.)

A. The efforts of numerous honest and intelligent men in Tennessee to prevent that legislation by which the railroad companies, in collusion with the State, sought to deprive the bondholders of their rights, further strengthens my convictions; I think of no other reasons at this time.

130×Q. In your answer to cross-question 123, you allude to the active interest which the several railroad
199 companies of Tennessee have shown towards affecting a State settlement since the filing of your bills; do you not know it to be a fact that the railroad companies of Tennessee have always and long before your bills were filed or thought of been earnest and open advocates of the State credit of Tennessee; have they not always aided every committee of bondholders that you have ever sent to that State, as far as it was believed by the bondholders and the railroad companies that it was prudent, having regard to the interest of the bond-200 holders that they should aid you; and was it not publicly charged by the present Governor of Tennessee in his inaugural message that the railroads and bondholders have always been in collusion to make the people of the State of Tennessee pay its bonded debt; and have you not quoted at great length in a petition which you have filed for a receiver of the Nashville & Decatur Railroad, and from another message of that same Governor, thus endorsing him to this Court as a npetent and reliable exponent of the politics of 201

nessee ?

(Complainant's counsel objects on the ground that the Governor's message is the best evidence of its contents, and insists on the production and adducing of the document, or a copy, or such parts thereof as refers to this question ; and as to the portion of the question referring to the contents of the petition for a receivership of the Nashville & Decatur Railroad, he objects on the 202 ground that the records of this Court are their own best evidence, and he objects to any answer being made to those portions of the questions referring to the Governor's message and the petition on file)

. On the contrary, I know by the recent State in-tigation that the Memphis and Charleston Railroad npany employed disreputable means which injured credit of Tennessee and depreciated the bondhold- 203 securities ; it was done for the express purpose of ucing the bondholders to sacrifice their bonds and ble the railroad company to buy them at the lowest ssible figures, and turn them into the State at par ;
s believed in well-informed circles that a combination this city, in the interest of railroad purchasers, made rt sales of the bonds for the same purpose ; it is o believed in well-informed circles that railroad comnies in Tennessee taught the State of Tennessee the st lesson in repudiation ; I don't deny but what after 204 railroad companies had secured all the bonds they shed, that they then sought to build up the credit of e State again for their own selfish purpose ; they ve sought to get present outstanding bonds retired order that they might be free from all liability to original bondholders from whom they obtained the pital to build their roads.

The railroads may profess to have assisted the bond-

105 holders, but, in truth, for the express purpose of extricating themselves, at least treating the bondholders' interest as a very secondary consideration.

I object to repeat documents which would speak for themselves, by advice of counsel.

(Defendants' counsel insists that he has not called for the documents mentioned, or either of them, and will move to suppress this deposition, because the witness declines, has not answered as to the facts called for by the last clause of the 106 question.)

131×Q. You state in your last answer, that you know by the recent State investigation that the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company employed disreputable means which injured the credit of Tennessee; have you any personal knowledge of that fact yourself?

(Objected to because witness has already stated 107 the source of his knowledge.)

A. I base my assertion on the records which clearly prove it.

(Defendants' counsel now excepts to so much of witness's answer to cross-question No. 130, as refers to the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, because it appears that he has volunteered a statement with reference to which he has no personal knowledge, and of which, if true at 108 all, the records to which he refers are the best evidence.)

(Complainant's counsel insists that the answer is responsive to the question which extended to all the railroads of the State, and produces for inspection of the Commissioner and counsel present the sworn testimony taken before a Committee of the Tennessee Legislature on the matter referred to by the witness.)

132×Q. Do you not know as a fact, that the plan by 209 which most, if not all of the railroad companies of Tennessee bought the State bonds with which they retired their debts to the State of Tennessee, was to employ brokers or bankers in New York to sell the bonds of the companies, and with the proceeds arising therefrom, said brokers or bankers purchased bonds of the State of Tennessee on the open stock market of New York; that the companies made no purchase of State bonds directly, and had nothing to do with the means or devices usually resorted to by such brokers 210 or bankers to depress the value of securities for which they have orders to buy ?

A. I know that those very bankers or agents were the principal managers of and very large owners in the companies whose bonds they purchased.

133×Q. Please state what bankers and brokers you refer to, and what companies you refer to ?

A. Messrs Wilson & Iselin. I refer to those companies of which they are managers and stockholders in.

134×Q. Of what companies are they managers and 211 stockholders ?

A. I have understood that they are largely interested in East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, Memphis and Charleston, and very likely other roads.

135×Q. Do you intend any of the language you have used, relating to the depression of State credit, to refer to the Louisville and Nashville, or the Nashville and Decatur Roads, or to any of the officers or managers of either ?

A. I believe that all the railroad companies of Tennessee have been and still are in very close communion, though in different degrees of guilt. 212

136×Q. Will you have the frankness to make a specific charge against either of said companies or the managing officers thereof, implicating them in any attempt at any time to depress the credit of the State of Tennessee, giving names and dates with the facts which you charge ?

213 (Objected to because counsel asked in reference to the conduct of all the railroad officials of Tennessee, and the witness answered as to those within his knowledge. Further, because this is a Court to try the liability of these railroads for their debts, and not for the reception of charges against their officers. When these companies have paid the Internal Improvement Bonds issued to them, and are seeking reclamation from the State, the testimony here sought may be mate-214 rial, but the witness has now nothing to do with controversies between the companies and the State. I object to any answer, and give notice that on the reading of this deposition I shall move to strike out all of the questions and answers referring to the efforts of the railroad companies to secure a settlement by the State, and all other matter in this deposition not relevant to the issue.)

215 A. I object to any answer, because my counsel so advises.

(Defendants' counsel will move to suppress the deposition because the witness has refused to answer this question.)

137×Q. You say in your answer to cross-question 130, that it is believed in well-informed circles that a combination in this city in the interest of the railroad 216 purchasers made short sales of the bonds for the same purpose, meaning to depress the credit of the State; please state who belong to those well-informed circles, and who compose the combination which you there refer to?

(Objected to as having nothing to do with the case, and all answer objected to,)

A. I object to answer, because my counsel so advices.

(Defendants' counsel will move to suppress the deposition because of the refusal of the witness to answer. 217

138×Q. You state in your answer to cross-question 130, that it is also believed in well-informed circles that the railroad companies in Tennessee taught the State of Tennessee the first lesson in repudiation; please tell us who composed those well-informed circles, to which railroad companies you refer, and to what lesson in repudiation? 218

(Defendants' counsel replies it is alleged in the bills filed against the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company, that the State of Tennessee and the railroad companies had been in default during the late civil war, and had not paid the interest on the bonds issued to the companies; that the market value of the bonds had meanwhile fallen very greatly; that under these circumstances, the officials of the railroad companies conceived the project of avoiding the liabilities of these corporations for the payment of the bonds loaned to them; that their project was to treat the lien on the railroads as the absolute property of the State without regard to the trust in favor of the holders of the bonds whose moneys the companies had received; that they
219
purposed to induce the Legislature to proceed upon this basis and to assign the lien on each road in consideration of the receipt by the State of an amount of its bonds from each company, without regard to whether they were bonds loaned to the company delivering them or not. That they applied themselves to the procurement of such acts of the General Assembly of

221 Tennessee as they deemed would assist them in the accomplishment of their project; and further, that the railroad companies knew that they were engaged in an attempt to grasp the security and property conferred by the statute upon bondholders. These averments are denied in the answer, and one of the objects of this cross-examination is to disprove said averments, and the object of this particular question is to get the names of the parties who are said to have entertained a certain belief, with a view of asking 222 those parties whether they entertain those views or not.)

(Complainant's counsel insists that the quotation from the bill does not present any issue in regard to the repudiation of its debt by the State of Tennessee. Complainant's solicitor further presents to the commissioner, and asks that it be attached to this deposition, a copy of the following notice served and filed in these causes, and 223 marked Complainant's Exhibit 4, July 10th, 1879.)

A. I object to answer because my counsel so advises.

224 139×Q. In your answer to cross-question 125, you refer to the delays and obstructions of the railroad companies in order to postpone the hearing of the causes; do you refer to these three causes?

A. I do.

140×Q. Did not these defendants file their answers in these causes within the time allowed them by the rules of the Court as established by the Supreme Court of the United States.

(Objected to because the record is the best evidence, and I object to any answer, and for immateriality.) 225

A. I object to answer.

(Defendants' counsel will move to suppress this deposition because of witness's refusal to answer this question.)

141×Q. Has the three months allowed by the 69th Equity rule for taking testimony in these causes yet expired, and do you not know the fact that until those three months do expire you have no right to call the cases for trial? 226

(Objected to as not the best evidence, and because immaterial to the issues.)

A. I object to answer.

(Defendants' counsel will move to suppress this deposition because of the refusal of the witness to answer.) 227

142×Q. Please explain then what you mean by the delays and obstructions referred to in your cross-answer number 125?

A. I refer more particularly to the fact of the defendants having applied to the Court for an extension of time after having already admitted that it was not necessary.

143×Q. Who informed you that the defendants had ever made any such admission? 228

(Objected to as not being within the issues of the causes, and I object to any answer further, because the records in the causes state the condition of the litigations in respect to delays and otherwise.)

A. I object to answer.

229 (Defendants' counsel will move to suppress this deposition because of the refusal of the witness to answer the question.)

144×Q. Was not the extension of time of which you complain granted by the United States Circuit Judge at Nashville, in open Court and in the presence of your counsel, and did not the judge decide that the defendants had shown good cause for the extension of time granted?

230 (Objected to because the record is the best evidence, and I object to any answer.)

A. I object to answer.

(Defendants' counsel will move to suppress the deposition because of the refusal of the witness to answer this question.)

145×Q. Do you know of any other litigation involving such issues and amounts as you claim to be involved in these suits that was ever forced to a hearing in so short a time after it was commenced? If so, please give us a reference thereto? 231

(Objected to because not relevant, and as calling for witness's opinion as an expert, and any answer objected to.)

A. I object to answer.

146×Q. Is not this the first deposition that you have given the defendants notice that you desired to take any testimony in either of these three cases, and have you taken any proof at all in any of the other cases that you have brought against the railroad companies in Tennessee?

(Complainant's counsel objects to the first part of the question because the records are the best evidence, and to the second part of the question because litigations with other railroad companies are not relevant to these cases.) 233

A. I object to answer.

234

147×Q. Please explain your motive in holding back your testimony in these three cases until the time allowed by the 69th Rule for taking proof has nearly expired?

A. The question at issue rests on the interpretation of the Statute; all necessary testimony could be taken in a very short time; I regard the taking of so much testimony on the part of the defendants as intentionally for the purpose of encumbering the record and postponing the trial; I had no motive, nor have I intentionally delayed the taking of the little testimony that we care to. 235

148×Q. Then, if I understand you, you think that nobody has any right to take any proof in this case but you; how did you expect the defendants to be able to get up their testimony within the short time now allowed them, even if they wished to confine their testimony to contradicting your deposition, if such testimony can be found?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant and calling for the opinion of an expert.)

A. You certainly do misunderstand me; I desire that the defendants should have the fullest liberty to take all testimony that bears on the question at issue.

149×Q. Have you any other oral proof which you expect to offer in these cases, if so, give me the names of the witnesses whom you expect to examine?

237 A. I know of none decided upon at this time.

(Complainant's solicitor states that he does not expect to adduce any further oral testimony as the notice of resting served on defendants' counsel some days since has already indicated. Complainant's solicitor requests defendants' solicitor to state the names of any witnesses he proposes to call, if any.)

238 (Defendants' counsel has not such memoranda with him as will enable him to do this; but he expects to introduce a number of witnesses to support the averments of the answers filed in these cases, and to controvert various statements in this deposition.)

239 (Defendants' counsel will serve him with written notice of the names of those witnesses after the complainant's proof is closed.)

150×Q. Please state your real motive for the extraordinary vigor with which these cases have been pressed to trial?

240 A. Because there is no good reason why they should be further postponed.

151×Q. Have you not previously stated that you bought or held these bonds as an investment, and do you not know that if they are a first lien upon the railroads which you have sued, that said roads, when brought to sale, will bring far more than enough to pay every bond and coupon loaned to them by the State of Tennessee which are now outstanding?

A. I do not know that fact, but believe it to be so; 241 but I had rather have what is due me in my own possession than in the treasury of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company.

152×Q. Have you not got the bonds in your possession now, and if they are first liens upon such valuable property, how is it possible for the Louisvile & Nashville Railroad Company to deprive you of them or of the interest that may accrue upon them hereafter, and can you possibly get a better investment than six per cent. first mortgage bonds upon such property, consid- 242 ering the small amount now outstanding?

A. I have the bonds in my possession; I have other reasons for preferring to have my own outside of the treasury of the Louisville & Nashville; this unnecessary delay in the trial of the causes is largely increasing the costs of the litigation, and while the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company may be solvent to-day, it is not certain it will be years hence.

153×Q. If your bonds are first liens upon these railroads, are they not amply secured whether the Louis- 243 ville & Nashville Railroad Company remains solvent or not?

A. I do not know that fact, nor does it excuse the injustice of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company in withholding the interest on my bonds, which it agreed by the express terms of the Statute to provide for, and which it did provide for during many years.

154×Q. Do you not believe that said railroads are ample security for your bonds independent of the solvency of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Com- 244 pany?

A. I believe that the security is amply good at this time, but that the unnecessary delay of the defendants is causing me daily loss.

155×Q. Please state how such delay is causing you any loss, defendants not admitting that there is any such delay?

A. The expenses of the litigation are large, and it is 245 occupying my time to the detriment and loss of other interests.

156×Q. How many days of your time has this deposition taken, and who gave notice to take it?

(Objected to as not the best evidence, and the answer objected to.)

A. I decline to answer.

157×Q. If the Court should decree a sale of these roads to pay the amount claimed by you, would you not immediately thereafter seek an investment for money received by you from the sale; are you in need of the money involved in these litigations except for the purpose of getting it to re-invest in other modes?

247 (Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant and any answer objected to.)

A. I certainly would seek a re-investment, but not in a State where capital is so insecure as in Tennessee, and where trusts are so flagrantly violated and sacred obligations so frequently dishonored.

158×Q. Having made your speech, will you oblige me by a respectful answer to a respectful question, and tell me whether you need the money involved in these litigations except for the purpose of getting it to re-invest in other modes? 248

(Objected to because the question has been already answered, because it is immaterial and irrelevant, and because the rights and remedies of parties are not adjudicated upon the basis of their necessities or absence of necessities, and because the statement of the character of investments which complainant would seek when he receives the overdue interest upon his bonds was 249 a fair reply to the question and not a speech. I also object to any answer.)

A. I object to answer.

(Defendants' counsel gives notice that his object in this part of the examination is to show that there is no pressing necessity either for the immediate hearing of these cases nor for the appointment of a Receiver over the Nashville and Decatur Railroad, and he will move to suppress 250
this deposition because of the refusal of the witness to answer this question.)

159×Q. You have stated in cross-question 153, that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company provided for the interest on your bonds during many years; do you state this fact of your own knowledge or have you ever heard any one else state such to be the fact, and if so, who?

A. I state that as a fact, because the Act under which 251
the bonds were issued specially provided that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company should provide for the semi-annual interest on all bonds issued to that company or furnish satisfactory evidence that said interest had been paid; the penalty for not providing the interest would have undoubtedly been enforced by the State had the terms of the Statute not been complied with; no such penalty was ever enforced.

160×Q. You then state as a matter of fact what you had only reasoned out as a matter of argument; 252 am I correct?

A. No, sir; I state it as an undisputed fact, that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company has never been foreclosed or to my knowledge in the hands of a receiver.

161×Q. And do you not argue from that fact, that the Louisville & Nashille Railroad Company must have provided the interest upon the bonds loaned to it, and 253 is not that the only way that you come to the conclusion that it did provide for them?

A. Certainly; those are some of my reasons for making that assertion; moreover, the Ex-Treasurer of the Bank of Tennessee informed me that such was the case.

162×Q. Did he tell you that the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company had ever paid to any holder of bonds loaned by the State to that Company the interest due thereon?

254 A. He said that the railroad companies paid their interest on their bonds through the Bank of Tennessee as their agent, paying their agent the costs and commissions attending such payment; nor did he deny that the railroad companies had the right by law to pay the interest directly themselves.

164×Q. My question was, did he tell you that the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company had ever paid to any holder of bonds loaned by the State to the company the interest due thereon; please answer yes or no 255 to that question.

A. I have no recollection of his ever making such an assertion, nor of my asking him that question.

164×Q. Did he not say to you that the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company was in the habit of depositing in the Bank of Tennessee an amount sufficient to pay the interest with exchange, &c., upon the bonds loaned by the State to that company?

A. He said that the railroad companies were in the habit of so doing.

256 165×Q. Were the bonds payable in Nashville or in New York?

A. In New York.

166×Q. The Bank of Tennessee, then, could only then have paid the interest through some agency in New York; is this true?

A. I do not understand it so.

167×Q. Was it your understanding from him that the coupons were paid in Nashville by the bank there?

A. I understood that the bank of Tennessee, as agent, paid the money into the Treasury of Tennessee (the bondholders' trustee), who, in turn, provided for the payment of the interest in New York. 257

168×Q. Through whom did the Treasury of Tennessee make payment here in New York, as you understood?

A. Through banks in this city; such as the Fourth National and the Bank of Republic, I understand.

Adjourned to July 11, 1879, at 10 A. M., by consent. 258

JULY 11th, 1879, 10 A. M.

169×Q. In your answer to cross-question 161, you speak of the ex-treasurer of the Bank of Tennessee; what was his name, and when did he make the statements you refer to? 259

A. I do not at this moment remember his name—Morton I think—the statement was made since January, 1879.

170×Q. In your answer to cross-question 168, you speak of the Fourth National Bank of New York as being one of the banks through whom the interest was paid upon the Tennessee bonds loaned to railroads; was not that bank organized after or during the late war?

A. I do not know; I am not so positive as to the Fourth National Bank as I am in reference to the Bank of the Republic. 260

171×Q. Have you ever presented any coupons of Tennessee bonds loaned to railroads for payment; if so, did you present them to the railroad companies to whom the bonds had been loaned or to some bank or banks in New York?

A. I have never presented any coupons to any railroad companies direct.

261 172×Q. When presenting them for payment did you have your coupons assorted according to the different roads to which they had been loaned, or did you have all the coupons of your railroad lien bonds mingled together and present them all for payment in a batch or block ?

A. I have no recollection of collecting any Tennessee coupons in person.

173×Q. Through whom did you collect them ; please give me the names of all the parties whom you can now 262 remember ?

A. As I recollect, my father collected them ; myself being much of the time absent from the city.

174×Q. Have you any counsel or attorneys employed in either of these suits, except the counsel whose names appear to be signed to the bills ; if so, please state who they are and where they reside ?

A. I have positively employed none except Judge Hoadly and Mr. Andrews.

175×Q. Have you not a solicitor or attorney at Nash-263 ville, upon whom notices to take depositions in these cases can be served ; if you have, state his name ?

A. Mr. Sam. Watson is employed by my counsel as agent for me though not by myself in person.

176×Q. Has your counsel employed any one else at any other place except Mr Watson ; if so, who ?

A. He has also employed other counsel at Knoxville, Memphis and Louisville ; the record shows I suppose.

177×Q. Is the compensation you are to pay your counsel and attorneys precisely the same if you lose 264 these suits, as if you gained them ; if not what difference ?

A. I should say that it was.

178×Q. Is your agreement or any memorandum thereof, in regard to such compensation in writing ?

A. I pay my counsel as I go along, and have no agreement in writing.

179×Q. Are they to receive any part of the bonds or coupons upon which these suits have been brought as a 265 part of their compensation?

A. They are not.

180×Q. Are you alone engaged in the prosecution of these suits as complainant; if not, give the names of each and every person who has agreed to aid you in the prosecution of said suits, or any of them, and of every one who has contributed or promised to contribute towards the fees and expenses of said suits?

A. All these suits were begun independently by my- 266 self, and I have paid all expenses to date; I begun them on my own judgment, not relying on the assistance of any other bondholders.

181×Q. Is there not an association or organization of some of the holders of Tennessee bonds loaned to railroads, the object of which is in part to assert a lien upon said railroads in favor of said bondholders, and are you not a member of said association or organization and an officer thereof?

A. I am the Treasurer of the Committee of Tennessee 267
Bondholders; the object of the association is in part to assert a lien upon said railroads in favor of said bondholders.

182×Q. Did not said committee or organization a short time prior to May 17th, 1879, decide to adopt the suits which you had previously instituted in the Federal Courts of Tennessee; did they not invite all bondholders who might wish to secure the benefits resulting from said litigations to sign a certain paper, the heading of which is here filed and marked "Defendants' Exhibit No. 1, 268
July 11th, 1879," and was it not one of the conditions upon which such bondholders were allowed to come in to these suits that they should deposit "with the committee five dollars per lien bond in cash and one past due coupon from each bond of that description," the same being "required to defray the necessary costs and expenses of the litigation," and was it not represented by the Committee that "in no event will the

269 bondholders be called upon for any further assessment, nor do they incur any personal liability by uniting in this plan; should any surplus funds remain in the hands of the Committee after all other expenditures have been provided for, the same will be returned to bondholders pro rata; those who do not comply with the aforesaid conditions will be excluded from the benefits derived from the action of the committee?"

A. The committee did decide to adopt my suits; they did invite bondholders to sign the paper filed as 270 "Defendants' Exhibit No. 1, July 11th, 1879;" such were the conditions and, speaking in behalf of the Committee, the agreement on their part will be faithfully carried out.

183×Q. Did not said Committee engage certain counsel at New York and Cincinnati to be assisted by competent counsel at Nashville, Memphis, Knoxville and Louisville to aid in the prosecution of said suits?

A. They have not as yet.

184×Q. Are not said counsel, or some of them, now 271 actively engaged in the prosecution of these suits?

A. They are actively engaged in the prosecution of my suits.

185×Q. Please give me the names of all persons who have signed papers similar to "Defendants' Exhibit No. 1, July 11th, 1879," assenting to the plan of the Bondholders' Committee; give me the names of all that you can now remember, and refer me to the proper officer of your Committee from whom I can ascertain the others?

272 A. The names are very numerous; I decline to give them, or connect the affairs of the Committee of Tennessee bondholders with my individual suits at issue.

186×Q. How long have you been actively connected with said Committee? 273

A. I have not the dates, though I had severed my connection with the Committee when or before I filed these bills; though I have since again acted with them.

187×Q. Please state as near as you can remember, without being precisely accurate, how long you had been connected with the Committee before you severed your connection as stated above?

A. From the date when I was appointed secretary at the first meeting of that Committee of Tennessee bondholders until the filing of the bills. 274

188×Q. In what year was the first meeting of the bondholders of which you were appointed Secretary?

A. The year 1877, I think.

189×Q. Was it not a part of your duties as an officer of said Committee to keep yourself well advised of all matters affecting the interest of said bondholders; and did you not do so from the time you became such Secretary? 275

A. I certainly aimed to do so.

190×Q. You state in your original answer number 6, and in cross-answer number 185, that the holders of Tennessee bonds, and of those who have assented to the plan of the Committee, are very numerous; do any of such parties reside in the State of Tennessee?

A. I decline to give the names and whereabouts of those who have assented; I am informed that some of the holders of Tennessee bonds reside in Tennessee.

191×Q. Have not the Committee stated to Tennessee bondholders that "the members of the Committee are owners to a large amount of bonds that are not liens on the railroads, which they do not propose to fund into the fifty and four per cent. bonds offered; they believe that the enforcement of the railroad liens will bring about a much better settlement than is now proposed"? 276

A. They did, and that, too, for very good reasons.

277 192×Q. Please state if the Committee of Tennessee bondholders did not upon July 3d, 1879, issue a circular, a copy of which is here produced and filed, marked "Defendants' Exhibit No. 2, July 11, 1879," and was not said circular published as an advertisement in the New York Herald, of July 9 or 10, 1879; a copy of said advertisement being here produced, and marked "Defendants' Exhibit number 3, July 11, 1879?"

A. Such are the facts.

193×Q. Is it not a part of the policy of the Committee of Tennessee bondholders to prevent the people of Tennessee from voting in their pending election in favor of offering to the bondholders of the State a compromise of the indebtedness of the State in bonds for fifty cents on the dollar of the present bonds, and four per cent. interest on the new bonds. 278

(Complainant's counsel request defendants' counsel please to state whether this testimony is intended to relate to the issues on the pleadings or to the pending motion.) 279

(Defendants' counsel states this question relates principally to the pending motion for a receiver, and for precipitating the trial, said motion as the notice informs him is to be heard upon the pleadings and proceedings, but he expects to make such use of the testimony on the main issues as he may be advised.)

280 (Complainant's counsel requests defendants' counsel to state what he proposes to show by this line of questions in regard to the State election.)

(Defendants' counsel is not willing to disclose at this point the plan of his cross-examination of the complainant, but will develop it by a series of questions following this.)

A. I refer the counsel to that Committee; I have no authority to speak for them; such may or may not be 281

the case.

194×Q. Do you not think that you are apprised of the policy of the Committee on the question referred to in cross-question number 193, and while you may not be authorized to speak for them, cannot you tell what their policy is?

A. I am not apprised of their intentions; I do not believe that they have decided upon any policy in that direction.

195×Q. Have not you or your Committee been in 282 correspondence with persons in Tennessee who are opposing the offering of that compromise?

A. Not that I am aware of—only so far as the Secretary may have answered any reasonable inquiries as to the committee's doings.

196×Q. Have you not written, or do you not know that members of the Committee have written, letters to persons in Tennessee, the object of which were to defeat the pending compromise?

A. I do not know of any such instances, nor do I 283 believe that any such have ever occurred; the Committee has no alliance with or respect for the repudiating element in Tennessee.

197×Q. Do you not know that the repudiating element in Tennessee are now urging upon the people as a reason why they should not vote in favor of offering a compromise to the bondholders of Tennessee, that the compromise will not be accepted by the bondholders even if offered by the people, and have you or your Committeemen not been writing letters to those repudation- 284 ists to the effect that the bondholders would not accept the compromise, and have you not done so for the purpose of enabling those repudiationists to make their arguments effective?

(Objected to on the ground that the efforts of the railroad companies to induce the people of Tennessee to lift the mortgages from their prop-

285 erty, and to compel the bondholders owning those mortgages to release them within a limited period, have no reference to the rights of complainant to a trial for the enforcement of his mortgage liens upon these railroads.

Irrelevant and immaterial to any controversy between bondholders enforcing their statutory lien, and the railroads subject to it.)

(DEFENDANTS' COUNSEL: In order to save time and expedite a hearing, defendants' counsel here 286 notifies complainant's counsel that he is willing for all objections to be briefly stated and the argument reserved for the Court, who alone has authority to pass upon them.)

(Complainant's counsel notifies defendants' counsel that interrogatories incorporating arguments in reference to the arrangements proposed between the State of Tennessee and its creditors, not participants in this litigation, compel him to 287 adjust his objections accordingly.)

(Defendants' counsel, without arguing the argumentativeness of his questions, respectfully requests complainant's counsel that he will allow his client either to decline to answer or to answer, so that the examination may proceed, as defendant desires to have some time to get ready upon the motion that is threatened.)

288 A. Some of the Tennessee papers use such arguments but not at our instigation.

198×Q. Is it not one of your objects in pressing an immediate hearing of an application for a receiver or of the trial of the cause before the election can be held, to make some capital out of some incident that may occur upon such application that will aid in defeating the compromise now pending before the people of Tennessee?

> (Objected to because it assumes a fact, the contrary of which is the case, namely, that the bondholders are seeking a hearing on account of the election, whereas, it is the railroad companies that have obtained orders, the effect of which is to delay a hearing beyond the election.) 289

A. I say most emphatically, that I am pursuing the same course in reference to these suits that I would have pursued had there been no State compromise pending in Tennessee. 290

199×Q. Do you think that, but for said election, you would have required the Court and counsel to go from a cool pleasant climate into such a place as Nashville will be on the 26th of July, to argue a motion for a receiver over a railroad, which is ample security for debts which you claim, irrespective of the solvency of the companies that may now be in control thereof?

> (Objected to because it assumes that there is any desire on the part of complainant to compel a hearing in Nashville when the complainant is willing to have a hearing elsewhere.) 291

A. I again say most emphatically that I am not influenced in the trial of the causes by the State Debt Compromise pending in Tennessee; I would not receive such compromise bonds should the compromise be carried.

200×Q. My question referred to a motion for receiver and not to the trial of the causes? Please answer as to the motion for receiver? 292

> (Objected to because it assumes incorrect grounds for the application for a receiver—— that the application is based upon the non-existence of security, whereas it is based upon the consumption of revenues in such manner as to prevent complainant from promptly realizing the benefits of a decree for his overdue interest.)

293 (Defendants' counsel again protests against the dilatory character of the objections interposed by complainant's counsel, as the petition filed will show the grounds of the application.)

A. I would have made the same motion for a receiver had there not been any State Debt Compromise pending.

201×Q. Why did you not ask for a receiver of these roads when you first filed your bills or at the first term of the Circuit Court at Nashville which met on the 294 third Monday in April, 1879?

(Objected to because it assumes a knowledge of an expert on the part of complainant as to the proper time to make motions in course of litigated proceedings.)

A. My counsel is present and better qualified to answer that question than I.

295 (Defendants' counsel will move to suppress this deposition because in this instance and in many others that have previously occurred, the objections of complainant's counsel, whether so intended or not, have indicated to the complainant the answer he should make to the question asked him, and in other instances have had the effect to keep the complainant from giving any answer at all to questions, which, whether competent or not, did not tend to expose the witness 296 to any pains, penalties, forfeitures, criminal prosecution, nor to degradation or disgrace, whereby defendants are deprived of an opportunity to argue before the Court the competency of such testimony as the answers, if given, may have afforded.)

that he was taking testimony for the purposes 297 of the motion for receivership and other motions. All complainant's objections previous to this declaration are to be treated in the light of the pleadings. Complainant has not required a separate deposition for the motions, being actuated by desire to facilitate the progress of the cause. But he does not waive the binding force upon the defendants of the testimony of the complainant, whom they have examined as their own witness. The same position is taken 298 in reference to new matter, which may be claimed to belong to cross-examination. Complainant is unable to except to the general charges in regard to the portions of this examination preceding the last question, until defendant indicates the objections in respect of which he last addressed the Court. Complainants' counsel has distinctly objected to answers to many of the questions, and has not done so in respect of the question now propounded to the witness.) 299

(Defendants' counsel does not understand himself as having announced that he was taking testimony for the purposes of the motion for receivership. He reserves the right to show that there has been no valid service of any notice of any such motion and to object upon all grounds of jurisdiction. And it is only because the notice that was served upon defendants' counsel stated the application would be heard 300 upon the pleadings and proceedings, of which he supposed it would be claimed that this deposition was a part, that he has asked the questions which he thinks will be material, if the Court should rule upon argument that service of notice upon defendants' counsel here in New York is good service upon a corporation whose chief office is in Tennessee, and if Justice Strong, before

301 whom the motion is cited, should be of the opinion that he has jurisdiction to entertain it. If anything appears in the previous part of this deposition which would seem to bear a broader construction, the defendants' counsel now and hereby distinctly notifies complainant and his counsel, both of whom are present, that the action of defendants' counsel is intended to be restricted to the elements specified in this memorandum.)

302 202×Q. Is it not a fact that the counsel of these defendants met one of your counsel in the Maxwell House, at Nashville, Tennessee, on Sunday morning next after these bills had been filed and asked him if it was his intention to apply at that time for a receiver over either of these roads, and if he did not reply that he did not at that time expect to ask for receivers over any of the roads, unless it should be in the case of some of the insolvent roads such as the Mobile & Ohio.

A. I do not know such to be a fact, though I do not 303 deny the statement; my counsel now informs me that such was the case.

203×Q. I understand you to have previously declined to give me the names of any persons who have signed "Defendant's Exhibit No. 1, July 11, 1879;" please give me the names of all the persons you know to be holders of the Tennessee bonds, who have not signed said Exhibit; I embrace in this question all of such persons as you have heard said that they held bonds of Tennessee?

304 A. I again decline to give information as to questions bearing directly or indirectly on the affairs of the committee of Tennessee bondholders.

204×Q. I expressly refrain from inquiring into the affairs of that Committee; as I understood you before to regard it as a sacred and secret organization; but I did not suppose you would object to speaking of those who have not the honor of a membership in that close corporation; will you now answer as to those holders of Tennessee bonds who are in no wise connected with said committee? 305

A. I must decline to answer in regard to them also.

205×Q. Why do you decline; do you suppose that any one who is the honest holder of a bond would object to your stating that he was such?

A. For the very good reason that I have no right to make their affairs public without their consent; understanding as I do that some bona fide holders of Tennessee bonds are actually unwilling to publicly acknowledge their ownership of such. 306

206×Q. And do you not further know that it would not suit your present purpose to disclose the name of one of these bondholders who is unwilling to let the fact be known?

A. Such is more positively not the case; on the contrary, as far as my own interest and purpose are concerned I would have no objection in stating the names of all that have or have not assented to the circular of the Committee of Tennessee bondholders. 307

207×Q. I am not now inqiring about those who have assented to said circular; and I further ask if it would not very seriously interfere with the purposes and projects of your Committee to divulge the name of a certain holder of Tennessee bonds, who has been induced not to sign the agreement, for the reason that it is believed by your committee that it would be better for him at present not to be connected with them?

A. I cannot possibly conceive how the mention of any bondholder's name would in the least interfere with the purposes of the Committee or myself.

208×Q. Has there ever been or is there now any dif-

309 ference in price in the New York Stock market between the bonds of Tennessee loaned to railroads, and those issued to build the Capitol, purchase the "Hermitage" or for other ordinary State purposes; if so please state the difference?

A. Owing to the manner in which the bonds are called at the Stock Exchange there is necessarily no differences; but upon the open market where Tennessee loan bonds are mostly bought and sold there is a marked difference; I should say from two to five per cent.
310 in limited transactions.

209×Q. How long has this difference existed even in the open market?

A. Well, I should say within two years.

210×Q. Has there ever been, or is there now any difference in the New York stock market between the bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to solvent and important trunk lines like the Louisville & Nashville Railroad and those loaned to insolvent branch roads, like the McMinnville & Manchester and the Winchester 311 & Alabama?

A. I apply the same answers as to cross-questions 208 and 209.

211×Q. What is the difference now on the New York Stock Market between bonds of the State of Tennessee that were loaned to any certain railroad before the late war and those that were loaned by the State to that railroad after the war, they being known on the stock board as "old" and "new" bonds?

A. At present I should say the difference was not 312 more than two to three per cent.

212×Q. What was the greatest difference that obtained between these two classes of bonds upon the New York Stock Market between the first of the year 1869 and the last of the year 1871?

A. I could not say; I had little if any acquaintance with the stock market in those years.

213×Q. Will you please refer to such reliable data as are accessible to you here in New York, and give me 313 such information?

(Defendant withdraws this question, it being stipulated between counsel that any authentic certificate as to the price of Tennessee State bonds at any relevant period may be admitted without formal deposition to be filed in these causes.)

214×Q. What is the difference between the price which the bonds of Tennessee loaned to railroads bore 314 in the New York Stock Market when these suits were commenced, and the price which such bonds bear now?

A. I could not state accurately; but I should say that they are several per cent. lower--say three to five per cent. than they were when these suits were begun; very good evidence that any pretended bull movement has not been successful.

215×Q. Is it not a fact, that before the railroads of Tennessee began to buy State bonds in the New York Market to pay off their debts to the State, say for instance 315 in December, 1869, Tennessee bonds were quoted as low as 40½ cents, while in March, 1874, they sold as high as 90½?

A. I do not recollect, but I do not deny the statement.

216×Q. Have you ever applied to any Governor of the State of Tennessee to appoint a receiver to take charge of and operate either of these railroads upon the ground that the interest upon the State bonds loaned to them was in default; have you ever applied to any 316
Court for such receivers prior to the institution of these suits?

A. I have not.

217×Q. Did any railroad receivers of Tennessee appointed under the Internal Improvement Law of that State ever pay to you or to any other bondholder to your knowledge any interest upon bonds which had 317 been loaned by the State to the railroads under the receiver's control?

A. Not to my knowledge.

218×Q. Did you or any other bondholder so far as you know ever attempt to hold any of such Receivers or their sureties responsible for funds collected by them in the operation of the railroads upon which you claimed to have liens?

A. Not that I am aware of.

219×Q. Is it not a fact that Receivers were allowed 318 to remain in control of many of the railroads of Tennessee for considerable periods of time, the property in their charge continually depreciating, with no attempt on the part of the bondholders to see to its preservation?

(Complainant's counsel objects to all questions in relation to the Receiverships unless it is shown that these roads were in the hands of the Receivers.)

319 A. I do not know, though I do not deny the assertion.

220×Q. Have you or those under whom you claim ever funded new bonds of the State of Tennessee, any of the unpaid coupons or bonds, which you claim to be a lien upon railroads?

A. I have no recollection of ever funding any Tennessee coupons; my father funded coupons of Tennessee bonds which he then owned, but I do not know whether I own those bonds now or not; my father gave me all 320 his Tennessee bonds before he died.

Adjourned by consent to July 12th, 1879, at 10 A.M.

July 12, 1879, 10 A. M. 321

Complainant's solicitor notifies defendants' solicitor that for the purpose of securing a hearing of the causes within a reasonable time, to wit: at or about the time when the period for taking testimony in these causes will have expired under the rules of the Supreme Court of the United States, namely, on or about the 26th of July, 1879, complainant will, subject to the exceptions hereinafter set forth, admit the matters of fact, 322 but not the conclusions of law nor the inferences and deductions and constructions set up in the answers of the defendants.

This offer is to be taken subject to all right of exception and objection on the part of the complainant to the relevancy, materiality or any other ground of legal objection to the matters of fact set up in the answers.

The matters hereby admitted are also to be sub- 323
ject to any weight of testimony which may be attributed to the following executive and legislative documents of the State of Tennessee.

Acts of the Tennessee Legislature in reference to the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company and the other corporations.

The circular of the fiscal agent of the State of Tennessee issued in 1868 by Samuel Watson.

The message of Gov. Brownlow to the Legislature of Tennessee in 1868. 324

Extracts from the reports of the Comptrollers of the State of Tennessee, several of which reports are referred to in the answers.

The report of the joint select committee of 1857–8 to investigate the offices of the Comptroller and Secretary of State.

The inaugural message of Gov. Marks of Tennessee, referred to in the cross-examination.

325 It is also, of course, subject to any testimony already taken.

This stipulation is intended to relieve the defendants from the necessity of taking oral testimony to prove any matters extrinsic to the Statutes and public documents of Tennessee. But it is not intended to effect the proof taken of complainant's ownership of bonds nor of the other matters contained in his direct examination.

It is intended to confine further proof in these 326 causes to authenticated copies of Statutes and public records.

Complainant further notifies defendants that authenticated copies of the General Internal Improvement Law and the other acts and documents referred to in his notice of resting have been filed with the Clerk of this Court.

Complainant further offers to stipulate that all other Statutes may be read from the printed volumes 327 containing the imprint of the Secretary of State's certificate, and the executive and legislative documents from the printed volumes published in the usual official form.

The foregoing offer is intended to secure the hearing of these causes by a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, and to avoid the delays which would preclude such hearing during the vacation of that Court. If, for any 328 reason, such hearing should be prevented, this offer is subject to revocation by the complainant.

Complainant's counsel, in view of the fact that defendants' counsel proceeds with the examination of the witness, requests defendants' counsel to state in what respect the above offer is unsatisfactory, and complainant hereby offers to make the said stipulation more specific in respect 329 of any and all facts set up in the answer, it being complainant's object to admit the said matters of fact for the purposes of said hearing.

Defendants' counsel regards said memorandum as matters unknown to the practice of this Court, and proposes to do as complainant has done to prepare his case for trial with all due diligence, but in strict accord with the usual practice of the Court and the rules and orders heretofore 330 made in these causes.

Complainant's counsel further offers to expunge from the record the witness's cross-examination, if claimed by defendants to interfere in any manner with the execution of the above stipulation, complainant being precluded from making the same offer in reference to the direct examination, on account of the denials in the answers of complainant's ownership of bonds. 331

Cross-examination resumed:

221×Q Are not the bonds issued by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, and called by them "first mortgage bonds," amounting to several millons of dollars, above par in the New York market to-day?

A. Bonds called by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company "first mortgage bonds" are quoted above par.

222×Q. Are not the bonds issued by the Nashville 332 and Decatur Railroad Company, and called by them "first mortgage bonds," amounting to over two million of dollars rated at par or above?

A. I understand that such is the case.

223×Q. When did you first become aware of the fact that certain bonds of the State of Tennessee had been issued to these particular railroads, and how did you get that information?

333 A. Within three years, and through the State Comptroller's Reports.

224×Q. When did you first claim or assert that you had a lien upon either of these roads?

A. Within three years.

225×Q. When did you first notify either of these defendants that you claimed a lien upon their property and the amount that you claimed?

A. When I filed the bills.

226×Q. When did you first hear that the Nashville 334 and Decatur Railroad Company had, as they claimed, paid off their debt to the State in bonds of the State;
I, of course, understand you as denying that it had any validity as against your rights, my question being when you heard of the fact?

A. I should say within three years, not before that time having read the Statute or examined the question.

227×Q. When did you first hear of the fact that the Tennessee railroads through brokers or agents here in 335 New York were trying to purchase bonds of the State of Tennessee, with a view of making such payments to the State?

A. It must have been much longer than three years since I heard so.

228×Q. Could you fix the date somewhat more definitely upon reflection?

A. Within ten years.

229×Q. When did you first hear that the State of Tennessee had filed a bill against the delinquent roads 336 of that State to have them sold for what the State claimed as debts due to the State?

A. I should say within three years.

230×Q. Have you ever taken any steps by appeal, writ of error or bill of review to reverse the decrees of the Chancery Court at Nashville, declaring that the lien upon the railroads of Tennessee under the Internal Improvement Law belonged to the State and not to the bondholders?

A. That, of course, does not refer to anything in the 337 bills.

231×Q. I ask by writ of error, bill of review or appeal?

A. I have not, not being aware of such facts until recently.

232×Q. Of what State were you a resident or citizen in the years 1870, 1871 and 1872? Were you a resident or citizen of the State of Tennessee?

A. I was a citizen of New York, and not a citizen or resident of the State of Tennessee. 338

233×Q. Is it not a fact that you or your co-committeemen of the Tennessee bondholders are attempting by publications and private advice to dissuade bondholders of the State of Tennessee from accepting the compromise that is now pending before the people of that State?

A. The committee have issued a circular advising their constituents not to accept, but have made no other special exertions to my knowledge.

234×Q. Did you ever enter any protest against the 339 authority assumed by the State of Tennessee from time to time to cancel or destroy the bonds which the railroad companies now sued by you had paid into the sinking fund provided for by the Internal Improvement Laws of that State?

A. I have not; I was not conversant with Tennessee affairs at the date you name.

235×Q. Did you or did any other bondholder of Tennessee, to your knowledge, ever enter any protest against the action of the State of Tennessee in releas- 340
ing the railroads of that State from their debts?

A. The right of Tennessee to do so was discussed and denied to my knowledge as far back as 1870; I think, when Messrs. Davis & Davies gave an opinion to the contrary.

236×Q. Was said opinion of Davis & Davies brought to the attention of the authorities of Tennessee so far as you know or believe? If so, when?

341 A. I do not know; I was not then conversant with Tennessee affairs.

237×Q. You were aware, then, as early as 1870 that the railroads of Tennessee claimed the right to pay their debts to the State, and that the lien belonged to the State and not to the bondholders?

A. No, sir; I have obtained that information since.

238×Q. Did you not see Davis & Davies' opinion at or about the time it was being circulated in New York?

342 A. No, sir, not till within three years, I should say.

239×Q. Were you not a holder of Tennessee bonds in 1870, and interested in these liens?

A. I could not say that I was.

240×Q. Did you ever enter any protest against the action of the State of Tennessee in selling out the delinquent railroads to pay the debts which the State claimed to be due to her and not to the bondholders?

A. No, sir. because I was not aware of the facts until 343 quite recently.

241×Q. Are you to be paid or allowed by any of the other persons who have agreed to come in to these suits any compensation or percentage over and above what you may be entitled to on your own bonds and coupons. If so, what?

A. Most assuredly not; these are my own individual suits.

Defendants' counsel closes his cross-examination.

Re-direct examination resumed by complainant's counsel.

242×Q. What is your birthplace?

A. Brooklyn, New York.

243×Q. How many years last past have you been a resident of the City of New York?

A. I should say more than ten years.

244×Q. How long have you been a holder of Tennessee bonds? 345

A. I should say more than five years.

245×Q. Did not one of the counsel for the defendants notify one of your counsel that he would serve him with a notice of motion to extend the time of hearing of these causes until such period after the State election as would include the time that might be limited for the Tennessee bondholders to accept the State settlement?

A. I understood that some such notice of motion 346 would be served.

246×Q. You heard what transpired here yesterday in regard to it?

A. Yes, sir.

247×Q. And is that substantially what you understood?

A. I so understand.

248×Q. Were you present yesterday when one of the counsel for the complainant inquired of one of the counsel for the defendants whether and when he would 347 serve him with said notice?

A. I was.

249×Q. Did the counsel for the defendant reply that he had concluded not to serve the notice?

A. I understood him so to say.

(Complainant's counsel further offers to stipu- 348 late that the following matters set up in the answers are true:

In 1852 the taxable property of Tennessee was $177,420,305. The debt of the State then amounted to only $3,992,856.66, and the rate of State tax was only 11½ cents on the hundred dollars; the six per cent. bonds of the State were, as respondents are informed, at par, and she had 349 never defaulted upon any of her obligations.

There was no difference in the money market between the price of the bonds loaned to railroads and those issued by the State to raise the capital of the Bank of Tennessee or to build her State house. Nor was there any difference in price between the bonds loaned to the most valuable railroads and those loaned to the most worthless. Respondents kept no record of the numbers, dates or series of the bonds issued to 350 them, and have no knowledge, information, remembrance or belief in regard thereto. The proceeds of these bonds were applied as directed by the laws under which they were loaned to railroads.

The Comptrollers' reports show that the Sinking Fund Commissioners credited each railroad company with the annual amounts paid in, but in their investment thereof selected any bonds of the State that were offered for sale. Thus, 351 from the Comptroller's report of 1859 (page 59),
it seems that the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company paid to the Treasurer $6,400, which was invested in one bond endorsed by the State for the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Company, four State 5¼ per cent. bonds, and three State five per cent. bonds. Not one of the bonds purchased with the money paid in by that company had ever been issued to it. The idea of the State at that time was to pay the 352 interest on all the bonds that were paid into the railroad sinking fund, and that the accumulation would be so rapid as to certainly raise a fund that would pay the bonds by their maturity.

In the Comptroller's report of 1859, p. 60, he states that $82,840.95 paid in by the railroads therein named, invested with accrued interest, had purchased bonds amounting to $109,750, which paid an annual interest of $6,417.50, or 7¾ per cent. on the investment.

The State had loaned her own bonds to some of her Internal Improvement Companies; she had endorsed the bonds of some of the other companies, and has issued her own bonds to pay for her State house, and for other purposes. The result was that she had several different series of bonds issued under the different laws and maturing at different times. Series A were five per cent. bonds issued under Act of 1838, maturing in thirty years. They were issued principally to pay for stock subscribed by the State in various turnpikes and railroads, and aggregated $1,893,000. Series B were known as "White bonds, six per cent., issued under the Act of February 11th, 1852." Numbers 1 to 7,908 of this series mature in 1892, while numbers 7,909 to 11,806 do not mature until 1898. This series aggregated $11,806,000. Series C were also known as "White bonds, six per cent., issued under the Act of February 11th, 1852," and due in 1898. This series aggregated $1,878,000. Series B & C represented the State bonds loaned to the various railroads under the said Act of February 11th, 1852, before the war. Under the Act of March 20th, 1860, to illustrate, the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company paid in fifteen of their own endorsed bonds and two regular State bonds; the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company paid in sixteen State bonds and $2,960 in cash. The Memphis & Ohio Railroad Company paid in six State bonds; and so have the McMinnville and Manchester Railroad, and the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad.

355
356

Down to the late war, and though the various Acts of the Legislature and the reports of the Comptroller and of the Sinking Fund Commissioners were all public, no bondholder was ever heard to protest against the authority assumed by the State or against the cancellation

357 and destruction of the securities which the companies had paid into the Sinking Fund. No bondholders ever presented a State coupon to any railroad company for payment. No Tennessee Railroad Company had any banker or other correspondent in New York to pay the coupons on the State bonds loaned to it. No company ever retained in its possession the coupons that had been paid on the bonds loaned to it. Few, if any, of the companies kept any memorandum of the numbers of the bonds issued to 358 them.

As long as the Bank of Tennessee was in operation it was regarded as the Fiscal Agent of the State. All of its directors were appointed by the State, they were required to report to the State, and were constantly kept under its control. The State Treasurer kept none of the State Funds in his own hands, but deposited all the revenues of the State in the Bank of Tennessee, and could only check for the same on checks countersigned by the Comptroller.
359 The Bank of Tennessee paid the interest on all the State bonds, without reference to the purpose for which they were issued. This is shown by the report of the Comptroller to the Session of 1851–2, when the general Internal Improvement Law was passed. (See his report, page 65). The Merchants' Bank of New York and the Bank of North America of Philadelphia, were the correspondents through whom the Bank of Tennessee paid the interest on the State debt. These correspondents would 360 return the coupons to the Bank of Tennessee, by whom they were returned to the State. There was one account on the books of the Bank of Tennessee headed "Treasurer of Tennessee," which was credited by the revenues of the State deposited by the Treasurer, and by the dividends derived from the State's stock in 361 the bank, and the various Internal Improvement Companies mentioned above, and was debited by the interest on the entire State debt paid by the Bank of Tennessee and by such other sums as were drawn by the Treasurer under appropriations made by law. There was also an account on the books of the Bank of Tennessee, headed "Interest paid on State Bonds," the object of which was to show the exact amount paid on that account, but it shows nothing as to 362 whom, or for what purpose, the bonds were issued upon which such interest was paid. There was also an account headed "Railroad Companies, for interest," showing the amounts and dates of all payments into the bank by the different companies, but it does not show that the payments were to be appropriated to the interest upon any particular bonds of the State; nor did the bank, in fact, know what bonds had been issued to any named railroad. The funds paid in 363

by all the railroads were thrown together as a whole and transferred either to the Treasurer's general account or the account headed "Interest on State Bonds," which was but a sub-account of the Treasurer's and under his control. The moneys paid in by the railroads were sent with other funds to New York and Philadelphia, where they were paid out by the correspondents aforesaid upon coupons of the State, making no distinction between the different bonds of the State. 364
These correspondents kept no accounts with the railroad companies and had no idea as to whom the bonds were issued, the coupons of which they were paying.

In the treasurer's books and account was headed "Bank of Tennessee," the reverse of the account kept under his name at the bank. There is an account headed "Interest on Capitol

365 Bonds," in which is shown the interest paid on the bonds issued to pay for the State house.
There is also an account headed "Interest on Internal Improvement Bonds." It shows the gross amount paid out on such bonds, but it does not show by whom the money was furnished, nor does it show the number or character of the bonds on which the interest was paid. There are no separate accounts with the different railroads to be found on the Treasurer's books. With the ex-366 ception of the distinction between Capitol and Internal Improvement bonds, the Treasurer made no difference between the various bonds of the State, but treated as all equally the obligations of the State.

The interest on the bonds loaned to respondents was not paid after July 1, 1861. And though the United States Circuit Court was open in Nashville, after its capture by the United States Army in February, 1872, no bondholder ever claimed 367 the right to a receiver for non-payment of interest.

The copies of the resolution and report attached as Exhibits A and B to the answer are admitted to be correct copies. They were published in the acts and journals of that session.
And no one ever controverted the right of the State to make the settlement until this bill was filed.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company
368 on April 8th, 1868, executed a mortgage or trust deed, duly registered, upon its main stem and branches, to James Punnett and Julius B. Alexander, citizens of the State of New York, to secure an issue of eight millions of dollars bonds, of which $7,070,000, are now outstanding in the hands of holders for value. The said Punnett has since died, and John R. Smith of Louisville, Kentucky, has been substituted as trustee. On November 1st, 1873, said company executed 369

another mortgage or trust deed, duly registered, conveying the same property and also the Memphis & Ohio and the Memphis, Clarksville & Louisville Railroads to Henry F. Vail, a citizen of the State of New York, and John B. Smith, of Louisville, of Kentucky, to secure an issue o four million dollars of bonds, of which two million are now outstanding in the hands of holders for value. In March, 1865, the bonds of the State of Tennessee were of the market value 370 of fifty cents, but in December, 1865, they were at 92 cents in the dollar, as stated by the Financial Review of New York. The Nashville & Decatur Railroad Company created by the consolidation of the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad Company and the Central Southern Railroad Company in March, 1871, paid to the State of Tennessee $2,368,176, in bonds of the State. Said company had raised the money by the bonds paid in by them, by mortgaging the road for 371 $2,100,000, in 1870, and selling the company's bonds in the New York market. None of the State bondholders attempted by any legal proceeding to assert any rights in opposition to the course which that company was pursuing. And respondents leased said Nashville & Decatur Railroad in May, 1871, agreeing to pay $2,450,000 of the debts of said company, and an annual six per cent. dividend upon its capital stock of $1,512,184.11, and in addition to all this, re- 372 spondents have spent $ over and above their receipts in the repair and operation of said road.

On May 25th, 1871, the Memphis & Ohio Railroad Company paid the State of Tennessee
$2,468,376.50 in bonds and coupons of the State.
On the 1st of June, 1871, siad Memphis & Ohio Railroad Company mortgaged its road for

373 $3,500,000 of bonds which had passed into the hands of holders. No State bondholder having made any complaint, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company consolidated with said Memphis & Ohio Railroad Company, endorsed said $3,500,000 of bonds, and have since expended $ over and above their receipts in the repair and operation of said road.

In January, 1871, the State of Tennessee filed its bills in the Chancery Court against the Memphis, Clarksville & Louisville Railroad Company, 374 to whom said bonds had been loaned. The State bondholders have never sought to review or to reverse said decree. On August 1st, 1872, respondents placed a mortgage on said road for $2,475,000 of bonds which respondents endorsed, and which have passed into the hands of holders for value. Respondents have also expended $ over and above their receipts in the repair and construction of said road. 375 With the exception of some interest paid in 1867-8, and some paid in 1874-5, the State of Tennessee has paid no interest since the commencement of the late war, and the remainder of the interest has all been funded into new bonds of the State, except that which matured since January 1st, 1876, and it has neither been funded nor paid.

In addition to the above stipulation, which covers the Louisville & Nashville case, complainants 376 offer to stipulate for the correctness of the following facts stated in the answers to the bills filed on account of bonds issued to the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad Company and the Central Southern Railroad Company.

The Nashville & Decatur Railroad Company and the original companies forming the consolidation owed the State $2,368,176. They met their interest in January, 1869, but fell behind $15,955.26 on their interest for July, 1869.

This authorized the State to appoint a receiver; and experience had taught that in every instance these political receivers had run the roads down, without ever reducing the indebtedness. 377

In October, 1869, the debt of Tennessee was $37,590,027.08, of which about $30,000,000 were for bonds loaned to railroad companies, with funded interest thereon. The State's bonds ranged in New York in 1869, from 70 cents in January to 40½ cents on the dollar in December, there being no distinction between bonds loaned to railroads 378 and any other bonds. There is a proviso in the Act of January 20th, 1870 (Acts of 1869-70, page 61), as printed, that it shall not be so construed as to allow the payment and satisfaction of debts created by bonds issued by the State, and upon which the State is secondarily liable. And it has been insisted that the State was only secondarily liable upon her bonds issued to the railroad companies.

By reference to the House Journal (1869-70, 379 page 326), it will be seen that reference is made in this connection to the word "endorsed."

On July 1, 1870, the Nashville & Decatur Railroad Company executed a mortgage or trust deed upon their railroad property, rights and franchises, conveying the same to Philo C. Calhoun, Richard T. Wilson and Adrian Iselin, all citizens of the State of New York, to secure first mortgage bonds to the amount of $2,100,000, issued and negotiated to raise the money to buy 380 the State bonds to pay the debt due from said company. Said mortgage was duly executed and registered. The bonds are now outstanding in the hands of holders for value.

The State Comptroller in his report in 1869, page 50, suggested to the Legislature the propriety of selling a sufficient number of the railroads for bonds of the State, to lessen the State's 381 liabilities eight or ten millions of dollars, he believing with such reduction the State's liabilities could be regularly and certainly met. His report in 1867 (page 67) shows that the railroads then owed $800,000 for interest due July 1st, 1867, which the State had paid for them on the bonds loaned them. The comptroller in his report for 1867 states that the records of his office show that from the railroads then in the hands of receivers scarcely a dollar had been received 382 during the past fiscal year (page 13). If the State had forced a sale of all the delinquent railroads so large an amount of such property thrown upon the market, in the depressed financial condition of the country, would have sacrificed alike the interest of the companies and the State, but by allowing the companies to pay their debts in any of the bonds of the State, and giving them a reasonable time in which to get the bonds, they were enabled to procure them at 383 reasonable rates, and by reducing the aggregate debt of the State they increased the ability of the State to pay, and by the reduction of her debt, through the sale of the railroads, the bonds of the State which were quoted as low as 40½ in December, 1869, were quoted as high as 91¼ cents on the dollar in March, 1874, at the New York Stock Exchange.

An elaborate opinion was written by Colonel Pryor which was concurred in by the Hon. E. H.
384 East of Nashville, who was then and is now one of the most eminent lawyers of Tennessee. The object of asking the opinion was not to satisfy said company, but to place the question fairly before the money markets of the world, where said company was trying to raise the means to buy the bonds to pay off their debt to the State.
Respondents knew nothing of any opinion of New York counsel to the same effect that was published at or about that time. It is true that 385

the transaction in all its entirety was fully understood by said company, and they supposed it was also understood by the purchasers of the new bonds, as the legislation under which they were issued was referred to in the mortgage, and the opinion of Colonel Pryor was published to give information on the subject. Said company acted upon the advice of counsel.

The foregoing offer is for the purpose of ob- 386
taining the hearing as stated in the previous offer, and is subject to revocation if the said hearing is not obtained.

The foregoing stipulation is believed by complainant to cover all the matters of fact which are set up in the answers. The admissions of the answers, except the references to the Statutes of Tennessee stand without reference to this stipulation. 387

Complainant, as a part of this stipulation, and in corroboration of the resting of the case already filed and notified, waives all such portions of the bills in these causes as have not been proved, and the replications heretofore filed are to be taken subject to this offer.

Complainant further notifies defendants that upon the records already existing in these causes and upon this deposition, including this offer, 388
he will be ready to proceed with the trial of these causes on the 26th of July current. Complainant also renews the offer for the proof and reading of the Statutes and public documents of Tennessee as specified in the previous offer.

Complainant is also willing that defendants may expunge the cross-examination of complain-389 ant if they deem themselves in any way obliged to rebut the same.

To all of which defendants' counsel replies as he has heretofore replied.

WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

Calvin Amory Stevens et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co., 2

vs.

The Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co. et al.

Testimony and proofs for final hearing on the part of Complainants in the above-entitled suit taken under 3 and pursuant to the 67th Rule in Equity, as amended, before William H. DeLancey, Special Examiner, duly appointed herein.

New York, April 12, 1880.

Present.—Mr. E. L. Andrews, 4
For Compl'ts.
Mr. C. H. Tweed,
For Respd'ts.

5 Calvin Amory Stevens, a witness produced on the part of the complainants, being first duly cautioned and sworn in the above-entitled suit to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, deposes and says:

(Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.)

Direct Examination by Mr. Andrews:

6 1 Q. Have you read that portion of James D. Porter's deposition taken at Paris, Tenn., March 9, 1880, in which he says:

"After the legislature had spent some days in wrangling, they were about to adjourn without doing anything as to the State debt, and I felt that I had done my duty and would let them go, but just at this time I received the telegram, Exhibit
No. 2 to Calvin Amory Stevens' deposition, and upon the receipt of this telegram, I at once convened 7 the legislature and sent them a second message; that telegram alone induced me to convene the legislature and but for it I would not have convened them in the second extra session?"

A. I have.

2 Q. Will you please state the origin of that telegram?

A. In 1877 I first made the acquaintance of C. H.
Bosher, a partner of R. T. Wilson; our acquaintance was but very slight, but knowing that he had 8 been an old acquaintance of my father, I relied upon him; on December 10, 1877, this note from C.
H. Bosher which I made a part of my deposition, and offer in evidence (marked complainant's Exhibit
No. 1, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.) was left at my office but not received by me on that day; on the evening of the same day I was surprised to receive at my house this telegram from C. H. Bosher, which I also make a part of my deposition and offer in evidence, 9 (marked complainant's Exhibit No. 2, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.) on the following day Dec. 11, 1877, in response to his request I called on C. H. Bosher at the office of R. T. Wilson & Co.; C. H. Bosher immediately introduced me to R. T. Wilson, my first acquaintance with him; I was not posted about Tennessee affairs and Mr. Wilson undertook to inform me; he gave me as the latest advices from Nashville that it was impossible for the 60 and 6% bill to pass the legislature then in session there; 10

R. T. Wilson recommended that the bondholders offer to accept 50c. and 6% and have it definitely settled rather than that the Legislature should adjourn without any settlement. He gave me to understand that he like myself was a Tennessee bondholder, and that he was working in the interest of such. I did not then know that Messrs. Wilson & Bosher were interested in inducing the bondholders to give up lien bonds for those which would not carry liens. Indeed I had not then even read the 11
Tennessee statutes under which the bonds were issued and knew nothing of the so-called substitutions.

R. T. Wilson asked of me permission to write and send a telegram in my name. I allowed him to do so. R. T. Wilson himself wrote said telegram. After hastily reading what he had written, I was on the point of signing my own individual name when R. T. Wilson or C. H. Bosher suggested that the name of the estate would carry more weight, 12 and it was the same lot of bonds that my father had owned when living, I would be fully justified in signing the estate of Calvin Stevens, C. Amory Stevens, Trustee; after procuring my signature to said telegram, of which he was the author, he took charge of it, and as Bosher stated, on that day dispatched it to Tennessee.

13 3 Q. Were you then acquainted with J. B. Manning, A. Iselin & Co., and Inman Swann & Co., over whose names telegrams were sent from New York about the same time and which Governor Porter published in connection with R. T. Wilson's other telegrams as the basis of his call for the extra session?

A. I was not then acquainted with them, but I am now.

4 Q. Do you understand that those telegrams also 14 were prompted and sent by the railroad interest?

(Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I certainly do; J. B. Manning is, was not a permanent investor in Tennessee bonds, but a broker who buys to-day and sells to-morrow; his telegram was solicited by the railroad interest and sent to oblige it; while Messrs. A. Iselin & Co., and Inman Swann & Co., like R. T. Wilson & Co., were 15 direct representatives of the railroad interest, being large owners of Tennessee railroad stock and so-called sustitution bonds.

5 Q. In a second deposition of James D. Porter, taken at Paris, Tenn., March 25, 1880, he says that you signed the petition of Feb. 15, 1877, addressed to the Governor of Tennessee; were you one of the petitioners who joined in that petition?

A. I was not.

6 Q. Was your father a holder of Tennessee bonds 16 at that time, and one of the petitioners who joined in that petition to Governor Porter?

A. He was; the petition was presented for his signature, and he being too ill at the time to sign personally, I signed it for him, as appears on its face, namely:

CALVIN STEVENS,
By C. AMORY STEVENS,
Atty.

7 Q. Will you produce a copy of the petition of 17
the Tennessee Bondholders filed in the Supreme Court of the U. S.?

A. There is a copy which I offer in evidence. Copy petition marked Complainant's Exhibit No. 3, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.

8 Q. Is this a copy of a bill brought by you in the U. S. Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Tennessee?

A. It is, and I offer it in evidence; marked Complainant's Exhibit No. 4, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr. 18

> Respondent's counsel objects to the foregoing questions 7 and 8 as immaterial, incompetent and irrelevant and to the introduction of said exhibits in evidence.

Cross-examination by Mr. TWEED.

9 x Q. As I understand your testimony to-day, on the 11th of December, 1877, when you signed the telegram to Gov. Porter that has been referred to, you 19 did not know of the claims that Tennessee bondholders had a lien upon the roads to which they were issued which you have asserted in these suits?

A. I did not; my introduction to such business affairs did not begin until after my father's death, March 15, '77, when I took charge of the estate.

10 x Q. When and from what source did you first learn of this claim?

A. After the Wilson telegram, Dec. 11, '77, when 20
I read the Tennessee Statutes, Davies' and Davis opinion and Humes & Porton's brief.

11 x Q. Did you do that before hearing read Mr. Wilson's letter to Mr. Terry, dated June 11, 1878?

A. It must have been about that time.

12 x Q. That was in or about June, 1878?

21 A. Yes.

13 x Q. On the 11th December, '77, were you the owner of any Tennessee bonds except those which you had received from your father's estate?

A. I was; of less than $20,000.

14 x Q. Whene had you procured those that you had at that time?

A. I should say I bought the first several years before. I could not fix the date without referring to my books.

22 15 x Q. Will you please refer to your books so that you can state the number that you bought, the time that you purchased them, and the amount that you paid for them, in respect of each of the Tennessee bonds which you owned on the 11th December, 1877, and which you did not receive from your father?

A. I have already given my books full and careful investigation in answer to that and similar questions asked me at previous examinations aiming to 23 throw all the light that I could on the question; I can do nothing better than I have done.

16 x Q. What books did you keep in and prior to 1877?

A. I kept no regular set of books.

17 x Q. What books did you keep containing a record of your purchases of bonds?

A. I would call it a private memorandum book, giving a brief statement of what real estate and bonds that I owned.

24 18 x Q. Where is that book now?

A. It is likely at 51 West Fifty-second street, which is my residence in New York.

19 x Q. If on the 11th December, 1877, you had any of the bonds which have been put in evidence by you in the cases in and for which you are now being examined, viz: the cases against the E. T., Va. & Ga. R. R. Co., the Cin., Cum. Gap & Charles-

the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co ; would they not appear in that book?

A. They might, but not with sufficient accuracy to identify them ; I think the chances are nine out of ten they would.

20 x Q. On the 11th December, 1877, outside of the bonds which you received from your father, did you have as many as $10,000 of Tennessee State bonds?

A. I should say somewheres thereabout, certainly 26 inside of $20,000, somewhere near $10,000.

21 x Q. Will you swear that you had as many as $5,000 outside the bonds you received from your father?

A. I do.

22 x Q. Do you know whether any of the bonds outside those you received from your father, were loaned by the State of Tennessee to any of the railroads proceeded against in any of your pending suits, and if so, which bonds and to which railroad? 27

A. My impression is that there were a few, but none of them have been proven in any of the cases which the present counsel for defendants represents.

23 x Q. Did you have the bonds of the State of Tennessee, which you received from your father, on the 11th December, 1877?

A. I could not answer whether I then had all of them or only a part.

24 x Q. Did you sell a portion at or about that 28 time?

A. I do not recollect whether I sold any during the year 1877, but my impression is I did during the year 1878.

25 x Q. When and how did you receive the bonds of the State of Tennessee, which you received from your father?

29 A. I should say within six months before his death, through a written instrument executed by him.

26 x Q. Where is that written instrument ?

A. In this city.

27 x Q. Under your control ?

A. It is.

28 x Q. Does it specify in or about the instrument the numbers of the bonds which were transferred to you by your father ?

30 A. It does not—merely the aggregate amount.

29 x Q. Is there any record, and if so, where, of the numbers of the bonds which were transferred by your father to you ?

A. H. T. Morgan & Co. had such record, and the bonds themselves were the best evidence of their numbers ; H. T. Morgan & Co.'s record speaks for only such bonds as my father bought through their house, which I think include most of his purchases.

31 30 x Q. After you received the bonds did you make or have a list of their numbers ?

A. I did.

31 x Q. Have you any list of them now ?

A. I may have kept it though I am not certain ; after it had enabled me to prove what bonds issued to railroads were among my present holdings my impression is that it went with other uncared for papers.

32 x Q. Do I understand you that you compared 32 this list with the lists of the numbers of bonds loaned by the State to different railroads ?

A. You do.

33 x Q. Were any of those bonds bonds which you have proved in evidence in any of the cases which I have mentioned above as the cases in and for which this deposition is being taken ?

A. They were not.

34 x Q. How many of them were bonds which were loaned to railroads? 33

A. I could not answer how many, but very largely in the minority.

35 x Q. Were any of them bonds loaned to railroads?

A. They were.

36 x Q. As many as ten?

A. There might have been ten and there might not; most of them were "green" bonds.

37 x Q. What was the aggregate amount of the Tennessee bonds received by you from your father? 34

A. I think it was $110,000.

38 x Q. When did you commence the earliest of the suits brought by you upon the ground that Tennessee bondholders were entitled to a lien upon the railroads to which the bonds were loaned?

A. I cannot give the exact date from memory; they were all in January, 1879, as I learn from my counsel.

39 x Q. How long before the beginning of that suit did you instruct counsel to commence suits against the railroad companies upon that ground? 35

A. I could not answer that question definitely either; I should say within six months before the suits were commenced.

40 x Q. Between about June, 1878, when you learned of this claim to a lien and January, 1879, you were engaged in procuring Tennessee State bonds of the numbers which were issued to solvent railroads, were you not? 36

A. I bought such bonds issued to solvent and insolvent railroads.

41 x Q. Did you select out bonds issued to railroads, or did you undertake to make a distinction between bonds issued to solvent and bonds issued to insolvent railroads.

A. I bought both ways, solvent and insolvent together, and solvent and insolvent separately.

37 42 x Q. Did you undertake to retain those issued to solvent railroads and dispose of the others?

A. I bought both, and have retained both; I aimed principally to avoid bonds issued to turnpikes and bonds issued to railroads which did not carry liens; I also avoided graveyard bonds and bonds issued for State purposes.

43 x Q. The principle of selection was substantially then to retain bonds issued to railroads?

A. That was it, preferring bonds issued to main 38 trunk lines rather than feeders.

44 x Q. Were you present at, or did you know of the argument in the Supreme Court of the U. S. upon this or a similar question in or about June, 1878?

A. I was not present, but I knew of it and was very much surprised when I learned that our opponents had settled with the complainant in that suit thus preventing a decision in our case, the more so, because the defendants in that suit representing the 39 railroad interest had specially invited the Tennessee bondholders to enter that case, and have it adjudicated upon and definitely settled at that time.

(Respondent's counsel objects to all of the above answer after the words "I knew of it" as irresponsive.)

45 x Q. Did you have any personal knowledge of the invitation you have spoken of in the last an-40 swer?

A. I was present when the invitation was extended by R. T. Wilson to the Tennessee bondholders, and certainly considered myself one of those invited.

46 x Q. By this invitation do you refer to the letter of R. T. Wilson to Terry dated June 11, 1878?

A. I refer to that letter which was publicly read at a meeting held in R. T. Wilson's office at which 41 numerous Tennessee bondholders were present.

47 x Q. You know of course in June, 1878, that the railroad companies resisted this claim to a lien?

A. I did.

48 x Q. While you were purchasing your bonds from June, '78 to January '79, you knew that they would resist the claims that you intended to make upon them?

A. I naturally supposed that they would resist them until they were forced to pay them. 42

49 x Q. Forced how?

A. By the law of the land.

50 x Q. Did you before commencing these suits ever present any coupons appertaining to any of these bonds to any railroad company and demand payment thereof?

A. I did not.

51 x Q. Please give me the maximum and minimum of the prices which you paid for bonds between June, '78 and January, '79? 43

A. I paid the Stock Exchange prices of those dates when they were bought promiscuously, but most of my bonds were bought off the Stock Exchange, buying only railroad lien bonds and paying several per cent. above the Stock Exchange prices for that privilege.

(Witness is requested to produce at the adjourned meeting to-morrow the memorandum book which has been referred to on this 44 examination, and a list of his father's bonds, if it is still in existence.)

Adjourned to 13th, at 4 P. M.

April 13th, adjourned to 14th, 2 P. M.

45 New York, April 14, 1880.

Present—Counsel as before.

Cross-examination resumed:

52 x Q. Did you pay above the Stock Exchange prices for the the privilege of selecting bonds at any time prior to about June, 1878, when you learned of this claim to a lien ?

A. I cannot say for a certainty, but I think not.

53 x Q. What percentage above the Stock Ex-46 change prices did you pay between June, 1878, and the commencement of these suits, January, 1879, for the privilege of selecting bonds ?

A. For the privilege of exchanging non-lien for lien bonds, I think that three per cent is the highest difference that I paid and from that as low as ⅛ per cent. But for selected R. R. lien bonds which I bought directly off the Stock Exchange, I think that I paid as high as 5 per cent. above the current Stock Exchange quotation for "old" bonds, and 47 as high as 10 or 12 per cent above the Stock Exchange quotations for "new" bonds.

54 x Q. Do you mean to be understood as saying that you bought "new bonds" and paid for them 10 to 12 per cent. above the market price of such bonds?

A. I certainly do not mean any such thing, but I do mean that I paid for "old" R. R. lien bonds fully as much as 10 or 12 per cent. above the Stock Exchange quotation for "new" bonds.

48 55 x Q. At that time what was the difference in the market price at the Stock Exchange between
"old" bonds generally and without regard to lien and "new" bonds generally and without regard to lien ?

A. I do not recollect accurately but according to the Stock Exchange quotation between January and February, 1879, which defendants have put in evidence, the extreme difference between the Stock Exchange sales of Tennessee "news" and "olds" was 49 17 per cent.

56 x Q. That difference between Tennessee "olds" and Tennessee "news" is the difference between the lowest price at which Tennessee "news" were sold during the month of February, 1879, and the highest price at which Tennessee "olds" were sold during that month, is it not?

A. It is; the difference for the month of January was not quite so great. 50

57 x Q. You do not wish to be understood as testifying that there was ever a time when the difference between these quotations of "old" and "new" bonds was as great as 17 per cent. on any particular day, do you?

A. I cannot answer that question, the Stock Exchange quotations will show.

58 x Q. When you made purchases of bonds on the Stock Exchange you paid the current price for them and received what bonds were delivered under 51
the purchase, did you not?

A. Such was the case whenever I bought bonds that way.

59 x Q. When you bought bonds off the Exchange, did you ever pay to the person from whom you bought them, and if so to whom more than five per cent. in excess of the then market price of that kind of bonds at the Exchange?

A. I should say not more than five per cent. above the Stock Exchange quotation for "old" bonds, 52 but fully 15 per cent. above the Stock Exchange quotations for "new" bonds.

60 x Q. Have you ever bought off the Stock Exchange "new" bonds and paid for them more than 5 per cent. above the market price at the Exchange for "new" bonds?

A. I never bought a "new" bond off the Stock

53 Exchange to the best of my recollection, and very few indeed at the Stock Exchange, and those long before the commencement of these suits if I ever bought any at all.

61 x Q. To whom and when did you ever pay as high as 5 per cent. for selecting bonds ?

A. I have several times given the names of all the brokers through whom I ever bought any Tennessee bonds from whom counsel can obtain all the information he seeks if disposed to make sufficient 54 effort.

62 x Q. Can you give me the name of any broker or other person to whom you ever paid as much as 5 per cent. for the privilege of selecting bonds ?

A. I did not testify that I ever paid as high as 5 per cent. for the privilege of exchanging bonds; as I recollect my testimony it was 3 per cent. as the highest that I thought I ever paid for exchanging bonds.

63 x Q. How low a premium did you pay for the 55 privilege of exchanging bonds ?

A. One-eighth of one per cent. was the lowest.

64 x Q. Did you notify the persons from whom you received the bond that you were giving them an unsecured bond and receiving from them a secured bond as you thought ?

A. I think, in fact I know that the brokers must have been aware of that fact for they offered them to me and that was inducement held out by them for me to pay the difference in exchange.

56 65 x Q. Did you yourself notify any of the persons with whom you exchanged such bonds of that claim ?

A. I bought the bonds through brokers, not meeting with the original owners.

66 x Q. Did you notify the original owners or were they to your knowledge notified of that claim ?

A. I certainly did not, for I certainly could not notify parties whom I never saw or knew even if it were the least incumbent on me to do so. 57

67 x Q. As I understand you what you did was to pay the brokers who held the bonds from $\frac{1}{8}$ per per cent to 3 per cent, to exchange unsecured bonds for those which you considered secured; is that correct?

A. I think it would be more correctly expressed by stating that brokers sought me and offered to sell and exchange such bonds on their own terms, either for account of their customers or themselves. 58

68 x Q. Did you never go yourself to a broker's office and propose such a transaction?

A. I certainly have frequently informed brokers that I was ready to buy or exchange such bonds, and as soon as they became aware of that fact they have shown themselves ready to notify me when they had such bonds for exchange or sale.

69 x Q. Can you name any broker from whom you have bought "Old" bonds, between the time when you first knew of this claim of lien in or about June, 1878, and the commencement of these suits, to whom you paid as much as five per cent. above the then market price of "Old" Tennessee bonds, for the privilege of receiving only what you considered secured bonds? 59

A. As I have before stated, my impression is that I paid as much difference as that, that was for one very large and select lot of bonds; the name of the broker through whom they were purchased has already been given by me, and is on the record. 60

70 x Q. What is the name of that broker?

A. Counsel for defendant can ascertain if he is disposed to see the different brokers through whom I bought bonds, and all of whose names I have given.

71 x Q. Do you decline to give the name of the broker from or through whom you bought this particular lot of bonds?

A. I do not decline for I have already given it.

61 72 x Q. Have you ever given it in your testimoy in this case except in conjunction with the names of all other brokers with whom you dealt?

A. I have not and do not propose to.

73 x Q. Cross question 70 repeated?

A. I have already put counsel for the defendants in the way to ascertain the information that he seeks I will not oblige him further.

62 (Counsel for defendants insists upon an answer to this question, and proceeds with further cross-examination of witness without waiving his right to insist upon this question being answered).

74 x Q. At what time did you purchase this particular lot of bonds?

A. I should say within three months before the commencement of these suits.

75 x Q. At what price did you purchase them?

63 A. I decline to answer such an impertinent question.

76 x Q. Cross-question 75 repeated.

A. I would state that I shall decline to answer any and all questions which I regard as impertinent and unnecessarily inquiring into my private affairs.

64 (Counsel for defendants insists upon an answer to this question, and proceeds with further cross-examination of witness without waiving his right to insist upon this question being answered).

77 x Q. Have you any book of account or memorandum book which contains any entry of the date and price of your purchase of this lot of bonds?

A. I certainly have.

78 x Q. Is it now in your control ? 65

A. It is.

79 x Q. Have you any such book with you here ?

A. I have not.

80 x Q. Where is it ?

A. At my house.

81 x Q. How is it designated ?

A. That is another question which I do not propose to answer.

82 x Q. Will you produce that book at the continuation of your examination to-morrow ? 66

A. I certainly will not produce that or any other book that unnecessarily makes public my private affairs.

83 x Q. Do you decline to produce that book before the Examiner after sealing up the other entries in the book except the entries relating to the purchase of this particular lot of bonds ?

A. I certainly do, although I would willingly do so were it not for the impertinence of the demand and the fact that R. T. Wilson, whom counsel for 67 defendants represents, positively refused to produce important books and papers that complainant demanded.

(Defendants' counsel objects to so much of the foregoing answer as follows: the words "I certainly do," as irresponsive.

69 New York, April 17th, 1880, 11 A. M.

Present—Counsel as before.

84 x Q. Can you now tell us what was the highest and what the lowest price which you paid for bonds between about June, '78, when you first knew of the claim of lien, and January, 1879, when the suits were commenced?

A. Not more definitely than I already have, without referring to my books, on which point I have 70 not posted myself since the last examination.

85 x Q. Have you no memoranda with you by reference to which you can give an accurate or approximate statement in regard to this matter?

A. I have not. From my recollection I should say that the highest price I paid for those with regular coupons on was 42½. But the highest price paid for any of the bonds given me by my father was 85⅝, while the highest price which I paid for bonds that I bought myself before my father's death 71 was 57.

86 x Q. What was the date at which you paid 57 for bonds purchased by you?

A. I will answer that question when counsel calls for the memorandum that he demanded at the examination on the 13th inst.

72 87 x Q. Have you here present the bill or account of the purchase of the bonds for which you paid 57?

A. I have, and in answer to the demand which counsel for defendants made for those and other memoranda at the adjourned examination of April 13th, 1880, would say that at the close of this deposition I will allow counsel for defendants to inspect them to his fullest satisfaction. Were it 73 merely to oblige him individually I would willingly produce them during this present examination, but I cannot favor the defendants with any further pretext, either for obstructing and postponing the trial of these causes, or to add to their already imposing mass of irrelevant testimony by which they are seeking to encumber the record, and thereby hoping to confuse and bewilder justice, and certainly it is not in the least incumbent that I should give aught of favor to such 74 notoriously bad characters as the Memphis and Charleston and other railroad companies of Tennessee which have so mercilessly wronged the Tennessee bondholders—corrupt and avaricious debtors that have enriched themselves at the loss of their unfortunate creditors—heartless corporations which in their selfish greed have done so much to ruin the credit and drag down to shame their very mother State to whom they owe their being. That it may not be said that I base my assertions merely on cur- 75 rent rumor, I would specially call the attention of the Court to the public records of Tennessee, whose pages are black with proof of railroad corruption and sin. I take from those records but two specimens. I offer in evidence and make a part of this my deposition, copies of the testimony given by M. C. Galloway at Nashville, Tennessee, February 7, 1879, and also that of Rev. N. W. Motheral, given at Cleveland, Tennessee, February 10, 1879, both taken before the State Committee, appointed to in- 76

vestigate the State debt.

(Counsel for defendants objects to all the previous statement after the words "I have" as irresponsive, irrelevant and idle perversion of the requirement that the examiner shall reduce to writing all the statements of the 77 witness, and objects to the documents referred to by the witness as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and as obviously not proper evidence in the cause, nor proper to be annexed to witness's deposition.)

78 (Copy Motheral's testimony offered in evidence marked Compl't's Exhibit. No. W. H. D. L., Sp'l Ex'r.)

88 x Q. Will you now produce the bill or account of the purchase of the bonds for which you paid 57?

A. I certainly will not for the reasons already given.

89 x Q. What was the date of the purchase by your father of Tennessee bonds at $85\frac{5}{8}$?

A. I decline to do that for the reason already 79 given.

90 x Q. What is your best recollection in regard to the lowest price at which you purchased bonds between June, 1878, and January, 1879.

A. I should say not lower than thirty.

91 x Q. You have spoken of bonds being bought by you between June, 1878, and January, 1879, with regular coupons on; state what coupons that included.

A. I mean all such coupons that up to that date 80 were due and unpaid. During the interval between June, 1878, and January, 1879, there were the six unpaid coupons previously falling due, besides those thereafter to accrue.

92 x Q. The prices which you have mentioned were prices for the bonds with their coupons on, were they not?

A. Certainly.

93 x Q. Do I understand you that in or about June, 81
1878, after hearing read Mr. Wilson's letter of June 11th, 1878, you procured and read a copy of Humes and Poston's brief in opposition to the claim of the Tennessee bondholders to a lien upon the railroads to which bonds were loaned by the State ?

A. Such was the case.

94 x Q. That brief contained a statement of the position of Railroad Companys in opposition to the claim—that the bondholders were entitled to a lien, did it not ? 82

A. Such is my recollection of the brief; the brief itself is the best evidence of what it contained.

95 x Q. Was that the first knowledge that you had of the settlements which had been made by the Railroad Company's with the State, or had you not previously known generally about the facts in regard to such settlements or of some of them ?

A. That must have been about the time of my first knowledge of those facts, for I certainly did not know them at the date of the telegrams and letters 83 to Governor Porter, bearing my signature, all of which were written in December, 1877.

96 x Q. Between December, '77 and June, '78, had not these settlements been referred to in conversation with you either by Mr. Wilson or other persons concerned in Tennessee affairs ?

A. They certainly could not have been referred to in conversation with me prior to December 11th, '77, for I had never before during my life met with Mr. Wilson until that day; nor by any other per- 84 son, for had I been aware of such facts I would not have allowed such telegram and letter to have been sent—between December 11th, '77 and June, '78; I have no recollection as to the specific date when I was first informed of it, at least more specifically than I have stated—I mean between December 11th, '77 and June, '78.

85 97 x Q. Then I understand you that it was between Dec. 11, '77, and June, '78, according to your best recollection, that you learned of these settlements ?

A. Such is the case.

98 x Q. Were all the bonds which you have proved in the six cases which I have previously referred to bonds which were registered under the Act of 1873 ?

A. I so understand it.

86 99 x Q. Have you ever, prior or subsequent to the bringing of these suits, at any time requested or demanded of the Governor of Tennessee that he appoint a receiver to take charge of and operate the railroads involved in the cases above referred to, and out of the earnings of said railroads pay the coupons due on said bonds sued on herein ?

A. I have not.

100 x Q. Have you ever, since your ownership of said bonds herein sued on made any legal effort to 87 require the Comptroller or Treasurer of Tennessee to apply the revenues of said State, collected by said State, to the payment of the past-due coupons on said bonds ?

A. I have not.

101 x Q. Please examine original letters to the Governor of Tennessee, dated February 15, 1877, in which there is a proposition to the State of Tennessee to give up the State bonds held by those sending said letter and accepting in their stead new 88 bonds of the State of Tennessee to be thereafter issued bearing 3, 4, 5 and 6 per cent. interest, and whether the signature "Calvin Stevens, by C. Amory Stevens, Att'y," is or is not your signature, and whether said proposition was forwarded to the Governor of Tennessee with your consent ?

A. Representing the bonds belonging to my father, I did sign that letter, but nearly all the bonds there represented, and also represented by 89 me in subsequent telegrams and letters to the Governor of Tennessee, were plain State bonds unsecured by any railroad lien; I do not know if the letter went to the Governor, but presume it did.

102 x Q. By 50 and 6 in your telegram you meant that in exchange for the old bonds new bonds of the State should be given for 50 per cent. of the amount of old bonds and accrued interest, coupons of the new bonds to be made receivable for taxes, interest to be at 6 per cent. on the new bonds? 90

A. I understood that to be the meaning of the offer which R. T. Wilson made in a telegram sent over my name.

103 x Q. Did you not state to Mr. Wilson at or before the date of said dispatch, and on that day, that you were willing to take the 50 and 6, and that you would see others and ascertain whether they were not also willing to do so?

A. In my ignorance as to the true facts of the case I did give that assurance to Mr. Wilson and 91 fulfilled my promise.

104 x Q. The dispatch was read over to you before signing it, was it not?

A. It was either read over to me or else I read it over hastily myself, so hastily indeed that not until my recent examinations with Messrs. Fentress and Wright did I become aware of the evident misstatement that I was a signer of the former petition sent to Governor Porter through the committee of arbitration. I can find no evidence, and I certainly have 92 no recollection of having signed that petition.

105 x Q. After sending the telegram of December 11, 1877, and the letter of about the 15th December, '77, to Governor Porter, did you not go to Mr. Iselin's office and exhibit to the younger Mr. Iselin copies of the telegram and letter to show what you were doing in Tennessee matters?

93 A. In my ignorance, and while supposing that R. T. Wilson had fully posted me as to the true facts of the situation, I did have such an interview with Iselin and showed him what had been done.

New York, April 22, 1880.

Present—Counsel as before.

Re-direct Examination.

106 Q. Now that you have been assured by the counsel for defendants that they do not seek to further postpone the trial of these causes, and that you have examined more fully than ever books and memoranda in reference to your Tennessee bonds, will you please answer all unanswered pertinent questions? 94

A. I will do so with pleasure.

107 Q. How many Tennessee bonds did your father register in 1873?

A. Eighty-four.

95 108 Q. How many did he fund?

A. Forty-two. I annex a copy taken from my father's cash book, under date of Sept. 5, 1873, showing the transaction.

109 Q. Did he both buy and sell Tennessee bonds after 1873 and prior to his death?

A. He did.

96 110 Q. How many Tennessee bonds did he give you?

A. He gave me one hundred and ten—$110,000.

111 Q. How many of the $110,000 were "New Bonds?"

A. Sixty-five—$65,000.

112 Q. How many Old Bonds, 6%, color white, Letter B, did he give you?

A. Forty-four—$44,000, and one Old Bond, 5%, 97 color white, No Letter $1,000.

113 Q. Please give the numbers of the forty-four Old Bonds, color white, Letter B?

A. The numbers are: 7829, 968, 7173, 3566, 7021, 7020, 11,567, 6643, 11,472, 2340, 8766, 9710, 1842, 11,400, 2109, 7839, 8709, 1807, 9551, 8424, 8718, 649, 4479, 1162, 8824, 8012, 1037, 8716, 9459, 9066, 897, 10,058, 263, 10,793, 1068, 10,060, 5,674, 7432, 4494, 1234, 11,744, 992, 717, 8717.

114 Q. Did you own any bonds prior to your 98 father's death, and aside from those which he gave you?

A. I owned nine—$9,000, $5,000 of which I bought September 25, 1874, through John Buckley, Jr. at 57, Nos. 9867, 9889, 9868, 5421, 2714, color white, Letter B. January 7, 1875, I also bought through John Buckley, Jr., $1,000 at 55¾, No. 9461, color white, Letter B, and February 20, 1877, I bought through Hooper & DeWing, $3,000 at 43, Nos.
7422, 8307, 11,322, color white, Letter B. 99

115 Q. After your father's death, and before June, 1878, before you had read the Tennessee Statutes and had informed yourself as to the Tennessee Railroad Lien, and so called subscriptions, and before you had contemplated forcing the railroad companies to recognize their dishonored obligations, how many additional Old Tennessee Bonds, 6%, color white, Letter B, did you buy?

A. Between October 29, 1877, and March 30, 1878,
I bought through H. T. Morgan & Co., thirty-two— 100 $32,000.

116 Q. Then I understand that the aggregate amount of old Tennessee 6% bonds, color white, letter B, which you bought individually before your father's death, together with what you received from him by gift before his death, and what you bought additional after March 15, 1877, before you contem-

101 plated suing the railroads, amounted to ninety-five ($95,000).

A. Such is the case.

117 Q. How many of those ninety-five bonds were Tennessee Railroad lien bonds?

A. I should say nearly all; at least fully nine-tenths. I find that my father gave me more railroad lien bonds than I had supposed.

118 Q. In your previous depositions you gave 85⅝ and 90 as the highest prices paid for Tennessee 102 bonds by your father. Were your impressions fully accurate?

A. I find that they were not quite so. His books show that during March, 1873, he paid 86⅛ for three different lots, the highest prices recorded among his purchases.

119 Q. Through whom did you purchase the lot of railroad lien bonds at 42½ referred to in your last deposition, and at what date?

A. Newton Deuel, Esq., on Nov. 25, 1878.

103 120 Q. Have you read the circular of the late "Agent for the State of Tennessee," S. Watson, Esq., published in 1868, in which, after narrating
the condition and prospects of the various railroad companies of Tennessee in which the railroad lien bondholders were so vitally interested, he says:
"The important question for the bondholders now is, What security have I for the payment of the principal and interest of my bond? The State debt proper is only about $4,000,000. The railroads and 104 all their rolling stock are mortgaged to the State to secure the payment of bonds loaned. This mortgage, as bondholders must know, inures to their benefit. For the payment of $29,000,000 of bonds, which will be the entire amount of bonds issued to the roads, including those that may be issued under the recent act of the Legislature, the bondholders have as security roads which, when completed, will be nearly 2,000 miles in length, and which will have cost, and which will be worth, fully $70,000,000. In addition to that, they have the whole resources of the State solemnly pledged to them?" 105

(Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant and a plain perversion of the duty required of the Examiner to take and return whatever testimony and Exhibits are presented to him.)

A. I have read that important document, an original copy of which I herewith offer in evidence, and make a part of this my deposition. 106

(Respondent's counsel objects to the document being received in evidence or annexed to the deposition as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant, and not properly proven in the case.)

(Copy document offered in evidence; marked Complainants Exhibit No. 8, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.) 107

Re-cross-examination by Mr. Tweed:

121 x Q. What prices did you pay for the $32,000 in bonds purchased by you between October 29th, 1877 and March 30th, 1878, and what were the dates and amounts of the respective purchases?

A. As to the prices, speaking from memory, I should say that they were from 38 to 43; as to the dates: 108

$1,000	was bought	Oct.	29th,	1877,	at	43⅛
$1,000	" "	Nov.	3	"	at	43⅞
$10,000	" "	Dec.	12	"	at	43⅛
$3,000	" "	Jany.	30	1878,	at	39⅛
$10,000	" "	M'ch	22	"	at	39⅛
$2,000	" "	M'ch.	25	"	at	38⅞
$5,000	" "	M'ch.	30	"	at	39⅛

109 122 x Q. Of these bonds those purchased before January, '78, carried only four matured coupons, and those purchased after January, '78, carried at the time of purchase five matured coupons; whereas those you purchased between July, '78, and January, '79 carried six matured coupons.

A. Yes.

123 x Q. And the prices you paid between October, '77, and March, '78, when you did not know anything about the lien, ran from 38 to 43, whereas 110 the prices for those carrying one or two more coupons which you purchased between July, '78, and January, '79, when you knew of the claim of lien, ran from 30 to 42½, did they not?

A. That is about correct I think, though I spoke from memory when I said I bought as low as 30. It is also true that I paid as high as 52½ for a few bonds carrying extra coupons bought before January, 1879.

124 x Q. How many bonds were those you paid 111 52½, and how many extra coupons did they bear?

A. Two bonds. I do not recollect the exact number of coupons: On reference I find there were 15 extra coupons.

125 x Q. What was the peculiarity about the lot of bonds for which you paid 42½?

A. They were all railroad lien bonds in contradistinction to bonds issued solely for State purposes, and which constitute the State debt proper.

126 x Q. Did those bear any extra coupons?

112 A. They did not.

127 x Q. How many were there in that lot?

A. $116,000.

128 x Q. Prior to July, 1878, had you sold any of the Tennessee bonds which you had yourself purchased, or had received from your father?

A. I had sold the entire 65 new bonds given me by my father.

129 x Q. When did you sell those? 113

A. $21,000 were sold May 16th, May 22d, July 25th, 1877; $44,000 were sold August 20th, August 21st and August 27th, 1877.

130 x Q. Prior to July, 1878, had you sold any part of the $95,000 of old Tennessee 6% bonds, color white, letter B, which you have referred to in your direct examination to-day?

A. On December 26, 1877, I find a record of sale at $20,000 of those bonds.

131 x Q. Have you ever sold any others of those $95,000 of those bonds, except the $20,000 just referred to? 114

A. I know that I exchanged a few of them, but I cannot state positively if I sold any more of them, excepting No. 3,566, color white, letter B,—a graveyard bond which was too ghostly for me to keep.

132 x Q. Except the two bonds which you bought at 52½ and which carried fifteen extra coupons, and the particular lot of bonds which you bought at 42½; what was the highest price you paid for bonds between June, 1878, and January, 1879? 115

A. I could not say positively, but I should say between forty and forty-five.

133 x Q. Have you not already stated that 42½ was the highest price which you paid, and that for a particular lot of bonds, for any bonds except those that carried an extra lot of coupons?

A. I have, speaking from memory.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS.

134 x Q. Where did you first read the pamphlet, Exhibit No. 8?

A. As I recollect it, either that copy or the copy I first read was in this city, and came from James G. Kings Sons, bankers; I either borrowed it from that house and read it at home, or from Mr. Geddes, who had borrowed it of them.

117 135 x Q. When was that?

A. I should say, as nearly as I can recollect, on or about May 17, 1879.

136 x Q. Did you ever see any authorization from the State of Tennessee to S. Watson to act as its agent?

A. Only such authorization as the document itself shows by the signature "S. Watson, Agent for the State of Tennessee."

137 x Q. The signature then on the first page of 118 this paper, "S. Watson, Agent for the State of Tennessee" is then the only knowledge you have of his agency for the State?

A. Yes.

Appellees. 130

OCTOBER TERM, 1877.

No. 1037.

To the Honorable the Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States:

The petition of Eugene Kelly, Peter Geddes, R. S. Moran, John T. Terry and J. G. K. Duer, on their own behalf, and, as a committee, representing several millions of dollars in bonds of the State of Tennessee, more than   of which have been already ascertained to be of the Internal Improvement Bonds of said State, respectfully shows to the Honorable, the Supreme Court of the United States. 131

That on the 11th February, 1852, the Legislature of Tennessee passed an act designed to aid in the development of internal improvements in said State by means of Railroads. By that act the State proposed to constitute certain of its own bonds about to be issued to specified railroad companies named in the act, the paramount liens on the property of the respective railroad companies to which they should be issued, and by such security to facilitate their sale and induce their purchase by investors and the public. 132

133 This object was carried into effect by providing in the act, authorizing the issue of the bonds, and in the section or that act operating as a statutory lien, as follows:

"So soon as the bonds of the state shall have been issued for the first section of the road they shall constitute a lien upon said section." And a like lien for subsequent sections was provided for in said act for the payment by said company of said 134 bonds, with interest thereon, as the same becomes due. The said act was, by tha 18th section thereof, declared to be deemed and taken "to be a public act as to all purposes of notice."

Thereafter, when the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, and other railroad companies, had accepted the terms and conditions of this statute, the Internal Improvement Bonds were issued to the said railroad companies.

135 Your petitioners show—

That the proceeds of the said bonds, authorized by the said acts to be issued with the aforesaid lien to secure the same on the face of the law authorizing their issue, were required by said statutes to be applied strictly to the construction of the respective roads to which the bonds were respectively issued.

The bonds were sold by the Mobile and Ohio Rail-136 road Company and the other railroad corporations, to bona fide purchasers in the following:

137

Amounts.	Constituted Liens On.
1,298,000	Mobile and Ohio Railroad,
1,290,000	East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad.
388,000	Hiawassee Railroad.
1,461,000	East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad.
68,000	Lagrange and Memphis Railroad.
963,000	Memphis and Charleston Railroad.
533,000	Tennessee and Alabama Railroad.
423,000	Central Southern Railroad.
1,335,000	Memphis and Ohio Railroad.
126,000	Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad.
404,000	McMinnville and Manchester Railroad. 138
434,000	Louisville and Nashville Railroad.
566,000	Winchester and Alabama Railroad.
956,000	Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad.
191,000	Rogersville and Jefferson Railroad.
774,000	Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad.
709,000	Knoxville and Kentucky Railroad.
457,000	Charleston Railroad.
562,000	Mississippi Central Railroad.
1,653,000	Nashville and Northwestern Railroad.
157,000	Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad.
211,000	Knoxville and Charleston Railroad.
86,000	Tennessee and Pacific Railroad.
96,000	Southern Railroad.
48,000	Carolina Railroad.
28,000	Evansville, Hudson and Nashville Railroad.
76,000	Nashville and Decatur Railroad. 139
$15,044,000

Of the said bonds so issued in aid of the construction of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, these petitioners are the holders and representatives of bonds to the amount of $, and of bonds issued to the other roads above named, under the same statute, these petitioners are the owners and representatives of $ 140

Your petitioners show,

With the proceeds of the sales of the said Internal Improvement bonds, by the respective companies, their railroads in Tennessee were mainly completed by the purchase and laying of the rails thereon, and were equipped.

141 That for some years the interest on each issue of said bonds were provided by the respective railroad companies for whose benefit they were issued, according to the terms of the above Internal Improvement Act constituting said bonds liens on their respective roads to secure such payment.

142 That in the years 1869 and 1870, the General Assembly of Tennessee passed certain acts, under color of which efforts have been made to impair the aforesaid lien of the Internal Improvement bonds, and in fact utterly to destroy the same, by the attempted transfer of the lien by the State of Tennessee for its own benefit.

143 That when said scheme became known, the holders of the Internal Improvement bonds of Tennessee were greatly alarmed at this attempted invasion of their security, and sought the advice of counsel in respect of the same. There was furnished to them the opinion hereto attached, marked Exhibit "A." (Dunt's Opinion.) The subject of the unlawful attempt of the State of Tennessee was discussed frequently in the public prints, and on the various exchanges where the said securities were sold.

Your petitioners show,

144 That the Legislature of Tennessee undertook to empower the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Co. to issue a series of bonds to purport to be secured by the statutory lien belonging to your petitioners' bonds, and though your petitioner's bonds were still outstanding and unpaid, and even then in default as to interest.

When the said bonds were about to be issued under the name of Substitution Bonds, the bankers offering the same for sale in Geneva, London and other financial centres, we are informed and believe, 145 were warned of the invalidity and injustice of their pretended claims to hold the liens conferred by statute on the outstanding bonds issued to build the roads. The sellers of the substitution bonds sought to sustain their position by legal advice, and obtained the opinion hereto attached, marked Exhibit "B." This opinion was attached to the prospectus for the sale of said bonds, and the purchasers thus became fully aware of the infirmity in their claims, sufficiently disclosed even in said opinion in favor 146 of their validity.

Your petitioners likewise show,

That they have very recently learned of the existence and pendency of this suit, and that it was brought by some of these substitution bondholders, and that they claim therein to enforce your petitioners' lien on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad in their own favor, and of which, by virtue of the original statutes. the Internal Improvement bond- 147 holders were made the owners and beneficiaries.

Your petitioners have also learned that the said cause has been set for hearing before this honorable court on April 22d, 1878.

Neither your petitioners, nor their trustee, nor any of the Internal Improvement bondholders, have been made parties to the said litigation, nor have they received notice of the same, except only as they learned of the same quite lately from the 148 newspapers.

Your petitioners show,

That on or about the 16th day of January, 1878, there was issued the following:

149 CALL FOR A MEETING OF TENNESSEE BONDHOLDERS.

Notice.

The holders of the State of Tennessee bonds are earnestly requested to meet at the office of John B. Manning, No. 14 Wall street, on Wednesday, January 16th, at 12 o'clock.

That in pursuance of said notice a public meeting of the holders of Internal Improvement bonds above described, and of like character therewith, was held in the City of New York, and at said meeting your 151 petitioners were selected as a committee to represent and further the interests of said bondholders; and your petitioners accepted the said appointment, and since said time have been diligently engaged in preparations for the enforcement of the rights of said bondholders.

Your petitioners show.

That in pursuance of the duties devolved on them as the committee aforesaid, they have published 152 notices of their proceedings and they maintain a registry of said bondholders in the city of New York, where they have received authority to represent them from a large proportion of holders of Tennessee Internal Improvement bonds, aggregating

And your petitioners are advised by counsel, and respectfully submit to the Supreme Court, that the said substitution bonds, claiming to succeed to your 153 petitioners' lien, by virtue of an assignment by the State of Tennessee, are to be fully heard before this court in respect of their claim to own the said lien at the time above mentioned.

While the said claim of the substitution bonds has been contested by Rudolph Merian and others, holders of the sterling mortgage bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, your petitioners have not been afforded any opportunity to be directly represented before the Circuit Court, or the honorable 154
the Supreme Court.

Your petitioners represent that the holders of the Internal Improvement bonds are very numerous, and reside in various parts of Europe and the United States, and rely in great part on your petitioners for the protection of their rights.

And now your petitioners humbly seek for a hearing before this court, at least as amici curiæ, in a matter involving the determination of questions so 155 nearly affecting them, and in respect of which the formation of any opinions by the Supreme Court in the absence of the direct and efficient representation must seriously prejudice the future prosecution of their rights.

And your petitioners pray for leave to intervene herein, and that if need be the causes be remanded so that they may be made parties thereto:

And your petitioners pray for such other relief as 156
may be just in the premises.

SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT, EASTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

versus 163

BILL FOR RELIEF.

E. L. ANDREWS and
GEORGE HOADLY,
Solicitors, and of Counsel for Complainant. 164

165 UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,

SIXTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT—EASTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

(In Equity.)

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Sixth Judicial Cir-166 cuit and Eastern District of Tennesse:

Your orator, Calvin Amory Stevens, who is a citizen of the State of New York, brings this his bill of complaint against the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company, which is a citizen of the State of Tennessee, and is a corporation organized, existing and transacting business in said State, by virtue of and under Acts of its General Assembly.

167 And, thereupon, your orator complaining shows unto your Honors, that, on the 15th day of January, 1852, the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee passed an Act in the following language: "An Act to authorize the Governor of the State to issue Bonds of the State of Tennessee to the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company."

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That for the purpose of aiding the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad 168 Company in the construction of bridges on their said railroad, the Governor of the State is hereby authorized and required to issue coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, to said company, to an amount not exceeding the sum three hundred thousand dollars, bearing an interest of six per centum per annum payable semi-annually at such place as the president of said company may designate, which bonds shall be payable in not less than thirty, nor more 169 than forty years after date, and at such place as said president may designate, but said bonds are to be issued as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 2. Be it enacted, That whenever it shall be made known to the Governor to his satisfaction by the president and directors of said company, that forty miles of said railroad have been put under contract and that the work on the same is progressing to completion, and that said company has 180 sufficient bona fide subscription to grade and put the necessary culverts on said section of forty miles ready for the iron rails, which subscription shall be adjudged solvent and valid by the Board of Internal Improvements, or any chief-engineer or other persons appointed to examine and report upon works of internal improvement, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to issue to said Company coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, of the description aforesaid, to an amount not exceeding 171 one hundred thousand dollars, to be expended on the bridges necessary to be constructed on the said section of forty miles. And in like manner when a second section of forty miles shall have been put under contract, and the work thereon progressing, and said company has sufficient bona fide subscription to grade and put on the necessary culverts as aforesaid, ready for the iron rails, which subscription shall be adjudged solvent and valid by the Board of Internal Improvements, and all of 172 which facts shall be made known to the Governor, in the manner aforesaid to his satisfaction, then it shall be the duty of said Governor to issue to said company, coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, of the description aforesaid, for an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, to be expended on the bridges necessary to be constructed 173 on said section of forty miles, and a like provision with like restrictions and conditions in all respects is hereby made for an additional section of forty miles of said railroad, the funds to be used in construction of the necessary bridges on said last-named section.

SEC. 3. Be it enacted, That so soon as the bonds are issued for the first section of forty miles, as provided in the first section of this Act, the said 174 bonds shall, on the issuance thereof, constitute a lien upon all the stock of said company, upon the road-bed, masonry, bridges and other property of said company, and the State shall be invested with such lien on and by virtue of the issuance of said bonds, without a deed from the company for the payment of said bonds and interest accruing thereon; and whenever the bonds are issued for either or both of said sections of forty miles, as specified in the first section of this Act, the State of Tennes-
175 see shall on and by virtue of the issuance of said bonds be invested with a like lien or mortgage on said sections for the payment of said bonds and the interest thereon, including road-bed, masonry and bridges, on all of the said sections provided for in this Act, and on all of the stock of said company, without a deed from the company, and said lien or mortgage shall have priority over all other claims against said company, and all liens created by the company, after the issuance of the bonds for the 176 first forty miles of said railroad, shall be void as to the liens of the State of Tennessee hereby created for the payment of the bonds issued under the provisions of this Act, and the accruing interest thereon, and the said liens of the State shall extend to and embrace the entire railroad, its superstructure and equipments after completed, and so continue until said bonds and interest thereon are paid off and discharged, and without a deed from the 177 company.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That the legislature of this State shall have power to enact any law or laws that may hereafter be deemed necessary to protect the interest or credit of the State against loss or damage on account of the issuance of said bonds, and to provide for the more speedy and certain payment by the company of said bond and interest, not impairing the vested 178 rights of the stockholders and that for that purpose and the purposes of notice of the existence of this Act, the same is hereby declared to be a public law.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That before the Governor shall issue any bonds under the provisions of this Act, he shall require the engineer of said company to examine the premises where said bridge or bridges are to be built, and ascertain as near as he may be able, the 179 cost of construction of such bridge or bridges with good materials, and in a good and substantial manner, and report the same under oath to the Governor; and it shall not be lawful for said Governor to issue bonds as aforesaid, for a greater amount for the construction of such bridge or bridges than the sum specified in the report of said engineer, and the provisions of this Act, shall only extend to and include a bridge across the Watauga river, two bridge across the Holston river, and a bridge across 180 Lick creek on the line of said road. And no bonds shall issue under this Act, unless upon the written affidavit of the President of said company, and a resolution of a majority of the directors thereof, and that said bonds when issued shall not be issued for any other purpose than procuring the means for the construction of said

181 bridge or bridges, and it shall not be lawful for said bonds to be used for any other purpose.
Provided, the estimates of said engineer shall include the masonry on the line of said road. Provided, that the bonds of the State shall not be issued to build the bridges herein provided for, until there is stock subscribed by good and solvent individuals, corporations, companies or counties sufficient to grade the road and put the timbers on the same from Knoxville to the Virginia State line, which facts 182 shall be certified to the Governor of the State by the written affidavit of the president and directors of the said road. And provided further, that the three hundred thousand dollars of bonds hereinbefore authorized to be issued to said company, may be included with the aggregate amount of stock subscribed by good and solvent individuals, corporations, companies or counties, and if the said sum of three hundred thousand dollars, together with said subscriptions of stock in said 183 road, shall be sufficient to grade and build the bridges and masonry thereon, and otherwise prepare the said road for the iron rails, which facts shall be made to appear by the report of the chief engineer of said road on oath to the Governor, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to issue to the said company upon the application of the president and a majority of the directors of said company, the bonds of the State for three hundred thousand dollars, as provided in the first section of this Act, 184 and the proceeds of said bonds shall be applied to the construction of the bridges specified in the fifth section of this Act, and the masonry on the line of the said road, and the surplus, if any, to any other bridges on the line of said road, or other purpose necessary to prepare the said road for the iron rails.

SEC. 6. Be it enacted, that it shall be the duty of 185 said company to deposit in the Bank of Tennessee, at Nashville, at least fifteen days before the interest becomes due, from time to time upon said bonds issued as aforesaid, an amount sufficient to pay said interest, including exchange and necessary commission, or satisfactory evidence that said interest has been paid or provided for, and if said company fail to deposit said interest as aforesaid, at the time aforesaid, or furnish the evidence aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to report that fact to 186
the Governor, and the Governor shall immediately appoint some suitable person or persons, at the expense of the company, to take possession and control of said railroad, and all assets thereof, and manage the same and receive the rents, issues, profits and dividends thereof, whose duty it shall be to give bonds and security to the State of Tennessee, in such penalty as the Governor may require for the faithful discharge of his or their duty as receiver or receivers, to receive said rents, issues, profits and 187 dividends, and pay over the same under the direction of the Governor towards the liquidation of such unpaid interest. And if said company fail or refuse to deliver up said road to the person or persons so appointed by the Governor, the said persons so appointed shall report that fact to the Governor, who shall forthwith issue his warrant, directed to the Sheriffs of counties, through which said road shall run, commanding them to take possession of said road, fixtures, equipments, and re- 188
ceive the same, and manage the entire road until a sufficient sum shall be realized, exclusive of the costs and expenses, incident to said proceedings to pay off and discharge the interest as aforesaid, due on said bonds, which being done, the receiver shall surrender said road and fixtures and equipments to said company. The Comptroller shall from time to 189 time, settle the accounts with the receiver, and the balances shall be deposited in the Treasury of this State. The Comptroller is authorized, and it is made his duty upon his warrant to draw from the Treasury any sum of money necessary to meet the interest on such bonds as may not be provided for by the company, as provided for in this Act, and the comptroller shall report thereof to the General Assembly from time to time.

190 SEC. 7. Be it enacted, That if said company shall fail or refuse to pay any of said bonds when they fall due, it shall be the duty of the Governor to notify the attorney general of the district in which is situated the place of business of said company of the fact, and thereupon, said attorney general shall forthwith file a bill against said company in the name of the State of Tennessee, in the Chancery or Circuit Court of the county in which is situated said place of business, setting forth the facts, and there-
191 upon said Court shall make all such orders and decrees in said cause as may be deemed necessary by the Court to receive the payment of said bonds, with the interest thereon, and to indemnify the State of Tennessee against any loss on account of the issuance of said bonds by ordering the said railroad to be placed in the hands of a receiver ordering the sale of said road, and all the property and assets attached thereto, or belonging to said company, or in such other manner as the Court may 192 deem best for the interest of the State.

SEC. 8. Be it enacted, That at the end of five years after the completion of said road, said company shall set apart one per centum per annum, upon the amount of bonds issued to the Company, and shall use the same in the purchase of bonds of the State of Tennessee, which bonds the company shall pay into the treasury of the State, after assigning them to the Governor, and for which the Governor shall give said company a receipt, and as between the State and said company, the bonds so paid in shall be a credit upon the bonds issued to the company. And said bonds so paid in, and the interest accruring thereon, from time to time, shall be held and used by the State as a sinking fund for the payment of the bonds issued to the company, and should said company repurchase any of the bonds issued to it, under the provisions of this act, they shall be credited as aforesaid and cancelled. And should said company fail to comply with the provisions of this section, it shall be proceeded against as provided in the sixth section of this act. 193 194

SEC. 9. Be it enacted, That in the event any of the said road, fixtures or property belonging to said road, shall be sold under the provisions of this act, it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint an agent for the State, who shall attend said sale and protect the interest of the State, and shall, if necessary to protect said interest, buy in said road or property in the name of the State, and in case said agent shall purchase said road for the State, the Governor shall appoint a receiver who shall take possession of said road and property, and use the same as provided for in the sixth section of this act, and said receiver shall settle with the comptroller semi-annually until the next meeting of the General Assembly. 195

196 Your orator further shows that on the 21st of February, 1852, the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee enacted the following statute entitled "An Act to authorize the renewal of certain bonds of the State of Tennessee."

Whereas, most of the bonds heretofore issued by the State of Tennessee, were issued without having 159 coupons attached thereto, which subjects the holders to great inconvenience and the State to great expense in the payment of the interest thereon.

For remedy thereof:

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, that the Governor cause to be prepared a sufficient number of coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee of the denomination of $1,000 each, made payable to   or order of similar 198 language as nearly as practicable, and containing precisely the same obligations of the bonds which have been heretofore issued without coupons, except that the renewed bonds shall be made to fall due on the 1st day of January next succeeding the maturity of the old bonds, for which they are substituted, and that the coupons shall fall due on the 1st day of January and 1st of July of each year, and which said bond shall contain at their head,
and on their face, in conspicuous letters, the words 199 "Renewed Bonds."

SEC. 2. Be it enacted, That on application of any person holding any bond or bonds heretofore issued by the State without coupons, and desiring to exchange said bond or bonds for like amount in bonds prepared under the provisions of the first section of this act, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to sign the number of the renewed bonds applied for, and cause them to be countersigned by the 200 Secretary of State, and the great seal of the State to be thereto affixed, and the coupon thereto to be filled up and signed by the Comptroller, and upon the surrender of the bond or bonds, so desired to be exchanged, the Governor shall issue and deliver to the person so applying an equal amount in the renewed bonds, prepared as aforesaid.

SEC. 3. Be it enacted, That the Governor shal 201 cause each of the old bonds thus surrendered to be cancelled and be filed away by the Secretary of State in his office.

SEC. 4. Be it enacted, That the Secretary of the State shall take and preserve a receipt from the person receiving a new bond, which shall contain the number, date and time of maturity of said bond, and also the number of the old bond in lieu of which it issued, and on each renewed bond he shall 202 cause to be entered the number of the old bond in lieu of which it was issued.

SEC. 5. Be it enacted, That upon the presentation of any old bond in exchange for a renewed bond, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to compute the interest due upon said old bond up to the 1st of January, or 1st of July, as the case may be, immediately preceding the falling due of the first coupon on the renewed bond given in exchange for said old 203 bond, and to issue his warrant to the Treasurer for the payment of said interest, and that for all the services performed by the Secretary of the State, under the provisions of this act, he be allowed one dollar for each renewed bond so issued, and that the same sum be allowed the Comptroller for his services, to be paid by the person applying for said bond.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That the person 204 receiving said renewed bonds shall also pay the expense of the engraving the same.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, That the different internal improvement companies to whom the bonds of the State may be lent under the different acts of the present Legislature, shall pay the expense of engraving and preparing the same.

205 SEC. 8. Be it enacted, That the Governor of the State shall cause to be engraved or printed, the bonds which may be issued under the acts of the present General Assembly as a loan to internal improvement companies, and the said bonds shall bear date on the first day of January, prior to their issuance, and the coupons thereto shall be payable on the first days of January and July of each year.

SEC. 9. Be it enacted, That the coupons shall be 206 signed and numbered by the Comptroller, and the bonds shall be countersigned, sealed and numbered by the Secretary of State, and upon delivering said bonds to the company authorized to receive the same, the Secretary of State shall take a receipt, reciting the number, date and amount of said bonds in a well-bound book to be deposited in his office, and the Comptroller and Secretary of State shall each be entitled to receive twenty-five cents for each bond so prepared, to be paid by the party 207 receiving said bonds.

SEC. 10. Be it enacted, That when it is proved to the satisfaction of the Comptroller of the State that coupons with interest, attached to State bonds, have been lost, and an affidavit to that effect has been or shall be made by the holder of the bond, and a bond of indemnity is executed to the State, the Comptroller is and shall be authorized to issue his warrant for the payment of the amount of the interest due, and for which the coupons issue, which 208 payment is to be made to the bona fide holders of the bond of the State.

Your orator shows, that the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company was at the times aforesaid a body politic, chartered by the acts of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee. The object and purpose of the creation of said corporation was the construction, completion and operation 209 of a line of railway for the transportation of passengers and freight to and from the cities of Bristol and Knoxville, in the State of Tennessee. For this purpose the said corporation was authorized to borrow money, and to impose liens upon its property to provide for and insure the payment of its liabilities.

Your orator refers to the several statutes of Tennessee concerning the said corporation, and prays further reference thereto at the hearing of this cause, so far as the same may be material. 210

Your orator shows, that in pursuance of the foregoing acts there was delivered to the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company, Internal Improvement Bonds of the State of Tennessee, the same of the following description:

Color—White.
+ Letter B. +
Numbers—Number 1 to 300 inclusive.

A copy of one of said bonds and coupons is attached to this bill, marked "Exhibit A," and is prayed 211 to be taken as a part hereof. The other bonds and coupons of said issue are of like tenor, differing only in numbers and dates.

Your orator shows, that the said bonds to the amount of ($300,000) three hundred thousand dollars were received by or on behalf of the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company, and were by the said company negotiated and sold to bona fide holders. At least one hundred of the said bonds being for the amount of one hundred thousand dol- 212 lars are now outstanding in the hands of bona fide holders. Your orator is the owner and holder of twenty of said bonds, each being for the sum of one thousand dollars. Your orator is likewise the owner and holder of nine coupons attached to each one of said bonds, the same representing the installments of interest for four and one half con-

213 secutive years, beginning with the installment that fell due on the 1st day of January, 1876, and including the installment that fell due on the 1st day of January, 1880, amounting in the aggregate to twenty-seven per cent. of the principal of each one of the aforeaid bonds.

Your orator shows, that the holders of said bonds are very numerous, and reside in foreign countries as well as in different parts of the United States. Their names are in great part unknown to your 214 orator, and they are, therefore, not made parties hereto. But this bill is filed on behalf of all holders of said bonds who may come in and contribute to the expenses of this litigation.

Your orator shows, that since the negotiation and sale of said bonds, the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company was, in pursuance of law, consolidated with East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad Company, under the name and title of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Com-215 pany. The latter corporation now owns, possesses and operates the aforesaid East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad.

And further complaining, your orator shows that the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company, and its successor company, the defendant herein, have failed to comply with the provisions of the General Internal Improvement Law, above recited, for the payment of said installments of interest on your orator's bonds and on the bonds of other 216 holders in like situation, and the coupons of the bonds aforesaid are now in default and unpaid.

Your orator charges like defaults upon the coupons that have fallen due and have become payable by the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company, according to the terms of the statute, on the first day of January, 1877, on the first day of July, 1877, on the first day of January, 1878, on the first day of July, 1878, on the first day of January, 217 1879, on the first day of July, 1879, on the first day of January, 1880. The State of Tennessee is likewise in default on said coupons.

Your orator is entitled to the enforcement of the lien aforesaid, for the payment of interest on his bonds and those of other holders.

Your orator likewise shows that by virtue of his right in equity as a lien holder, and the terms of statutory mortgage above described, he is entitled to have the possession of the East Tennessee and 218 Virginia Railroad, in the State of Tennessee, secured by a receivership for the benefit of the holders of the Internal Improvement bonds aforesaid, issued to the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company, and for the payment of the interest thereon.
The Receiver or Receivers so to be appointed should apply the revenues of the property to the payment of the overdue interest on said bonds.

Your orator shows that during the aforesaid periods of default, the officials of the State of Tennessee 219 named in the sixth section of the said Act, have failed to take the action required thereby, and your orator is informed and believes that they claimed and claim to be bound by subsequent acts of the General Assembly of Tennessee, purporting to divest the liens and rights of the said bondholders.
The present Comptroller of the State has been in office for several years, but has never made the report required by said Act. Your orator is also informed that the respondent claims that the aforesaid 220 bondholders have no interest in the said statutory lien.

Your orator shows that he is remediless at law, and without the intervention of a Court of equity.

221 and coupons aforesaid upon all the railroad, equipment, income, tolls, rights, privileges, property and franchises of said East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company within the State of Tennessee, may be established above all other claims and demands, as constituting the first and paramount incumbrance on said property and rights.

That the income of said property arising from its use in said State may be applied to the payment of interest accrued and to accrue upon the bonds 222 hereinbefore described, and as may appear by proofs before a Master to be still outstanding and unpaid. That the said property may be seized by order of this Court and placed in the hands of receivers, to be administered according to the said liens and trusts declared upon it, and to which it has been pledged and covenanted to be applied. That your orator may have such writs and orders of injunction pendente lite and thereafter as may be proper for the due enforcement of his rights.

223 And may it please your Honors to grant unto your orator such further or other and different relief in the premises as the nature of the case may require, and as may be consistent with equity and good conscience.

May it please your Honor to grant unto your orator writs of subpœna of the United States of America, to be directed to the said East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company, and against all other persons interested in this matter and amen-224 able to the jurisdiction of this Court, when discovered, thereby commanding them and every one of them, at a certain day, and under a certain penalty therein to be specified, personally to be and appear before your Honors in this honorable Court, and then and there to answer all and singular the premises, and to stand to, perform and abide such orders and decrees therein as to your Honors shall 225 seem meet.

COMPLAINANTS EXHIBIT No. 5.

W. H. D. L.—Spl. Exr.

MOTHERAL.

Deposition of N. W. MOTHERAL, taken at Cleveland, Tennessee, on the 10th day of February, 1879, before a sub-committee of Investigation, composed of Senator Smith and Representative Driver.

231 Said witness being duly sworn, states:

Q. Please state your residence, your profession?

A. My residence is Cleveland, Tennessee. I am a minister of the gospel, of the Cumberland Presbyterian church.

Q. Did you know T. H. Calloway in his life-time, and did you hear a confession made by him before his death?

A. I knew him in his life-time, and he professed 232 religion under my ministry and joined my church, and expressed great dissatisfaction with his connection with the railroad, as president, stating that a man could not be a Christian and occupy his position, and declared his determination to resign his position. Mr. Calloway told of how he managed to get a certain bill through the legislature. I rather think it was the first Omnibus bill, but will not be certain of that, it may have been the bill to turn 233 over the railroad stock to the Turnpike companies.

He said he only liked one man to control it—he said he studied that man to find out his vices, and learned that it was women and whisky—he then employed a prostitute (Beckey Higgins I think was her name), to get him drunk on wine, and keep him at her house until the vote was taken the next day, which she did, and the bill was passed. He told me at another time, just before his death, and Joseph Calloway, his son, reiterated the same thing, 234 recently, that Major R. T. Wilson made a proposition in writing, to run down the stock of the road or water it and sell out to an English company, and thus cheat the stockholders out of their stock, which he said he rejected with indignation. Major Jackson did the same thing in a letter to Calloway. Mr.
Calloway further told me that he had frequently employed David Nelson to assist him in getting his measure through the legislature, and that Nelson had applied to him for money, as pay for the same, 235 in a way that was offensive to said Calloway. I think he said he had given him a suit of clothes, and perhaps he had afterwards applied to him for money more than once, which made Calloway angry
—as he was extorting it from him.

Q. Was Mr. Calloway in a state of sound mind when these statements were made, and up to his death?

A. Yes, sir; he was.

Q. Do you know anything of some letters touch- 236
ing these transactions, if so state all you may know about it?

A. Thos. Calloway, junior, came to me last Sunday night and told me that Mr. Jesse Gaut and Mr. Mayfield had telegraphed to him, as attorneys of the railroad, to come to Cleveland and get some letters touching those railroad propositions—saying 237 that they said his father's character was involved—and he asked my advice about the matter; I advised him to have nothing to do with it.

Q. Do you know anything of the disposition of those papers?

A. I do not. I understand that Mrs. Julia Calloway gave them to Samuel Reese, Depot Agent, and he turned them over to C. M. McGhee.

GALLOWAY.

The deposition of M. C. Galloway, taken before the committee at Nashville, Feb. 7th, 1879.

The said witness being sworn deposed as follows:

239 Q. What is your connection with the Memphis Appeal newspaper? If so, how long have you been connected with it?

A. I am now one of the editors of that paper, and have been connected with it as editor since 1870.

Q. Were you interested in it as a stockholder or otherwise before 1870?

A. I was not.

Q. Do you own stock in it now or have you since 1870?

A. Yes sir, one-half interest now.

240 Q. Was Col. Dupree, now of Texas, connected with, and interested in, the paper, in 1872 or 1873, or along about that time?

A. He was a stockholder in 1872, I think we bought him out in 1873, paying him $14,000 for his interest.

Q. You remember the Funding Act of 1873?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was any proposition made to you or to your associates in control of the paper, to give you or your firm the prospective profits on $50,000 of Tennessee bonds, realized from an expected rise in Tennessee bonds, under the Funding Act, to get the influence of your paper in advocating its passage? 241

A. Never, sir.

Q. Was any proposition of this kind, or any one of like nature, character or form, made to you or your associates to secure the influence of your paper in support of that Act? 242

A. There were propositions to this effect, which after correspondence and negotiations failed.

Q. Who made these or such like propositions?

A. They were made through Col. L. J. Dupree, to the Appeal Publishing Company, but I know not who made them.

Q. Did you have individual propositions made to you, in this regard?

A. I did not; I had an individual correspondence on the subject, which failed. 243

Q. Col., if you have no objections, will you please state with whom you had these individual negotiations, or this individual correspondence?

A. If I am not compelled I would like not to mention the man's name. It was a private letter and I dislike to expose privatecorrespondence; the letter I wrote to the gentleman or the letter received was accidently found at the Maxwell House, and I desire to say that personally I have no objection to its publication. 244

Q. Col., if you have no objection, will you please, without giving names if you so desire, state the amount or amounts that you understood, to be offered to the Appeal Company, or to you individually in reference to the Funding Act?

A. Never a dollar; I never heard of a Funding ring except through the Memphis Avalanche; that 245 paper published an article or articles reflecting upon the integrity of Gov. Brown, and it, after or about the time before Gov. Brown retired, upon his demand for an unqualified retraction of its article or articles, did so, and published an article highly complimentary to Gov. Brown. He went to Brownsville, and sent from there a letter, by an envoy extraordinary and this brought about the retraction and a complimentary editorial as to his integrity. Kellar wrote a letter 246 disclaiming responsibility for the articles.

Q. The Memphis Appeal did support the Funding Act?

A. Yes, sir, it did, because Brown and his opponent during the canvass endorsed it, and Brown's triumphant election we regarded as making it the Democratic policy, and hence we supported it, and if times now were like they were then, we still think it would be the best policy for the party in the State.

247 Q. A receipt has been published or a copy of a receipt from you or the Appeal Company, to a certain railroad president or company, for a considerable sum of money; if you have no objection, please give the committee an explanation of it?

A. In reply to this question, I will say that pending the Gubernatorial canvass of 1870, the Appeal made a bitter onslaught on the bogus bonds of the State, especially the Mineral Home bonds, and the Brownlow administration. In this policy, we had 248 three objects: the first was to save the tax-paying people from the taxes imposed to pay these bogus bonds. Second, to help elect Governor Brown, and third, to injure the Republican party. This bitter war, we continued during the Gubernatorial canvass in 1870, and in 1871, after Brown's election. In September, 1871, Maj. M. J. Wicks addressed a note to me, to meet him at his bank. In response to his invitation I repaired to his bank; there I 249 found M. J. Wicks, President of the Memphis & Charleston Railroad, and Wm. B. Greenlaw, President of the Little Rock Railroad. Maj. Wicks took from his vest pocket an editorial in regard to the liabilities of the State, and asked me who was the writer of said editorial; I informed him that I wrote it. He said that that article was worth $50,000 to his road. The legislature had passed an Act allowing the railroads to retire their indebtedness, and then I got an insight into the whole thing. Maj. 250 Wicks and W. B. Greenlaw insisted that I continue the Appeal on the same line of policy, and as it made hundreds of thousands of dollars for them and the other roads, they would make it to my interest.

Mr. Wicks voluntarily said he would give the Adpeal
$5,000 for every depreciation of five per cent.
in the bonds. With this stimulus the Appeal, made a furious attack upon the bogus bonds, and continued to depress the bonds until the Appeal made $10,000 under Wick's voluntary contract with 251 it, and come within a quarter per cent. of making $15,000. When payment was demanded, Wicks requested me to appear before the Directors of the Memphis & Charleston Railroad, which I did. After I got there, we had nothing in a tangible shape to present to the Board, and Wicks made out an account embracing the services of the Appeal and its editors under the contract. Wicks paid the account after me agreeing to deduct $2,500.

Q. What about your enthusiastic support of Gov. 252
Brown?

A. That support was prompted by two reasons: first, I regard him as one of the best and ablest Governors Tennessee ever had; and second, is that I know him, in an experience of forty years with public men, to be one of the noblest men that ever lived.

THE CREDIT AND RESOURCES OF THE STATE OF TENNESSEE.

The following communication to the New York Times, written by the undersigned, is published in pamphlet form at the request of several former citizens of Tennessee now resident in New York. All the statistical facts given are derived from the official reports of the officers of the State.

S. WATSON,

255 Agent for the State of Tennessee.

TENNESSEE STATE CREDIT AND RESOURCES.

To the Editor of the New York Times:

A communication appeared in your paper of the 1st of January, from your correspondent in Nashville, signed "Philo," which does great injustice to the State of Tennessee, and requires some notice from the friends of the State.

The political part of your correspondent's letter I 256 have nothing to do with, excepting so far as it relates to emigration. "Philo" asserts that Northern men are driven away from Tennessee, and that there are not now in Tennessee one-half as many men of Northern birth as there were two years ago. That some Northern men in consequence of their disappointment in their business calculations, and some in consequence of hostility excited by their political course, have left the State may be true, but a very large number remain. They are scattered all over the State, and can be counted by thousands. The writer of this knows that the rich iron regions below 257

Nashville, lying between the Cumberland and Tennessee River, is rapidly attracting emigration. Substantial men from the North have come there and invested their hundreds of thousands in iron property, and in iron works that have been idle during the war, and are now putting them into operation.
It is also known to the writer that Northern emigration is setting in quite rapidly to the counties bordering on the Chattanooga Railroad and its branches.
In three counties they have brought in with them 258 the past year capital largely exceeding $200,000. The Nashville press chronicles almost every week the arrival of parties to investigate the advantages and resources of Tennessee; notwithstanding the erroneous impressions of the State spread abroad by the political press and such correspondents as "Philo."

The bitterness of party feeling is very much softening down in Tennesse. It is true that men who come into the State as blatant politicians, and who expect to live upon politics, do excite the enmity of 259
the political party against which they array themselves;
but men who come into the State to cast their destinies with its people by accumulating wealth and developing the resources of the country, are cordially welcomed, everywhere and by everybody.

But the parts of your correspondent's letter which I wish especially to notice are his attacks upon the good faith of the State, and his efforts to ruin its credit by charging upon the State reckless extravagance in aiding railroads, most of which he deems 260 to be worthless.

"Philo" charges that the State refused, upon a technicality, to take the notes of the old State Bank.
She refused to take them because she did not consider herself bound in honor and good faith to do so. An attempt was made by some of her citizens to force this depreciated currency upon her for taxes,

To the Editor of the New York Times:

The political part of your correspondent's letter I

"Philo" asserts that Northern men are driven away from Tennessee, and that there are not now in Tennessee one-half as many men of Northern birth as there were two years ago. That some Northern men in consequence of their disappointment in their business calculations, and some in consequence of hostility excited by their political course, have left the State may be true, but a very large number remain. They are scattered all over the State, and can be counted by thousands. The writer of this knows that the rich iron regions below Nashville, lying between the Cumberland and Tennessee River, is rapidly attracting emigration. Substantial men from the North have come there and invested their hundreds of thousands in iron property, and in iron works that have been idle during the war, and are now putting them into operation. It is also known to the writer that Northern emigration is setting in quite rapidly to the counties bordering on the Chattanooga Railroad and its branches. In three counties they have brought in with them the past year capital largely exceeding $200,000. The Nashville press chronicles almost every week the arrival of parties to investigate the advantages and resources of Tennessee ; notwithstanding the erroneous impressions of the State spread abroad by the poitical press and such correspondents as "Philo."

The bitterness of party feeling is very much softening down in Tennesse. It is true that men who come into the State as blatant politicians, and who expect to live upon politics, do excite the enmity of the political party against which they array themselves ; but men who come into the State to cast their destinies with its people by accumulating wealth and developing the resources of the country, are cordially welcomed, everywhere and by everybody.

But the parts of your correspondent's letter which I wish especially to notice are his attacks upon the good faith of the State, and his efforts to ruin its credit by charging upon the State reckless extravagance in aiding railroads, most of which he deems to be worthless.

"Philo" charges that the State refused, upon a technicality, to take the notes of the old State Bank. She refused to take them because she did not consider herself bound in honor and good faith to do so. An attempt was made by some of her citizens to force this depreciated currency upon her for taxes,

261 but the Supreme Court of the State, composed of men of the highest integrity and ability, unanimously decided that she was under no obligations to do so; and this decision has the sanction of the best legal minds in the State. The Bank of Tennessee is now being wound up. Its debtors can pay their debts in the notes of the bank. The policy of the State is to let as much of the circulation of the bank be redeemed in this way as possible, and after the debts are paid, if any notes remain unredeemed, 262 and if there should be even a moral obligation upon the State to redeem them, it will certainly do so. For in no State is the fidelity to obligations more deeply seated than in Tennessee. This has been proved by her past and will be proved by her future history. The word "repudiation" is an odious one to every Tennesseean. No political press and no demagogue of any political party has ever dared utter it to her people.

But the injurious charge, or insinuation rather, is 263 made by your correspondent, that the State has been guilty of reckless extravagance in aiding worthless railroads. That, in an appropriation of several millions of dollars, some roads should get aid that are not deserving, would of course be expected. But a detailed examination of railroads of Tennessee will show that there are but few if any roads of this character aided.

The Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad runs from Nashville to the Tennessee and Kentucky State line.
264 There it was expected to be united to the Henderson and Nashville Road, which runs from the point of junction through Hopkinsville and Madisonville to Hendersonville and Evansville on the Ohio River. The Kentucky Road, not having been completed before the war, and the Edgefield and Kentucky Road consequently ending in the woods, its interest has never been paid. But the Henderson and Nashville is now in rapid progress. The road is graded from 265

the State line north to Hopkinsville, a distance of about 25 miles, and the iron rails probably laid by this time to that point. Much of the road is also graded from the Ohio River south, and a good deal of track laid.

The length of these two roads is 150 miles—fifty miles in Tennessee and one hundred in Kentucky. They run through the richest agricultural region in the West. Seventy-five miles from Nashville they strike an inexhaustible bed of rich bituminous coal. 266
There are three strata of this coal, one of them a little over six feet in thickness, and the road runs just below the lowest strata. At Evansville these roads are united to the whole system of railroads in the great Northwest, and will make almost an air line communication with Chicago, and it is but a few miles further to New York by this route than by the Louisville and Nashville Road. The aid of $300,000 given to the Edgefield and Kentucky Road will secure the immediate completion of the Kentucky end 267 of the road to the coal mines. Thus bringing these rich mines to Nashville and the whole of Middle and West Tennessee. Can there be a doubt that the future coal trade alone over the Edgefield and Kentucky Road will enable it to pay the interest on its debt to the State ?

The completion of the road referred to will also greatly benefit the Memphis and Ohio, and the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Road. These two roads together form a line of road running from Mem- 268 phis through Clarksville in the direction of Bowling Green, Kentucky, and intersecting the Nashville and Henderson Road at the State line. One of them passes through the rich iron region lying between the Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers. The supply of coal for Memphis, Clarksville, the iron works and all intermediate points, must go over these roads,

269 thereby greatly advancing their future paying value. These roads have not heretofore, since the war, paid their interest. But so great is the confidence of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company in the future of these roads, that that Company, one of the wealthiest and most ably managed railroad corporations in the United States, has leased the Memphis and Ohio Road for ten years, and is now paying its interest on its debt, and has proposed to buy the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Road, offer-
270 ing to pay its floating debt, the back interest due the State, amounting now to $220,272, the whole of its debt to the State, and also to pay the stockholders a portion of their stock. Can any stronger evidence be given of the future paying value of these roads? The payment of their interest hereafter is certainly beyond a doubt.

One of the roads aided by the last act of the Legislature is the Nashville and Northwestern. This runs from Nashville to the Mississippi river, and has 271 its terminus on that river, in the edge of Kentucky. On the opposite side of the Mississippi, it meets the Iron Mountain Railroad, which is being built from St. Louis down the western bank of that river. An appropriation has also been made to enable the Northwestern road to build a short branch, which will connect it with the roads leading to New Orleans and Memphis. The Nashville and Northwestern road has but very recently been completed to the Mississippi, and is unprovided with rolling 272 stock, and of course could not be expected to pay its interest. The recent appropriations of the Legislature will fully equip it and build the branch referred to, and Nashville will then have by this road a very direct communication with St. Louis, the shortest and most direct communication with New Orleans, and almost an air-line route to Memphis. Ought not a road running part of the way through a rich iron region, running 273

over the fertile soil of West Tennessee, and having such connections, be relied on to pay at least its interest on its debt to the State?

The Nashville and Decatur road is one of the roads aided. It crosses some very winding streams, and has an unusual number of bridges and a large amount of trestle work, all of which needs re-building. It is — miles long, and runs from Nashville to Decatur, Alabama. Means have been provided for its extension to Montgomery in Alabama. This, 274 when completed, will give Nashville almost an air-line communication over this road to Mobile and Pensacola on the Gulf of Mexico. This road has always paid its interest out of its profits, and will be still more certain to do so in the future.

The Nashville and Chattanooga road has always paid its interest and needs no aid. This road has two branches leading off from it—one, called the McMinnville and Manchester, starting about seventy-five miles from Nashville and running north- 275 wardly to McMinnville, thirty-four miles in length; the other, called the Winchester and Alabama road, starting about eighty-five miles from Nashville, running southwardly through Winchester to Fayetteville, thirty-eight miles in length. The rolling stock of these roads was run off, their depots and bridges destroyed, and all the iron rails on both roads removed elsewhere by the United States military authorities. The McMinnville and Manchester road has just been repaired, and the appropriation 276
to the Winchester and Alabama road has been made to enable it to complete its repairs. Both roads were run by the Chattanooga road before the war. The Southwestern road is to be a continuation of the McMinnville and Manchester road, north. The building of this road will be rendered unnecessary by the building of the Nashville and Pacific Railroad.

The Memphis and Little Rock Railroad, although out of the State, is really a Tennessee road, being built principally by Tennessee capital. This road was almost entirely destroyed by the war, and has been wholly unable to pay its interest. But it is being re-built, and contracts have been entered into for its entire completion. Can any intelligent man doubt that a road, running from the capital of the State of Arkansas to the principal commercial city of Tennessee, will pay its interest on its debt to the State when it is re-built?

The Memphis and Charleston Road, although badly crippled by the war, has promptly paid its interest, and so have the Mobile and Ohio, the Mississippi Central and the Mississippi and Tennessee roads.

The East Tennessee and Georgia and the East Tennessee and Virginia roads have always paid their interest promptly, and need no aid.

The Knoxville and Kentucky road has paid its interest. It runs from Knoxville through the rich coal fields of East Tennessee, and it is intended to meet at the Kentucky State line the Lebanon branch of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. It is already completed thirty-two miles, has fifteen additional miles graded, and is supplied with rolling stock for its local traffic. The appropriation of $800,000 will certainly complete it to the State line. It has already penetrated the coal fields, and is supplying Knoxville with coal, and over this road will be transported the coal to supply Macon and Augusta, and other intermediate points in Georgia. It not only opens up the rich coal fields and iron mines of East Tennessee, but on lts completion will give the fertile valleys of that section of the State access to the markets of the country, both North and South. Its coal trafic alone should pay the interest on its debt.

The Knoxville and Charleston road, "Philo" as- 281 serts, owe $615,000 and runs but one mile. This is wholly untrue. This road is nearly completed sixteen miles, and when finished that distance, and equipped, will owe the State only $325,000 in all.
This road is to meet a road being built from Charleston, in a direct line to Knoxville.

The Cinncinnati and Cumberland Gap Railroad is now running twenty-five miles, with its grading completed twenty miles further, at which point it meets at the North Carolina line a road now build- 282 ing from Asheville. These two latter roads, when completed, will give Knoxville and East Tennessee direct connection with the seaboard in the Southern Atlantic States, and thus render her system of railroads complete, and open up to the world her rich mineral resources, and bring the products of her rich valleys to the nearest and best markets, both North and South.

The Nashville and Pacific Railroad is another road that is to receive the aid of the State. But it 283 can receive no aid until its stockholders grade thirty miles of the road and have it ready for the iron. It then receives State aid to iron it, and upon every additional twenty miles being thus graded it is to receive the State aid to iron the twenty miles.
The road is destined to run from Nashville to Knoxville, and will at some day run directly to Bristol on the Virginia and Tennessee State line, there meeting the railroads of Virginia that lead directly to Norfolk. Its completion, and this is rendered 284 certain, and the completion of the short branch of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad before referred to, will furnish almost an air line of railroad from Norfolk in Virginia through Nashville and Memphis to Little Rock. No one can doubt that this in a few years will be extended to the Pacific, either to the Port of Guayamas, on the Gulf of 285 California, or to some point in the State of California. This route will run through the richest agricultural part of the United States, will be free from ice and snow, and the shortest route from the Atlantic to the Pacific. New York will yet see the day when her shortest and best highway to the Pacific Ocean will be through the State of Tennessee, and over her projected Nashville and Pacific road.

We have given the above detailed description of 286 the railroads in Tennessee, with her connections, so that every one may be enabled to judge of the importance of each road, and the perfection of her entire system. It must be obvious that there are very few of her roads, and those very short ones, that are not necessary to the development of her resources. When finished, Knoxville will be the centre of the system in the East, and her roads will connect her with all important points in the Union. Memphis has her system of roads leading to all parts 287 of the Mississippi Valley.

Nashville, the capital of the State, is the centre of the whole system, and her railroads, when completed, will give her close connection with all the cities of the Northwest, and make her the point through which the great highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific must pass. Has not Tennessee shown her wisdom in pledging herself to the support of such a system of roads?

At the close of the war almost all of the roads of 288 Tennessee were nearly in ruins. The State immediately came to their aid, and set them upon their feet again; and finding that additional aid was necessary to fully repair her roads and fully complete her system, she has by the recent act of her Legislature promised additional aid, that may reach the sum of about $4,000,000. But it must be years before this entire sum can be called for, a large portion of this aid being dependent upon the prior 289

grading of the roads by the stockholders. The State has not acted hastily nor rashly in this legislation, but after full investigation of the claims of each road, and careful consideration of the importance of her entire system. The most enlightened of her tax payers believe her action to have been one of wise and judicious liberality, and so we believe those will think who are interested in her securities.

Prior to the war every road in Tennessee, except- 290
ing the Edgefield and Kentucky, and perhaps the Winchester and Alabama roads, paid the interest on he bonds loaned them. The receipts of all the main lines of railroads, and it is believed almost all the roads in Tennessee, are greater now than before the war.

The important question for the bondholder now is: What security have I for the payment of the principal and interest of my bond? The State debt proper is only about $4,000,000. The railroads 291 and all their rolling stock are mortgaged to the State to secure the payment of bonds loaned. This mortgage, as bondholders must know, inures to their benefit. For the payment of $29,000,000 of bonds, which will be the entire amount of bonds issued to the roads, including those that may be issued under the recent act of the Legislature, the bondholders have as security roads which, when completed, will be nearly 2,000 miles in length, and which will have cost and which will be worth fully $70,000,000. In 292 addition to that they have the whole resources of the State solemnly pledged to them. And what are the taxable resources of the State? On the 19th of December last there were due the State for taxes $1,108,900. As all the real and personal estate of the taxpayer is responsible for his taxes, a large proportion of the above amount must certainly be 293 paid. The present tax law, under which the taxes of 1868 will be levied, increases the tax fully fifty per cent. The receipts from all sources the past year, exclusive of interest paid by railroads, were $1,517,472. Add fifty per cent. to this will make $2,276,208. To this should also be added what may be collected from back taxes. The expenditures of the State last year, exclusive of interest, were $939,404. Of this amount at least $344,970 were extraordinary expenses, and will not be incurred this year.

294 This would make the State expenditures this year $654,433, which, deducted from her tax receipts, $2,276,208, would leave $1,621,775, a surplus amply sufficient to make up all possible short-comings of railroads in paying their interest, and leaving also a very large amount to be appropriated to the aid of her common schools, a system which she is just inaugurating, combining the best features of the systems of the Northern States.

The pecuniary condition of the State of Tennessee
295 and its resources are but little understood. Outside of East Tennessee, and aside from the destruction of her railroads, and the loss of her slave property, Tennessee was but little injured by the war. The Federal army got possession of Middle and West Tennessee early in 1862. Her citizens were enabled to get rid of all their Confederate currency without a sacrifice. It is true a large amount of her stock of animals were taken by the armies, but the armies, as a general rule, paid for what was taken. The 296 army expenditures were larger in Tennessee than in any other State, and these expenditures enriched its citizens. The city of Nashville certainly came out of the war largely increased in population and greatly advanced in wealth. Everything was bought and sold for cash, consequently no debt was contracted at home or abroad, and as evidence of this we have no stop laws and no serious attempt to pass

any; and we appeal to the merchants of New York 297 as an evidence of the fact, that no merchants of any State pay more promptly than the merchants of Tennessee. Her black labor being formerly owned in small numbers, and many of them working side by side with their masters, labor is much less demoralized than in the more Southern States, as is demonstrated by the abundance of the present crop. Her crop of wheat the last year was fair, and farmers obtained for it from $2 to 2.50 per bushel, a price wholly unprecedented in Tennessee. Her corn crop 298 was a full one, and its surplus is now finding its way over the railways of New York to this city. Her crop of cotton has not been as large for years. Nashville has already received a larger number of bales than the average of entire years prior to this, and she will certainly receive an amount this year more than double her annual receipts before the war. Clarksville, about sixty miles below her on the Cumberland River, was one of the largest interior tobacco markets in the Union before the war; the past year 299
her receipts of tobacco in dollars and cents were greater than they have ever been at any former period.

In addition to her present productive wealth, she has vast resources yet untouched. She has valuable pine timber, larger forests of cedar than any State in the Union. She has scattered all over her every kind of timber used in building or the mechanic arts, except rosewood and mahogany. She has beneath her soil every variety of minerals used 300 in the mechanic arts, and all of it rich in quality and abundant in quantity, and she has a climate and soil capable of producing successfully every article of raw material used in manufacturing.

And yet with all these vast resources, with her sound pecuniary condition, her admirable system of railroads almost completed, and her mercantile and 301 financial honor untarnished, it is evident from the prices of her bonds, that fears exist that she will falter in paying the interest upon her debt. Why should Tennessee be distrusted? Before the close of the past year she placed her money with her fiscal agent in this city, amply sufficient to pay every dollar of her present January interest.

Did she not, at the close of the war, meet the wishes of her creditors, and fund all her accumulated interest?

302 With all her business interests disorganized by the war, with her labor in its transition state from slavery to freedom, with her railroads just rising from their ruins, with an imperfect tax system, she has heretofore faithfully met her obligations.

Why should it be feared that she will falter now, when her labor is annually producing a return greater in value than at any former period in her history? When emigration is daily bringing additional labor and capital to her borders. When her 303 railroads are almost rebuilt, aud daily increasing their capacity to pay their dues to the State, and when her future receipts from taxation will annually exceed her ordinary expenses largely over $1,000,000. Surely a knowledge of the condition and resources of Tennessee, the known spirit and character of her people, the well-known unalterable determination of legislators and all her State officials to maintain her public faith inviolate, ought to satisfy every one that the interest on her public debt will ever 304 be promptly paid, and that all her obligations will be honorably and faithfully fulfilled.

The MEMPHIS & CHARLESTON RAILROAD COMPANY et al. 2

Hearing pursuant to notice to take the take the deposition of Calvin A. Stevens, before William H. DeLancey, Notary Public.

(Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of either party.)

It is consented and agreed that this deposition shall be taken before William H. DeLancey, as a Special Examiner of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Tennessee, and that an order to that effect be entered at a future day nunc pro tunc, and that the said William H. DeLancey is also acting under and by virtue of Section 863 of the Revised Statutes of the United States. 3 52 BROADWAY, New York, Sept. 12, 1879.

Present { MR. ANDREWS, for Complainants. 4
{ MR. HUMES, for Defendants.

5 Calvin A. Stevens, a witness produced on the part of the compainants, being by me first duly cautioned and sworn in the above-entitled suit to testify the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, deposes and says:

Direct examination by Mr. Andrews:

1 Q. Are you the complainant in this case?

A. I am.

2 Q. Are you an owner and holder of bonds of 6 the State of Tennessee?

A. I am.

3 Q. Will you produce before this officer for his inspection and that of counsel here present, Tennessee bonds of which you are owner and holder?

A. There are 28 of the bonds issued to and sold by the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co.

> Witness produces 28 bonds of the State of Tennessee.

> Complainants' counsel requests the Commissioner to take copies of said 28 bonds, and certify in his report the production of the same; certificate annexed, and marked "Compl'ts Exhibit No. 1, W. H. D. L. Sp'l Ex'r."

4 Q. Are the holders of this class of bonds quite numerous, and do they reside in many different places?

A. Such is the case.

8 > (Complainants' counsel closes his direct examination.)

Cross-examination by Mr. Humes:

5 x Q. How did you become the owner of the 28 bonds you have here produced?

A. I could not answer whether they were given to me by my father or whether I bought them myself.

6 x Q. When did your father give you any of these bonds? 9

A. Before his death.

7 x Q. When did he die?

A. I think it was March, 1877.

8 x Q. How long before his death did he give them to you?

A. It might have been a month or two weeks—not very long before his death.

9 x Q. Did he give them to you orally or by an instrument in writing? 10

A. He gave them to me by an instrument in writing.

10 x Q. What was that instrument in writing?

A. A proper instrument in writing, giving me these bonds as well as other securities.

11 x Q. Was it a Will, deed of gift, or simple assignment?

A. It was not a Will—it was a proper instrument in writing.

12 x Q. What do you mean by a proper instrument in writing? 11

A. I mean such a legally drawn instrument as fully transfers property from one person to another.

13 x Q. Was it signed by your father?

A. It was, otherwise it would not have been a proper instrument in writing.

14 x Q. Where is the instrument now?

A. It is securely under lock and key in this city.

15 x Q. Will you produce it during this examination? 12

A. I will with pleasure if the Court requires it.

16 x Q. Do I understand you to decline to produce it except upon an order of the Court?

A. An order of the Court or proper authority. I wish to further state that I am here to prove the ownership of my bonds, and not to answer impertinent questions unnecessarily inquiring into my pri-

13 vate affairs, enabling the defendants to further obstruct and postpone the trial of these causes.

17 x Q. Do you mean by other proper authority the direction of the examiner?

A. I will again state that I am here to prove the ownership of my bonds, and I again decline to answer impertinent questions prompted by a motive to retard and evade justice.

18 x Q. The question not being answered I repeat x Q. 17.

14 A. I decline to answer for the reasons already given.

NEW YORK, Oct 17, 1879.

Present—as before.

19 x Q. Will you produce the paper asked for on the former examination?

A. We will settle that at the next meeting.

Adjourned to October 22, 1879, at 12 M.

16 OCTOBER 22, 1879—12 M.

Present—Counsel as before.

20 x Q. Will you please produce the instrument in writing, which you have testified was signed and executed by your father a few weeks before his death, giving you his bonds of the State of Tennessee?

A. I object to producing the instrument referred 17 to, because it would make public the private affairs of an important estate confidentially intrusted to my keeping, but if the Court specially desires it I will waive my objection. I will go even further, if counsel for defendant desires to privately examine it, I will waive my objection, provided he will reciprocate and fulfil reasonable conditions.

First. I ask that R. T. Wilson, allow my counsel to inspect his copy, letter and dispatch book, as to correspondence between himself, C. M. 18 McGhee, T. H. Callaway and Joseph A. Mabry, just before and during the Tennessee Legislature of 1869, when he was engaged in procuring the passage of the act of 1869, as stated in his letter to John T. Terry.

Second. That he allow my counsel to inspect his correspondence with his associates in 1870, when they were procuring the passage of the act for the sale of insolvent railroads, which he suggested and aided as stated in his letter to John T. Terry. 19

Third. That he allows my counsel to inspect his correspondence with his associates during the year 1868, when to depress the market value of Tennessee bonds, they procured a speculative injunction to prevent State payment of interest, for which conspiracy against the credit of the State Governor Brownlow, had R. T. Wilson C. M. McGhee and Joseph A. Mabry arrested.

Fourth, That he allow my counsel to inspect his correspondence with his brother, B. F. Wilson, 20 and C. M. McGhee, when he (R. T. Wilson) and Gov. Porter were getting up the extra session of the Tennessee Legislature to compromise the debt at 50 and 6 per cent.

Fifth, That R. T. Wilson, President of the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company, give the names of his brokers in New York, through 21 whom he carried on his Tennessee bond speculation.

(Objected to by defendants' counsel as impertinent, irrelevant, incompetent, and not in answer to the question.)

21 x Q. Was the forgoing answer given on advice of counsel?

A. It was given on my own suggestion; I wrote it out myself.

22 22 x Q. Was it also given on advice of counsel?

A. I submitted it, counsel thought it proper, since R. T. Wilson refused again and again to produce evidence that counsel properly called for.

23 x Q. Did you sign the paper shown you dated February 15th, 1877, addressed to his Excellency, James D. Porter, and signed, among others, as follows:

"Calvin Stevens, by C. Amory Stevens, atty.,"
23 and a copy of which paper is attached as Respondent's Exhibt No. 1 to Peter Geddes' deposition in these causes?

A. I did sign it, at the solicitation I think of Mr. Peter Geddes.

24 x Q. Did you write and forward the letter now shown you, dated New York, December 15th, 1877, addressed to Governor James D. Porter, Nashville. Tennessee?

A. Soon after R. T. Wilson wrote and forwarded
24 a certain dispatch to Governor Porter, to which he secured from me the signature of my father's estate I wrote and forwarded the letter referred to, copy of which I offer from R. T. Wilson's copy book.

(The copy referred to is offered in evidence and marked Resp'ts Exhibit No. 1, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.)

25 x Q. What was the date of the telegram signed by you, and, as you say, sent by Wilson? 25

A. I should say a few days before, and I offer a copy of it taken from R. T. Wilson's dispatch book. It is the same telegram that to oblige R. T. Wilson I purposely signed the estate of Calvin Stevens, C. Amory Stevens, trustee. I was on the point of signing my own individual name, when I was urged by R. T. Wilson & Co. to sign the name of the estate, since it would carry more weight, and since it represented the same lot of bonds that my father 26 owned February 15th, 1877; these were the reasons given me by R. T. Wilson & Co.

26 x Q. How old were you in December, 1877?

A. I was born August 2, 1845.

27 x Q. Were you the representative of Calvin 27 Stevens' estate when you signed the above telegram?

A. I was.

28 x Q. Didn't you also send a telegram on the 14th of December, 1877, to Governor Porter?

A. I think likely that I did. R. T. Wilson urged me to telegraph, and also to see my friends and get every one I could to telegraph.

29 x Q. Do you state that the telegram of the 14th of December was suggested or dictated by R. T. 28 Wilson, or written by him, or by anyone in his office?

A. I refer to the first telegram which he wrote and sent, and urged me to get others to telegraph and to use what influence I had to help them get through the 50 and 6 per cent. bill.

30 x Q. Who wrote and sentthe telegram of the 14th December, signed by you, to Governor Porter?

A. Please produce it that I may refresh my memory and tell all I know about it.

(Counsel says he has not got it.)

31 x Q. Did you write the letter of December 15th, 1877, as containing your views and sentiments, and do they contain your views and sentiments at that time?

A. I did write that letter, subject to R. T. Wilson's approval and sanction. R. T. Wilson was very careful to have the letter read to him before it was sent, and expressed himself as much pleased with it.

32 x Q. When did your father purchase the bonds he gave to you?

A. A number of years before his death.

33 x Q. Did he not purchase a large number of them during the years 1874, 1875, 1876 and 1877, up to March?

A. I think he may have purchased some of them as recently as 1874, but my impression is they were purchased some time before.

34 x Q. Did he not make large purchases of bonds in 1875 and 1876 and in 1877?

A. I do not think he purchased any State of Tennessee bonds in the years 1875, 1876 or 1877. I think they were purchased long before that.

35 x Q. Were you on such terms with your father in relation to his business for several years before his death, as to be informed of his transactions in bonds, and did he communicate with you on this subject?

A. I was quite familiar with my father's business affairs; we usually consulted together on all important business transactions when I was at home and with him.

36 x Q. Did your father fund the past due coupons, and bonds under the act of 1873, and if yea, did he do it in person, or by an agent? 33

A. I was not at home at the time, but I understand that he took his Tennessee bonds in person to Tennessee, had all of his bonds registered, cut off the past due coupons of the same and funded them into the new series of funding bonds.

37 x Q. Did you purchase and own Tennessee bonds yourself, before your father's death, if so in what years did you purchase them? 34

A. I purchased and owned Tennessee bonds a number of years before my father's death. I bought them at several different times, and I do not recollect the dates.

38 x Q. Did you fund the past due coupons under the act of 1873?

A. I never registered any Tennessee bonds or funded any Tennessee coupons.

39 x Q. Did you buy or hold any Tennessee bonds during the years 1873 or 1874? 35

A. I could not say for a certainty, but I am of the impression that I purchased some as recently as that.

40 x Q. Have you purchased any since 1874; if so during what years?

A. I have purchased a good many since. I think I must have purchased as late as 1876, 1877 and 1878.

41 x Q. Are the bonds proved and sued on in these cases bonds given to you by your father, or such as you have purchased since his death? 36

A. The bonds sued on in these cases include no bonds given me by my father; but bonds I purchased and paid for myself since 1874.

42 x Q. Were you aware that the railroad companies from 1870 to 1877, were purchasing State

37 bonds to retire their debts due to the State, under the provisions of the acts of 1869 and of 1870?

A. I was not. I first became aware of these so-called substitutions after the telegraph and letter to Governor Porter, of December 14th, 1877, had been sent.

43 x Q. Were you in the State of Tennessee during the years 1868, 1869 or 1870?

A. I could not say whether I travelled through the State in those years or not; that is without re-38 ferring to my diary.

44 x Q. Were you at Nashville during the sessions of the Legislature in 1868, 1869 and 1870?

A. I have no recollection of ever visiting Nashville during my life.

45 x Q. Did you hold in 1873 any old Tennessee bonds with unpaid coupons attached to them?

A. I could not answer that question without referring to my books.

46 x Q. Did you ever present a coupon overdue
39 to any railroad company, and demand payment of the same?

A. I have not as yet; I was on the point of doing so, and my counsel assured me that it was not necessary.

47 x Q. When was that?

A. That was since I filed these bills.

48 x Q. Did you ever do it before you filed these bills?

A. No, sir; I did not.

40 49 x Q. Have you a list of all the Tennessee bonds you now own; if yea, will you please file it?

A. I have a list; I decline to unnecessarily make public my private affairs; I have already submitted the necessary bonds to defendant's counsel.

50 x Q. Have you shown me any bonds except those that you say are sued on?

A. No, sir; I have not.

51 x Q. What agreements besides that contained in the Exhibits to Terry's and Geddes' depositions, have you entered into with other persons for the prosecution of this suit ?

A. Do you refer to the amount of fees I have paid to different counsel ?

52 x Q. Question repeated.

A. If counsel for defendant will explain what he means, I will be pleased to answer his question.

53 x Q. I mean have you entered into any agreement or agreements with any person or persons, besides those Exhibited with Terry's and Geddes' depositions, for the prosecution of these suits ; whether these agreements have been made with your counsel, or with others ?

A. I have not entered into any such agreement, though I regularly pay my counsel, and expect to as long as the fight continues.

54 x Q. Have you entered into an agreement with Peter Geddes and others other than that evidenced by Exhibits to Geddes' deposition, for the prosecution of these suits ?

A. I have already answered to the effect that I have not, and that I regularly pay my counsel.

55 x Q. Have you entered into any agreement with any person or persons to share in the profits arising from these suits ?

A. Counsel for defendants will please explain what he means by profits ; I have already expended many thousand dollars myself without receiving any profit ; I am working to collect what honestly belongs to me, and to bring an infamous railroad ring to justice.

> (Counsel for defendants objects to the last clause of this answer as impertinent, irrelevant, and not in answer to the interrogatory.)

56 x Q. Have you entered into any agreement

45 with any person or persons, whereby you are to get any part or share in the proceeds of the recovery of these suits, beyond the amount of your own bonds and coupons, held by you, before the bringing of these suits ?

A. I have not.

57 x Q. Have you entered into any such agreement whereby others than yourself are to get a part of the proceeds of these suits, other than the bonds and coupons they held at the time of the bringing 46 of these suits ?

A. I have not.

Cross examination closed.

Re-direct examination by Mr. ANDREWS :

58 Q. At the time you wrote the communications to the public officers of the State of Tennessee, referred to in the cross-examination, were you not very largely interested in non-lien bonds of the State of Tennessee ?

A. I was.

RESPONDENT'S EXHIBIT No. 1. 73

W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.

New York, Dec. 15, '77.

Gov. Jas. D. Porter, Nashville, Tenn.

Dear Sir:—I telegraphed you Dec. 11th, and again to-day. I feel it my duty to further say: That while I fully recognize and sympathise with the financial distress of Tenn., yet I cannot entirely disregard my own embarrassment and that of my fellow bondholders. 74

I represent one of the many estates which purchased Tenn. bonds at a time when her credit stood high, and none feared that she would do aught to lower it. We now offer liberally to share half of the loss. Speaking for one (and I believe that I express the sentiment of the majority) I cannot discount my just claim at better than 50 and 6 per cent. (fifty per cent. of old bonds and interest due changeable for new bonds bearing six per cent. interest) nor can I yet believe that the Legislature of 75 Tenn. will force her creditors (who have offered so liberally) to take less.

Allow me to call your attention to a fact of which you may not be aware. John T. McKinnon speaks for (if he has not already overstepped his instructions) a self-appointed syndicate. It is well-known that the syndicate own few, if any, of the bonds. They do not represent the bondholders. In fact the bondholders denounce their interference and mercenary motives. This self-constituted syndicate 76 does not seek only to improve and promote the best interests of the South. Its sympathy would seem to be quite as much with itself. With a subscribed capital of only ten thousand dollars, it aims to increase it by levying a regular broker's commission on the already over-burdened bondholders.

As a sovereign State your unfortunate creditors

77 appeal to you to act as becomes your dignified position—to deal directly with bondholders, to treat as discreditable impertinence, this interference of a self-appointed syndicate, that speaks without the authority of your creditors, and whose misrepresentations and mercenary motives they generally denounce.

Very respectfully,
THE ESTATE OF CALVIN STEVENS,
C. AMORY STEVENS, Trustee.

RESPONDENT'S EXHIBIT No. 2.

W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.

December 11, 1877.

GOVERNOR JAS. D. PORTER, Nashville, Tennessee :

I am a large holder of Tennessee bonds, which have been held for years strictly for investment 79 account. I was a signer of the former petition sent you through the Committee of Arbitration, and while I would prefer to have that proposition accepted, yet if it would require a revenue bill that is deemed by the Legislature to be higher than the State can afford to pay without seriously retarding the prosperity of the people, I prefer to change the original offer, and hereby do change it. I propose to take fifty cents on the dollar.

I think this dispatch represents the sentiment of 80 most of the investment holders. They recognize the embarrassed condition of the State, growing out of the war, and are willing to meet the situation in a spirit of liberality, and now ask the Legislature, through your Excellancy, to reciprocate this feeling, and make a settlement without further delay. Please submit this to the Legislature for its action.

The Estate of Calvin Stevens.

5 (Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.)

1 Q. Are you one of the complainants in these causes?

A. I believe I am.

2 Q. Are you an owner and holder of Tennessee bonds.

A. Yes, sir.

(Witness produces 21 bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued to and sold by the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Co.

Also nine bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued to and sold by the East Tennessee & 7 Georgia Railroad Co.

Also three bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued to and sold by the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad Co.

Also 16 bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued to and sold by the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Co.)

Direct examination closed.

Adjourned to Oct. 14, 1879, 2 P. M.

4 x Q. How long have you owned the bonds you have here produced in evidence ?

A. Can't tell very well. I have owned some of them since 1859—1857-8 or '59 I think the oldest. I bought I don't know how many—probably fifty—within the last two years. I have over three hundred bonds altogether. I don't know whether these are among the fifty or not, probably some of them are. I have been trying to get the old bonds 10 when I bought.

5 x Q. The bonds you have purchased during the last two years were bought how ?

A. They were bought at the Stock Exchange.

6 x Q. When you made these purchases at the Stock Exchange did you make them in person or through a broker ?

A. Through a broker.

7 x Q. Did you instruct him by by oral orders or written ? 11

A. By oral orders.

8 x Q. What were those oral orders, as well as you can recollect ?

A. To buy old Tennessee bonds.

9 x Q. Did you know what were the numbers of the bonds, or for what purpose they were issued until after the broker delivered them to you ?

A. I bought them with the intention of buying bonds that were liens on railroads. I knew very well that if he bought old Tennessee bonds he would 12 buy bonds that were liens on the roads. I told him to buy bonds issued under the act of 1851-2, because I was always told that that was the act that made the bonds liens. I did not know the numbers till I got them.

10 x Q. Who were the brokers that bought the fifty bonds or so for you during the last two years ?

13 A. Mr. Lawrence, our broker, bought some, and a Mr. Ketchum bought some.

11 x Q. Are these gentlemen brokers in the city now?

A. Yes, sir.

12 x Q. Do I understand you, Mr. Kelly, to say that you gave your brokers any further instructions than simply to buy old Tennessee bonds?

A. That was all. I may have named the price.

13 x Q. As to the bonds bought by you more than 14 two or three years ago, did you or not buy them also through brokers?

A. Some of them.

14 x Q. Did not the State of Tennessee default in the payment of the interest coupons attached to the old bonds owned by you during the war?

A. It did.

15 x Q. Did you ever present or claim payment of any of said coupons from a railroad?

A. Never; that is, no formal demand until this 15 suit.

16 x Q. Did you not fund these coupons and register the bonds under the funding act of 1873?

A. I paid the charge exacted by some Tennessee official for having the bonds registered and the coupons funded into new bonds.

17 x Q. Have you not entered into a contract with Calvin Amory Stevens and others embodying the terms on which these suits are to be prosecuted?

16 A. I never had any contract with Mr. Stevens personally.

18 x Q. Have you made such a contract with other persons?

A. I agreed to pay my share of the expenses with other parties.

19 x Q. Is that contract in writing?

A. I will see, and answer to-morrow.

(Two papers produced and marked Respts Exhibits 1 and 2.—W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.) 17

20 x Q. Did you sign a paper with E. D. Morgan & Co., Geddes, and others, to Gov. Porter, asking him to call a special session of the Legislature?

A. I did not; but I went to Nashville during the recent session of the Legislature to effect a compromise with the State.

21 x Q. Please produce and file a list of the bonds of Tennessee you own, as well as those you have 18 proved as those you have not?

A. I will see my counsel in relation to it, and I will produce and file it.

22 x Q. Did you not know while the Tennessee roads were buying up the Tennessee State bonds to settle their debt with the State under the acts of 1869 and of 1870, that they were so buying? 19

A. I did not know.

23 x 2. Did you not have some of the new substitution bonds of any of the companies offered to you?

A Not to my knowledge; and I never bought one.

EUGENE KELLY.

Subscribed and sworn before me, this 14th day of October, 1879. 20

RESPONDENT'S EXHIBIT NO. 2.—W. H. D. L., Sp'l. Ex'r. 49

OFFICE OF COMMITTEE OF TENNESSEE BONDHOLDERS,
No. 31 Nassau Street.

P. O. Box 936. NEW YORK, May 17, 1879.

To the Holders of Tennessee Bonds:

In our last circular we informed you that the committee was considering the best means for enforcing our first mortgage liens against the railroads in Ten- 50 nessee. After full deliberation, with advice of counsel, and with the approval of the following prominent houses interested: Brown Brothers & Co., Maitland, Phelps & Co., Ward, Campbell & Co.; and of the Presidents of the Seaman's Savings Bank, and the Globe Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York; and of large individual holders in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chicago, we have decided to adopt the suits lately instituted by Mr. C. Amory Stevens. Prompt action on the part 51 of the bondholders will enable us to bring these suits to trial during the ensuing summer.

It may be well for us to give some of the considerations that make us confident of a successful enforcement of the lien conferred on our bonds by the distinct language of the Tennessee Statutes. While Tennessee bonds of the new issue were being offered for sale in behalf of the railroads of the State, S. Watson, "agent for the State of Tennessee," addressed the following argument to the pub- 52 lic, which was printed in pamphlet form in 1868:

"The important question for the bondholder now
" is, What security have I for the payment of the " principal and interest of my bond? The State " debt proper is only about four millions. The " railroads and all their rolling stock are mortgaged
" to the State to secure the payment of bonds

53 “ loaned. This mortgage, as bondholders must “ know, enures to their benefit. For the payment “ of twenty-nine million bonds, which will be the “ entire amount of bonds issued to the roads, including “ those that may be issued under the recent “ Act of the Legislature, the bondholders have
“ as security roads which, when completed, will be “ nearly two thousand miles in length, and which “ will be worth fully seventy million dollars. In “ addition to that, they have the whole resources
54 “ of the State solemnly pledged to them.”

Again, in 1868, when the Legislature of Tennessee sought to impair our securities, Gov. Brownlow, then chief executive, sent a message to that body remonstrating against the proposed measures in the following emphatic language:

“ The State, in point of honor and fact, holds the “ lien in a fiduciary capacity. She holds it in trust
“ for the benefit of the bondholders. She honorably “ has no right to abandon it or surrender it to 55 “ the companies. She ought not to prove faithless
“ in this trust, but maintain and execute it as the “ bondholders understood it and as the people of “ the State understood it. The bondholders are interested “ in these resources to pay the bonds they “ hold, and the people are interested in them to see
“ that they are not to be taxed to pay interest or “ principal of bonds for which the railroads are “ pledged by the terms of the law.”

The assurance of our rightful legal claims against 56 the railroads is strongly fortified by the following facts:

In April, 1878, the committee addressed a circular to the bondholders notifying them that it was about to enforce this lien. We petitioned to be heard in the Mobile and Ohio case then pending on appeal before the Supreme Court of the United States. In that suit the question whether or not the holders of Tennessee bonds had a first mortgage 57

lien upon railroads in that State, was clearly presented. The cause was fully argued by several counsel for the railroad company as well as by our counsel, and the Court took the case under advisement. Some time after, while we were confidently awaiting a decision in our favor, we were surprised to learn that the railroad company had settled the case with the party to the record in that suit—that stipulations had been filed in the office of the Clerk of the Supreme Court—that copies had been sent to 58
the several Judges of the Supreme Court—and, in short, that everything had been done by the railroad officials which it was possible to do to forestall a decision in the case. As we were not actual parties to that cause, we could not control the matter in any way so as to prevent a settlement. But, surely, we could not require any stronger evidence that the railroad companies were convinced of their own defeat. Otherwise they would have gladly welcomed a decision which would have relieved 59
their property from the burden of this lien, and would have done everything in their power to have secured a final adjudication in their favor instead of preventing a decision.

We call your special attention to the accompanying opinion of Mr. Charles O'Conor. It was given under a deep sense of moral responsibility in course of advice sought by a bondholder to enable him to determine whether or not to embark in a litigation against the railroads. A letter signed by Messrs. 60
Evarts, Southmayd & Choate, in which it is stated that they have not time to prepare an opinion against us, has been circulated in the interest of the railroads. That letter bases its conclusions on the Minnesota case, which, we are informed by Mr. O'Conor, bears in our favor so far as it is at all applicable to the Tennessee case. It is sufficient to 61 add that Mr. Southmayd, of the above firm, urged, before the Supreme Court, that same decision in the Minnesota case as a precedent in favor of his clients; but the effect was not convincing enough to induce those clients to refrain from a settlement of the case as before stated.

We append a list of roads on which Tennessee State bonds are first mortgage liens, and the amount of bonds outstanding against each road.

On which there is accrued 23 per cent. interest	2,678,810	67
Total due	$14,325,710

Bondholders will please note that "New" bonds, issued to Tennessee railroads, and "Funding Series" bonds, not included in the above list, issued in payment of interest which accrued on railroad bonds under the Funding Acts of 1866, 1868 and 1873, are also statutory liens upon the railroads.

The members of the committee are owners to a large amount of bonds that are not liens on the railroads, which they do not propose to fund into the 50 and 4 per cent. bonds offered. They believe that the enforcement of the railroad liens will bring about a much better settlement than is now proposed. It is our duty to inform you that the legality of the proposed issue of the new 4 per cent. com- 68

69 promise bonds is already questioned in Tennessee, for want of sufficient acceptances to authorize the submission of the proposed settlement to popular vote, as required by the Act of the last General Assembly.

Holders of North Carolina State bonds, issued in aid of the North Carolina Railroad Company, will recollect how that State made an unsuccessful attempt to deprive such bondholders of the lien originally 70 intended for their security. A like attempt in the State of Indiana, in the case of the Wabash and Erie Canal, was also unsuccessful, and the lien decided in favor of the bondholders.

Bondholders wishing to secure the benefits resulting from this litigation can do so on the following conditions, to wit: by depositing with the committee five dollars per lien bond in cash, and one past due coupon from each bond of that description.
This will be required to defray the necessary costs 71 and expenses of the litigation. In no event will the bondholders be called upon for any further assessment, nor do they incur any personal liability by uniting in this plan. Should any surplus funds remain in the hands of the committee after all expenditures have been provided for the same will be returned to bondholders pro rata. Those who do not comply with the aforesaid conditions will be excluded from the benefits derived from the action of the committee. A certificate will be issued to each assenting 72 bond, entitling it to any and all advantages resulting from these legal proceedings, and specifying the railroad company bound for the payment of the bond. An arrangement for calling these certificated bonds for dealings in them on the New York Stock Exchange will be made.

When it is considered that the enforcement of these liens should make the great mass of the internal improvement bonds worth par and accrued interest, or 123 per cent., the advisability of the course which we have adopted cannot be reasonably doubted. Your signature to the enclosed assent, stating color, number and serial letter of each of your bonds is requested before June 10th. Upon receipt by the committee of the assents of a sufficient number of bonds, the holders will be notified of the issue of the certificates to be attached to the lien bonds. We propose to engage as counsel Chas. O'Conor and E. L. Andrews, of New York, and George Hoadly, of Cincinnati. to be assisted by competent counsel at Memphis, Nashville, Knoxville and Louisville. 73 74

(Certificate of said white bonds is hereto annexed, marked "Compl't's Exhibit No. 1, 7 W. H. D'L., Sp'l Ex'r.")

(Certificate of said green bonds is hereto annexed, marked "Compl't's Exhibit No. 2, W. H. D'L., Sp'l Ex'r.")

(Certified copies of receipts given by the railroad companies to the State for bonds are offered in evidence, and marked as Complainant's Exhibits, and filed, under a stipulation 8 of counsel, separately.)

Direct examination closed.

Cross-examination by MR. HUMES:

It is stipulated and agreed by both parties that, as to any bonds proved by Mr. Terry, issued after the Act of 1860, the numbers to include them shall be restored in the bill as 9 originally printed.

E. L. ANDREWS,
Sol'r for Compl'ts.
W. Y. C. HUMES,
Sol'r for Def't.

4 x Q. From whom, and at what date and price, did you purchase bonds Nos. 3,672, 3,673 and 3,866, Green B, dated 1 Jan'y, 1868?

A. Seven or eight years ago. All these bonds cost at the prices in the Exhibits which I will furnish. I will examine, and, if I can, give the exact dates and prices.

(Paper produced, marked "Resp't's Exhibit No. 1, W. H. D'L., Sp'l Ex'r.")

5 x Q. Same question as to Nos. 719, 3,515, 4,237. 11
White B.

A. Same answer.

6 x Q. Are you not a member of the firm of E.D. Morgan & Co., and did you not buy these bonds on account of the firm?

A. I am, and did so buy them, and also on account of the firm of J. S. Morgan & Co., of London.

7 x Q. Before Gov. Morgan, a member of your firm, went to Europe in 1873, did you not sell out 12 entirely your Tennessee bonds, and did you not purchase these Tennessee bonds after he went to Europe, or since?

A. When Gov. Morgan was in the Senate of the United States, he wrote us that he had conferred with the members of Congress and senators, and, also, I think, with Andrew Johnson, of 13 Tennessee, and that he had a very high opinion of Tennessee bonds, in consequence of which we became purchasers of Tennessee bonds. This was while he was in the Senate—his term, I think was from 1863 to 1869. We sold out these bonds, and bought bonds and have owned them more or less ever sinc.

The bonds we now hold were bought from January, 1873 to August, 1873. We also bought some in March and April, 1875. According to my best 14 recollection we have not sold a single bond since 1873, except as appears from the Exhibits. We sold twenty new bonds and bought twenty old bonds which do not appear on the Exhibit. The firm of E. D. Morgan & Co. bought these.

8 x Q. Do you know whether E. D. Morgan & Co. had a correspondence with Gov. Porter in 1876-77?

A. I do. I think I wrote the letters and telegrams.

15 9 x Q. Did you sign a proposition signed by some twenty or thirty other bondholders and agents of bondholders addressed to Gov. Porter of Tennessee, dated either in December, 1876, or January or February, 1877, requesting him to submit a proposal therein contained to the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee of compromise in respect to the bonds you have now proved in these cases, and others that you then may have had?

16 (Objected to as not the best evidence, and immaterial.)

A. I have an impression that I did, but I cannot answer the question fully without seeing the document itself.

10 x Q. Are the bonds you have now sued upon all the bonds you purchased in 1873-75?

(Objected to because other property belonging to the witness not in these suits has no relevancy or materiality to the case.) 17

A. No, sir. I wish they were.

11 x Q. Were not the other bonds you purchased in 1873–5 bonds issued by the State of Tennessee for purely State purposes and not to railroads, and did you not buy them at the same price at the same date ?

A. I supposed all these bonds were liens on railroads, and was deceived. I think I, or my firm, or any one I am interested in have very few bonds except those issued to or for railroads. 18 12 x Q. Please furnish the numbers of all the bonds which you purchased in 1873–75, and full description showing which are railroad bonds and which are not ?

A. I will, if I can.

Adjourned to October 11th, 10:30 A. M. 19

NEW YORK, Oct. 11, 10:30 A. M.

Present—Counsel as before.

Cross-examination resumed :

Witness produces and files with his deposition the Exhibits called for in the last question.

13 x Q. What was the mode of selling and buying bonds in 1873–74–75 ?

A. According to my recollection, in 1873, bonds were sold as State bonds without any regard to their issue, but I am not quite sure whether they were not sold as old or new bonds at that time.

21 14 x Q. What was the distinction between old and new bonds ?

A. I should say that the old bonds were antebellum bonds.

15 x Q. Is it not a fact that the old bonds were distinguished from the new bonds by having several unpaid coupons attached to each of them which the new did not have ?

A. I am unable to give an intelligent answer to that question.

22 16 x Q. When bonds were sold at the Board of Brokers, please state fully and minutely the mode of bringing them before the Board for sale, and of selling them, and of their delivery ?

A. I never was in the Board in my life ; I cannot therefore answer the question. We buy through brokers, and they bring them in and we pay for them ; we are not brokers.

17 x Q. Did you buy the bonds contained in your Exhibit through brokers or not ?

23 A. We bought them all through brokers except the 74 which were funded.

18 x Q. In giving your order to the brokers how was it expressed ?

A. I don't think it was ever given in writing ; we gave verbal orders sometimes to buy old and sometimes new bonds.

19 x Q. Did you or any member of your firm ever see the the bonds purchased until they were delivered by the brokers ?

24 A. No, sir.

20 x Q. Did you ever designate any particular Tennessee railroad of those shown on your Exhibit, in directing your brokers to purchase Tennessee bonds ?

A. We did not and could not, as bonds are not sold in that way at the Board ?

21 x Q. How are they sold at the Board ?

A. They are sold as old and new bonds, and new series. 25

22 x Q. Then the purchaser cannot tell what bonds he is to get under his purchases at the Board until they are delivered ?

A. He cannot.

23 x Q. Were not all of yours purchased at the Board ?

A. Yes, sir ; I believe they were, except the funded bonds which we funded ourselves.

24 x Q. Please give me the names of the brokers who purchased your bonds ? 26

A. I cannot ; we have no record of the brokers from whom we purchased bonds that I recollect of. We give a broker an order for bonds—say fifty, and he delivers them, and we pay for them. It is possible our book-keeper may be able to tell. I can't tell from whom we bought a single bond.

25 x Q. How and when did you ascertain the railroads to whom the bonds were issued that are contained in your Exhibit ? 27

A. I ascertained from Peter Geddes' clerk ; Mr. Robinson, the Secretary of Com. of Tennessee bondholders had the list ; he did so within the last two or three years.

26 x Q. When was the Committee of Tennessee bondholders first organized ?

A. Three or four years ago this past summer.

27 x Q. Have you made an agreement with Calvin Amory Stevens and others, embodying the terms upon which these suits are to be prosecuted ; if yea, is that agreement in writing ? 28

Complainants' counsel asks what respondents' counsel proposes to show.

The witness not having answered this question, it is agreed by counsel on both 29 sides to refer this question to Judge Blatchford, as to its legality under the above objection. Until this is decided the cross-examination is suspended.

Re-direct-examination by Mr. Andrews:

28 Q. Did you become the individual owner of the bonds you have proved before the Examiner by purchase from the firm of E. D. Morgan & Co?

A. I did.

30 29 Q. When your firm of E. D. Morgan & Co. and yourself became the owners of Tennessee bonds were you not aware that they were first mortgage liens upon railroads in that State?

(Respondent's counsel objects as illegal and incompetent, because it is leading, and because it asks for a legal opinion from the witness.)

A. We were so informed by the Treasurer of the State of Tennessee in our office.

30 Q. When your firm and yourself became purchasers of Tennessee bonds, what security for the payment of those bonds and the interest thereon did you believe you were acquiring by such purchases?

A. I supposed the railroads would pay the amount 32 into the State, and we should receive it from the State, the State making good any deficiency.

31 Q. What security on property did you think you were acquiring by such purchases?

A. The security of the railroads—first mortgages.

32 Q. In answer to the question relating to the letter to Governor Porter you stated that you thought the firm of E. D. Morgan & Co. might have been one of the signers of that letter; did you not 33 have conferences with R. T. Wilson on the subject of that communication and the proposed compromise then pending?

A. I did.

33 Q. Is this the same R. T. Wilson who is an officer of the Tennessee railroad?

A. Yes, that is the gentleman.

34 Q. Mr. Wilson was very active in efforts to procure the Tennessee bondholders to surrender their bonds and accept a new obligation from the 34
State of Tennessee, was he not?

> (Respt's counsel objects as incompetent and illegal because it is leading and not proper on re-examination.)

A. If you mean to ask me if Mr. Wilson was very active in endeavoring to procure a settlement with the State, I answer he was.

35 Q. Was he not also very active in procuring the bondholders to enter into the arrangement de- 35 scribed in my previous question?

> (Same objection.)

A. He wanted to have us all agree to a compromise, if that is what you mean.

36 Q. What did you understand was the interest of R. T. Wilson in his anxiety to induce the Tennessee bondholders to surrender their present holdings and accept other bonds of the State of Tennes- 36 see?

A. I inferred that the object was a desire to have the railroads relieved from their obligations on the bonds.

> (Respt's counsel objects to answer as illegal and incompetent.)

37 37 Q. Did you state anything to R. T. Wilson about the time of his efforts to carry through the settlement above referred to, in reference to the liens of Tennessee bonds on railroads in that State, and if you stated anything, what?

A. I can't state exactly what I said to him, but we had a conversation on the subject. I expressed the opinion that the bondholders might bring a suit against the roads, to which he replied: "That ends
it; I would have nothing to do with the matter 38 further," or words to that effect. That is, if the suits were brought, he would have nothing more to do with us in attempting to effect a compromise with the State.

38 Q. Was it not about this time that you had the written opinion of one of the most distinguished lawyers in Tennessee to the effect that Tennessee bonds were made paramount liens on railroads by statutes of that State?

39 (Respt's counsel objects, because it calls for incompetent, hearsay, as well as secondary evidence, and also as leading.)

A. I think it was.

Re-cross examination by Mr. Humes:

39 x Q. Who was the Tennessee treasurer with whom you had the conversation in your office, and when was it?

A. My impression is his name was Morrow, and 40 he had some Tennessee bonds for sale. This was previous to these purchases in 1873, to the best of my rocollection. It was since the war. The conversation with Mr. Wilson, which I have testified to, took place about the time of the letter to Governor Porter, in '76 or '77.

Adjourned to Oct. 17, 1879.

OCTOBER 17, 1879. 41

40 x Q. Will you now answer cross-question 27, just read to you by the Examiner?

A. I produce two papers which embody the agreement.

Papers marked in evidence,
Resp'ts. Exhibit No. 3, W. H. D. L., Spl, Exr.
" " " 4, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.

42

41 x Q. Are those two papers the agreement you signed?

A. I believe they are copies of them; correct copies of them.

42 x Q. Is that agreement embodied in these two papers, the only one that you have entered into for the prosecution of these suits?

A. We have entered into no contract which includes the payment of all our counsel.

43 x Q. I ask again, whether the foregoing Exhibits contain the only agreement that you have made for the prosecution of these suits? 43

(Compl'ts' counsel objects to the question as immaterial and irrelevant, and he objects to any answer, and consents to waive subpœna and to go before Judge Blatchford on the validity of the question.)

A. Under advice of counsel I decline to answer.

44 x Q. Did you join in the preparation of that paper and sign the name of E. D. Morgan and Co. to it? 44

A. I cannot answer that question, but I admit E. D. Morgan & Co., signed it, some one of the firm.

(This paper is the same as annexed to deposition of Peter Geddes, as Respondents'

45 Exhibit No. 1, and it is consented that it need, not be attached to this deposition.)

45 x Q. Did a member of the firm of E. D. Morgan & Co. sign the letter now shown you of Feby. 23, 1877, addressed to his Excellency, James D. Porter, Governor of Tennessee ?

A. I recognize the signature as that of my partner. I think I was temporarily absent in Cuba at the time.

46 46 x Q. On the bonds which you held prior to 1873 were there not attached a number of unpaid coupons, I mean on the old Tennessee Sixes ?

A. I think there were.

47 x Q. Did your firm or you ever claim, demand or present for payment any of these unpaid coupons (while you held them) to any railroad Co. ?

A. No, sir ; I think not.

48 x Q. Were you not aware that the railroads were negotiating for State bonds, and attempting 47 to sell their own to purchase State bonds to make settlements of their debts to the State while these negotiations were progressing ?

A. I was not.

49 x Q. When in the spring of 1870, the East Tennessee Va. & Ga., Railroad Co. were endeavoring to purchase State bonds with which to pay their debt to the State, were you not aware or in formed of it ?

A. I was not ; never knew they bought a bond.

48 50 x Q. Were you not informed or aware of this same company's efforts in New York City, through the Stock Exchange, of New York, and other parties to sell their substitution bonds ?

A. I was not, and never knew they had a bond out on the road till within a few weeks. Never heard of it.

109 RESPONDENT'S EXHIBIT NO. 4.—W. H. D. L., Sp'l. Ex'r.

OFFICE OF COMMITTEE OF
TENNESSEE BONDHOLDERS,
No. 31 Nassau Street.

P. O. Box 936. NEW YORK, May 17, 1879.

To the Holders of Tennessee Bonds:

In our last circular we informed you that the committee was considering the best means for enforcing 110 our first mortgage liens against the railroads in Tennessee.
After full deliberation, with advice of counsel, and with the approval of the following prominent houses interested: Brown Brothers & Co., Maitland, Phelps & Co., Ward, Campbell & Co.; and of the Presidents of the Seaman's Savings Bank, and the Globe Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York; and of large individual holders in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chicago, we have decided to adopt the suits lately instituted by 111 Mr. C. Amory Stevens. Prompt action on the part of the bondholders will enable us to bring these suits to trial during the ensuing summer.

It may be well for us to give some of the considerations that make us confident of a successful enforcement of the lien conferred on our bonds by the distinct language of the Tennessee Statutes. While Tennessee bonds of the new issue were being offered for sale in behalf of the railroads of the State, S. Watson, "agent for the State of Tennes-112 see," addressed the following argument to the public, which was printed in pamphlet form in 1868:

"The important question for the bondholder now "is, What security have I for the payment of the "principal and interest of my bond? The State "debt proper is only about four millions. The "railroads and all their rolling stock are mortgaged "to the State to secure the payment of bonds

" loaned. This mortgage, as bondholders must 113
" know, enures to their benefit. For the payment
" of twenty-nine million bonds, which will be the " entire amount of bonds issued to the roads, in" cluding those that may be issued under the recent
" Act of the Legislature, the bondholders have
" as security roads which, when completed, will be
" nearly two thousand miles in length, and which " will be worth fully seventy million dollars. In " addition to that, they have the whole resources
" of the State solemnly pledged to them." 114

Again, in 1868, when the Legislature of Tennessee sought to impair our securities, Gov. Brownlow,
then chief executive, sent a message to that body
remonstrating against the proposed measures in the following emphatic language:

" The State, in point of honor and fact, holds the
" lien in a fiduciary capacity. She holds it in trust
" for the benefit of the bondholders. She honor" ably has no right to abandon it or surrender it to
" the companies. She ought not to prove faithless 115
" in this trust, but maintain and execute it as the
" bondholders understood it and as the people of " the State understood it. The bondholders are in" terested in these resources to pay the bonds they
" hold, and the people are interested in them to see
" that they are not to be taxed to pay interest or
" principal of bonds for which the railroads are
" pledged by the terms of the law."

The assurance of our rightful legal claims against the railroads is strongly fortified by the following 116
facts:

In April, 1878, the committee addressed a circular to the bondholders notifying them that it was about to enforce this lien. We petitioned to be heard in the Mobile and Ohio case then pending on appeal before the Supreme Court of the United States. In that suit the question whether or not

117 the holders of Tennessee bonds had a first mortgage lien upon railroads in that State, was clearly presented. The cause was fully argued by several counsel for the railroad company as well as by our counsel, and the Court took the case under advisement. Some time after, while we were confidently awaiting a decision in our favor, we were surprised to learn that the railroad company had settled the case with the party to the record in that suit—that stipulations had been filed in the office of the Clerk 118 of the Supreme Court—that copies had been sent to the several Judges of the Supreme Court—and, in short, that everything had been done by the railroad officials which it was possible to do to forestall a decision in the case. As we were not actual parties to that cause, we could not control the matter in any way so as to prevent a settlement. But,
surely, we could not require any stronger evidence that the railroad companies were convinced of their own defeat. Otherwise they would have gladly 119 welcomed a decision which would have relieved their property from the burden of this lien, and would have done everything in their power to have secured a final adjudication in their favor instead of preventing a decision.

We call your special attention to the accompanying opinion of Mr. Charles O'Conor. It was given under a deep sense of moral responsibility in course of advice sought by a bondholder to enable him to determine whether or not to embark in a litigation 120 against the railroads. A letter signed by Messrs.
Evarts, Southmayd & Choate, in which it is stated that they have not time to prepare an opinion against us, has been circulated in the interest of the railroads. That letter bases its conclusions on the Minnesota case, which, we are informed by Mr.
O'Conor, bears in our favor so far as it is at all applicable to the Tennessee case. It is sufficient to add that Mr. Southmayd, of the above firm, urged, before the Supreme Court, that same decision in the Minnesota case as a precedent in favor of his clients; but the effect was not convincing enough to induce those clients to refrain from a settlement of the case as before stated. 121

We append a list of roads on which Tennessee State bonds are first mortgage liens, and the amount of bonds outstanding against each road.

East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad, leased lines and branches: 122

126 New Orleans, St. Louis & Chicago Railroad on account Mississippi Central and Tennessee Railroad	480,000
Knoxville & Ohio Railroad Company on account of Knoxville & Kentucky Railroad	514,000
The above amounts and some issues to smaller roads make an aggregate of railroad issues made by the State of Tennessee, and which are still outstanding	11,647,000
127 On which there is accrued 23 per cent. interest	2,678,810
Total due	$14,325,710

Bondholders will please note that "New" bonds, issued to Tennessee railroads, and "Funding Series" bonds, not included in the above list, issued in payment of interest which accrued on railroad bonds under the Funding Acts of 1866, 1868 and 1873, are also statutory liens upon the railroads.

128 The members of the committee are owners to a large amount of bonds that are not liens on the railroads, which they do not propose to fund into the 50 and 4 per cent. bonds offered. They believe that the enforcement of the railroad liens will bring about a much better settlement than is now proposed. It is our duty to inform you that the legality of the proposed issue of the new 4 per cent. compromise bonds is already questioned in Tennessee, for want of sufficient acceptances to authorize the submission of the proposed settlement to popular vote, as required by the Act of the last General Assembly.

Holders of North Carolina State bonds, issued in aid of the North Carolina Railroad Company, will recollect how that State made an unsuccessful attempt to deprive such bondholders of the lien originally intended for their security. A like attempt in the State of Indiana, in the case of the Wabash and Erie Canal, was also unsuccessful, and the lien decided in favor of the bondholders.

Bondholders wishing to secure the benefits resulting from this litigation can do so on the following conditions, to wit: by depositing with the committee five dollars per lien bond in cash, and one past due coupon from each bond of that description. This will be required to defray the necessary costs and expenses of the litigation. In no event will the bondholders be called upon for any further assessment, nor do they incur any personal liability by uniting in this plan. Should any surplus funds remain in the hands of the committee after all expenditures have been provided for the same will be returned to bondholders pro rata. Those who do not comply with the aforesaid conditions will be excluded from the benefits derived from the action of the committee. A certificate will be issued to each assenting bond, entitling it to any and all advantages resulting from these legal proceedings, and specifying the railroad company bound for the payment of the bond. An arrangement for calling these certificated bonds for dealings in them on the New York Stock Exchange will be made.

When it is considered that the enforcement of 133 these liens should make the great mass of the internal improvement bonds worth par and accrued interest, or 123 per cent., the advisability of the course which we have adopted cannot be reasonably doubted. Your signature to the enclosed assent, stating color, number and serial letter of each of your bonds is requested before June 10th. Upon receipt by the committee of the assents of a sufficient number of bonds, the holders will be notified of the issue of the certificates to be attached to the lien bonds. We 134 propose to engage as counsel Chas. O'Conor and E. L. Andrews, of New York, and George Hoadly, of Cincinnati. to be assisted by competent counsel at Memphis, Nashville, Knoxville and Louisville.

Cross examination by Mr. Humes:

4 x Q. You have produced 14 bonds issued by the State of Tennessee ; are these bonds your cwn 9 private property ?

A. They are.

5 x Q. When did you buy them ?

A. That I can't say.

6 x Q. Have you no idea as to the year in which you bought them ?

A. I think I have owned part of them since 1873. I think I have owned some of them since before past-due coupons were funded in 1874.

7 x Q. Did you fund those that you owned at the 10 time of the funding under the Act of 1873 ?

A. I funded no bonds, but funded the past-due coupons from the bonds I owned at that time.

8 x Q. How many bonds of the State of Tennessee did you own at that time ?

A. Twenty thousand.

9 x Q. Did you fund the coupons on them in person, or through an agent ; if so, then give the name of that agent ?

A. I funded the past due coupons from them in 11 person.

10 x Q. Did you also register the bonds at the time you funded the coupons ?

A. The bonds were audited and registered at that time.

11 x Q. How did you purchase the twenty thousand dollars of bonds above given ?

A. I purchased them on an order here in New York, sent from Chicago, where I was then living.

12 x Q. To whom was the order addressed ? 12

A. My impression is it was sent to Ward, Campbell & Co., who were brokers in New York then and now.

13 x Q. What did the order direct them to do ?

A. I suppose to buy Tennessee old bonds on my account.

13 14 x Q. Did you give them any particular directions as to what particular bonds to purchase ?

A. I think I directed them only to buy old bonds.

15 x Q. Did you limit the price ?

A. I fancy I did, but I don't recollect much about it.

16 x Q. At what time did you purchase them ?

A. I think it was after the passage of the funding Act of 1873, and before the funding of the past due coupons.

14 17 x Q. At what price did you buy them ?

A. Eighty per cent. of their par value.

18 x Q. When did you buy those of the bonds you have proved that you did not buy in 1873 ?

A. I may have bought all of these bonds in 1873 ; I can't tell now.

19 x Q. Have you not bought Tennessee bonds since 1873 ? If so, when ?

A. I have undoubtedly bought bonds since, but I can't tell exactly when ; I bought perhaps in 1874– 15 5–6.

20 x Q. When did you first obtain the information by which you ascertained that six of the bonds proved were issued to the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, six to the East Tennessee and Virginia, and two to the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroads ?

A. The first information that I had of the issues to the various railroads of Tennessee was derived from a statement published by Comptroller Penne-16 backer, of Tennessee, about 1870 ; as to when I first ascertained as to these particular bonds proved I cannot say.

21 x Q. Did you not ascertain it after you had purchased the bonds ?

A. Undoubtedly, yes, that is, after I purchased the first $20,000 ; as to the others I don't recollect.

22 x Q. Did you not buy those bonds which you purchased in 1874–5–6 at open sale at the Board of 17 Brokers ?

A. They were undobtedly bought on orders from me; whether at the Board of Brokers or not I cannot say.

23 x Q. What did those orders call for ?

A. They may have called for old Tennessee bonds or new Tennessee bonds or new series.

24 x Q. In any instance did you ever know the numbers of the bonds until they were delivered to you or your order ? 18

A. I may have known the numbers before I purchased them.

25 x Q. When you gave orders to buy did you specify particular numbers ?

A. In some instances the numbers were submitted to me before buying.

26 x Q. How about other instances ?

A. In others I bought them on orders without specifying numbers.

27 x Q. What did you specify in those orders. 19

A. What I desired to buy, either old bonds, new bonds or new series bonds, as I might wish to buy.

28 x Q. Do you own any other State of Tennessee bonds than those you have proved.

A. I do.

29 x Q. What amount ?

A. That I decline to answer.

30 x Q. Are they bonds issued for purely State purposes or loans to railroads ?

A. I believe all my bonds were issued to rail- 20 roads.

31 x Q. Have you not entered into an agreement with Calvin A. Stevens and others to prosecute these suits on terms set forth in that agreement, if yea, state those terms or produce the agreement ?

A. I have agreed with some others to prosecute

21 the suits, the terms of agreement I decline to give or to produce the agreement.

32 x Q. Did you not, on the 15th February, 1877, draw up with others, sign and forward to Gov. Porter, of Tennessee, the paper, a copy of which is now shown to you ?

A. That is my recollection.

33 x Q. Did you not write and forward the letter of Feb. 23d, 1877, here shown you ?

A. The penmanship is mine. The letter is from Geddes & Smith, and E. D. Morgan & Co. It was forwarded to Gov. Porter.

34 x Q. In whose handwritings are the signatures "Geddes & Smith," and "E. D. Morgan & Co.?"

A. "Geddes & Smith" is in my handwriting. 23 "E. D. Morgan and Co." I cannot say in whose.

35 x Q. Who procured E. D. Morgan & Co's. signature ?

A. That I can't say. I don't recollect whether I procured it or whether the letter was the joint work of Geddes & Smith, or E. D. Morgan & Co.

(Certified copy of the letter to Gov. Porter offered in evidence and marked "Respts. Exhibit, No. 2. W. H. D. L., Spl. Ex'r.)"

24

36 x Q. I now show you four letters dated respectively New York, August 1, August 23, August 27, August 29, 1877, signed P. Geddes, addressed to Hon. James L. Gaines, Nashville, Tennessee ; are they not all in your own handwriting, and did you not forward them by mail to Mr. Gaines, Comptroller of Tennessee ?

A. No, sir, not to Mr. Gaines, Comptroller of 25 Tennessee. The letter dated August 1, 1877, is addressed to Hon. James L. Gaines, Comptroller, Nashville, and marked "private." The letter dated August 23, 1877, is addressed to James L. Gaines, Comptroller; that of August 27, 1877, is addressed to Hon. James L. Gaines, Nashville, and marked "Private," and that of August 29, 1877, is addressed to Hon. James L. Gaines, Nashville. They are all in my handwriting and were forwarded.

26

[Certified copies are offered in evidence and marked "Respts. Exhibits 3, 4, 5, 6," respectively. W. H. D. L., Sp'l Ex'r.]

Cross-examination adjourned to 14th October, 3 P. M.

37 x Q. Did you not, while R. T. Wilson was negotiating for the purchase of State bonds in 1877 to pay off the Memphis & Charleston R. R. debt to the State of Tennessee, urge him repeatedly to com- 27
plete the purchase of the bonds and finish this settlement with the State?

A I don't know that Mr. Wilson was negotiating for Tennessee bonds at that time for that purpose. I had several interviews with Mr. Wilson about the time that the extra session of the Legislature of Tennessee was called. Mr. Wilson professed to be very desirous that a compromise of the debt of Tennessee should be effected. I was also willing to compromise with the State. At some of our inter- 28 views I may have suggested to Mr. Wilson that it would promote a compromise with the State of Tennessee if the Memphis & Charleston R. R. settled with the State, but I have no recollection of having urged him to make a settlement, on the contrary, refused to either sell or lend him bonds for that purpose.

29 38 x Q. Did not Mr. Wilson inform you at these interviews, or some of them, that he was then trying to obtain bonds of the State of Tennessee with which to make the settlement of said R. R. Co.'s debt to the State?

A. He probably did.

39 x Q. Did he not apply to you to buy or get $1,250,000 of the State bonds from you as agent for a Mr. Smith?

A. I think he did.

30 40 x Q. While the officers of the Mississippi Central road were negotiating for State bonds to settle the debt of that road to the State of Tennessee, did you not have personal interviews with Mr. Fish, Secretary of said Company, and speak approvingly of this settlement then in process of being made?

A. I have no recollection of anything of the sort.

41 x Q. Did you ever present any coupon attached to or from a bond of the State of Tennessee to any railroad company and demand payment of the 31 same?

A. I have never yet done so.

42 x Q. While the several railroads of Tennessee were purchasing bonds of the State with which to settle their debt to the State under the acts of 1869 and 1870, did you ever object, protest against, or oppose in any way said settlements. I include in this interrogatory those of the Memphis and Charleston, the Mississippi Central, and Mississippi and Tennessee railroad companies?

32 A. Not that I recollect of.

Re-direct examination by Mr. Andrews:

43 Q. State when, where and to what railroad officials of Tennessee you first expressed your assertion of the lien on the railroads belonging to Tennessee bonds?

A. I think first about 1872 or '73 to H. D. Newcomb, 33
President of the Louisville and Nashville R. R., in Louisville; I expressed the opinion that the Louisville and Nashville Company was liable for the outstanding Tennessee State bonds issued to it, and that the title of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company to the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company I was afraid was not good, the outstanding Tennessee State bonds issued to it being not all paid.

> (Respondent's counsel objects to the answer as hearsay, and wholly incompetent and illegal.)

44 Q. Who else, if anybody, was present at this interview?

A. After discussing the matter some time with Mr. Newcombe, he called in the attorney of the company, Russell Houston, I think, who produced what purported to be foreclosure proceedings 35 against the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Company, through which he claimed the Louisville and Nashville had derived a good title. I pointed out the fact that the debt had not become due, and that there was no provision for foreclosing until maturity.

> (Respondent's counsel objects to the answer as hearsay, and totally incompetent and illegal.) 36

45 Q. Have you not at all times appropriate insisted to the railroad officials of Tennessee with whom you came in contact that the bonds issued to their respective roads were first liens thereon, and that they would in all probability be sued for the enforcement of those liens?

37 (Objected to as incompetent and irrelevant and leading.)

A. I have repeatedly told officers of Tennessee roads that I believed Tennessee State bonds issued to them to be a first lien,and that they would probably be sued on account of them.

(Objected to as incompetent.)

38 46 Q. Have you not stated to the same effect to R. T. Wilson several years ago ?

A. I have emphatically said so to Mr. Wilson, but how many years ago I can't say.

47 Q. Were you present at some conferences between railroad officials and bondholders in New York City, at the time of the special session of the Legislature of Tennessee, in 1877, at which conferences R. T. Wilson was also present ?

39 A. I have no recollection of any conferences between railroad officials and bondholders at that time ?

48 Q. Were you present at a meeting about that time at which R. T. Wilson read a statement ?

A. I was during part of the time.

49 Q. Was not the subject of these railroad liens discussed at that meeting ?

A. I think not.

50 x Q. Do you now consent to answer cross-question 31 ?

A. Same answer as yesterday. I will state the terms. The terms upon which the suits are to be prosecuted are: The bondholders wishing to join shall contribute five dollars in cash for every lien bond, and also one past due coupon from each bond of that description. Every bondholder desiring to unite is required to sign this agreement. 41

(And also the plan upon which such agreement is based. Circular produced and marked "Respondent's Exhibit No. 8." W. H. D. L., Sp'l Ex'r.) 42

51 x Q. Have you stated fully the terms and stipulations of each and every contract and agreement which you have entered into with others to prosecute these suits?

A. I have stated fully the terms upon which the committee have agreed to prosecute these suits. The only agreement between them and the bondholders.

52 x Q. I repeat the question as not answered? 43

A. I want to know what you mean by prosecuting the suits?

53 x Q. I mean the conduct of the suits in the ordinary way suits are conducted by plaintiffs in Civil Courts?

A. That I don't understand either.

54 x Q. I repeat interrogatory 51. Have you stated fully the terms and stipulations of each and every contract which you have entered into with others to carry on these suits to a final hearing? 44

(Objected to because the witness has answered the question, because on a previous repetition the witness has asked for an explanation of its meaning, and because upon an explanation having been attempted the witness has stated that he did not under-

45 stand the explanation. Under these circumstances any answer is objected to.)

(Further objected to because counsel has stated that he has a copy of the contract he wishes to elicit, and could therefore afford the explanation the witness desires.

A. I have stated fully the terms upon which we have agreed to carry on these suits to a final hearing. 46

(It is agreed that the question shall be certified to Judge Blatchford for decision.

Adjourned to further notice.

47 PETER GEDDES re-called and examined by Mr. ANDREWS:

55 Q. At the time you wrote the letters to James D. Porter and James L. Gaines, referred to in your deposition, were you an owner of non-lien bonds of the State of Tennessee?

A. I was an owner at that time of what I believed to be non-lien bonds.

56 Q. Is the Mr. Smith of your firm of Geddes & Smith Mr. George Smith of London? 48

A. He is not.

Cross-examination by Mr. HUMES:

57 x Q. In your propositions to the Governor and Legislature of Tennessee for a compromise, and in your letters touching the same subject, did you confine the compromise, or express any limit to the bonds not issued to railroads. I mean the proposition of compromise which is exhibited with your deposition now being taken, and which proposition is dated February, 1877? 49

A. No.

58 x Q. Did you not approve of and sign the subsequent proposal for reducing the principal?

A. I think I did not sign it, I may have subsequently approved it.

59 x Q. In any correspondence or action of yours to produce a compromise, did you limit the terms to bonds not issued to railroads? 50

A. I think not.

60 x Q. Did you not, when you signed the proposition above mentioned, dated February 15, 1877, and your correspondence herewith filed, with Governor Porter and James L. Gaines, own Tennessee bonds issued to railroads, as well as those not issued?

A. I believed I owned some bonds issued to railroads. 51

61 x Q. Have you entered into any agreement or contract touching the prosecution of these suits with any persons other than the contracts you have already exhibited with this deposition?

A. Do you mean the contract with our counsel?

62 x Q. I mean with them or any other person or persons?

> (Objected to by counsel for complainants as to that portion which refers to counsel as immaterial and irrelevant, and any answer objected to in that respect until the Court can rule on the competency of the evidence.) 52

A. I decline to answer as to counsel. We had no agreement with any other person or persons other than that exhibited.

53 63 x Q. You say in your last answer that you have no agreement except those exhibited with any other person or persons; do you use the word person or persons in the above answer as excluding or including your counsel?

(Objected to upon the ground that the witness had declined te answer as to counsel.)

54 A. I decline to answer as to counsel, and as to other persons I have already answered.

(Counsel for defendants reserve the right to submit to the Court the competency of the questions declined to be answered by this witness.)

RESPONDENT'S EXHIBIT No. 1. 73

W. H. D. L., Spe'l Ex'r.

New York, February 15, 1877.

To his Excellency James D. Porter,
Governor of the State of Tennessee.

Sir : On the 26th of December last, we had the honor of addressing to your Excellency a letter on the disordered condition of the public debt of the State of Tennessee, of which we are owners and the 74 representatives of owners of a large amount, and of conveying to you in same an expression of our confidence and belief that a permanent adjustment of the debt on a basis equitable to the holders of it and honorable to the State was practicable, begging that your excellency would recommend to the Legislature to appoint a commission to come to this City and confer with the creditors of Tennessee, with the view of bringing about such an adjustment. 75

We now have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of communication to us severally, addressed by your Excellency, accompanied by a resolution of the Legislature of Tennessee, approved on the 27th January ultimo, in which the holders of the public debt of the State are invited to submit to the General Assembly, through your Excellency, propositions for an adjustment of said debt, and at the same time to most respectfully express to your Excellency, and through you to the Legislature and 76 people of Tennessee, our great regret and disappointment that the Legislature did not think it expedient to appoint a commission to come to New York to confer with the creditors of the State, for the purpose mentioned ; because such a conference we still believe would have developed a plan of adjustment that, while doing equity to the 77 creditors of Tennessee, would, by bringing her revenues and finances into harmonious and easy working order, restore her credit and again place it firmly on the high and solid ground it once occupied, offer encouragement to capital to seek employment within her borders in the development of her unsurpassed natural resources, and result in the greatest good to the people of the State generally, enabling them to transmit to posterity together with the good name which they had inherited, a heritage 78 far richer than had come down to them from their fathers.

We have carefully considered the liabilities and resources of Tennessee; we know that her great wealth of mine, field and forest are only in the infancy of development.

We know also how much the future development of the vast but now comparatively latent resources of the State depends upon a restoration of her credit and the re-establishing of her 79 financial system upon a sound basis; and knowing, moreover, that public creditors of the State would be benefited, in common with the people of Tennessee, by a restoration of her credit and by giving her a healthy fiscal system, we beg leave to submit to your excellency, and through you to the legislature and people of Tennessee, the following propositions as to what can be done by the people of Tennessee, with the co-operation of their public creditors, for the immediate adjustment of their 80 public debt and for its ultimate extinguishment in an easy, gradual and feasible way—a way which, if adopted, we feel very sure we hazard nothing in saying will be productive of the most beneficial results to the people of Tennessee.

It will be observed how essential to the success of the plan we submit for present adjustment and ultimate extinguishment of the debt will be the cordial co-operation of both debtor and creditor, and to what extent we propose that the public creditors of Tennessee shall contribute to its success. 81

We propose:

1st. That the revenue laws of the State shall be amended so that the collection of taxes may be assured at the time or times when they become due, and that at the smallest possible cost to the tax-payers.

2d. That the reforms proposed and recommended to the legislature by your excellency, in regard to the cost of county criminal prosecution, be enacted into a law.

3d. That the expense of the State Government be reduced to as low figures as is consistent with the maintenance of its dignity.

4th. That the present rate of taxation be maintained, and that the other sources of revenue be not diminished. 83

5th. That the State levy annually a special tax of one mill on the dollar of taxable property, the proceeds of which in every year, together with any surplus revenue, shall be used in the purchase, cancellation and destruction of the new issue of bonds which it is proposed herein to issue for existing bonds snd past-due coupons of July 1, 1877. 84

6th. That the Legislature pass a law authorizing the funding of all outstanding bonds of the State, of all past due coupons thereon, and of the coupons which will fall due on July 1, 1877, into new bonds of the State, bearing date July

> 1, 1877, and having fifty years to run to maturity, bearing interest for a period of five (5) years from their date at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum; for a second period of five (5) years thereafter, interest at the rate of four (4) per cent. per annum; for a period of five (5) years from the termination of the last mentioned period, interest at the rate of five (5) per cent. per annum, and thereafter and until maturity and payment, interest at the rate of six (6) per cent. per annum; interest on each bond to be payable semi-annually, on January 1 and July 1, in every year from and after its date, and the coupons evidencing it to be receivable by the State for all taxes and dues payable to the State, and bonds to be $100, $500, and $1,000 each.

The debt of the State, as may be readily ascertained, will be within her control and easy power to manage and protect from the start, if, as we sincerely hope may be the case, the plan herein outlined is availed of, and we may add that our aim has been to make it within the easy power of the people of Tennessee to avail of it.

As will be perceived by your Excellency, the Legislature and people of Tennessee, the public creditors of Tennessee in acquiescing in this proposed plan of co-operation between them and the people of Tennessee for restoring the credit of the State and ultimately extinguishing her public debt, will voluntarily relinquish about seven millions of their claims against Tennessee, an amount equal to about one-third of the entire amount of the public debt.

On the other hand we propose that the people of Tennessee adopt the easiest and simplest mode which we can conceive of for the ultimate extinguishment of their entire public debt, a mode which, while it will only produce the very moderate annual sum of $268,- 89 000 at the present low valuation of property, will, by its silent but sure work, pay off the debt completely, while by its operation it will so reduce the amount upon which, under this plan, interest will require to be paid, that at the expiry of each period for an advance in the rate, the reduced amount for which interest will have to be provided, and the certain increase in the value of property, will together work to make the present rate of taxation quite sufficient to meet all demands upon the 90

State.

During the first fifteen years of the currency of the proposed new issue of bonds, we estimate that the proposed special tax for its ultimate payment will pay off between five and six millions of dollars in bonds, allowing 20% of the tax for its collection, and the expense of buying bonds with the proceeds.

When it is considered that this can be accomplished at so small an annual charge to the people 91 of Tennessee, and that such certain beneficial results to them are sure to follow, we have the greatest confidence that their loyalty to Tennessee, their determination to preserve and perpetuate her honor and good name will be sufficient to induce them to make the manly effort to that end of unitedly raising a one-mill tax on their property annually.

We are quite well aware of the partial failure of the crops in Tennessee in the years 1873 and 1874, and of the depressed condition of business, and of 92 all industries in the State, but throughout the country there exists the same depression—stagnation.

In full recognition of this depression and stagnation, which there is every reason for believing will soon give place to better times, we have in the plan herein submitted for a re-arrangement of the finan-

93 ces of Tennessee made her obligations within her means and evident ability to meet now.

With the existing rate of taxation, and the proposed special tax for the extinguishment of the debt, which together will make a five-mill tax, it may not be improper to compare the rate of taxation in the States which border on Tennessee:

In Arkansas	the rate is	10	mills,
Mississippi	"	6½	"
Alabama,	"	7	"
94 Georgia,	"	5	"
North Carolina	"	3 3/10	"
South Carolina	"	12	"
Virginia	"	5	"
Kentucky	"	4½	"

In conclusion, we beg to express to your Excellency, and through you to the Legislature and people of the great State of Tennessee, our confidence that all will unite with us in this effort to make it
95 possible to avail of the proposed co-operation of the creditors of Tennessee to bring about so desirable a result as the re-establishment of the credit on a plan so favorable as we have herein outlined, and we have the honor to be

RESPONDENT'S EXHIBIT NO. 2.
W. H. D. L., Sp'l Ex'r. 100

New York, Feb. 23d, 1877.

His Excellency,
James D. Porter,
Governor of Tennessee:

Sir: We beg leave to call your attention to the enclosed telegram to the New York Herald, from

101 its Nashville correspondent, cut from this morning's issue of the Herald, and to confirm our dispatch to you of this morning by telegraph in relation thereto, as follows:

> "Proposition from large and influential New "York and Baltimore bondholders expressed to "you on Wednesday, and should be received to-"day. Bondholders here know nothing whatever "of a meeting or of resolutions reported in Herald "to-day as having been sent to you, and by you > 102 "transmitted to legislature, with a special message.
> "This may be a movement designed to destroy "or embarrass any proper adjustment."

No meeting of bondholders of Tennessee, so far as we are aware or can ascertain, has either been called or held in this city. Neither have we heard at any time of a purpose to call or hold such a meeting, nor of a purpose or desire on the part of real holders of Tennessee bonds to take any action 103 whatever, outside of what has been taken through and in the communication which we, with others, had the honor to address to you under date the 15th current. It could hardly be possible to call or hold a meeting here of Tennessee bondholders without our knowing or hearing about it. Such being the case, we thought it our duty to telegraph to your Excellency as we did this forenoon. It occurred to us that possibly an attempt to mislead your Excellency and the people of Tennessee as to the senti-
104 ments and wishes of the real holders of the indebtedness of the State had been made, akin to the attempt made last year to create a false impression, through a letter to the State Treasurer, to which the name of one of the Astors had been forged.

The debtors of the State, with all of which she has been extremely liberal, even to the injury of her own credit many here believe, are supposed to be antagonistic to the consummation of any plan for 105

the restoration of Tennessee credit now, the complete prostration of which, it is supposed, would be for their immediate pecuniary advantage. This view, if entertained by any of the debtors of the State, is unsound. For, with every decline in the credit of the State, their credit inevitably suffers.

But, to remove this cause of a real or apparent antagonism between the debtors and creditors of the State, and also to remove—which is of immediate and great importance—an 106 obstacle which is calculated to prevent or, at least, hinder the people of Tennessee and their public creditors from coming to an agreement with respect to what each should do to restore the credit of the State, and place it on a solid basis, we would respectfully suggest to your Excellency that the debtors of the State be required, within a reasonable time, say by or before July 1st, 1877, to pay off every obligation due from them to the State as now they may do, after which time only such ad- 107
vances as were specifically made to each to be receivable in payment or cash; this is to apply to principal and interest.

We submit to your Excellency whether there would be any hardship or injustice in requiring this, and assure you that the creditors of the State would regard such a step as one taken in the right direction; and

We remain
Your Excellency's Ob't Serv'ts, 108
GEDDES & SMITH.
E. D. MORGAN & CO.

The views above given, we beg to add, are for your own personal consideration.

G. & S.

109 I, William H. DeLancey, special examiner, do hereby certify that an original letter, of which the foregoing is a true and exact copy, was produced before me on the examination of Peter Geddes, a witness produced on the part of the complainants, and was submitted to him and acknowledged by him, as appears in his deposition, to which this is annexed as an exhibit. I further certify that the foregoing copy is a copy of the whole of such original letter.

RESPONDENT'S EXHIBIT No. 3.
W. H. D. L., Sp'l Ex'r.

111 (Private.) New York, Aug. 1, 1877.

Hon. James L. Gaines,
Comptroller,
Nashville.

Dear Sir :—I think that I may now safely say to you confidentially that the parties in interest will be prepared to pay off the debts of the Mississippi Central to your State just as soon as it is safe for them to do so.

I was amused when I read in the American newspaper the other day the very brief notice of the payment of the debt of the Memphis and Charleston 112 road to the State, which it published. A stranger would conclude that it was published solely to account for your being in New York, about which the public might be concerned, to assure the people of Tennessee that you were not here to pay off the State debt, or anything of that kind.

I have not yet heard from Mr. Smith, and am 113
therefore not able to indicate what view he may take of the conditions upon which Governor Porter says he will call an extra session of the Legislature. I have, however, not changed my own views as to what should be done, but I am more firmly convinced than ever that the proposition of the bondholders should be accepted, or one its equivalent, which I think might be gotten up, offering to settle at say 75 % of principal and interest in 6% bonds, coupons receivable for all taxes and dues to the State. If 114 any hope were held out that a settlement can be effected at the equivalent of our proposition, say 75c., I would do my best to get all the principal bondholders to make a proposition to settle at that, and I think that with careful handling it could be carried. Of course there are always some who hold back, but I think that the great majority would take 75% under the name of the equivalent of their proposition already made.

The debts of the railroads to the State may now 115 be regarded as practically settled. What remains is simply a question between debtor and creditor.

Freed from the complications which grew out of these railroad debts the discussion of the debt question will be very clear and simple henceforward.

If a few of you men of influence and character would unite in an effort to bring about a compromise on the basis of 75 % I think it could be effected satisfactorily to all, while it is very doubtful if an acquiesced in settlement at a lower figure would 116 ever be regarded as other than a forced one by the public and the bondholders.

The intervention of the so-called arbiters of the Clearing House was the most unfortunate thing that could have happened.

Personally I have worked hard to save the remnant of Tennessee's once good credit, and I make 117 this last effort to complete the job. If it fails, let it be so. Posterity will ever regret a blunder made now.

If you think so advisable you may convey to the Governor at your convenience the substance of what I have said, and let me know what he may have to say in reply.

Very truly yours,
P. GEDDES.

James L. Gaines, Esq.,

119 Dear Sir:—I duly received your esteemed favor of the 8th current.

Since then I learn that the Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad Company have voted to pay off their debt to Tennessee. This practically settles up all advances made by the State to railroad companies, and reduces the whole State debt question to one between the people of Tennessee and the investors in their public debt. What the latter will agree to do I can not say. They may or may not adhere to 120 their pro position of last February.

If the people of Tennessee under any circumstances are liable to do anything disgraceful in regard to their public debt, or permit anything of that kind to be done, of which you seem to entertain fears, should a settlement not be come to this year, and the debt question become one of the issues in the State canvas of next summer, the inquiry forces itself upon the bondholders, of how much value would the reduced debt of such a people be to the holders of it? 121

This is a very serious question in view of the fears you express, and of what I will now only characterize as the extraordinary legislation of last winter. I shall be happy to hear from you in reply at your convenience.

Mr. Smith has been travelling since the beginning of July, and hence we do not hear from him.

I am, 122
Very truly yours,

Hon. James L. Gaines,
Nashville.

My Dear Sir: I have just had an interview with Mr. Osborne, who reports that in thirty days the parties in whose interest the Mississippi Central was bought in the other day will receive a confirmation of their purchase. It is quite well understood here that so soon as they can do so with safety, they will pay off the lien of Tennessee on the Miss. 124 Central, and that they now think they can safely pay it off sixty days hence.

There is thus little doubt that the last of Tennessee's advances to the railroads within her borders will be paid off early in the fall, thus freeing her and her creditors too, for that matter, from a very troublesome disorder.

125 Although you do not in your note of the 8th current give much reason to hope that a settlement of Tennessee's debt on any other than the Coe Committee's plan is now practicable, I still cling to the belief that the honest citizens of Tennessee who must be still in the majority, would much prefer to pay the State debt in full, if some plan were submitted which would make it clearly possible for them to do so.

The outstanding bonds of Tennessee are mainly 126 held by investors, by trustees, and Trust Institutions.
The "margins" of speculators in and out of Wall street have long ago disappeared, and the bonds upon which they were held been sold.

Now investors, and parties, and institutions holding in trust, prefer much any reasonable reduction of the rate of interest their investments will produce to a reduction of the principal.

For the past four years they have been receiving lower rates of interest and smaller dividends on 127 their investments than they had been accustomed to. Many of them, judging by the large subscriptions to government four per cents. recently, have come apparently to the conclusion that lower rates
of interest than formerly prevailed will hereafter permanently prevail. This is the mood in which they now appear to me to be, and it has suggested the idea that advantage might possibly be taken of so favorable a time and circumstances by the friends of Tennessee to bring about a compromise 128 of the rate of interest on her debt which would enable her with ease to pay it all off.

I will not discuss her ability to pay her debt, but will assume it and pass on to my suggestion, which is as follows:

The State to issue new bonds for the principal and past due interest of her existing bonds, to bear interest at 4 (four) per cent. per annum, payable

semi-annually, January 1 and July 1, in each year, 129
coupons to be attached to the bonds representing each payment of interest, to be receivable by the State for all taxes and dues to the State, and to be free from taxation of any kind in the State. The bonds themselves to be payable fifty or one hundred years hence, and redeemable by the State at any time after six month's notice that the State is prepared to pay them.

The bondholders of Tennessee may object to making such a proposition of compromise; but if I get 130
from you and the Governor encouragement that if such a proposition were made by the holders of more than half the debt, it would be accepted, I will exert myself with Mr. George Smith and other well known large holders to make it.

Firmly convinced as I am that a settlement in full, if by any possibility it can be accomplished, will be of immense present and future advantage to Tennessee and Tennesseeans, I hope that you will induce Governor Porter and the other friends of 131
State credit to give my suggestion careful consideration.

I do not dare to mention it to any one yet, but will set the wheels in motion if hope of acceptance is held out, and will, if necessary, go to Nashville for the purpose of an interview with the Governor and yourself.

If the friends of Tennessee in Tennessee will extend to her a helping hand, I think that she can still be restored and her honest pride saved. 132

Let me hear from you on receipt and write further afterward.

Truly yours,

P. GEDDES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29, 1877.

HON. JAMES L. GAINES,
Nashville, Tenn.:

My Dear Sir:—I thank you for your favor of 25th current, and for the information and suggestion therein communicated.

134 Seeing by the morning papers that the Governors were to meet yesterday at the Continental Hotel, Philadelphia, I telegraphed to Governor Porter there asking him where a letter would reach him today, and after hearing from him wrote him with a copy of my last letter to you, asking him to let me have the benefit of his views thereon in advance of his arrival here, and saying that if agreeable to him I would with pleasure call upon him when he comes to New York.

135 In case Tennessee wants to pay off her debt it will be of great advantage to her to arrange for a low rate of interest on it. Bonds bearing a low rate of interest can be with greater ease or at lower cost bought for a sinking fund than can bonds bearing full rates.

This is a point I had in view when we made our proposition of compromise, and one which I hope will have some weight yet with you.

Yours truly,
P. GEDDES.

I, WILLIAM H. DELANCEY, Special Examiner, do hereby certify that four original letters, of which the foregoing are true and exact copies, were produced before me on the examination of Peter Geddes, a witness produced on the part of the complainants, and were submitted to him and acknowledged by him as appears in his deposition to which they are annexed as an Exhibit. I further certify that the foregoing copies are copies of the whole of such original letters. 137

141 RESPONDENT'S EXHIBIT NO. 8.—W. H. D. L., Sp'l. Ex'r.

OFFICE OF COMMITTEE OF
TENNESSEE BONDHOLDERS,
No. 31 Nassau Street.

P. O. Box 936. NEW YORK, May 17, 1879.

To the Holders of Tennessee Bonds:

In our last circular we informed you that the committee was considering the best means for enforcing 142 our first mortgage liens against the railroads in Tennessee. After full deliberation, with advice of counsel, and with the approval of the following prominent houses interested: Brown Brothers & Co., Maitland, Phelps & Co., Ward, Campbell & Co.; and of the Presidents of the Seaman's Savings Bank, and the Globe Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York; and of large individual holders in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chicago, we have decided to adopt the suits lately instituted by 143 Mr. C. Amory Stevens. Prompt action on the part of the bondholders will enable us to bring these suits to trial during the ensuing summer.

It may be well for us to give some of the considerations that make us confident of a successful enforcement of the lien conferred on our bonds by the distinct language of the Tennessee Statutes. While Tennessee bonds of the new issue were being offered for sale in behalf of the railroads of the State, S. Watson, "agent for the State of Tennes-144 see," addressed the following argument to the public, which was printed in pamphlet form in 1868:

"The important question for the bondholder now " is, What security have I for the payment of the " principal and interest of my bond? The State " debt proper is only about four millions. The " railroads and all their rolling stock are mortgaged " to the State to secure the payment of bonds "loaned. This mortgage, as bondholders must 145 "know, enures to their benefit. For the payment "of twenty-nine million bonds, which will be the "entire amount of bonds issued to the roads, including those that may be issued under the recent "Act of the Legislature, the bondholders have "as security roads which, when completed, will be "nearly two thousand miles in length, and which "will be worth fully seventy million dollars. In "addition to that, they have the whole resources "of the State solemnly pledged to them." 146

Again, in 1868, when the Legislature of Tennessee sought to impair our securities, Gov. Brownlow, then chief executive, sent a message to that body remonstrating against the proposed measures in the following emphatic language:

"The State, in point of honor and fact, holds the "lien in a fiduciary capacity. She holds it in trust "for the benefit of the bondholders. She honorably has no right to abandon it or surrender it to "the companies. She ought not to prove faithless 147 "in this trust, but maintain and execute it as the "bondholders understood it and as the people of "the State understood it. The bondholders are interested in these resources to pay the bonds they "hold, and the people are interested in them to see "that they are not to be taxed to pay interest or "principal of bonds for which the railroads are "pledged by the terms of the law."

The assurance of our rightful legal claims against the railroads is strongly fortified by the following 148 facts:

In April, 1878, the committee addressed a circular to the bondholders notifying them that it was about to enforce this lien. We petitioned to be heard in the Mobile and Ohio case then pending on appeal before the Supreme Court of the United States. In that suit the question whether or not

149 the holders of Tennessee bonds had a first mortgage lien upon railroads in that State, was clearly presented.
The cause was fully argued by several counsel for the railroad company as well as by our counsel, and the Court took the case under advisement.
Some time after, while we were confidently awaiting a decision in our favor, we were surprised to learn that the railroad company had settled the case with the party to the record in that suit—that stipulations had been filed in the office of the Clerk 150 of the Supreme Court—that copies had been sent to the several Judges of the Supreme Court—and, in short, that everything had been done by the railroad officials which it was possible to do to forestall a decision in the case. As we were not actual parties to that cause, we could not control the matter in any way so as to prevent a settlement. But,
surely, we could not require any stronger evidence that the railroad companies were convinced of their own defeat. Otherwise they would have gladly 151 welcomed a decision which would have relieved
their property from the burden of this lien, and would have done everything in their power to have secured a final adjudication in their favor instead of preventing a decision.

We call your special attention to the accompanying opinion of Mr. Charles O'Conor. It was given under a deep sense of moral responsibility in course of advice sought by a bondholder to enable him to determine whether or not to embark in a litigation
152 against the railroads. A letter signed by Messrs.
Evarts, Southmayd & Choate, in which it is stated that they have not time to prepare an opinion against us, has been circulated in the interest of the railroads. That letter bases its conclusions on the Minnesota case, which, we are informed by Mr.
O'Conor, bears in our favor so far as it is at all applicable to the Tennessee case. It is sufficient to add that Mr. Southmayd, of the above firm, urged, 153 before the Supreme Court, that same decision in the Minnesota case as a precedent in favor of his clients; but the effect was not convincing enough to induce those clients to refrain from a settlement of the case as before stated.

We append a list of roads on which Tennessee State bonds are first mortgage liens, and the amount of bonds outstanding against each road.

	The above amounts and some issues to smaller roads make an aggregate of railroad issues made by the State of Tennessee, and which are still outstanding	11,647,000
159	On which there is accrued 23 per cent. interest	2,678,810
	Total due	$14,325,710

Bondholders will please note that "New" bonds, issued to Tennessee railroads, and "Funding Series" bonds, not included in the above list, issued in payment of interest which accrued on railroad bonds under the Funding Acts of 1866, 1868 and 1873, are also statutory liens upon the railroads.

160 The members of the committee are owners to a large amount of bonds that are not liens on the railroads, which they do not propose to fund into the 50 and 4 per cent. bonds offered. They believe that the enforcement of the railroad liens will bring about a much better settlement than is now proposed. It is our duty to inform you that the legality of the proposed issue of the new 4 per cent. com-

promise bonds is already questioned in Tennessee, 161
for want of sufficient acceptances to authorize the submission of the proposed settlement to popular vote, as required by the Act of the last General Assembly.

Holders of North Carolina State bonds, issued in aid of the North Carolina Railroad Company, will recollect how that State made an unsuccessful attempt to deprive such bondholders of the lien originally intended for their security. A like attempt 162 in the State of Indiana, in the case of the Wabash and Erie Canal, was also unsuccessful, and the lien decided in favor of the bondholders.

Bondholders wishing to secure the benefits resulting from this litigation can do so on the following conditions, to wit: by depositing with the committee five dollars per lien bond in cash, and one past due coupon from each bond of that description. This will be required to defray the necessary costs and expenses of the litigation. In no event will the 163
bondholders be called upon for any further assessment, nor do they incur any personal liability by uniting in this plan. Should any surplus funds remain in the hands of the committee after all expenditures have been provided for the same will be returned to bondholders pro rata. Those who do not comply with the aforesaid conditions will be excluded from the benefits derived from the action of the committee. A certificate will be issued to each as-senting bond, entitling it to any and all advantages 164 resulting from these legal proceedings, and specifying the railroad company bound for the payment of the bond. An arrangement for calling these certificated bonds for dealings in them on the New York Stock Exchange will be made.

When it is considered that the enforcement of 165 these liens should make the great mass of the internal improvement bonds worth par and accrued interest, or 123 per cent., the advisability of the course which we have adopted cannot be reasonably doubted. Your signature to the enclosed assent, stating color, number and serial letter of each of your bonds is requested before June 10th. Upon receipt by the committee of the assents of a sufficient number of bonds, the holders will be notified of the issue of the certificates to be attached to the lien bonds. We 166 propose to engage as counsel Chas. O'Conor and E.

L. Andrews, of New York, and George Hoadly, of Cincinnati, to be assisted by competent counsel at Memphis, Nashville, Knoxville and Louisville.

Deposition of George Arents.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, 1

WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company,

vs.

THE MEMPHIS & CHARLESTON RAIL-COMPANY et al. 2

Testimony and proofs for final hearing on the part of the complainants in the above entitled suit, taken under and pursuant to the 67th Rule in Equity, as amended, before William H. DeLancey, Special Examiner, duly appointed herein. 3

NEW YORK, April 8, 1880.

Present.—Mr. E. L. ANDREWS,
For Complt's,
Mr. C. H. TWEED,
For Respdt's.

4 GEORGE ARENTS, a witness produced on the part of the complainants, being first duly cautioned and sworn in the above-entitled suit to testify to the

5 truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth,
deposes and says:

(Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.)

Direct examination by Mr. Andrews:

1 Q. Please state your name, age, residence and occupation?

A. George Arents; age 44; residence New York;
6 occupation broker.

2 Q. Have you been a purchaser of Tennessee bonds?

A. Yes, from 1866 to 1879.

3 Q. In purchasing Tennessee bonds, have you selected them according to their numbers?

A. Yes, sometimes.

4 Q. Have you selected the numbers in reference to their issue to particular Railroads?

A. Yes, at one time.

7 5 Q. How many bonds have you purchased in reference to their liens upon Railroads?

A. In this instance that I refer to about $100,000.

Cross-examination by Mr. Tweed:

6 x Q. When did you purchase these bonds you have spoken of?

A. I think in the year 1871-2.

7 x Q. Of whom did you purchase them?

A. We bought them of brokers at the board, in 8 the regular way, and when the bonds were delivered we selected certain numbers and sold others, as occasion arose.

8 x Q. The bonds that you bought you bought at the current market rates for Tennessee State bonds, at the time of purchase?

A. Yes.

9 x Q. Of course you did not at the time of making those purchases stipulate for bonds of cer- 9 tain numbers, but you took the bonds that the sellers delivered under their contracts without regard to their numbers, dates or purposes for which they were issued ?

A. When we bought "old bonds," we had to take "old bonds" that were a good delivery on the exchange of any numbers, and at any time when we bought "new bonds" we had to take new bonds of any numbers that were a good delivery. There were some five per cent. bonds that were not a good de- 10 livery unless specially dealt for.

10 x Q. Did or could you know anything about what the numbers of the bonds which you bought would be until they were delivered to you?

A. No.

11 x Q. When did you get the list of numbers by which you determined which bonds should be retained and which sold ?

A. We got it from Nashville ; I don't recollect whether from a broker or from a private party ; it 11 was a written list that purported to be a statement of all the bonds issued prior to the war, but it does not seem to be signed by anyone ; it purported to contain the numbers and letters of the bonds issued before the war.

12 x Q. Did you tell any of the parties from whom you purchased bonds that you intended to make any such selection ?

A. No, of course not.

13 x Q. After you had made the selection did you 12 not sell the bonds that were left at the current market rates at the time for Tennessee State bonds ?

A. Yes, sir, I did.

14 x Q. So that you got as much for the resi-duum as you would have got for any Tennessee State bonds ?

A. Yes.

15 x Q. What did you do with the bonds you culled out and selected?

A. We sold them out at the current market rates for Tennessee State bonds at the time they were sold, except in one instance where we made a trade with Norton, Slaughter & Co., because our coupons were short and the bonds would not be a good delivery unless we made the one coupon good.

16 x Q. So that the bonds which you selected you got no more for than you would have got for any 14 Tennessee State bonds at the time?

A. Yes that is so.

Re-direct by Mr. ANDREWS:

17 Q. Will you please attach to your deposition the schedule of numbers and description of bonds on which you relied in making purchases and selecting Tennessee bonds?

A. You have got that so mixed up that I cannot 15 answer it—when the bonds came in we would select certain numbers which we would hold, and dispose of the others as opportunity offered—I will give it to the Examiner to copy and attach.

Re-cross by Mr. TWEED:

18 x Q. Did you ever know of any other person than yourselves, who, at the time referred to, made 16 any such selection?

A. Not to my knowledge.

19 x Q. Did you ever know of the complainant, Calvin A. Stevens, selecting any bonds by their numbers, and if so, when?

A. I can't answer that in that way; I know that he has made an effort to do so, but whether he has done so I have no personal knowledge.

20 x Q. About when was it that he made the effort? 17

A. During the last year.

Re-direct by Mr. ANDREWS:

21 Q. Did you not say in answer to 18 x Q. that there might have been plenty of such purchases, but I did not know of it?

A. I don't know whether I did or not.

22 Q. For whom did you purchase the $100,000 of Tennessee State bonds referred to in your direct 18 examination?

A. Isaac Sherman.

23 Q. Did you not have the schedule of bonds, referred to in your examination, in your custody or under your control, at the time you made those purchases, and did you not make those purchases with the intention of relying upon the schedule in selecting the bonds which you would hold?

A. Yes.

24 Q. May not those purchases have been made 19 earlier than 1871?

A. I am not certain as to the date.

GEO. ARENTS.

TRANSCRIPT OF RECORD.

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

No. ~~633.~~ ~~357~~ 46

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS AND JOHN T. TERRY Appellants,

vs.

THE NASHVILLE AND NORTH WESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY AND THE NASHVILLE, CHATTANOOGA AND ST. LOUIS RAILWAY COMPANY.

APPEAL FROM THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE MIDDLE DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

FILED OCTOBER 8, 1881.

Deposition of Ed. Baxter. 1

Ed. Baxter, witness on behalf of the defendants in the above entitled causes, being duly cautioned and sworn, deposes as follows:

My name is Edward Baxter, am 41 years of age, am an attorney-at-law, and reside at Nashville, Tennessee.

In 1870 I was attorney of the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company at Nashville, Tennessee.

Mr. Sloss, the President of the road, brought to 2 me a printed opinion purporting to be signed by Judges Davis and Davies, attorneys of New York City, and addressed to Mr. Donelson, a chairman of a committee of bondholders. The opinion was to the effect, that the liens reserved upon railroads by the Internal Improvement laws of the State of Tennessee inured to the benefit of the bondholders, and consequently, that the State of Tennessee could not dispose of it without their consent. The Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company were contemplat- 3
ing the issuance of bonds by said company, to be secured by a mortgage upon their road and franchises, the bonds to be sold and the proceeds used in buying State bonds with which to pay off the debt due from the company to the State under the Internal Improvement Laws. As I understood from Mr. Sloss, the circulation of the opinion of Davis and Davies in New York, would, as he feared, render it difficult to sell the bonds of the Nashville and Decatur Railroad if allowed to pass unnoticed, and he 4 therefore had concluded to get Hon. Luke Pryor, of Athens, Ala., a very distinguished and able lawyer, to examine the question and give his opinion

5 in writing. I examined the question with Mr. Pryor, and after he had written his opinion I signed a short note at the foot of it expressing my concurrence with his views. I also requested Hon. E. H. East to examine the opinion and if he concurred in it to sign it, which he did. Mr. Sloss' object, as I understood from him at the time in getting Judge East and myself to sign the opinion, was that he supposed that the fact of our being Tennessee lawyers would add something to the weight of an opin-
6 ion based upon Tennessee statutes.

I do not remember how many copies of the opinion were printed. I have an impression that there was not more than a hundred or two copies circulated, and most of those, I suppose, were used in New York where it was expected to place the bonds.

The Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company sold their bonds and paid off the State debt which the State claimed to be due from the Company under the Internal Improvement laws. The Nash-
7 ville and Decatur Railroad Company was never a party to the bill filed by the State to sell delinquent roads, and so far as I ever knew, they never had any idea of having the road sold by the State, either under the bill or any other proceedings, they believing that they could raise the money on their own bonds to pay off the State.

Cross-examination :

8 I was of counsel for Davidson County as a stockholder in the Nashville and Northwestern and the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroads in the case of the State of Tennessee against the delinquent roads. I do not remember to have met John A. Gardner in consultation in that case or to have heard any argument by him. If I saw him at all it has escaped my memory. My recollection is that the County of Davidson, as a stockholder in the Nash- 9

ville and Northwestern Railroad prayed an appeal from the decree of the Chancellor ordering a sale of that road, and the commissioners for the sale of the roads proposing to go forward with the sale of the road regardless of the appeal, an application was made to one of the Supreme Judge's for a supersedeas which I think was granted.

My recollection is that the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company or some individuals, who as I understood were acting in the interest of that 10 company desired to acquire the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and the supersedeas which Davidson County had obtained threatened to delay, if not prevent, the completion of purchase, and it was my understanding at the time, that the N. & C. R. R. Co. or the individuals who were acting for it, paid Davidson County, and probably some of the others stockholders some amount, but how much I do not now remember. My impression is that they paid Davidson County thirty or forty 11 thousand dollars in some sort of bonds. My impression is that there was an entry made upon the minutes of the Supreme Court dismissing the supersedeas. It may be that in my application for a supersedeas I may have used the name of the N.
& N. W. R. R., and some of its stockholders together with Davidson County.

I think the payment was made to Davidson County and the other stockholders to prevent any other opposition on their part to the sale of the 12 road.

Re-examination:

When the plea of the N. C. & L. R. R. Co. was filed there was an oral argument made by the counsel for the State and also by counsel for that

13 company or its stockholders; I do not remember the precise grounds of the plea, but I think its object was to show that the State bondholders and other incumbrancers and creditors whose names were not given in the bill had not been properly brought before the Court, because the bill had not been sworn to as the practice of the Court required. Afterwards, upon the demurrer of Davidson County to so much of the bill as prayed a sale of the N. & N. W. R. R., an oral argument by counsel upon 14 both sides was made upon all the points made in the demurrer, which will show for itself. We were unable to convince the Chancellor that our demurrer was well taken.

Both the N. & N. W. R. R. and the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroads lay partly within Davidson County, and had their chief offices in Nashville, in said County, though at the time the bill was filed for the sale of delinquent railroads, the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad was in the hands of a State 15 Receiver and the N. & N. W. R. R. was being operated by a lessee of a State Receiver.

Deposition of W. H. Osborn.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, 1

WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS et al., on behalf of the holders of internal improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the MEMPHIS & CHARLESTON RAILROAD COMPANY, 2

vs.

THE MEMPHIS & CHARLESTON RAILROAD COMPANY et al.

Testimony and proofs for final hearing on the part of the respondents, taken 3 before William H. De Lancey, Special Examiner, duly appointed herein, under and pursuant to the 67th Rule in Equity, as amended.

NEW YORK, February 13, 1880.

Parties met pursuant to notice.

Present.—Mr. W. Y. C. HUMES,
For Respondents. 4
MR. L. E. ANDREWS.
For Complainants.

WILLIAM H. OSBORN, a witness produced on the part of the respondents, being first duly cautioned

5 and sworn in the above-entitled suit to testify the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth,
deposes and says:

(Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.)

Direct examination by Mr. Humes:

1 Q. What, if any, relation do you hold to any of the railroads of Tennessee, and if yea, how long have you held the same?

6 A. I was one of the Purchasing Committee that purchased the Mississippi Central Railroad, under a Decree of the Federal Courts in Tennessee and Mississippi.

2 Q. Do you know Peter Geddes; if so, how long have you known him?

A. Yes; I know him very well; have known him perhaps ten years.

3 Q. Did you ever have any conversation with him touching the Tennessee State Bonds, and the 7 settlement of the purchasers of the Mississippi Central Railroad with the State; if yea, when did these conversations occur; and what did he say about such settlement?

A. We purchased nearly twelve hundred bonds, and when we had probably two-thirds in hand I told Mr. Geddes we had bought the bonds and intended to buy the whole amount for delivery to the State, at which he seemed gratified, from the fact that every bond paid off diminished the State debt 8 to that extent.

4 Q. Did you borrow from Mr. Geddes any State bonds to make up the amount to deliver to the State?

A. No; I did not borrow any from him.

5 Q. Did you apply to him to lend you bonds; if yea, what did he say when you made this application?

A. Towards the close of our purchases of State 9 bonds, and, I believe, when the State officer was here, we decided not to use past due coupons, of which there were fifty or sixty thousand dollars in excess upon the bonds, but to buy from forty to sixty bonds, so as to pay bond for bond. There were no bonds offering in the market for a day or two, and I asked Mr. Geddes if he would lend me some bonds. Mr. Geddes said, to the best of my recollection, that if the Tennessee bonds were his personally he would do so with pleasure, but that 10 his block of bonds were the property of George Smith, Esq., and that he would prefer not to break bulk in the block if I could get along without it, or words to this effect. I succeeded in purchasing the bonds a day or two afterwards from other parties.

6 Q. What demand, or urgency, if any, did the State authorities bring to bear upon the purchasing committee to induce them to this settlement?

A. We bought the road from Canton, Miss., to the Ohio River, knowing that the portion of the line 11 lying within the confines of the State of Tennessee was in possession of the State authorities. The State Receiver held on with a close grip; it was too good a thing to give up; at any rate persuasion would not do it. We all knew that we could not make any money out of the whole line unless we got that piece out of the hands of the State. They understood our trouble just as well as we did without feeling the pain, and intensified it by taking our engineers and train men off the train at the north 12 boundary of Tennessee, having run only twenty-seven miles, and then we had to have a new set waiting at the south line of Tennessee, where their men got off, thus firing at us at both ends. I had no time to call upon the honorable gentleman at Nashville, but as a railroad manager I knew that we were day by day ground between two millstones,

13 and they would not let up unless we paid the debt and got the State lien discharged. The necessity was so exigent that we borrowed the money for the purpose, and got the road relieved from the encumbrance, and free from every recorded lien north of the south line of Tennessee.

7 Q. Did you make use of the acts of 1869 and '70 to get an assignment of the State lien to support bonds of the company issued to obtain the necessary funds?

14 A. We paid in 1,199 bonds, and we issued 1,199 bonds, and each bond bears an endorsement, certified by the Controller, transferring the lien of the State to the bond, as follows:

"STATE OF TENNESSEE, COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE.

I certify that the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company has this day liquidated the indebtedness of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee for State bonds, 15 issued pursuant to law under the statutes of said State, to establish internal improvements, and that this bond is substituted for the same amount of indebtedness of the said railroad company to the said State, and the holder of the said bond is hereby subrogated to and secured by the lien held by said State, and to all other rights and remedies reserved by the State in the statutes upon the railroad and property of said Mississippi Central Railroad Company. This bond is one of eleven hundred and 16 ninety-nine bonds, and is executed and issued by virtue of law, takes the place of a bond of the State of Tennessee, and is a first mortgage bond.

November 28th, 1877.

(Sd.) JAMES L. GAINES,
Comptroller of the State of Tennessee."

8 Q. When was the new company formed; and when was the mortgage of the company to support 17

the bond you have just explained executed?

A. The Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company was formed on the 7th day of November, 1877, and the mortgage executed on the 8th November, 1877, and it was registered in each county on the line of the road as soon as practicable.

(Mortgage filed herewith and marked Respondent's Exhibit No. 1. W. H. De. L.' Sp'l Ex'r.) 18

(Receipt and certificate of the Governor and Secretary of State of Tennessee, also herewith filed, marked Respondents's Exhibit No 2. W. H. De. L., Sp'l Ex'r.)

9 Q. Did you sell those company substitution bonds in open market, on the faith of this assignment of the State lien and the mortgage just exhibited? 19

A. Yes; they sold at 10 to 15 per cent more than the market price of the other first mortgage bonds secured by the same mortgage in 1878.

Cross-examination by Mr. Andrews:

10 x Q. How many of the Tennessee State Bonds delivered to the State, as you have certified, were of the numbers issued by the State to your railroad company?

A. I don't know, and never had any occasion to 20 inquire.

11 x Q. Please produce from your books the numbers of the bonds so delivered?

A. I will endeavor to do so upon the return of our Secretary, now absent.

12 x Q. Were you not aware that in a suit that was pending in reference to the Mobile & Ohio Rail-

21 road, the question was presented as to the lien of the Tennessee State Bonds upon the railroad to which they were issued?

A. I read the newspapers and may possibly have read this, like other daily news. If this question has any legal bearing upon the question at issue, I wish to state that I have found from experience that this layman knows very little of law questions.

13 x Q. Did you not learn anything in reference to the lien of the State bonds from Mr. Geddes?

22 A. My esteemed friend Mr. Geddes never began to moot the right of bondholders to crucify railroads until he and his brother bondholders were defeated in the Tennessee Legislature a year or two after we settled with the State.

14 x Q. Did you go into this substitution scheme without any legal advice; and if you had such advice was it in writing or oral?

A. The counsel of the Purchasing Committee was Hon. John A. Campbell, formerly Judge of the U.S.
23 Supreme Court; and the Hon. James Emott of New York. Steps of this character are seldom taken without the advice of counsel, and I suppose we had a great many consultations on that subject. I am not certain that we have any written opinion on this subject, confined expressly to this subject.

15 x Q. Was not an opinion of Judge Campbell furnished in writing upon this subject?

A. I have no doubt that I asked Judge Campbell, either in writing or verbally, if we could have 24 the substitution of the State of Tennessee; and that we were safe in paying out a large sum of money to secure this right; and that when he and Judge Emott prepared the papers and documents for my signature I executed them.

16 x Q. Did you not have these substitution bonds placed on the New York Stock Exchange after the commencement of these suits of Stevens v. the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans Railroad Company, 25 and others now pending?

A. The application to the Stock Exchange bears date April the 21st, 1879; the Tennessee Lien Bonds were sold previously.

17 x Q. Did you ever hear of any legal opinion to the contrary of the views of Judge Campbell on this question?

A. I have heard legal opinions, but whether they were based upon actual business I did not know, and therefore I only attached importance to such 26
an opinion as was based upon actual business.

18 x Q. Did you not hear of the opinion of Charles O'Conor?

A. I have seen it.

19 x Q. What was the lowest price you paid for the Tennessee State Bonds purchased, as you have testified, and also the average price?

A. I don't remember, but may ascertain from the books; but I decline to furnish it, as the books referred to are those of the Illinois Central R. R. Co. 27

(Complainant's counsel requests witness to produce the same.)

(Witness declines, unless ordered by the Court to do so.)

Cross-examination suspended.

Re-direct:

20 Q. At what period or year did you sell the 28
Substitution Bonds of the Company?

A. We sold them at the close of 1877, and during 1878, except $100,000 sold in 1879; ten hundred and ninety-nine thousand were sold in 1877 and 1878, and $100,000 in 1879, in November.

21 Q. In answer to cross-question 13, do you not intend to say that Mr. Geddes did not begin to as-

29 sert in your hearing that a lien existed in favor of State Bonds on Railroads to which they were issued?

A. Yes; that was the time when he began to talk to me on that subject.

Re-cross:

22 x Q. To whom were the subrogated bonds sold in 1877 and 1878?

A. To five or six parties; I can get their names 30 from the books; to Mr. Sturges, Mr. Cutting, the Illinois Central Company, Sidney Webster, E. H.
Harriman & Co., and others.

23 x Q. Are not the Mr. Sturges and Mr. Cutting you have referred to directors of the Illinois Central R. R. Co.?

A. Yes.

24 x Q. Does not the Illinois Central R. R. Co. own a majority of the stock of the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans R. R. Co.?

31 A. Yes.

25 x Q. You were also a purchaser of these bonds?

A. I hold some of these bonds which I purchased through brokers.

26 x Q. You have referred to the claims of the Tennessee State bondholders as not presenting any ground of right, or any obstacle to the carrying out
the substitution scheme; please explain these words contained in the recital of the second mortgage of the Mississippi Central R. R, Co., and state what 32 notice you derive therefrom of the position of the State bonds of Tennessee: "And whereas, the State of Tennessee advanced to said company five hundred and seventy-four thousand dollars of its six per cent.
bonds to aid in constructing that part of said company's road between the northern boundary of the State of Mississippi and the city of Jackson, in Madison County, Tennessee; which bonds constitute a first lien on that part of said company's road 33 and equipments within the State of Tennessee."

Are you not President of the Chicago, St. Louis &
New Orleans Railroad Company; is not the Mississippi Central a part of the line of road owned by that company; are there not bonds outstanding under the mortgage from which the above extract was taken?

(Objected to, because the first sentence
assumes that the witness has stated a fact 34
which he has not. Secondly, the question seeks from the witness his opinion as to the construction of an instrument not in proof, and is irrelevant and incompetent.)

A. I am President of the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans R. R. Co., of which the old Mississippi Central forms a part; and there are bonds outstanding of that mortgage. The extract read is in the mortgage. I have known of that mortgage 35 for five years; have examined it frequently, and have consulted at least six able lawyers on the subject of this second mortgage. No one of them ever understood it. Amongst other anomalies is the authority conferred upon the President to make the date of maturity of any one bond, by endorsement, at his pleasure, or the time or place of payment at his pleasure; and through that power, some of the bonds were made payable next day. I shall not attempt to construe any part of this perplexing mort- 36
gage. As to the particular question you have asked, I have never studied the paragraph or had my attention called to it before.

The witness further says: That on examination I find that we borrowed the bonds of the Illinois Central Railroad, and paid them in substitution bonds at a later date.

29 sert in your hearing that a lien existed in favor of State Bonds on Railroads to which they were issued?

A. Yes; that was the time when he began to talk to me on that subject.

Re-cross:

22 x Q. To whom were the subrogated bonds sold in 1877 and 1878?

A. To five or six parties; I can get their names

Illinois Central Company, Sidney Webster, E. H.
Harriman & Co., and others.

23 x Q. Are not the Mr. Sturges and Mr. Cutting you have referred to directors of the Illinois Central R. R. Co.?

A. Yes.

24 x Q. Does not the Illinois Central R. R. Co. own a majority of the stock of the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans R. R. Co.?

31 A. Yes.

25 x Q. You were also a purchaser of these bonds?

A. I hold some of these bonds which I purchased through brokers.

26 x Q. You have referred to the claims of the Tennessee State bondholders as not presenting any ground of right, or any obstacle to the carrying out
the substitution scheme; please explain these words

New Orleans Railroad Company; is not the Mississippi Central a part of the line of road owned by that company; are there not bonds outstanding under the mortgage from which the above extract was taken?

> (Objected to, because the first sentence
> assumes that the witness has stated a fact 34
> which he has not. Secondly, the question seeks from the witness his opinion as to the construction of an instrument not in proof, and is irrelevant and incompetent.)

A. I am President of the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans R. R. Co., of which the old Mississippi Central forms a part; and there are bonds outstanding of that mortgage. The extract read is in the mortgage. I have known of that mortgage 35
for five years; have examined it frequently, and have consulted at least six able lawyers on the subject of this second mortgage. No one of them ever understood it. tempt to construe any part of this perplexing mort- 36
gage. As to the particular question you have asked, I have never studied the paragraph or had my attention called to it before.

The witness further says: That on examination I find that we borrowed the bonds of the Illinois Central Railroad, and paid them in substitution bonds at a later date.

37 27 x Q. Did you not ask Mr. Geddes to buy some of the substitution bonds?

A. I think it very probable that I did.

28 x Q. Did he not refuse to purchase them on the ground that the Tennessee State bonds were a lien on the road?

A. He refused to buy them. I believe his chief objection was that he had as many Southern securities as he wanted; he had got through with those States down there. He has indulged in a good deal 38 of conversation in relation to the lien of the State, but at which time he put forth his lien, or at which time he expressed his anxiety to get out of Southern securities, I can't tell.

29 x Q. Did not Mr. Geddes tell you about the Mobile and Ohio case, and its involving the question of the lien of the State bonds on the railroads?

A. Yes; he has talked about the Mobile and Ohio case, and a great many other cases affecting the bond question.

39 30 x Q. Did you not show Mr. Geddes Judge Campbell's opinion?

A. I don't remember to have done so. If Mr. Geddes remembers my showing him any of Judge Campbell's letters, it is undoubtedly so.

31 x Q. Could the Tennessee section of your road pay this claim of the bondholders in case of their success?

A. If it was managed by the governor and other officers of Tennessee as it was before, it undoubted-40 ly could. It was managed as local road; they charged arbitrary rates.

32 x Q. Do I understand you that there are no mortgages or encumbrances upon this Tennessee section other than this substitution mortgage?

A. The foreclosure proceedings wiped out the old mortgage of the old company, and I am informed there is no recorded mortgage in Tennessee.

Re-direct: 41

33 Q. What did you say of Mr. Douglas' opinion in reply to verbal interrogatories of complainant's counsel?

A. John M. Douglass was the general solicitor and president of the Illinois Central Company for many years. That company owned a large amount of the consolidated bonds in default. At the instance of the directors, Mr. Douglas went south, and examined the property and procured copies of all recorded papers, and upon his return enumerated, 42 among other points to be attained by the purchase of the road, he could pay off the Tennessee bonds and discharge the debt, purchasing the Tennessee State bonds at a discount.

Re-cross:

34 x Q. Was not that advice that you should purchase the Tennessee State bonds that were liens on your road? 43

A. No, sir; Mr. Douglass was well assured we had the right to purchase any bonds of that State.

35 x Q. Has not Mr. Douglas lately, and since reading Charles O'Conor's opinion, stated that the Tennessee State bondholders had liens upon the railroads, and that in his judgment they would succeed in enforcing them in these suits?

A. I have not seen Mr. Douglas but once for several years; have had no communication with him on this subject, and never heard the effect of O'Conor's opinion on him. 44

Adjourned to further notice.

45 NEW YORK, February 18, 1880.

Cross-examination continued:

36 x Q. Have you not purchased the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans Tennessee lien bonds since the commencement of this suit?

A. I purchased one for a poor widow last month; I purchased another for another widow the month before; I bought 20 for myself a few months ago; I bought 10 as a guardian for a trust fund.

46 37 x Q. Did you not say to Mr. Peter Geddes that at any rate your Company was very fortunate to have so few of the numbers of the Tennessee Bonds issued to your road now outstanding?

A. Yes; Mr. Geddes' affliction and grief on his ownership of an immense number of Tennessee Bonds, which cost him about par years ago, made our burden light in comparison.

38 x Q. Are there any bonds outstanding of the consolidated mortgage of the Mississippi Central 47 Railroad Company, executed May 1, 1872; and how many were issued?

A. The mortgage was for $8,000,000, and $3,000,000 were issued; the mortgage was foreclosed, and the property is now held under that foreclosure.

39 x Q. Are you not an officer of the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans Railroad Company, which so holds the property?

A. Yes; the President.

40 x Q. Have you not read that mortgage and the 48 following clauses thereof: "Whereas the Mississippi Central Railroad Company has now outstanding bonds and obligations in the aggregate amounting to four millions and six hundred and twenty-nine thousand dollars, which constitute a lien upon the whole or some portions of its railroad and property, described as follows * * * :

One million two hundred and seventy-nine thousand dollars for bonds advanced to it by the State of Tennessee which the Company is bound to pay and which are a lien upon its property by virtue of an act of the Legislature of Tennessee, entitled "An act to establish a system of internal improvements in this State," passed the 11th day of February, A. D. 1852? 49

A. We did not execute that mortgage; the mortgage was executed by H. S. McComb, President of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company; we are 50 now entirely satisfied that the recitals in that mortgage were incorrectly made, and have instituted proceedings in the State of Mississippi, and also in this Second Circuit, calling upon H. S. McComb, among other things, to explain that recital; and particularly to show what was done with the large amount of Tennessee State Bonds which, according to the statutes, could only be applied to the construction of the road; when these suits terminate I hope to be able to answer your question. 51

41 x Q. Did not your Company obtain the opinion of William Tracy, Esq., of the New York bar, in reference to the validity of the consolidated mortgage, and did he not in that opinion refer to the act of the Tennessee Legislature, passed on February 3, 1871, as containing the following words: "That nothing herein contained shall be construed in any way to impair or diminish the priority of the State's lien upon the property which may be mortgaged, as herein provided for, and, expressly, bonds which 52 have been or hereafter may be given by the State, shall be and remain a first lien on all the property of every description of the railroad company to which such bonds may have been given?

A. Our company, the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans Railroad Company, did not ask Mr. Tracy's opinion; there was no reference to that mortgage 53 after the purchase of that property subject only to priorities.

42 x Q. Were not the proceedings for the consolidation of the constituent companies into the New Orleans, St. Louis & Chicago Railroad Company delivered to the Secretary of State of Tennessee on the 10th of July, 1874 ?

A. The records and books of the old company are in the possession of H. S. McComb; we are demanding the same in three different lawsuits; I have not 54 personal or official knowledge of the facts you ask for.

43 x Q. When did the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans Company borrow the Tennessee State Bonds from the Illinois Central Railroad Company ?

A. Early in November, 1877.

Re-direct :

44 Q. What did you mean by saying that the State of Tennessee made you pay off the State lien ?

55 A. We had to operate the road from Cairo to New Orleans as an entirety; we applied on the road beyond the confines of the State all the earnings and a large amount of money for the purpose of improving the road and making it safe for life and property. But the State authorities would not pursue this course, and took the surplus, beyond the payment of employes, into the State Treasury, keeping the road in a very wretched condition physically; therefore as railroad men we could not operate that bad piece 56 in the middle of it; the State of Tennessee practically had the power to make us pay the State, and they did so.

NOVEMBER 8TH, 1877.

THIS INDENTURE, made this 8th day of November, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, between the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company, of the first part;
63 the New Orleans, Jackson and Northern Railroad Company, of the second part; the Central Missippi Railroad Company, of the third part, and Adolph Schreiber, of the City of New Orleans, in the State of Louisiana, James Fentress, of Bolivar, in the State of Tennessee, and Lewis V. F. Randolph, of the City of New York, in the State of New York, Trustees, of the fourth part:

Whereas, A certain corporation, known as the 64 New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, organized under the laws of the States of Louisiana and Mississippi, heretofore owned and operated a certain railroad, extending from the City of New Orleans, in the State of Louisiana, to Canton, in the State of Mississippi, together with a branch thereof known as the Kosciusko Branch, from a point at or near Durant, in the State of Mississippi, to Kosciusko, in the said State of Mississippi, and with the right to construct and operate certain other branches and extensions, with the depot grounds, buildings, machinery and other property to said railroad appertaining, being part of the railroad and property hereby intended to be mortgaged and conveyed; 65

And whereas, The said New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, on or about the twelfth day of June, 1856, motgaged and conveyed in trust to one James D. Denegre, its road aforesaid, made and to be made, from the City of New Orleans, in the State of Louisiana, to Canton, in the State of Mississippi, with the appurtenances, to secure the payment of certain of its corporate bonds to the extent of three million of dollars; 66

And whereas, Certain of such bonds were afterwards issued under said mortgage, two thousand nine hundred and forty-one, of which are now outstanding and unpaid, amounting to two millions nine hundred and forty-one thousand ($2,941,000) dollars; 67

And whereas, Subsequently to the making of said first mortgage, to wit: On the first day of October, 1860, the said New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, for the purpose of securing the payment of an additional and subsequent issue of its corporate bonds, to a further amount, not exceeding three millions of dollars, did also mortgage and convey in trust to the said James D. Denegre its line of road, made and to be made, from the City of New Orleans to Canton, in the State of Mississippi, and from Canton to Aberdeen, in said State of Mississippi, together with the appurtenances; 68

69 And whereas, Certain of such bonds were afterwards issued under said second mortgage, fifteen hundred of which are now outstanding and unpaid, amounting to one million five hundred thousand ($1,500,000) dollars;

And whereas, Afterwards the said New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company failed to pay the coupons or interest warrants upon said first and second mortgages, and certain of the 70 said coupons, with all liens, rights and equities attaching thereto under said mortgages, were purchased by third parties, to the amount of three hundred and forty thousand ($340,000) dollars of such coupons, due and unpaid upon the said first mortgage, and of one hundred and sixty thousand ($160,000) dollars of such coupons, due and unpaid upon the said second mortgage, of said New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company.

71 And whereas, The said New Orleans, Jackson and Northern Railroad Company, party hereto of the second part, on the fifteenth day of August, 1877, made an issue of its corporate bonds, known as Matured Coupon Bonds, to the extent of five hundred thousand dollars, to provide for the postponement of the payment of the said three hundred and forty thousand dollars ($340,000) coupons due and unpaid upon the first mortgage of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, and of 72 the said one hundred and sixty thousand dollars ($160,000) coupons due and unpaid upon the second mortgage of the said New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company; and to further secure said matured coupon bonds, did also mortgage and convey in trust to William H. Gebbard and Lewis V. F. Randolph, both of the city of New York, its line of road, made and to be made, from the city of New Orleans to Canton in the State 73 of Mississppi;

And whereas, all of such coupons are still unpaid, and said Matured Coupon Bonds are now outstanding, to said amount of five hundred thousand dollars;

And whereas, a certain corporation known and designated as the Mississppi Central Railroad Company was chartered and incorporated by the Legislature of the State of Mississippi, by an act passed 74 on the tenth day of March, 1852, for the purpose of building and operating a railroad from the town of Canton, heretofore mentioned, in said State of Mississippi, to the north line of said State, and said corporation proceeded in the construction of said railroad;

And whereas, afterwards, a certain other railroad corporation, known and designated as the Mississippi Central and Tenessee Railroad Company, was 75 chartered and incorporated by an act of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee, passed on the thirtieth day of November, 1853, and was authorized by said act to consolidate and form one corporation with the Mississippi Central Railroad Company, hereinbefore mentioned;

And whereas, the said State of Tennessee, under and by virtue of its Generai Internal Improvement Laws, and of other acts amendatory thereof and 76 supplementary thereto, thereto, theretofore passed and then in full force, loaned to the said Mississippi Central and Tennessee Railroad Company, or advanced for its benefit Bonds of the State of Tennessee to the aggregate amount of five hundred and seventy-four thousand ($374,000) dollars, by virtue of which Bonds and upon the issuance thereof

77 under and pursuant to the statutes authorizing such issuance of Bonds, the said State of Tennesssee became invested, without deed from the Railroad Company, with a lien in the nature of a mortgage upon the entire Road built or to be built by said corporation in the State of Tennessee, with all its equipments and appurtenances, prior to any mortgage made or to be made by the said corporation, as security to indemnify and save harmless the said State, on account of the issuance and for the pay-
78 ment of the principal and interest of its said Bonds so issued to said corporation ;

And whereas, afterwards and in pursuance of certain acts of the Legislatures of the States of Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky, the said Mississippi Central and Tennessee Railroad Company and the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company were consolidated and made into one corporation, under the name of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company,
79 by the agreement and consent of the Stockholders thereof, and were authorized to continue and complete the construction of the Railroad from Canton in the State of Mississippi aforesaid, through the States of Tenessee and Kentucky, to a point on the Ohio River opposite to Cairo in Illinois, and to operate the same, and the said corporation, thereafter known as the Mississippi Central Railroad Company, did proceed to construct and to operate said Railroad ;

80 And whereas, under and by virtue of the acts aforesaid, and certain other acts of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee, certain other Bonds of said State to the amount of $550,000, were issued to the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company, for the purpose of aiding in the construction and completion of the said Road in the State of Tennessee, and previous to the construction and completion thereof, and under and by virtue of the 81

General Internal Improvement Laws, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, pursuant to which said bonds were issued, a lien was reserved to the said State upon the entire road in the State of Tennessee—with all its superstructure, equipments and appurtenances, and all property owned by the Company, and all depots and stations, and assets attached thereto, lying within the limits of said State, in the nature of a mortgage lien, without deed, prior to the lien of any mort- 82
gage executed or to be executed by the said Company, to indemnify and save harmless the said State of Tennessee, for the issuance and against the payment of the principal and interest of the said last mentioned amount of five hundred and fifty thousand dollars of its Bonds, so as aforesaid issued to or for the benefit of the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company;

And whereas, said Mississippi Central Railroad Company having been made to pay and re-imburse 83 to the said State of Tennessee, a certain amount of the interest which had accrued, and which the State had paid upon its Bonds so as aforesaid issued to the Mississippi Central and Tennessee Railroad Company, certain acts were passed by the Legislature of the State of Tennessee, by which the balance due from the Mississippi Central Railroad Company for such interest, having been paid by the said State of Tennessee by issuing other of its Bonds, was charged as principal, and in all respects 84
the said State was entitled by virtue of the payment thereof, and the issuance of said Bonds therefor, to the same rights and liens for the same which were created by the acts authorizing the original issue of the Bonds to said Railroad Companies; which interest, so converted into principal, and for which the said State of Tennessee, became and is entitled to a

85 like first lien upon the Railroad and property of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company within said State, amounts to seventy-five thousand one hundred and eighty ($75,180) dollars.

And whereas, by virtue of the payments or advances aforesaid, the State of Tennessee and its assigns, as hereinafter mentioned, became entitled to, and does hold a first and paramount lien in the nature of a first mortgage upon all the property which was of the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company, so called after the consolidation aforesaid, 86 within the said State of Tennessee, to the extent and amount of one million one hundred and ninety-nine thousand one hundred and eighty ($1,199,180) dollars besides interest;

And whereas, by an Act of the Legislature of said State of Tennessee, passed on the twenty-fifth day of February, 1869, and by other acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, it was enacted, 87 among other things, that the respective Railroad Companies, or either of them that had created indebtedness to the said State, were authorized to repay any amount of the principal of such indebtedness in the Bonds of the State, and that any such Railroad Company repaying any such indebtedness, might issue Bonds to an equal amount with the Bonds of the State paid and delivered up as thereby provided, which said Bonds so issued in lieu of any equal amount of said State Bonds, should 88 be certified by the Comptroller of said State, and should be and possess a lien pro rata in amount and of equal validity and effect with the State indebtedness upon such Railroad, and all its property within the State of Tennessee; and farther, that any person or persons, with the consent and approbation of any Railroad Company which should be indebted to the State of Tennessee, and upon whose property the State of Tennessee might 89 hold a lien, might pay the said State debt, so far as the State is concerned, in the Bonds of the State, or any coupons of Bonds at par, and the person or persons so paying the debt of such Railroad Company, with the consent of such Company, should be entitled to have and hold all the lien or liens which the State of Tennessee had or has, upon said Railroad or its property, and the same right and power to enforce the same which the State of Tennessee had ; 90

And whereas, in and by a Decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Tennessee, made and entered at Memphis, on the sixth day of January, 1877, in a suit in Chancery commenced by the Trustees of the consolidated mortgage of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company hereinafter mentioned, for the foreclosure of said mortgage, and for authority and direction to sell and convey the Railroad and franchises of the said Mississippi Central 91 Railroad Company, in satisfaction of said consolidated mortgage, it was by the said Court ordered, adjudged and decreed, that the said Trustees and their assigns are entitled, as representing the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company, to settle the claim and take and receive a transfer of the lien of the State of Tennessee ;

And whereas, the said Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company has become the assignee and grantee of said Trustees in said decree 92 named, and of all their rights and privileges in that behalf, and also the successor as hereinafter stated of said corporation known as the Mississippi Central Railroad Company, and of all its powers, rights, privileges and franchises, with the right in case of payment of said Tennessee Bonds to issue and sub-

93 stitute its own bonds with all the liens and rights held by the State of Tennessee;

And whereas, the said party of the first part by virtue of the premises, is invested with the rights, powers, faculties and property of the Trustees aforesaid, under said deed of trust, and the decrees of the said Court above mentioned, and also possessed of the property described in said deed and decree subject to the mortgages and liens thereon, and by 94 reason thereof is interested to settle with the State of Tennessee the debt created by the advance of its said Bonds in the manner authorized by said State; and, in order to maintain and continue the lien created by the acts aforesaid, and reserved and held by the State of Tennessee on said property within said State, so as to enable said Company to effect such settlement, the said Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company, by Resolution of its Board of Directors, duly consented, and has filed
95 such consent, executed under its corporate seal, in the office of the Treasurer of said State of Tennessee, that the said parties of the fourth part,—as Trustees for the Bonds to be issued in substitution for said Tennessee State Bonds, as hereinafter set forth, or the purchasers and holders of such bonds, —may make payment of such State Bonds to the State of Tennessee, according to said Statutes, and may receive agreeably to the same a transfer of the lien of said State, and so become invested as author-96 ized by said acts, with the first lien upon all said Railroad and property in the State of Tennessee, theretofore held by said State as aforesaid, and have and hold all the liens of said State and all right and power to enforce the same, which the State of Tennessee has or had, so that the holders of said Bonds and the said Trustees in their behalf shall be placed in the same position in all respects and have all the rights, and the same power to enforce the same, 97 which the State of Tennessee has or had before such transfer;

And whereas, the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company, for the purpose of improving and completing its Line of Railroad, on or about the first day of November, 1854, made and executed a mortgage or deed of trust to Charles Butler, Azariah C. Flagg and Jacob Thompson, to secure the payment of its corporate Bonds to an amount not to exceed 98
one million three hundred and fifty thousand ($1,350,000) dollars, whereby it mortgaged and conveyed all its Railroad constructed, or to be constructed in the State of Mississippi, with its property and appurtenances;

And whereas, Bonds were issued under said Mortgage, and are now outstanding and unpaid to an amount not precisely and accurately known, but not exceeding nine hundred and ninety-two thousand ($992,000) dollars; 99

And whereas, subsequently to the making and execution of said first mortgage, to wit, on the first day of November, 1865, the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company, made and executed a second mortgage or deed of trust to Jacob S. Rogers, M. P. Mathison and William L. Sharkey, for the purpose of securing the payment of an additional issue of its corporate Bonds, to an amount not to exceed two millions ($2,000,000) of 100 dollars;

And whereas, Bonds have been issued under said second mortgage, and are now outstanding to an amount which is not definitely accurately known and ascertained, but which does not exceed one million nine hundred and ninety-seven thousand ($1,999,000) dollars;

101 And whereas, afterwards, the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company failed to pay certain coupons for interest upon its second mortgage aforesaid, and certain of said coupons were purchased and are now held by third parties, and the holders of certain other of said coupons agreed to extend the time for payment thereof, for which agreement of extension and for the preservation of which rights, certain scrip was issued by said Mississippi Central Railroad Company, which said coupons
102 and scrip and other debts alleged to be liens upon so much of the railroad and property of said corporation as is covered by said second mortgage, amount in all to not more than one million two hundred and twenty-one thousand ($1,221,000) dollars, the precise total thereof not being accurately or definitely known;

And whereas, afterwards, the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, herein-102 before mentioned, made and executed a certain other mortgage or deed of trust, being a consolidated mortgage upon its entire railroad and property, under which certain bonds were issued; and the said Railroad Company having made default in payment of interest upon its said last mentioned bonds, and thereupon the principal thereof, by virtue of the terms and conditions thereof, and of the mortgage or deed of trust securing the same, having become absolutely and entiely due and payable, 104 such proceedings were had for the foreclosure of said mortgage, that the railroad property, rights and franchises of the said New Orleans. Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, were afterwards sold under and by virtue of the power in said mortgage or deed of trust contained, and of a decree in that behalf rendered by the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Louisiana, and purchased by and on behalf of certain holders of the 105

bonds of said Company, issued under said consolidated mortgage;

And whereas, afterwards, the said bondholders and purchasers, under and by virtue of statutes of the States of Mississippi and Louisiana, did organize and incorporate themselves by the corporate name and title of the New Orleans, Jackson and Northern Railroad Company, and received a deed and transfer of said Railroad, and became the 106 owners under and according to the statutes aforesaid, of all the rights, franchises, railroad, rights of way, superstructure and other property which had been of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, with all privileges and immunities appertaining to the property or franchises so sold and purchased, and all powers and franchises of said Company in as full and complete manner as the said New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company was entitled to the 107 same by law, and as fully and perfectly as if the said New Orleans, Jackson and Northern Railroad Company had been granted a charter of incorporation in the very words of the act or acts under which the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company existed, owned and operated its said railroad, and held and exercised its rights, privileges and franchises;

And whereas, also, the said Mississippi Central 108
Railroad Company, hereinbefore mentioned, for the purpose of completing and extending its railroad to the Ohio River, made and executed a certain consolidated mortgage or deed of trust on or about the first day of May, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, under which consolidated mortgage or deed of trust, certain bonds or obligations

109 of the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company were issued :

And whereas, the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company afterwards failed and made default in the payment of its coupons for interest upon said consolidated mortgage bonds ; and thereafter, according to the provisions of said bonds, and of said mortgage or deed of trust securing the same, such proceedings were had that under and by virtue of the power created and conferred by the said mort-
110 gage or deed of trust, and in pursuance of decrees rendered in the Circuit Courts of the United States in the Districts of Tennessee, Mississippi and Kentucky, all the property described in said decrees, and in the deed of trust aforesaid, being the railroad of the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company, extending from Canton in the State of Mississippi, through the States of Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky, to a point on the Ohio River opposite Cairo, with all franchises, rights, and appurtenances thereto
111 belonging, and all the franchises, rights and privileges of the said corportion were sold by the trustees in said mortgage or deed of trust mentioned, under the direction of a Master appointed by the Court, and purchased by certain holders of the bonds issued under the said mortgage ;

And whereas, afterwards the said bondholders and purchasers, under and in pursuance of acts of the Legislatures of the States of Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky, organized and became incorporated
112 for the purpose of holding, owning and operating the said railroad under the name, title and designation of the Central Mississippi Railroad Company, and by virtue of the said acts of the Legislatures aforesaid, and of deeds and conveyances, became, and were invested with the absolute title to said railroad and property, real and personal, and the same right to operate the said railroad in the said

States as the Mississippi Central Railroad Company 113 had, and with all rights, privileges and immunities appertaining to the property and franchises so sold and purchased, and granted and conveyed to them, as fully and completely as the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company was, or had been, and with all the rights, privileges, immunities and franchises held by the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company, by or under any acts of the Legislatures of the States aforesaid, as fully and perfectly as if the said Central Mississippi Railroad Company had been 114 granted a charter of incorporation in the very words of the acts under which the Mississippi Central Railroad Company had existed, and claimed and exercised such powers and privileges ;

And whereas, for the better and more convenient operation of the said railroads, and the protection of the parties interested therein, and in the Bonds secured by said prior mortgages thereon, and in order to form one continuous line of railway from the City 115 of New Orleans aforesaid, to the Ohio River opposite the terminus of the Illinois Central Railroad at Cairo, under a single control and ownership, it was determined and agreed to consolidate and unite the said two Railroad Companies known as the New Orleans, Jackson and Northern Railroad Company and the Central Mississippi Railroad Company, which had so as aforesaid become the owners of the said two railroads, together constituting such continuous line from the city of New Orleans to the 116
Ohio River ;

And whereas, an agreement for such consolidation, dated the 7th day of November, A. D. 1877, has been duly executed by the said two corporations, and ratified and assented to by the stockholders thereof (and has become valid, final and effectual in all the States in which the same is authorized and per-

117 mitted by the statutes thereof, and is intended to be perfected, ratified and confirmed in all the States through which the said railroad passes) in order that the said two corporations may become merged and consolidated in the corporation known as the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company, the party hereto of the first part;

And whereas, by virtue of said agreement of consolidation, the corporation, party of the first part to these presents, and known as the Chicago, St. Louis 118 and New Orleans Railroad Company, a corporation formed by the union and consolidation of parties of the second and third parts hereto, is intended to own and operate the Railroad so as aforesaid extending from the City of New Orleans, to the Ohio river opposite Cairo, with all branches and extensions thereof, made or to be made, and with all the appurtenance, franchises and rights of way appertaining thereto, which were of the said two corporations so consolidating, or which heretofore belonged 119 to the corporations hereinbefore mentioned, known as the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad and the Mississippi Central Railroad Companies:

And whereas, the said Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company, and the parties interested in the said line of Railroad, have been advised and have determined that it is expedient and desirable to consolidate and pro- 120 vide for the existing liens upon the said line of road, or the several portions thereof hereinbefore recited, and to provide in addition the means for continuing and completing, and further equipping and perfecting such line of railroad between New Orleans and the Ohio River as aforesaid, and for that purpose the Directors of said Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company, at a meeting held on the eighth day of November, one 121 thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven, did pass certain resolutions of the tenor and effect following:

Resolved, That the President and Treasurer of this Company be authorized to execute from time to time, as shall be required to effectuate the purposes of these Resolutions, thirteen thousand Bonds of this Company, to be numbered consecutively from number one to number thirteen thousand inclusive, 122 each Bond to be for one thousand dollars, payable on the first day of November, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven, bearing interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable semi-annally at the office of the Company in the City of New York, and the interest and principal payable in lawful money of the United States of America; that the President be authorized and instructed to secure the payment of said Bonds and interest thereon by a deed of mortgage, and for that purpose to exe- 123 cute and affix the seal of this Corporation, and his signature as President, to a mortgage or deed of trust of the Railroad and franchises of this Company, including all its personal and real estate, and all its property movable and immovable, now owned or hereafter to be acquired, and its rights and franchises in the States of Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky to Adolph Schreiber of the City of New Orleans in the State of Louisiana, James Fentress of Bolivar in the State of Ten- 124 nessee, and Lewis V. F. Randolph of the City of New York in the State of New York, as Trustees:

Resolved, That numbers one to one thousand one hundred and ninety-nine inclusive of said Bonds, shall be set apart to provide, under the acts of the State of Tennessee, for and to be substituted for the Bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued to the Mis-

125 sissippi Central and Tennessee Railroad Company, and the Mississippi Central Railroad Company, to be registered and certified pursuant to said statutes of said State of Tennessee, by the Comptroller thereof, and to be issued to the party or parties paying the lien of the State, or to furnish the means to pay and satisfy said lien, and to be entitled to and in fact become, and as provided by the acts of the State of Tennessee aforesaid, a lien in the nature of a first mortgage upon the property of this Company
126 in the State of Tennessee, the same precisely as is now declared to exist in favor of said State, under and by virtue of the statutes thereof in pursuance of which the loan and advance of State Bonds was made to the Company or Companies, of whose rights and property this Company has succeeded, and with all rights, privileges and liens created by said statutes, and all powers to enforce the same originally residing in said State;

127 Resolved, That said Bonds from numbers one thousand two hundred, to four thousand one hundred and forty inclusive, shall be reserved and shall be deposited with said Trustees, and shall be used for the purpose of being exchanged for, or of providing for the purchase or payment of the outstanding first Mortgage Bonds of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, being two thousand nine hundred and forty-one of said Bonds;

128 Resolved, That said Bonds numbered from four thousand one hundred and forty-one to five thousand six hundred and forty inclusive, shall be reserved, and shall be deposited with said Trustees, and shall be used for the purpose of being exchanged for, or of providing for the payment or purchase of the outstanding second mortgage Bonds of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern

Railroad Company, being one thousand five hundred 129
of said Bonds;

Resolved, That said Bonds numbered from five thousand six hundred and forty-one, to six thousand one hundred and forty inclusive, shall be reserved, and shall be deposited with said Trustees, and shall be used for the purpose of being exchanged for, or of paying and liquidating, the outstanding and unpaid coupons under said first and second mortgages of said New Orleans, Jackson and 130
Great Northern Railroad Company, and the Matured Coupon Bonds issued to provide for the postponement of the date of payment of the said Coupons, being five hundred of said Bonds;

Resolved, That said Bonds numbered from number six thousand one hundred and forty-one, to seven thousand one hundred and thirty-two inclusive, shall be reserved, and shall be deposited with said Trustees, and shall be used for the purpose of being exchanged for, or cancelling, or providing for 131
the payment or purchase of the outstanding Bonds under the first mortgage of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company, being nine hundred and ninety-two of such Bonds, or so many thereof as shall be needed to cancel and extinguish all of said Bonds, which are outstanding, and are legal and valid obligations;

Resolved, That said Bonds numbered from seven thousand one hundred and thirty-three, to nine 132 thousand one hundred and twenty-nine inclusive, shall be reserved and shall be deposited with said Trustees, and said Bonds or so many thereof as shall be necessary, shall be used for the purpose of being exchanged for, or of providing for the payment and satisfaction of the outstanding Bonds under the second mortgage of the Mississippi Central Railroad

132 Company, which are legal and valid obligations; and none of said Bonds referred to in this or the last resolution. shall be removed from said deposit or used for any other purpose, until the whole of said first and second mortgage Bonds of the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company which are outstanding and valid obligations shall be paid or cancelled;

Resolved, That said Bonds numbered from nine 134 thousand one hundred and thirty to ten thousand three hundred and fifty inclusive, shall be reserved and set apart, and shall be used for the purpose of paying and satisfying the outstanding coupons and scrip, and other liens which may be valid, and prior to this mortgage upon the property, railroad and franchises which were of the said Mississippi Central Railroad Company, until all such liens are cancelled, being one thousand two hundred and twenty-one of said Bonds, or so many thereof as 135 shall be necessary for the purpose of cancelling and satisfying said coupons, scrip and liens;

Resolved, That said Bonds numbered from number ten thousand three hundred and fifty-one to ten thousand eight hundred and fifty inclusive, being five hundred of such Bonds, shall be used and issued to supply the means to take up and pay any remaining prior liens or incumbrances upon the property hereby mortgaged, any deficiency in any of the particular appropriations hereinbefore made, 136 and the general expenses of said trust;

Resolved, That the residue of the Bonds shall be placed in the hands of the said Trustees, and shall be executed by the President of the Company, and certified by the said Trustees only upon expenditures made, or liabilities incurred:

First—In the payment of any coupons now overdue and not postponed, upon the first and second 137 mortgage Bonds of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company, and upon first mortgage Bonds of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company, not hereinbefore specially provided for; Second.—In constructing and improving the line of Railroad of this Company, with its switches, turn-onts, branches, side-tracks and equipments, or for payment of debts, or liabilities already incurred for such construction and improvement; and upon evidence satisfactory being furnished to the 138 said Trustees of the amount required to discharge debts and liabilities incurred, or necessary to incur, in improving, completing and putting the said Railroad in order as a first class railroad, or in procuring additional equipment therefor, they shall deliver to the said corporation, or to purchasers of said bonds so many of the said bonds as they shall deem equivalent to the amount of said expenditures, until the said line from New Orleans to the Ohio river as aforesaid, shall be fully completed 139 and equipped as a first-class railroad, or until the whole number of the said thirteen thousand bonds, after applying such portion thereof as has been by these resolutions specifically appropriated shall have been delivered to the Company or to the purchasers thereof;

Resolved, That the said mortgage to be executed for the security of the said bonds, shall contain the ordinary provisions and conditions, as shall be advised by counsel, and, generally the following covenants and agreements; 140

First.—That until default this company shall retain the possession and use of the mortgaged premises;

Second.—That this company will pay and dis-

141 charge all taxes or assessments which may be imposed upon the mortgaged premises or any part thereof;

Third.—That in case of default in the payment of any of the coupons or interest warrants, on any of the said bonds, as such they respectively become payable, and the continuance of such default for ninety days, or of default in the payment of the principal when the same becomes due or of any breach of any of the conditions or covenants in the 142 said mortgage contained, the said mortgage shall become due and payable at the option of the holders of one million ($1,000,000) dollars of said bonds, and the said trustees as aforesaid or their successors shall upon demand of the holders of said bonds to the amount of one million ($1,000,000) dollars of said bonds, and the said trustees as aforesaid or their successors shall, upon demand of the holders of said bonds to the amount of one million ($1,000,000) dollars, enter into and 143 upon said railroad, and operate and use the same, for the benefit of the holders of said bonds, as may be authorized by law, and shall thereafter upon like demand, take proceedings for the foreclosure and sale of the railroad and premises, for the benefit of the holders of said bonds; provided that if this company or its successors or assigns, shall after any such forfeiture has been made or suffered, and the principal of said bonds has been made due in consequence, and before a sale of said premises has 144 been actually had under said mortgage, pay or tender the amount of interest in arrears, with interest thereon, and all costs and expenses incurred in proceeding to foreclose said mortgage, such forfeiture shall be waived, and this company shall be entitled to repossess itself of said property, and such mortgage shall stand as if no default had occurred;

Fourth.—That all the said bonds now authorized 145
to be issued, or which may be sold and negotiated, are upon an equality so far as regards the security, upon the entire property described in such mortgage, and shall be upon like equality in the payment thereof, except the bonds issued in payment or substitution for the bonds of the State of Tennessee, to the amount of one million one hundred and ninety-nine thousand ($1,199,000) dollars, which besides and in addition are by law entitled to, and are to be recognized as holding the first lien in pre- 146 ference to the residue of said bonds, and to all other obligations, mortgages or debts whatever, upon the railroad and property of this corporation, within the limits of the State of Tennessee.

That in case of default in the payment of interest, or of the principal of any of the said bonds to be numbered from number one to number one thousand one hundred and ninety-nine inclusive, and which will bear the certificate of the Comptroller of the State of Tennessee, and will be substituted and 147 issued in exchange for bonds of said State, the said Trustees, upon the request of the holders of five hundred of said bonds, may appoint a Receiver, with the usual powers, rights and duties of Receivers, who shall enter upon and take possession of so much of the railroad and property of this Company as lies within the limits of said State of Tennessee, for and in behalf of said trustees and the holders of said bonds, for the protection and enforcement of the lien of said bonds, as succeeding to said State 148
under the statutes thereof; or the said trustees, upon the like request, may themselves, in case of any such default, enter upon and take possession of all that portion of said railroad and property within the State of Tennessee, as aforesaid, and manage and operate the same, so long as such default shall continue, for the benefit and protection

149 of the holders of said substituted bonds, in the same manner as a Receiver appointed by a proper Court having jurisdiction; and this Company, upon request of said trustees, in case of such default, will surrender to said trustees, or to the Receiver so appointed by them, the possession of said railroad within the State of Tennessee, and will suffer the use and occupation thereof, so long as such default continues, by or for the benefit of said trustees, or the holders of said substituted bonds;

Fifth.—That all the said bonds, after reservation of those hereinbefore specified, and the proceeds thereof shall be faithfully used and applied to the construction, completion and equipment of the railroad and property, structures and buildings of the said Company, the payment of debts or liabilities already incurred for the same, and of liens and charges prior to the said proposed mortgage;

151 Sixth.—That whenever and as often as the Company shall acquire any additional land, or other property, the same shall be held and possessed under and subject to the mortgage made to secure the said bonds;

Seventh.—That the Company will, from time to time, if thereunto requested by the trustees named in said mortgage, or their successors, execute and deliver any further deed or assurance for the better 152 assuring and conveying its railroad, and property, and franchises, whether now owned, or hereafter acquired, for the securing of the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds;

Eighth.—That the said trustees or their successors, shall be empowered to make such releases or exchanges of any property, in said mortgage or deed of trust described, and which may not be needed or used for the track, buildings or other purposes 153 of said road, as may be expedient, upon condition that the net proceeds of all property so released, shall be used only in the purchase of other property or equipment for the road, or in the payment of said bonds or obligations, and that all property taken in exchange shall become subject to said mortgage in like manner with the property exchanged;

And whereas to make the assurance and security 154 of this mortgage and deed of trust complete, and to remove any question that it will create a perfect lien upon the whole of said line of railroad, from New Orleans to the Ohio River, as aforesaid, and upon all the property, estate, franchises and interests which were at any time heretofore owned, or exercised or operated by the said New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad Company or said Mississippi Central Railroad Company, the Corporation known as the New Orleans, Jackson and 155
Northern Railroad Company, and the Central Mississippi Railroad Company, parties of the second and third parts hereto, have agreed and the respective Boards of Directors thereof have authorized and directed, that the said Corporations should unite in the execution of this mortgage or deed of trust, to secure the bonds to be issued as hereinbefore mentioned.

Now this indenture witnesseth that the said parties of the first, second and third parts, in con- 156
sideration of the premises, and for securing payment of the bonds to be made and executed to the amount of thirteen millions of dollars, in lawful money of the United States, as hereinbefore mentioned, and the interest to accrue thereon, and in consideration of the sum of ten dollars lawful money of the United States, unto then well and truly paid

157 by the parties of the fourth part, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, have granted, bargained, sold, released, confirmed, assigned, transferred, and set over, and by these presents do grant, bargain, sell, release, confirm, assign, transfer and set over unto the said parties of the fourth part, and their lawful successors in the trust hereby created, all and singular the Railroad aforesaid, with its appurtenances, depots, depot grounds, branches, furniture and equipments, and all and every right, title or 158 interest which said parties of the first, second, or third parts, or either of them, had or has, or shall hereafter acquire in, or to the same, being the line of Railroad formerly known, in part as the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern Railroad, and in part as the Mississippi Central Railroad, and subsequently, by the consolidation of said two Companies, as the New Orleans, St. Louis and Chicago Railroad, and now intended to be owned and operated as one continuous line of railroad, from New and that such survivor or survivors may, with the 235

And upon the person or persons so designated delivering to such survivors and to the said party of the first part, or its successors, a written acceptance of the trust, he or they, as the case may be, shall become the successor or successors of the person or persons so dying, resigning or becoming unable to act with all the rights 236 and powers herein and hereby vested in the said parties of the fourth part. And in case all parties of the fourth part shall die, resign, or become unable to act, as aforesaid, so that there shall be no Trustees to discharge the trusts and duties created by this Instrument, or if any survivor or survivors and the party of the first part shall not agree in the

237 choice of a person or persons to succeed to and fill any such vacancy; persons to succeed thereto or to fill said trusteeships, or any of them, may be appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Louisiana, on the application of the party of the first part, or of any such surviving Trustee or Trustees, or of holders of at least one hundred bonds to be issued hereunder, as aforesaid, provided that notice of the application be previously published in at least three daily papers in the 238 City of New York, and in one newspaper published in each of the States of Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky for four successive weeks, one in each week.

And the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, further covenants and agrees to pay to the said parties of the fourth part, and each of them, annually, for their ordinary services under this trust and in the discharge of the duties hereby 239 created the sum of three hundred ($300) dollars, together with any necessary expenses actually incurred for clerk hire and legal advice, and it is further covenanted and agreed, and this trust is accepted upon the express condition that the said Trustees, parties of the fourth part, shall not nor shall their successors, or any future Trustee or Trustees, incur any liability or responsibility whatever, in consequence of permitting or suffering the said party of the first part to retain or be in possession of the rail-
240 road property and premises hereby mortgaged or any part thereof, or for any destruction, deterioration, loss or damage which may be done to or incurred by the railroads or estates hereby mortgaged, either by the act or default of such party of the first part, or its agents or servants, or of any other person or persons whomsoever, or for the consequences of any breach on the part of the party of the first part, or the parties of the second or third parts, of any covenants herein contained, or of any act of the party of the first part, its agents or servants, or of the parties of the second or third parts, nor for any other matter or thing except for their or his own wilful or negligent breach of the trusts herein expressed and contained; 241

And it is expressly covenanted and agreed, by and between the parties aforesaid, that all and singular the covenants, conditions and agreements herein contained, shall extend and apply to the successors and assigns of the respective parties, whether they be expressly named therein or not; 242

And it is hereby expressly provided, and this Indenture is made upon condition that, if the said Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company, its successors or assigns, shall well and truly pay, or cause to be paid, all the interest, without deduction of any taxes or assessments, as the same shall from time to time become due and payable upon the said bonds, as hereinbefore stipulated, and shall pay the said principal of said bonds at maturity, according to the tenor and intent thereof, and shall keep and perform all and every the covenants herein contained on the part of the said Company, then and in that case this Indenture shall be and become null and void, and the estate hereby granted or conveyed, or agreed so to be, shall be void and of no effect, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding; otherwise this Indenture and the estate hereby granted and conveyed, shall be and remain in full force. 243 244

"STATE OF TENNESSEE.

We, James D. Porter, Governor, and Charles N. Gibbs, Secretary of State of the State of Tennessee, do hereby certify—pursuant to section 6 of an Act entitled 'An Act to liquidate the State debt contracted in aid of Railroad Companies in the State of Tennessee,' passed Eebruary 25, 1869, that Adolphe 254 Schreiber, James Fentress and Lewis V. F. Randolph (Trustees under a certain mortgage made the eighth day of November, 1877, between the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company, of the first part; the New Orleans, Jackson and Northern Railroad Company, of the second part; the Central Mississippi Railroad Company, of the third part, and the said Trustees of the fourth part), as Trustees for the purchasers and holders of the bonds to be issued under said mortgage, number-255 ed from number one to number one thousand one hundred and ninety-nine, inclusive, have paid in and delivered up bonds and coupons of the State of Tennessee as authorized by the Act aforesaid equal in amount to the indebtedness heretofore created by the Mississippi Central and Tennessee Railroad Company, and the Mississippi Central Railroad Company, and which is a first lien on the Railroad and property heretofore known as the Mississippi Central Railroad, lying in the State of Tennessee, 256 and has become a debt of, and a first lien upon the property of the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company, its successor, in the State of Tennessee; that such payment was made by and with the written consent of the Board of Directors of the Central Mississippi Railroad Company and of the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company, as allowed by the statutes of Tennessee, and that the said Trustees, for and in behalf 257 of the holders of said bonds to be issued under said mortgage to provide and be substituted for the debt of the State of Tennessee so paid, are substituted and entitled to all the liens against said property for the payment of said debt that the State of Tennessee had or has by law.

And we do hereby, as provided and authorized in the Act of February 25, 1869, and acts amendatory thereof, in the name of the State of Tennessee and in 258 her behalf and for the considerations above-named, assign and transfer to the said Adolphe Schreiber, James Fentress and Lewis V. F. Randolph, Trustees as aforesaid, all the debt and lien of the State of Tennessee on the Railroad and property heretofore owned in said State, by the Mississippi Central and Tennessee Railroad Company and on all the railroad and property in said State heretofore known as the Mississippi Central Railroad, now known as the 259
Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad, which said State has or had on the same by reason of the internal improvement laws of said State, and the fact that said State had granted aid to said railroads under the statutes thereof, with all the rights, privileges and powers which said State has or had for enforcing said lien; the object being to substitute the said Trustees for the State, and to place them in the same position and with the same rights which the State of Tennessee had previous to and 260 before the said payment and delivery of State Bonds, with full power to enforce the same in any and every manner in which the said State may or might.

This the 28th of November, A. D. 1877.

In witness whereof, I, James D. Porter,
Governor of the State of Tennessee,

261 have hereto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State of Tennessee to be hereunto affixed, this 28th of November, 1877.

nter. 1. Please state your age, residence and occupation?

Ans. to Int. 1. I am in my sixty-fifth year. Am a banker.

Int. 2. Were you a party to the suit in the Chancery Court at Nashville, Tennessee, wherein the 6 State of Tennessee was complainant and the Edgefield & Kentucky Railroad Company and others were defendants, the purpose of which suit was to sell the delinquent railroads in the State?

Ans. to Int. 2. I was a party to the suit in question?

Int. 3. By whom was your answer in that suit written?

Did you retain a lawyer to write and file said answer and defend your interests in said suit, and if 7 so, whom?

Did you pay any lawyer a fee for filing your answer and representing you in the case?

Were you in favor of or opposed to the sale of the delinquent railroads by the State under the Acts of 1869 and 1870?

How did you happen to be made a party to said suit?

Please state all the circumstances connected with the writing and filing of your answer in said suit,
8 and whether you felt any interest in the litigation as a bondholder claiming a lien on any of the defendant railroads?

Ans. to Int. 3. Do not remember by whom my answer to that suit was written. Francis B. Fogg was my regular attorney for many years previous to and subsequent to that time, to attend to all my official and individual litigation. My recollection is that Mr. W. B. Reese called on me for the numbers on my State bonds. Have no recollection of retaining a lawyer to write and file said answer and defend my interest, nor have I any recollection of paying any lawyer a fee for filing my answer and representing me in the case. I was in favor of the State selling the delinquent railroads under the several acts of the Legislature passed for that purpose. Don't remember now the particulars as to how I happened to be made a party to that suit. I have already stated all I now remember of the circumstances connected with the writing and filing of my answer in said suit. 9 10

I felt no particular interest in the litigation as a bondholder claiming a lien on any of the defendant railroads.

The deposition of A. S. Marks, Governor of Tennessee, a witness for defendant. 4

Witness, being first duly sworn to speak the truth, deposes and says:

Question 1st (By Defendant's Counsel). Are you the 5 Governor of Tennessee, and if so how long have you occupied that position?

Answer. I am, and have occupied that position since my inauguration on January 17th, 1879.

Q. 2. Who was your immediate predecessor as Governor of Tennessee?

A. Hon James D. Porter.

Q. 3. Did the complainant in this suit, Calvin Amory Stevens, either by himself, or attorney, or agent, prior to 6 the bringing of this suit, make any application to you to appoint a Receiver of the Mississippi Central and Tennessee or Mississippi Central Railroad; if so, when?

A. There has been no application by Mr. Stevens to me or to the Executive Office of Tennessee to appoint a Receiver of the roads mentioned; nor has there ever been any application to the Governor of Tennessee since I have been in office, to appoint a Receiver of any railroad in Tennessee.

7 Q. 4. Has there been, prior to the bringing of this suit, any application by complainant, or any holder of the bonds of Tennessee, so far as you know, under the third section of the Funding Act of 1873, to set apart in the hands of the Treasurer any revenues of the State for payment of the interest on such bonds, as provided in said act?

A. To my knowledge there has been no such application.

8 Cross-examination by counsel for complainant:

Cross-Question 1. If complainant or any other bondholder had applied to you as Governor of the State to appoint a Receiver on defendant's road, would you have done so?

A. I would not.

(Defendant excepts to above question and answer as hypothetical and irrelevant.) 9

A. Yes. I delivered those bonds and coupons to the agent of the Comptroller of the State on behalf of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company, at divers dates between the 10th and 7 14th of June, 1870, taking such receipts therefor. And I also paid the sum of $11.10 in cash to make up the whole amount of the indebtedness of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company at that time to the State of Tennessee.

ED. R. PENNEBAKER,

13 3 Q. Were you one of the purchasers of the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston railroad at the sale of that property under the State's lien ?

A. I was one of the trustees who purchased that property on behalf of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company.

4 Q. What was the purchase price ?

A. $300,000, payable in Tennessee State bonds carrying the coupons due the first of January, 1871, and thereafter.

14 5 Q. Did you as such purchasers pay to the State of Tennessee that amount of the bonds of the State ?

A. Yes; we paid those bonds to the State in accordance with the terms of the decree under which we purchased the property,

6 Q. Are you one of the trustees of the mortgage executed by the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company, dated June 1st, 1870; and, if so, please produce such mortgage.

15 A. I am one of the trustees, and will produce such mortgage to be annexed to this deposition.

(Mortgage produced, offered in evidence, and marked Respondent's Exhibit No. 1—W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.)

7 Q. State how many bonds have been issued, and are now outstanding, under that mortgage.

16 A. There have been issued, and are now outstanding in the hands of the general public, $3,123,000 of those bonds.

8 Q. Are you also a trustee under the mortgage of the Knoxville & Ohio Railroad Company dated January 1st, 1876; and, if so, please produce such mortgage ?

A. I am such trustee, and will produce such mortgage.

(Mortgage produced, offered in evidence, 17 and marked Respondent's Exhibit No. 2—
W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.)

9 Q. How many bonds have been issued and are outstanding under that mortgage?

A. There are $500,000 bonds issued and now outstanding under that mortgage and in the hands of the general public.

10 Q. How many bonds have been issued and are now outstanding under the mortgage executed by 18 the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company and dated the 20th August, 1877.

A. There have been issued and are now outstanding in the hands of the general public $1,400,000 of the first class bonds mentioned therein generally known as first mortgage bonds of the Tennessee Division of the road, which are secured through an assignment of the Tennessee lien under the tripartite agreement. There have also been issued under such mortgage $558,000 of junior bonds which are 19 not secured.

10 a Q. State, so far as you know, how and where the bonds issued under the mortgage just produced, executed by the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company and the Knoxville and Ohio Railroad Company and the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company, are now held.

A. Those issued by the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company were mainly sold in Europe, and are held there now probably to the 20 extent of four-fifths of them, and I should say that the remaining fifth is held mainly in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, by a good many different parties; the Knoxville and Ohio substitution bonds are held mainly in New York, Boston, Baltimore and Ohio, by sundry persons.

10 b Q. Did any of the present holders of those

21 bonds, so far as you know, know at the time they became purchasers thereof, of any claim on the part of the holders of the bonds of the State of Tennessee, that bonds loaned to railroads were in any way a lien upon the property of the company to which they were loaned?

A. They were all negotiated before the bringing of these suits, and so far as I know before any public announcement of any such claim as is now attempted to be set up in these suits, and before the 22 public who became purchasers of these bonds could have known of the existence of such claim on the part or behalf of the Tennessee bondholders; as previously stated, I held some of these bonds and had seen the Davies and Davis opinion which I had referred to my counsel but never read; he telling me it was unsound. And this opinion came into my hands then because I was interested in Tennessee railroads, and was not in any way circulated as a public document, so far as I know or believe,
23 for the purpose of putting the purchasers of bonds upon notice of the existence of such a claim.

11 Q. At the time of the settlement of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company with the State in June, 1870, what was the amount of any of the arrears due for interest and sinking fund from the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee?

A. In June, 1870, at the time of making its settlement with the State, the East Tennessee, Vir-24 ginia & Georgia Railroad Company was in arrears to the sinking fund for the instalment thereof, which became due on the first day of January, 1870, to the amount of $152,640 or thereabouts, being four per cent. upon the principal of its indebtednesss to the State of Tennessee at that time, and was also in arrears for the non-payment of the interest on its indebtedness to the State, which became due on the 15th of December, 1869, to the 25 amount of $114,480 or thereabouts, and another interest instalment of a like amount was about falling due to the State on the 15th day of June, 1870; and by the laws of the State the railroad company, besides paying the semi-annual interest instalment, was required to pay to the sinking fund four per cent. annually on the first day of January, and under the law the property of the company was subject to be taken possession of and sold out by the State in consequence of the company's default in 26 respect to the sinking fund.

12 Q. In July, 1877, at the time of the purchase by Iselins of the State lien upon the Memphis & Charleston Railroad, how much was the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company, if any, in arrears in respect of the interest and sinking fund payments due to the State?

A. At that time the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company was in arrears to the sinking fund for installments due for several years pre- 27 viously thereto to the amount of $342,541.12, or thereabouts, and was also in arrears for non-payment of interest on its indebtedness to the State, which became due on the 15th day of June, 1877, to the amount of $50,157.40, and also in arrears to the amount of $14,742.40 for the non-payment of a portion of the interest on its indebtedness to the State, which became due on the 15th day of December, 1876, and under the law it was subject to be taken possession of and sold by the State in consequence 28 of such defaults to the sinking fund, and the State had been actually threatening to take possession of the road under its statutory rights.

13 Q. Have you procured from the records of the office of the Comptroller of the State of Tennessee a statement showing the amount paid in by railroads through the retirement of their debts to the State

29 and by sinking fund payments made since January, 1870, and the sales of railroads and other particulars in respect to these matters?

A. Yes, I have procured such a statement, and I now produce it to be annexed to my deposition, with a summary statement of the results thereof, showing payments to the State of bonds, coupons, and money by the railroads, including the payment previously made by the Louisville and Nashville Company, amounting in all to $22,664,827.28.

(Statement produced; marked Respt's Exhibit No. 3—W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.)

14 Q. State, as nearly as you can, what was the amount of the total bonded indebtedness of the State on the 20th day of January, 1870?

A. As nearly as I can state it, and I was pretty familiar with the debt of Tennessee, it was about $37,854,734 of principal, on which there was past 31 due interest amounting to about $2,346,070, making a total of about $40,200,805, about $21,962,827 of which has since that date been realized from the disposition by the State of the railroad assets which it then held.

15 Q. Does the above indebtedness embrace the liability of the State as endorser on the city and railroad bonds endorsed by it?

A. It does not. In addition to the above indebtedness the State was liable as endorser on city and 32 railroad bonds to the extent of about $2,196,000; most, if not all, these endorsed bonds were outstanding on the 20th of January, 1870.

16 Q. Was the settlement made by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company with the State of Tennessee of its indebtedness for bonds loaned by the State open and public and notorious?

A. Yes, it was, and besides other publicity given to it, it fully appeared by the proceedings in the 33 Legislature of the State of Tennessee in the year 1865, including a resolution adopted May 5, 1865, appointing commissioners to settle with that Railroad Company, and the said Commissioners did settle with the Railroad Company, and made a report of that fact to the Legislature of the State of Tennessee, dated November 18, 1865. I produce a copy of this resolution and report to be annexed to my deposition.

17 Q. Was the pendency and passage of the Acts 34 of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee of 1869–70, in respect to the relations between the railroads and the State of Tennessee, open and public and notorious?

A. I was not present in Nashville at either of the sessions of 1869 or 1870, so far as I now remember, but it was a matter of great public concern, provoked considerable discussion and comment, all of which, including the Acts, were published in the newspapers, and attracted a good deal of attention.. 35

18 Q. Was the making of settlements between the different railroad companies of Tennessee and the State, in respect of their indebtedness, open and public and notorious when the same took place?

A. Yes, in a certain sense it was public, open and notorious; my firm conducted a very large proportion of the settlements of what were called the solvent roads, or the class that retired their debts and were not sold out, and while we did not state to the public generally while purchasing the bonds that we 36 would at a certain day retire the debt of this or that road, it was nevertheless a fact well known generally, and I always mentioned it to the bondholders of the State, many of whom came in to get information respecting the prospects for the resumption of interest and the settlement of the State debt, and uniformly, and I believe universally, I spoke of this scheme of 37 retiring the railroad's debts and reducing the indebtedness of the State through these laws and through the sale of the insolvent roads as the only feasible remedy which was open to my mind for the resumption of the interest on the part of the State; in the course of these business transactions I applied to a number of prominent houses in New York and Philadelphia, and the agents of some foreign houses, to induce them to join in furnishing the money with which to conduct these settlements; and in the instance 38 of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Road, I went to Messrs. E. D. Morgan & Co. and made personal application to Gov. Morgan, with whom I had formed a passing acquaintance, mainly growing out of his interest in the bonds of the State of Tennessee, my former residence there having given me, as he supposed, some opportunity of obtaining more correct information as to the probable course of Tennessee in respect to its indebtedness;

and hence when I was ready to undertake the 39 negotiation for the settlement of the indebtedness of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company to the State, my mind first fell on his house as being a strong house of high standing and well known in the streets of New York, and as the proper parties to associate with me in procuring the necessary funds. I went to the office of E. D. Morgan & Co.
on several occasions, and after conversing more or less generally on the Tennessee debt subject, I solicited him to make an exchange of their Tennessee 40 State bonds for railroad bonds, to be issued by the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company under the acts of 1869-70. I first suggested this method of making an exchange of Tennessee bonds for the bonds of the company on some basis to be agreed upon to be satisfactory to all parties, to enable the company to make a settlement with the State and close out their indebtedness.

I told Governor Morgan that I thought that if the 41 scheme that was contemplated under the acts of 1869 and 1870, and the act for the sale of the insolvent roads could be carried out it would certainly relieve the State, and he agreed with me in thinking so, and that it would enable it to restore its credit. I cannot say whether or not Governor Morgan ever seriously considered the subject of joining with me in the retirement of the debt, but I can certainly say that I explained to him fully my intention in regard to settling with the State the debt which the 42
East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company owed to it, and he fully approved of such a course being pursued as the best means, and I may say the only means by which the State of Tennessee could be placed in such a position as would enable her to manage her debt most advantageously to all her creditors and herself. And as I have previously stated in this deposition, I had frequent talks with Mr. Peter Geddes about the proposed settlement of railroads with the State, and especially and par- 43 ticularly about the settlement of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company's indebtedness to the State, in all of which he showed the same anxiety that I did to have the debts of the railroads to the State settled as proposed, and the State and the railroads divorced, so to speak, from each other. In fact he was exceedingly solicitous to have this separation entire and complete through settlements made by the railroad companies under the acts of 1869 and 1870, and by the sale of the insolvent 44
roads.

19 Q. Were the sales of the insolvent roads also open and public and notorious?

A. Yes, they were.

20 Q. Did you ever know or hear of any action or proceeding being taken of any kind by any bondholder of the State of Tennessee, either in opposi-

45 tion to the settlement with the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, or the passage of the acts of 1869 and 1870 in respect to the relation between the railroads and the State or the settlements thereunder, or to the sales of the insolvent roads made by the State?

A. No, I do not think any such action or proceedings were ever taken; I certainly never heard of any.

21 Q. Have the Knoxville and Kentucky Railroad
46 and the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston Railroad been held by and in possession of the Knoxville and Ohio Railroad Company and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company or R. T. Wilson and C. M. McGhee, trustees, since the time of the purchase of those respective roads?

A. They have been held continuously in the undisputed possession as to the Knoxville and Kentucky Railroad of the Knoxville and Ohio Rail-47 road Company, and as to the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston Railroad of R. T. Wilson and C. M. McGhee, trustees, and afterwards of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company as transferrees from them.

22 Q. Have you been familiar with the dealings in the New York market in respect to the State bonds of Tennessee since the year 1866?

A. I came here in the summer of 1866, and commenced business in the fall of that year, and since 48 that time I have been more familiar than almost anyone else in New York with the dealings in New York in regard to the bonds of the State of Tennessee.

23 Q. State whether there has been at any time in New York any difference in price between bonds loaned to railroad companies and bonds issued by the State for other purposes, or between those loaned to railroads of undoubted responsibility and 49 those loaned to railroads which had been sold out by the State.

A. There never has been any difference, nor is now any such difference in the market price of the bonds in the city of New York, except that shortly before the commencement of these suits I heard that one of the complainants was offering a small premium to exchange bonds which he had for bonds loaned to solvent railroads.

24 Q. Did you ever know or hear of any of the 50 bonds of the State of Tennessee being bought or sold as carrying any lien upon the railroad to which they had been loaned?

A. I never did, with the exception mentioned above.

25 Q. To what extent, as nearly as you are able to say, have been your dealings in bonds of the State of Tennessee?

A. It is difficult for me to estimate the exact amount; I have bought, however for the purpose 51 of retiring the debts of the roads to the State, and for making payments for sold roads purchased, about fifteen million dollars of these bonds, and I should think that the dealings of my house, including the number bought for railroad purposes as just stated, would aggregate fully twenty millions of dollars; and I never did in the purchase of all these bonds hear of them carrying a lien on the roads to which any of them were loaned, nor did I ever sell a bond of the State of Tennessee which I 52 represented, or authorized any one to represent, as carrying a lien upon the road, nor did I ever hear of any such understanding on the part of any purchaser from me.

26 Q. What proportion of the bonds dealt in by you were dealt in at the Stock Exchange in the City of New York?

53 A. Nearly all of them; in fact I do not now remember that we ever bought as much as a hundred thousand dollars of bonds off the Stock Exchange; the dealings were almost universally confined and always have been, as far as my information goes, to the New York Stock Exchange.

27 Q. Please state at what time since the war the State of Tennessee has paid interest upon its obligations, and during what portion of the time she has been in default thereon?

54 A. She has been in default on her interest obligations all the time since the war, except that she paid installments of interest in 1867 and 1868, and after the settlements were mainly made between the railroads and the State; she paid three installments of interest in 1874 and 1875, since which time no interest has been paid by her upon any of her obligations.

March 29, A.D. 1880.

Present—Counsel as before.

Cross-examination by Mr. Andrews:

28 x Q. Did not a holder of Tennessee bonds, about the year 1869 or '70, make demand or claim upon one of the railroads, of which you are an officer, or upon you as their representative in respect of their 56 liability for the payment of the Tennessee bonds issued to them?

A. No holder of a Tennessee bond issued to a railroad with which I have had any connection, or to any other railroad, ever made any demand or claim upon such railroad, so far as I have any knowledge or recollection upon the subject, until these suits were brought.

29 x Q. What did you get Mr. Southmayd's 57 opinion for?

A. I got it as to the legal status of the question—what the law meant. I gave him the Act and asked for his interpretation of it.

30 x Q. Why did you not communicate to James
A. Roosevelt and James P. Wallace that the committee of Tennessee bondholders had obtained the opinion of Judges Davies and Davis, to the effect that Tennessee State bonds were liens upon the railroads to which they were issued? 58

A. Firstly, as I have stated before, I did not believe it was sound, and was so advised by Mr. Southmayd. My impression of it at the time it was obtained was that it was intended as a mere scare against somebody or other.

Further, as it was addressed to Mr. Donaldson, as chairman of the Tennessee bondholders' committee, it was their business to circulate it if they believed in its soundness. Certainly I did not consider it my business as I did not believe it. 59

31 x Q. When did you first know Mr. Peter Geddes?

A. I should think in 1874 or '5, somewhere along there, but I really do not remember.

32 x Q. Did you know him in 1875?

A. I am inclined to think I did.

33 x Q. Would you swear that you knew him before 1876?

A. I will not swear exactly when my acquaintance began with him more precisely than I have 60 done.

61 April 3d, 1880.

Present—Mr. Tweed, for Respondents.
Mr. Andrews, for Complainants.

34 x Q. Did you know Mr. Peter Geddes in 1879?

A. Yes.

35 x Q. Did you know him in 1878?

A. Yes.

36 x Q. Did you know him in 1877?

62 A. Yes; I think I did.

37 x Q. Did you know him in 1876?

A. I think so; it is my recollection that I did.

38 x Q. In 1876 how many roads in Tennessee had not delivered to the State bonds under these substitution and selling out laws?

A. As I now remember, the Memphis & Charleston, Mississippi & Tennessee, Mississippi Central, Tennessee & Pacific, and, probably, the Knoxville & Charleston, but some of these roads had delivered 63 some bonds to the State—I refer to the sold out roads.

39 x Q. Is not the Act for Substitution, referred to in your deposition as the Act of July 25, 1869, intended to be referred to as the Act of February 25, 1869?

A. I don't know where in my deposition I have referred to this Act, but I think the latter is the date of the Act.

40 x Q. Were not the substitution bonds of nearly 64 every railroad in Tennessee that issued them, except the Memphis & Charleston, and perhaps two inferior or small roads, issued and sold before 1874?

A. I can only speak definitely as to when they were issued and sold as to the following roads: The substitution bonds of the E. T., Va. & Ga., the Mobile & Ohio, Nashville & Decatur, Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, Knoxville & Ohio, as I now remember, were issued and sold before 1874, or mainly so. 65

41 x Q. Is not this pamphlet the prospectus to which Chas. Tracy's opinion is attached?

A. I think so.

(Complainants' counsel offers said pamphlet in evidence, except opinion of Chas. Tracy already in evidence.)

singular the corporate rights, powers, privileges and franchises, and likewise with, and owner and occu- 74 pier of all property, real, personal and mixed, and belonged or appertained to the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company, and the East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad Co., corporations created and organized under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Tennessee, with certain rights and priv- 75 ileges under the laws of the State of Georgia, as fully and effectually as the same rights, powers, privileges, franchises, property, debts, contracts, rights of way and other interests were held, owned and exercised by the said last-named corporations, or either of them, at the time of the consummation of the organization executing these presents, but subject however, to all the then existing debts, liens, and other liabilities incurred, created or suffered by the same corporations, or either of them; such 76

State unto the East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad Company, and unto the East Tennessee & Virginia

Tennessee does hold a statutory lien upon the Railroad property and franchises of said last-named corporations ; and it is provided that the said corporations may make and issue first mortgage bonds covering the Railroad, property, rights and franchises of their corporations, which bonds may be issued as rapidly as bonds of the State of Tennessee are surrendered up 78 to said State by such companies in part payment and discharge of the indebtedness of said corporations to the State of Tennessee for its bonds issued in aid of said corporations to an amount equal to such payments so made from time to time on account of the said indebtedness to the State, and that such bonds so issued, being certified by the Comptroller of the State of Tennessee, acting by himself or through an agent in New York, as in said act prescribed, shall be a lien pro rata in 79 amount and of equal validity and effect with the unretired part of the said State indebtedness upon such railroads, property, franchises, fixtures, and materials.

And Whereas, To enable the said party of the first part to liquidate, pay, satisfy and fully discharge the said indebtedness to the State of Tennessee, and also for the purpose of perfecting its

93 from the same, or any [illegible] or portion thereof, or from any part or portion of said term or terms, or either thereof; and all right to receive or recover the same, and all railway stations and depots, with all the appurtenances necessary or convenient for the sole, complete and entire use and operation, as well as maintenance of the said roads or railways, owned or leased by said first party; and also all the locomotives, engines, tenders, cars, carriages, tools and machinery, belonging or appertaining to said
94 railroads and railways so owned as aforesaid; (excepting and reserving therefrom so much of the rolling machinery and other personalty as was purchased from the Government of the United States, in part, by the said East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company, and in part by the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Company, in or about the Autumn of the year eighteen hundred and sixty-five;) and also all improvements or additions, made or to be made, to any or all of said properties, es-

96 all rights and privileges to use the said road-beds, tracks, sidings, turnouts and switches, constructed at the execution of these presents, or which may or shall be hereafter constructed for the convenient use of said railroads or railways, or any of them, owned or operated by said first party, as fully and as effectually as the said Company, party of the first part, is or may be by law entitled to have or acquire. 97

But nothing herein contained shall be held, understood or construed to prevent said party of the first part from selling, hypothecating, or otherwise disposing of any money or securities received in payment of shares of capital stock, or from proceeds of any debts or claims now due to said Company, or from disposing of, by and with the consent in writing of the parties of the second part, or their successors in the trust, any lands or other property and effects not essential or necessary to be retained for 98
the said roadways, depots or station grounds, nor required for the construction or convenient use of the said railways, nor from selling shares, nor from collecting moneys due on capital stock, subscriptions or otherwise, or for other things, provided the said first party shall diligently proceed to apply all such means and proceeds to improving and equiping of said railway and other like necessary purposes thereof; and provided, also, that no default shall have been made, and at the time remain, in the pay- 99
ment of the interest or principal of any of the bonds hereby secured. But even after default in the payment of interest, the Trustees shall have full power, in their discretion, upon the written request of the party of the first part, to convey, by way of release or otherwise, to the persons designated by the said party of the first part, any lands acquired or held for the purposes of stations, depots, shops or other buildings, and no longer required therefor; and request, any lands or property which, in the judgment of the Trustees, shall not be necessary for use in connection with said railroad, or which may have been held for a supply of fuel, gravel or other material, and also to convey as aforesaid, on like request, any lands not occupied by the then existing track, which may become disused by reason of 101 a change of the location of any station-house, depot, shop or other building connected with the said railroad, or any straightening or alteration of the line of the road and such land occupied by the track, and adjacent to such station-house, depot, shop or other buildings, as the said party of the first part may deem it expedient to disuse or abandon by reason of such change, and to consent to any such change, and to such other changes in the location of the track, or depot, or other buildings, as shall 102 have become expedient; and to make and deliver the conveyances necessary to carry the same into effect; provided that any lands which may be acquired for permanent use, in substitution for any so released, shall be conveyed to the Trustees, upon the trusts of these presents; and the Trustees shall also have full power to allow the said party of the first part from time to time to dispose of such portions of the equipments, machinery and implements at any time held and acquired for the use of 103 the said railroad as may have become unfit for use.

To Have and to Hold the said estate, property, rights, privileges, franchises and interest above conveyed or transferred or intended so to be, together with all and singular the emoluments, income and advantages, tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, or in anywise appertaining, and the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders, rents, issues and profits thereto, 104 unto the said Philo C. Calhoun, Richard T. Wilson and Adrian Iselin, parties of the second part, and their successors and assigns, on the trusts, and for the uses and purposes herein declared and none other.

And it is hereby declared that the said bonds for three million, five hundred thousand dollars hereby secured, are to be issued under and in pursuance of

and in accordance with the provisions of the Act of 105 Legislature of the State of Tennessee, entitled "an Act to liquidate the State debt contracted in aid of Railroad Companies in the State of Tennessee," passed February 25th, 1869, and the Acts amendatory thereof, and are to to be certified by the Comptroller of the State of Tennessee, either by himself or an agent in New York, and registered in a book kept for that purpose, as provided by the second section of said Act of February 25th, 1869, and that the said bonds hereby 106 secured are to be issued only as fast as permitted by said Act of February 25th, 1869, that is to say, in amounts from time to time equal to the payments made by the said company to the State of Tennessee, on account of the company's indebtedness to the State for its bonds issued in aid of said railroads by surrender of State bonds in discharge of such indebtedness as permitted by said Acts, and that such bonds hereby secured, which shall be so from time to time issued, before the entire discharge of the 107 company's said debt to the State, are to be a lien pro rata in amount and of equal validity and effect with the unretired part of the said State indebtedness upon the said railroads, property, franchises and other things hereby mortgaged, as by said Act is provided.

PROVIDED ALWAYS that these presents are made and executed upon the express condition that if the said party of the first part shall well and truly 108 pay or cause to be paid to the holders of the said bonds or obligations intended to be secured hereby, and each and every of them after the same shall be issued, the principal sums of money therein respectively mentioned, at the maturity thereof, according to their true intent and meaning, with the interest thereon accruing at the times and in the way and 109 manner therein, and in the coupons provided, according to the true intent and meaning of these presents, that then and from henceforth this Indenture and the estate hereby granted shall cease, determine and be utterly void and of none effect, without any other release or formal reconveyance, re-entry, acknowledgment of satisfaction, or any other act whatsoever. And the said party of the first part, in consideration of the premises, hereby covenants and agrees to and with the said Philo. C. Calhoun, 110 Richard T. Wilson and Adrian Iselin, their successor and successors in said trust and assigns, that the said first party will at any time or times hereafter, upon the reasonable request of the said parties of the second part, their successors or assigns, execute and deliver, or cause to be executed and delivered, all and every such further and other reasonable deeds, conveyances, assignments and assurances in the law for the better and more effectual vesting and confirming the premises, property, 111 rights and interests hereby granted or intended so to be, and especially for conveying any property subsequently to the date hereof acquired by the said party of the first part, and comprehended in the description contained in this indenture, if any such there be, to the said parties of the second part as trustees for the uses and purposes of this indenture, and to their successors and assigns, as by them, or their counsel learned in the law, shall be reasonably devised, advised or required ; and further, that the 112 said first party will do and perform all the things on the part of the said first party to be done and performed as hereinbefore set forth, and faithfully apply all the money and other things arising from the issue of said bonds, to the purposes hereinbefore recited or mentioned as the objects thereof ; and further, that the said first party will pay unto the holder or holders of the said bonds respectively, the said principal sums of money therein respectively 113 mentioned and as expressed therein, and the interest thereon as the same shall become due and payable, and the moneys to the trustees of the Sinking Fund as hereinafter provided ; and it is hereby further covenanted, granted, declared and agreed, that in case of default in payment thereof, either principal, interest money, or sinking fund secured hereby,

and the continuance of such default for six months after such default shall first have been made or suffered, the said first party shall and will, on demand 114 made after the expiration of such six months by the parties of the second part, their successors or assigns, trustee or trustees, for the time being, or their agent or agents, duly authorized in writing.
assign and transfer in due form to them or to their agent or agents, so authorized, the actual possession of all the herein granted and conveyed property and premises, and herein recited and mentioned, or intended to be embraced in this trust; and further, that the expense of taking, holding and managing said 115 property and premises if possession is taken, shall be paid from the income, and if necessary, from the sale of the property and premises, by the said trustee or trustees, as the case may be, for the time being ; and further, that in such case, the parties of the second part, their successors in said trust and assigns, shall and may, by themselves or their officers and agents, take and receive, collect and have the income and profits of the said railways and other property, first applying the same to the pay- 116 ment and discharge of all current necessary operating expenses and repairs, including the expenses hereinbefore mentioned, and all taxes and other similar charges ; and next to the payment of all sums of money due and payable upon the aforesaid bonds, issued by said first party, and hereby secured according to the tenor thereof ; and further, that

117 the said parties of the second part, their successors in said trust, or assigns, having entered as hereinbefore mentioned, into the full possession of the premises, property and estate hereby conveyed, or without having entered into such possession (the said default still continuing) at his or their discretion, and with the approbation of such Court or Courts of Record, either State or Federal, as may have jurisdiction over like trusts, in the State of Tennessee, may, or on the written request of the 118 holders of at least one-third of the bonds hereby secured, and then outstanding unpaid, shall proceed to sell and dispose of, or cause to be sold and disposed of, all of the premises, property rights, interests, franchises and estate hereby conveyed, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to pay and discharge the principal and interest according to the tenor thereof, of all of such of said bonds hereby secured and then outstanding as may have been issued by said first party, together with all benefit
119 and equity of redemption of said party of the first part therein, by public auction, either in the City of Knoxville, Tennessee, or in the City of New York, to the highest bidder, having previously given public notice of the time, place and terms of said sale, and of the property to be sold, by publishing the same in at least two newspapers of good general circulation, in each of the said cities, and wherever else the trustees may deem expedient or required by law, for the period of at least ninety days pre-120 vious to such sale; and as the attorney or attorneys of the said first party, for that purpose by these presents, duly constituted and appointed, make, execute and deliver to the purchaser or purchasers thereof, a good and sufficient deed or deeds of conveyance in the law for the same, granting and assuring to said purchaser or purchasers all such estate, right, property, franchises and interest, and to the same extent as the said first party had therein at the date hereof, or at any time subsequent, and also a good and sufficient transfer and assignment of said personal property, choses in action, contracts and leases.

And out of the moneys arising from such sale or sales, it shall be lawful for and the duty of such Trustees, after first retaining the costs and charges of advertisement, and of the said sale of the premises, and all other sums of money which said trustees, or their successors in said trust, may have been obliged to pay, by reason of their taking possession of, and operating said premises, and a reasonable allowance for their own services, and for legal professional advice, aid and assistance, in effecting and consummating said possession, operation and sale; and also to pay, in so far as such proceeds shall suffice therefor, the principal and interest, whether then due or yet to become due, which shall then remain unpaid on said bonds remaining issued and outstanding, and hereby secured as aforesaid, for the benefit of, and to be paid to the holders thereof, and then restore the residue of the said proceeds, if any there be, to the said party of the first part; it being hereby expressly understood that the bonds issued by said first party, and secured by these presents, shall be ratably receivable, if desired by the holders thereof, in payment of said sale by said trustees or their successors, to the extent of the amount of the net proceeds of such sale properly applicable to the payment of such bonds respectively; and the said sale, when fully consummated, shall be a perpetual bar, both in law and equity, against the said party of the first part, and all persons claiming or to claim the premises, or any part thereof, by, through or under said party of the first part, subsequent to the date of these presents; and in no

125 case shall any claim or advantage to be taken of any valuation, appraisement or extension laws by the party of the first part, nor any injunction or stay of lawful proceedings hereon, nor shall any process be applied for or obtained by the said party of the first part to prevent or obstruct such lawful entry or sale as aforesaid, but the same are hereby expressly waived by the said party of the first part.

The party of the first part further agrees that at the expiration of two years from the date hereof 126 and every twelve months thereafter, an amount of money derived from the net earnings of said road, equal to one per cent. on the amount of bonds issued and outstanding under provisions hereof shall be set apart as a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds secured by these presents, and it shall be the duty of the party of the first part to invest the said sinking fund and the interest accruing thereon in the bonds herein secured, at a rate not exceeding ten per cent. above par and accrued interest. And 127 the bonds so purchased shall be immediately registered, stamped or endorsed as irrevocably belonging to said sinking fund, and not further transferable, and said bonds and coupons when stamped, registered and assigned to said sinking fund, shall remain in force only for the purposes thereof, and shall by said stamping, transferring or registering, become void and cancelled thereafter for all other purposes. In case the bonds herein secured cannot be purchased as above within three months after 128 maturity and payment of money for account of the sinking fund, then shall such other good securities, as the parties hereto may agree upon, be purchased, and assigned to said sinking fund, and all shall be held deposited with such depository and in manner as the parties hereto shall from time to time mutually agree upon, and the interest accruing on the sinking fund shall be collected by the party of the first part and invested as hereinbefore provided.

AND THIS INDENTURE further witnesseth, that 129 these presents and the said bonds hereby secured or intended so to be, are made, executed and issued or delivered, upon the terms, conditions and agreements following, that is to say:

First. That the actual possession, use, management and control of all the hereinbefore granted estate, property and premises, shall be, and remain in and with the said party of the first part, so long as the bonds so issued shall be and remain without forfeiture or default in respect of interest or otherwise. 130

Second. That in the case of any vacancy in the said trusteeship hereunder, by the incapacity to act, death or resignation of either of the said trustees, or from any other cause, all his estate, right, interest, power and control, shall be thereupon divested, and cease and determine, but without destroying, or without any discontinuance of the trust: and the said party of the first part shall, or upon default 131 or omission to take proceedings therefor for thirty days after notice of such vacancy or incapacity, the holders of not less than thirty-three and one-third per centum in amount of said bonds hereby secured, may apply to any of the Courts having jurisdiction in the premises, in the State of Tennessee, to appoint a new Trustee or Trustees to supply the vacancy; and such proceedings may be had, and appointments made, as often as the like occasion may require the appointment of a Trustee to execute the 132 trust herein declared; and when so appointed, such new Trustee shall thereupon become vested for the purposes of the said trust, with all the estate, rights, interests, power, property and control, hereby conveyed or granted to, or vested in the said Philo C. Calhoun, Richard T. Wilson and Adrian Iselin, by these presents, without any further as-

133 surance, grant or conveyance of the same as fully and effectually as if such appointment had been originally made herein. But if the same shall be necessary, both the said party of the first part, and such new Trustee, or either of them, shall make, execute and deliver all necessary conveyance and agreements, and grants and powers, and authorities for that purpose.

And it is further understood and agreed by and between the parties to these presents, that the said 134 parties of the second part, their successor or successors in said trust, shall only be accountable for reasonable diligence in the management thereof, and shall not be responsible for the acts or negligencies of any agent or agents, necessarily employed by them, when such agent or agents are selected with proper discretion or with the approbation of the said party of the first part. And the officers of the said Railroad Company shall have at all times the right to inspect the books kept by the receivers of the 135 road and their agents.

And This Indenture further witnesseth that the said parties of the second part hereby accept the aforesaid trusts, and also covenant and agree to and with the said party of the first part, to execute the same upon the terms and conditions hereinbefore as well as hereinafter mentioned and provided, and which said terms and conditions are hereby mutually agreed to and upon, by both of the parties to 136 these presents, and that the said trustees and their successors may employ and advise with legal counsel, and that the expense thereof, as well as other personal expenses of the said Trustees, for the time being, in the discharge of said trusts, and all other, their reasonable and proper charges and expenses thereof, including their compensation, shall be paid by the party of the first part, as they are incurred, or otherwise out of the trust, estate or income on 137

which or to which they are chargeable; and likewise that the said trustees or their successors shall not be required to act in the execution of said trusts, except at their own option, unless the party requesting so to do shall furnish them reasonable indemnity against the loss, costs, trouble and expense they may incur, or be at in so doing; and that when called upon to act they shall be, and are hereby authorized and invested with full power, at their option, under advice of legal counsel, to submit all 138 questions of law or fact arising in the execution thereof to arbitrators; that they, in the execution of said trusts, may employ agents and attorneys in fact to act in their behalf, whenever required to act as aforesaid, except when they may be or are required by law to act personally; and also, that all covenants and agreements hereinbefore contained or implied may be executed specifically by and through any of the said Courts of competent jurisdiction as practised by them in like cases of trusts. 139

It is fully understood that any two of the three Trustees aforesaid, or their successors, shall be sufficient for carrying into effect the purposes of this trust.

In Testimony Whereof the said party of the first part, in pursuance of authority, given by law, and in conformity with the order of the Board of Directors, has caused this Indenture to be signed by its President, or Vice- 140
President, and , Secretary, and the Corporate Seal of the Company affixed thereto, and the parties of the second part have hereunto subscribed their names and affixed their seals the day and year first in this Indenture mentioned.

197 pot, shop, or other building connected with the said railroad or any straightening or alteration of the lines of the road, and such land occupied by the track and adjacent to such station-house, depot, shop, or other buildings as the said party of the first part may deem it expedient to disuse or abandon by reason of such change, and consent to any such change and to such other changes in the location of the track, or depot, or other buildings, as shall have become expedient,
198 and to make and deliver the conveyances necessary to carry the same into effect; provided that any lands that may be acquired for permanent use in substitution for any so released shall be conveyed to the trustees upon the trusts of these presents. And the trustees shall also have full power to allow the said party of the first part from time to time to dispose of such portions of the equipments, machinery and improvements at any time held or acquired for the use of said railroad as may have become 199 unfit for such use. To have and to hold the estate, property, rights, privileges, franchises and interests above conveyed or transferred, or intended so to be; together with all and singular the emoluments, income and advantages, tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining, and the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders, rents, issues and profits thereof, the said R. T. Wilson and W. T. Walters, parties of the second part, or the survivor of them,
200 and their successors and assigns, on the trust and for the uses and purposes herein declared, and none other; provided always, that these presents are made and executed upon the express condition that if the said party of the first part shall well and truly pay or cause to be paid to the holders of the said bonds or obligations intended to be secured hereby, and each and every of them, after the same shall be issued, the principal sums of money therein 201 respectively mentioned, at the maturity thereof, according to their true intent and meaning, with the interest thereon accruing, at the times and in the way and manner therein, and in the coupons of these presents, that then and thenceforth this indenture and the estate hereby granted shall cease, any half year's interest on any of the bonds aforesaid at the time and in the manner in the coupons such default shall continue for the period of six months after the said coupon shall have become due, then and thereupon the principal of all the 203 said bonds shall at the election of the trustees become due and payable, or a majority in interest of the holders of said bonds may by an instrument in writing under their hands and seals instruct the said trustees to declare the principal of said bonds to be due, or waive the right so to declare, on such terms and conditions as such majority in interest shall deem proper, or may annul or reverse the election of the trustees; provided that no action of the trustees or of the bondholders shall extend to 204 or be taken to affect any subsequent default or impair the rights resulting therefrom.

And the said party of the first part, in consideration of the premises, hereby covenants and agrees to and with the said R. T. Wilson and W. T.
Walters, and the survivor of them, their successor and successors in the said trust, and assigns, that

205 the said first party will at any time or times hereafter, upon the reasonable request of the said parties of the second part, their successors or assigns, execute and deliver, or cause to be executed and delivered, all and every such further and other reasonable deeds, conveyances, assignments and assurances in the law for the better and more effectual vesting and confirming the premises, property, rights and interests hereby granted or intended so to be, and especially for con-
206 veying any property subsequently to the date hereof, acquired by the said party of the first part and comprehended in the description contained in this indenture, if any such there be, to the said parties of the second part as Trustees for the uses and purposes of this indenture, and to their successors and assigns, as by them or their counsel learned in the law shall be reasonably devised, advised or required.

And first, that the said first party will do and 207 perform all the things on the part of the said first party to be done and performed as hereinbefore set forth, and faithfully apply all the money and other things arising from the issue and sale of said bonds to the purposes hereinbefore recited or mentioned as the objects thereof, and further, that the said first party will pay unto the holder or holders of the said bonds respectively the said principal sums of money therein respectively mentioned and as expressed therein, and the interest thereon as the 208 same shall become due and payable. And it is hereby provided, declared and agreed that no bond shall be deemed to be issued under this mortgage or entitled to the benefit of the security thereby provided unless there shall be endorsed thereon a certificate signed by the Trustees for the time being to the effect that the same is issued under the said mortgage.

And it is hereby further covenanted, declared and agreed that in case of default in payment thereof, either principal or interest money secured hereby, and the continuance of such default for six months after such default shall have been made or suffered, the said first party shall and will, on demand made after the expiration of such six months by the parties of the second part, their successors or assigns, trustee or trustees for the time being, or their agent or agents duly authorized in writing, assign and transfer in due form to them, or to their agent or agents so authorized, the actual possession of all the herein-granted and conveyed property and premises, and herein recited and mentioned, or intended to be embraced in this trust; and further, that the expense of taking, holding and managing said property and premises, if possession be taken, shall be paid from the income, and, if necessary, from the sale of the property and premises by the said trustee or trustees, as the case may be, for the time being; and further, that in such case the parties of the second part, or the survivor of them, or their successors in said trusts and assigns, shall and may by themselves, or by their officers and agents, take and receive, collect and have, the income and profits of the said railways and other property, first applying the same to the payment and discharge of all current and necessary operating expenses and repairs, including the expenses hereinbefore mentioned, and all taxes and other similar charges, and next to the payment of all sums of money due and payable upon the aforesaid bonds issued by said first party and hereby secured according to the tenor thereof; and further that the said parties of the second part, their successors in said trust or assigns, having entered as hereinbefore mentioned, into the full possession of the premises, property and estate hereby

214 ests, franchises and estate, hereby conveyed or intended to be conveyed, or so much thereof as shall be necessary to pay and discharge the principal and interest according to the tenor thereof, of all such of said bonds hereby secured and then outstanding as may have been issued by said first party together with all benefit and equity of redemption of said party of the first part therein, by public auction, either in the City of Knoxville, Tennessee, or in City of New York, to the highest bidder, having 215 previously given public notice of the time, place and terms of said sale, and of the property to be sold, by publishing the same in at least two newspapers of good general circulation in each of the said cities, and wherever else the Trustees may deem expedient or required by law, for a period of ninety days previous to such sale. And, as the attorney or attorneys of the said first party for that purpose by these presents duly constituted and appointed, make, execute and deliver to the purchaser or pur-
216 chasers thereof a good and sufficient deed or deeds of conveyance in the law for the same, granting and assuring to the said purchaser or purchasers all such estate, right, property, franchise and interest, and to the same extent as the said first party had therein at the date hereof or at any time subsequent, and also a good and sufficient transfer and assignment of said personal property, choses in action, contracts and leases. And out of the moneys 217 arising from such sale or sales it shall be lawful for and the duty of said Trustees, after first retaining the costs and charges of advertisement and of the said sale of the premises and all other sums of money which said Trustees or their successors in said trust may have been obliged to pay by reason of their taking possession of and operating said premises, and a reasonable allowance for their own services and for legal professional advice, aid and assistance in effecting and consummating said pos- 218 session, operation and sale. And also to pay, in so far as such proceeds shall suffice therefor, the principal and interest whether then due or yet to become due, which shall then remain unpaid on said bonds remaining issued and outstanding and hereby secured as aforesaid, for the benefit of and to be paid to the holders thereof and then restore the residue of the said proceeds, if any there be, to the said party of the first part; it being hereby expressly understood that the bonds issued by the said first party and se- 219 cured by these presents shall be rateably receivable, if desired by the holders thereof, in payment of said sale by said trustees, or their successors, to the amount of the net proceeds of such sale properly applicable to the payment of such bonds respectively; and the said sale when fully consumated, shall be a perpetual bar, both in law and equity, against the said party of the first part, and all persons claiming or to claim the premises, or any part thereof, by, through or under said party of the first 220 part subsequent to the date of these presents; and in no case shall any claim or advantage be taken of any valuation, appraisement or extension laws by the party of the first part nor any injunction or stay of lawful proceedings hereon, nor shall any process be applied for or obtained by the party of the first part to prevent or obstruct such lawful entry or 221 sale as aforesaid, but the same are hereby expressly waived by the said party of the first part.

And this indenture further witnesseth that these presents and the said bonds hereby secured or intended so to be, are made, extended and issued or delivered upon the terms, conditions and agreements following, that is to say:

First, that the actual possession, use, management and control of all the hereinbefore granted estate, property and premises shall be and remain 222 in and with the said party of the first part so long as the bonds so issued shall be and remain without forfeiture or default in respect of interest or otherwise.

Second, that in case of any vacancy in the said trusteeship hereunder, by the incapacity to act, death or resignation of either of the said trustees, or from any other cause, all his estate, right, interest, power and control shall be thereupon divested and cease and determine, but without destroying or 223 without any discontinuance of the trust, and the said party of the first part shall, or upon default or omission to take proceedings therefor for thirty days after notice of such vacancy or incapacity, the holders of not less than ten per centum in amount of the said bonds hereby secured, may apply to any of the Courts having jurisdiction in the premises in the State of Tennessee to appoint a new trustee to supply the vacancy, and such proceedings may be had and appointments made as often as the like 224 occasion may require the appointment of a trustee to execute the trust herein declared, and when so appointed such new trustee shall thereupon become vested, for the purposes of said trust, with all the rights, estate, interests, power, property and control hereby conveyed or granted to or vested in the said R. T. Wilson and W. T. Walters by these presents, without any further assurance, grant or conveyance of the same, as fully and effectually as if such appointment had been originally made therein. But, if the same shall be necessary, both the said party of the first part and such new trustee, or either of them, shall make, execute and deliver all necessary conveyances and agreements and grants and powers and authorities for that purpose. 225

And it is further understood and agreed by and between the parties to these presents, that the said parties of the second part, their successor or successors in said trust, shall only be accountable for reasonable diligence in the management thereof, and shall not be responsible for the acts or negligence of any agent or agents necessarily employed by them, when such agent or agents are selected with proper discretion, or with the approbation of the said party of the first part, and the officers of the said railroad company shall have at all times the right to inspect the books kept by the Receivers of the road and their agents. 226 227

And this Indenture further witnesseth, that the said parties of the second part hereby accept the aforesaid trusts, and also covenant and agree to and with the said party of the first part to execute the same upon the terms and conditions hereinbefore as well as hereinafter mentioned and provided, and which said terms and conditions are hereby mutually agreed to and upon by both of the parties to these presents, and that the said Trustees and their successors may employ and advise with legal counsel, and that the expense thereof, as well as other personal expenses of the said Trustees for the time being in the discharge of said trusts, and all other their reasonable and proper charges and expenses thereof, including their compensation, shall be paid by the parties of the first part as they are incurred, or otherwise, out of the trust estate or income on which or to which they are chargeable; and like- 228

229 wise that the said Trustees or their successors shall not be required to act in the execution of said trusts, except at their own option, unless the party requesting them so to do shall furnish them reasonable indemnity against the loss, costs, trouble and expense they may incur or be at in so doing; and that when called upon to act they shall be and are hereby authorized and invested with full power at their option, under advice of legal counsel, to submit all questions of law or fact arising in the execution thereof to arbitrators; that they in the execution of said trusts may employ agents and attorneys in fact to act in their behalf whenever requested to act as aforesaid, except when they may be or are required by law to act personally.

230 (at line "cution thereof to arbitrators")

And also that all covenants and agreements hereinbefore contained or implied may be executed specifically by and through any of the said Courts of competent jurisdiction as practised by them in like cases of trusts.

231 In testimony whereof the said party of the first part, in pursuance of authority given by law, and in comformity with the order of the Board of Directors has caused this indenture to be signed by C. M. McGhee, its President, and John L. Moses, Treasurer, and the Corporate seal of the Company to be affixed hereto, and the parties of the second part have hereunto subscribed their names and affixed their seals the day and year in this indenture first mentioned.

RESOLUTIONS 244
OF Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

AT a called meeting of the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, held 25th

245 May, 1871, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted :

Whereas, At sundry times, heretofore, to enable this Corporation to iron, equip and complete its line of railway through the State of Tennessee, said State of Tennessee, under and by virtue of its general Internal Improvement Laws, and of other acts amendatory and supplementary thereto, theretofore passed, and then in full force, loaned to this Company, or has advanced for its benefit, bonds of 246 the said State of Tennessee, to the aggregate sum of one million six hundred and eighty-four thousand eight hundred dollars ($1,684,800).

Whereof payment, both of principal and accruing interest, was to be made by this Company, as the same matured, and for the security of which payments of principal and interest, a lien was reserved to said State upon the entire road in the State of Tennessee, including the right of way, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chairs, 247 and the whole superstructure and equipments, and all the property owned by the Company, as incident to, or necessary for its business; and all depots and depot stations, and all the property and assets attached thereto, or belonging to said Company, lying within the limits of said State, with power to seize, and in default of payment of the principal, to sell in the nature of a mortgage lien, as appears by reference to the said statutes of the State of Tennessee.

And whereas, By Act of the said State of Tennessee, Chapter XXXVIII, passed at the second session of the thirty-fifth General Assembly of the State, entitled, "An Act to liquidate the State Debt contracted in aid of railroad companies in the State of Tennessee," passed Febuary 25th, 1869, it is among other things enacted, that any person or corporation may, with the consent of the Board of Directors of any railroad company, so having received aid under said General Internal Improvement Law, passed 11th February, 1852, and the amendments thereto, pay off the indebtedness of such railroad company to the said State, in the mode and manner therein provided, and with the consent of such railroad company upon such payment be subrogated to all the lien or liens, which the State of Tennessee had, or has, upon said railroad, or its property, and have the same right to enforce the same, which the State of Tennessee had.

And whereas, This Corporation is desirous to avail itself of the provisions of said law, and return to said State of Tennessee the like amount of bonds of said State, as have heretofore been loaned to it, or advanced for its benefits by an issue of its own bonds, to be exchanged for said State bonds, with the holders thereof, and at the same time to secure to the holders of said substituted bonds in good faith all the protection and security which the said State of Tennessee held for its protection and indemnity against loss and damage, by reason of its said loan to the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, by virtue of the laws of the said State, were no change made in the form of security originally held by said State, according to the true intent and meaning of the Act passed 25th February, 1869.

Therefore be it resolved by the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company as follows:

1st.—The President of this Company is hereby authorized and empowered to cause to be prepared and issued, under the seal of this Company, bonds of this Company to the amount of one million six

253 hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars ($1,685,000), the same to be signed by the President, or in his absence, by one of the Vice-Presidents, and countersigned by the Secretary and Treasurer, said bonds to be made payable in Gold coin of the United States, in the City of New York, or in the City of London, at the option of the holder; to be each for the sum of one thousand dollars, or two hundred and five Pounds Sterling, and payable on the 1st day of July, A. D. 1901. Said bonds to bear 254 interest at seven per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, on 1st January and July in each year, at New York or London, at the option of the holder, and for which interest, coupons or interest warrants are to be attached to said bonds.

2d.—That Wm. Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, their survivors and survivor, are hereby declared the Agents of this Company, to effect the substitution of its said bonds, as 255 above authorized, in place of the said bonds of the State of Tennessee, for the purpose and objects declared in the preamble to these resolutions; and upon and from and after such substitution, as rapidly as the same is effected, the said Wm. Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin, and Richard T. Wilson, their survivors and survivor, and their successors, are hereby declared to be Trustees for the mutual benefit of this Company, and of the holders of said bonds, and are hereby authorized to defend and 256 protect the rights conferred on the holders of said bonds, by the said acts and laws of the said State of Tennessee, and hereby acknowledged and recognized. In case of the death or resignation of any of said Trustees, the vacancy shall be filled by the joint appointment of the remaining Trustees, or Trustee, and the President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, with the approval of its Board of Directors; and if all become incapable of acting, 257

new Trustees are to be appointed by this Company.

3d.—This Company does hereby declare that it does and will at all times acknowledge and recognize the bonds herein authorized to be issued, when so substituted in the room and place of the said bonds of the State of Tennessee, in manner herein and by said act provided, as entitled to and in fact being a lien, in the nature of a first mortgage, upon all the property of this Company, in the said State, 258
the same precisely as is now declared to exist in favor of the said State of Tennessee, under and by virtue of the statutes thereof, in pursuance of which the said loan and advance of State bonds was made to the Company.

And this Company does hereby covenant to and with the said Trustees, their survivors and survivor, and successors, that it will in good faith do and perform all things, acts and deeds necessary and proper, and which it may be reasonably requested 259 to do, for the protection of the rights of the holders of said substituted bonds, and of said Trustees for their benefit, according to the true intent and meaning of the said acts and laws of the State of Tennessee, hereinbefore referred to, and of these resolutions; and further, that this Company shall and will, annually hereafter, from and after the 1st day of April, 1873, within three months thereafter, and during each year, while said bonds, herein authorized, are running to maturity, provide and set 260 apart from the earnings of the Company a fund of at least one per centum of the amount of said bonds, and will annually faithfully apply said sum of money, so set apart, as a sinking fund to the purchase and gradual retirement of said bonds; and on, or by the 1st day of April, 1874, and every year thereafter, till said bonds are fully retired, will 261 furnish to said Trustees, evidence of the performance of this stipulation, as may be agreed on.

Resolved, That the President of this Company be, and he is hereby directed, under its corporate seal, to execute and deliver to said Wm. Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, as Trustees aforesaid, its deed for the uses and purposes herein declared, and for the effectual protection and security of the holders of the bonds, hereby authorized to be issued, according to the true intent and 662 meaning of these resolutions.

I certify the foregoing to be a true copy from the minutes of the Board of Directors of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company.

263 DEED OF TRUST
MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO.

This indenture, made this first day of July, A. D. 1871, between the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, of the first part, Wm. Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, of the City and State of New York, their survivors and survivor, and successors, of the second part, and the holders of the 264 bonds issued by said party of the first part, and herein described, of the third part.

Witnesseth, that whereas, under the General Internal Improvement Laws of the State of Tennessee, passed 11th February, 1852, and the acts amendatory thereto, the party of the first part has become liable to the State of Tennessee in the sum of one million six hundred and eighty-four thousand eight hundred dollars, being the amount of bonds of said State loaned to said party of the first part, and moreover is under obligation to pay to the State of Tennessee semi-annually an amount equal to the amount of the same annual interest upon the said bonds so loaned, as well as an amount of money equal to the principal of said bonds, so loaned to the party of the first part, when and as the same become due and payable; and whereas, by Act of the said State of Tennessee, entitled, "An Act to liquidate the State debt contracted in aid of Railroad Companies in the State of Tennessee," passed February 25th, 1869, the Railroad Companies, so receiving aid from the State, of which the party of the first part was one, are authorized to issue their own bonds to an amount equal to the bonds so received from said State, and are authorized so to use said bonds as to retire and return to said State, bonds of said State of Tennessee to an amount equal to that loaned to said company, or advanced for its benefit, for the security of which new issue of bonds, the holders thereof, it is by said act declared, shall, with the consent of such railroad company, be entitled to all the lien, rights and privileges reserved to the said State for its own security and protection. 265 266 267

And whereas, The party of the first part has accepted the terms and provisions of said Act, and has for the purpose aforesaid caused to be issued its bonds, dated 1st July, 1871, to the extent of one million six hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars, and numbered from one to sixteen hundred and eighty-five (1685), inclusive, each for one thousand dollars, payable in gold coin of the United States, at New York, or two hundred and five pounds sterling, payable in London, at the option of the holder, with interest at seven per centum per 268

269 annum, payable semi-annually, in gold coin at New York, or in sterling at London, as aforesaid, at the option of the holder, for which interest coupons or warrants, payable as aforesaid, are attached to said bonds; and has delivered said bonds with the said coupons attached, to Wm. Butler Duncan, and Adrian Iselin and Richard T. Wilson, as agents of the party of the first part, to be substituted in place of the claim and demand and liability now held against the party of the first part by the said State of Ten-
270 nessee, for which purpose of substitution the said Wm. Butler Duncan, Adrian Iselin, and Richard T. Wilson, are hereby made and appointed the agents of the said party of the first part, and which substitution under said agency, said parties of the second part are proceeding to make and perfect.

And whereas, under the laws of the said State of Tennessee, the said State has a lien upon the following named property of this company, to-wit: The entire road in the State of Tennessee, including 271 the right of way, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chairs, and the whole superstructure and equipments, and all the property owned by the company as incident to or necessary for its business, and all depot stations, and all the property and assets attached thereto, or belonging to said company, within the State of Tennessee, which under the said Act of 1869 upon the return of said State bonds to the said State of Tennessee by any person or corporation, with the consent of such in-
272 debted railroad corporation, shall enure to the benefit and for the security of the person or corporation so paying off the said indebtedness or liability of such corporation to the State, or returning to it its said bonds.

Now then, know all men by these presents, that in consideration of the premises, and of the sum of five dollars to said party of the first part, paid by the said parties of the second part, and to make •273 good and secure the rights of the holders of the said bonds herein described and now issued by the party of the first part, and who are in fact the payers of the said indebtedness of the said party of the first part to the State of Tennessee, within the meaning of said Act of February 25th, 1869, and to the extent thereby authorized, the said party of the first part doth hereby consent that the said parties of the second part shall pay and satisfy to the said

State of Tennessee the debt and liability due by the 274 said party of the first part to the said State, and doth hereby approve such payment, and doth also hereby consent that upon the payment aforesaid being made, or to the extent that it shall be made, and as it is, or may be from time to time made, said parties of the second part shall, in pursuance of the terms and provisions of the Act last above herein referred to, be vested with, and shall have and hold all the lien or liens which the State of Tennessee had or has upon the property of the said party of the 275 first part hereinbefore described, in the State of Tennessee, and shall have the same right to enforce the same which the State of Tennessee had, and that said parties of the second part shall be, and are hereby placed in the same position and with the same rights which the State of Tennessee had previous to and before the said payment, and with full power to enforce the same. To have and to hold the rights, powers and privileges hereby consented to, and which arise under the said Act of the State of 276
Tennessee with the consent and approval of the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company to them, the said parties of the second part, their survivors and survivor, and their successors, upon trust, however, for the use, benefit, advantage and security of the holders of the bonds, herein described, issued by the said Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company,

277 parties of the third part, to these presents and their assigns, and it is hereby declared, that in case of the death or resignation of the said parties of the second part, the said party of the first part shall appoint new Trustees in their place and stead; and in case any one or two of said Trustees die or resign, such vacancy shall be filled by the joint appointments of the remaining Trustee, or Trustees, and the President of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company, with the approval of the Board of Direc-
278 tors thereof. And the said party of the first part doth agree and covenant to and with the said parties of the second part, their survivors and survivor, and their successors, that it, the said party of the first part, will in good faith and at all times hereafter do and perform all things necessary and proper for the protection and security of the said parties of the third part, and of the said parties of the second part, and their assigns, as the same may be reasonably required of it, to make good and ef-
279 fectual this lien and security of said parties, about the payment of their said debts and demands, and to secure the enforcement of their remedies for the payment of said bonds and the interest accruing thereon, in case default be made in the payment of said bonds and coupons, or any part or portion thereof, or default be made in the performance of the covenant herein contained, providing for the creation and application of a sinking fund for the gradual retirement of the bonds herein described, 280 according to true intent and meaning of these presents, and of the said acts hereinbefore referred to, of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee. And the said party of the first part doth further covenant to and with the said parties of the second part, and of the third part hereto, and their assigns, that on the first day of April, 1873, and on the first day of April of each year thereafter, said party of the first part will from the net earnings of said Road set aside an amount equal to one per 281 centum of the amount of bonds issued and outstanding under the provisions thereof, as a Sinking Fund for the redemption of the bonds secured by these presents, and that it will invest said Sinking Fund, and the interest accruing thereon, in the purchase of the bonds herein secured, at a rate not exceeding Ten per centum above par, and accrued interest; the bonds so purchased shall be immediately registered, stamped and endorsed, as irrevocably belonging to said Sinking Fund, and not 282 farther transferable, and said bonds and coupons so purchased and assigned to the Sinking Fund by such registration, stamping and endorsement, shall be ever void and cancelled for all other purposes. In case bonds hereby secured cannot be purchased at or under the rate above named, within three months after the setting apart of such money for account of said Sinking Fund, then such other good securities as may be agreed on by the parties of the first and second part shall be purchased and 283 assigned to said Sinking Fund, and all such securities shall be placed with such Depository and in such manner as said parties of the first and second part may from time to time agree upon; and the interest accruing upon said Sinking Fund shall be collected by the party of the first part, and invested as herein provided; and all securities assigned to or purchased for said Sinking Fund shall be, and hereby are, irrevocably pledged for the security and ultimate redemption of the principal and inte- 284 rest of the bonds hereinbefore described and issued by the said party of the first part for the uses and purposes herein declared. And the said parties of the second part are hereby released from executing the bond required of Trustees under Section 1974 of the Code of Tennessee. And the said parties of the second part do hereby accept the Agency and Trusts herein and hereby imposed upon 285 them, and do promise and agree faithfully and to the best of their ability to perform the duties hereby provided to be done and performed by them.

It is understood that the acts of any two of the said Trustees hereunder shall be valid and effectual in the performance of the duties hereby declared, the same as if all had joined therein; that said Trustees may in all cases act by an agent duly appointed over their hand and seal, except in such matters as are by law required to be performed in 286 their proper person; that they shall be fully indemnified and repaid by the party of the first part, including a reasonable compensation, or out of the Trust Funds which may come into their hands, for their reasonable cash fees and expenses by them incurred about the performance of the acts and things herein and hereby required of them; and shall not be required to act in the execution of the trust herein declared, except at their own option, unless the party or parties requesting them so to 287 proceed shall furnish them reasonable indemnity against the loss, costs, trouble and expense they may incur or be at in so doing.

In testimony whereof, the said party of the first part has hereto set its Corporate Seal and the hand of its President, by authority of a resolution of its Board of Directors duly given. And the said parties of the second part have hereunto set their 288 hands and seals.

THE MEMPHIS & CHARLESTON R. R CO., and the EAST TENNESSEE, VIRGINIA & GEORGIA R. R. CO. 3

Before WILLIAM H. DELANCEY,
Notary Public,
52 Broadway, New York.

Sept. 9, 1879.

Present—MR. ANDREWS, for Complainants; MR. HUMES, for Defendants; MR. TWEED, for Defendants. 4

RICHARD T. WILSON, a witness produced on the part of the Complainants, being by me first duly

5 cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, deposes and says:

[Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.]

Direct examination by Mr. Andrews:

1 Q. Please state your name, age and occupation?

A. Richard T. Wilson; banker and commission merchant; railroad President, and of full age.

6 2 Q. Please state what official positions you occupy in reference to the railroads of Tennessee?

A. I am President of the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co., of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia R. R. Co., and a Director in the Knoxville & Ohio R. R.

3 Q. Are you a stockholder in these companies, or any of them?

A. I am a stockholder in all of them at present.

4 Q. State when your connection with Tennessee

7 railroads began? what time?

A. In 1850, I think, or thereabouts. I first bought some stock in the East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad. I think it was about that time.

5 Q. At the conclusion of the war were you a stockholder in any of the railroads?

A. In the East Tennessee & Georgia and not in any other Railroad at the conclusion of the war that I think of now.

6 Q. At the conclusion of the war did you not in-

8 crease your interest in the stock or securities of the Tennessee Railroads?

A. Yes, sir.

7 Q. To what extent?

A. Well, I began to purchase stock in the East Tennessee & Georgia Road, some time, not immediately at the conclusion of the war. In 1866, '7 '8, '9, I purchased a pretty large amount of stock.

8 Q. How much? 9

A. That I cannot tell; but in round figures two hundred and fifty to three hundred thousand dollars was the maximum investment of the stock at par value.

9 Q. What amount of investment did that represent?

A. Well, I don't know without referring to books.

10 Q. Will you please produce your books at the adjourned examination? 10

A. I cannot undertake to do that.

11 Q. Why not?

A. I don't know that you could find the account from the books; it is in memoranda, one thing and another, and I have got no books that really show it.

12 Q. Please produce the memoranda at the adjourned examination?

A. I don't think I can do that.

13 Q. Why not? 11

A. I don't think these questions are pertinent to the case. I am only answering for your accommodation.

14 Q. Do you decline to produce memoranda or books?

A. I decline to produce them unless advised by the Court.

15 Q. Are you a holder of bonds of any of these roads?

A. I am. 12

16 Q. To what extent?

A. I hold of Knoxville & Ohio bonds about forty thousand dollars. I hold a few of the East Tennessee & Georgia bonds divisional, and East Tennessee and Virginia divisional bonds—I think it aggregates about the sum of twenty thousand dollars or under.

17 Q. The Memphis & Charleston?

13 A. I hold largely; I suppose myself and firm have six or seven hundred thousand dollars.

18 Q. Those are the new so-called substitution bonds?

A. No, not all.

19 Q. How many of them?

A. I think about four hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

20 Q. The stock that you bought in these Tennessee roads did not cost more than fifteen cents;
14 did it?

A. Yes, sir.

21 Q. How much more.

A. It cost an average of thirty or thirty-five cents, may be forty.

22 Q. Some was bought as low as fifteen?

A. No, none of it lower than nineteen that I now remember.

23 Q. The great part of it?

A. No, not the great part of it; very little of it was 15 bought lower than nineteen cents; none of it in fact that I now remember of; I paid for some of my stock from sixty-five to seventy-five cents and even more.

24 Q. I refer to stock bought soon after the war?

A. I think it cost on an average from thirty-five to forty cents.

25 Q. The Memphis & Charleston bonds, what did they stand at?

16 A. We paid seventy-five cents on the dollar for those.

26 Q. When did you first hold an official position in any Tennessee railroad?

A. As President, I was elected in the summer or autumn of 1870.

27 Q. As director?

A. As director, in 1868 or 1869.

28 Q. What were the prices of Tennessee bonds 17 when you became director?

A. That I can't state certainly, but the reports of the New York Stock Exchange show.

29 Q. Well, very much below par?

A. O, yes; they were below par.

30 Q. Who drafted the Tennessee Act of July 25th, 1869?

A. I don't know who did draft that; the first that I ever heard of the act was about this ——

31 Q. What do you know about the formation of 18
it?

A. In the autumn of 1868, I was asked by Mr. Branner, Mr. Calloway, and perhaps some others, to help devise some plan by which the railroads could raise a fund with which to retire at least a portion of their indebtedness to the State of Tennessee in an amount equal to the Sinking fund payments. The law in regard to payments into the sinking fund had been suspended from time to time and was then to take effect in 1870 at 19 four per cent. per annum. It was manifest to the companies, as their officers then told me, that they could not meet their sinking fund payments together with their other liabilities under their then worn out and dilapidated condition. I was asked if I could sell a bond on the railroad with which to provide a fund in such an amount as would probably meet the sinking fund payments. At that time I told them I did not think it was possible to sell a bond that they were then able to make. That their 20 own company bonds then outstanding and coming subsequent to the State lien were probably worth about forty-five to fifty cents on the dollar, and that any bond that they could make would be upon a parity with that bond, that is, it would come behind the lien of the State, and that it would not bring the then price of Tennessee bonds, which was I think in the sixties.

21 Judge Nelson who was then, I believe, the counsel for the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, of which John Branner was President, was called in to devise some plan by which the roads could retire so much of their indebtedness as their friends would take, and thereby raise a fund to meet their sinking fund payments, and in that conference it was suggested whether a plan could be devised by which the lien of the State could be proportionally transferred to a new bond and kept in operation. Then 22 there was some discussion how it should be done
—I drew up some memoranda, he and myself together—he took it, and that's the last I heard of the formation of the Act of 1869. The object of that memorandum was, as I say, to provide the right of substitution. There was no thought of conferring any new privilege upon the railroad companies in respect to the things with which they could pay the State. All agreed that we could pay our debts in any bonds of the State. We had the example of 23 the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, which had paid off their debt in this way. The Legislature was glad to get them. The authorities of the State were urging them to pay off in any bonds they could (the roads I mean). The object of that Act was to facilitate broken down roads, that had no credit like we were, to raise a fund with which they could probably pay off at least as much of the indebtedness as would equal the sinking fund payments which were shortly to begin. At the time 24 the Act was passed we thought that any road of so little credit as the East Tennessee Road, and in fact almost every other road except perhaps the Louisville & Nashville and the Nashville & Chattanooga Road had not sufficient means to meet the sinking fund payments, which had been postponed from time to time at the request of the roads, though all agreed it was asking more than should be asked of the State of Tennessee to 25 further suspend the sinking fund payments. The object and purposes of this act were to facilitate the roads, of poor credit to transfer the lien which the State held to their own bonds, and thus enable them to retire the bonds of the State and pay their own debt to the State; that was the great object of the Act that I heard of in the autumn of 1868. I came home after a general understanding that Judge Nelson should go on and elaborate it. I paid very little attention to that Act until next 26 year; some time after it was passed Mr. Murdoch of the Mobile and Ohio Road afterwards informed me that he drew the original act. The Act as passed was not such as the memorandum I drew, and was not in all respects what I thought was to be passed.

32 Q. Wherein did it differ from the draft?

A. The main difference as I now remember, and there were quite a number of differences, was a foolish provision which limited railroad companies who 27 had issued second mortgage bonds, to paying in the same series of bonds, that had been loaned them, but that did not affect us, for we had issued no second mortgage bonds, as we supposed.

33 Q. Was not another of these foolish provisions in these words "provided that the interests of the bondholders should not be affected"?

A. I don't know about that; it was not in it when I saw it.

34 Q. You know Mr. Calloway very well? 28

A. Yes, I know Mr. Calloway very well.

35 Q. He was an officer of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad?

A. He was President of the East Tennessse, Virginia and Georgia Railroad.

36 Q. Of course that company assisted in procuring its passage by the Legislature?

29 A. I don't know that it did.

37 Q. What do you think about it ?

(Objected to.)

38 Q. Don't you believe that the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad company, or the companies then comprising what is now that company, had agents and representatives in Nashville to advocate the passage of that bill ?

30 (Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.)

A. That's the answer I make ; it's immaterial and irrelevant.

(Complainant's counsel excepts to the answer.)

39 Q. Why did not the East Tennessee and Virginia R. R. Co. and the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Company proceed to take action under 31 the Act of 1869 ?

A. For the very reason that they could not find any financier or capitalist who would supply the needed funds ; they tried it over and over again and failed during the entire year of 1869 and well up into 1870.

40 Q. What do you know of the Act of January 20, 1870 ?

A. Nothing whatever about it that I now remember of.

32 41 Q. You have read, it have you not ?

A. Yes.

42 Q. Did you not read it before the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company undertook to deliver to the State some of its bonds ?

A. I think I did ; that is my recollection that I did.

43. Q. Your firm of R. T. Wilson & Co. were the fiscal agents of the State of Tennessee for a time? 33

A. No, sir; I don't think they were; if they were I have forgotten it.

44 Q. Well, they have had financial transactions with the State of Tennessee?

A. I think they occasionally lent them some money as other bankers, but that they had any other connection with the State I don't remember.

45 Q. How does it happen that the comptroller of Tennessee refers to R. T. Wilson & Co. as the fiscal agents of the State of Tennessee? 34

A. If he has ever done so it has escaped my memory. If you have a report and will let me see it, perhaps it may refresh my memory.

(Respondent's counsel requests that the report referred to be shown. Complainant's counsel declines for the present.)

46 Q. Now, after the East Tennessee Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company commenced to act under the legislation you have been testifying about, through whom were their transactions in the City of New York conducted? 35

A. Partly through R. T. Wilson & Co., and partly through the Fourth National Bank.

47 Q. You referred previously to Mr. Murdock the Mobile and Ohio road, R. T. Wilson & Co., also attended to transactions for that company, did they not? 36

A. They did, in conjunction with other parties.

48 Q. What other parties.

A. I don't remember who all were in that syndicate; they were principally A. Iselin & Co., and Duncan, Sherman & Co.

49 Q. Was not William H. Hayes one of them?

A. He was not.

37 50 Q. Well, you employed agents and brokers in transactions in Tennessee bonds under this legislation, did you not ?

A. In purchasing Tennessee bonds ?

51 Q. Yes, sir.

A. Nearly all the bonds that I ever purchased were purchased through regular brokers here in the city of New York.

52 Q. Please give their names ?

A. They would be very numerous.

38 53 Q. All that you remember.

A. Let me have time to refresh my memory on the subject before I answer that question.

54 Q. During the time you were purchasing Tennessee bonds, or about that time, were you not also a seller of Tennessee bonds ?

A. Yes, sir ; I bought and sold Tennessee bonds.

55 Q. And a borrower ?

A. Yes, sir; borrowing generally as bankers do.

56 Q. You would sell and borrow quite largely 39 at times ?

A. Yes, sir ; my transactions were considerable in them.

57 Q. What were the prices at the time you commenced to purchase under this legislation you have referred to ?

A. Well, I suppose it might be fifty-four or fifty-five cents.

58 Q. When was that ?

A. The 15th day of April, 1870, I suppose is what 40 might be defined as the date of the first transaction I ever had under this legislation.

59 Q. About the same period with this legislation had not your companies or some of them refused to pay any interest in cash or a part of the interest in cash, and had tendered coupons of Tennessee bonds ?

A. I don't know. I have no knowledge on that subject that I now remember of.

60 Q. Well, shortly after you commenced pur- 41 chasing was there not a decline in bonds?

A. No; on the contrary they advanced as I now remember.

61 Q. How long after you commenced buying did they decline?

A. They advanced, I say, as I remember.

62 Q. How long after did they decline?

A. Until they did decline; that I can't answer. The Stock Exchange reports will show.

63 Q. Didn't they decline within a moderate period 42 after?

A. It is my impression they did not, but I cannot speak advisedly; my impression is they went up.

64 Q. Immediately?

A. Not immediately, but gradually.

65 Q. Well, didn't you pay any lower price during all your purchases than the price you paid for the first purchases?

A. Well, I can't say as to that. We would have 43 to go to the records of the Stock Exchange for that.

66 Q. Won't your books show it?

A. I reckon they would show it, but the Stock Exchange is public and my books are private property.

67 Q. Did you buy all these bonds on the Stock Exchange?

A. I think almost every bond, if not quite all.

68 Q. How many do you think you didn't buy 44 on the Stock Exchange?

A. I don't remember to have bought a single bond out of the Stock Exchange, if I did it was very few. I should say not more than one hundred thousand dollars.

69 Q. In reference to these new bonds issued by the companies, at what price did the East Ten-

45 nessee, Virginia and Georgia sell at to the original purchasers?

A. Eighty two and a half cents or a little over, the first million.

70 Q. Who were the purchasers?

A. Messrs. A. Iselin & Company principally

71 Q. They were also purchasers of the Mobile & Ohio new bonds, were they not?

A. Well, no; not in the same sense. The Mobile & Ohio bonds were I suppose purchased by a 46 syndicate

72 Q. Who formed that sydicate?

A. Messrs. A. Iselin & Company, Duncan, Sherman & Company, and R. T. Wilson & Co.—they are all I now remember.

73 Q. Was not the opinion of Charles Tracy attached to the prospectus for the sale of the new Mobile & Ohio bonds?

A. It was. That is an opinion as to the validity of the substitution was attached to it, but this 47 opinion did not touch upon the subject of the lien of the holders of Tennessee bonds.

74 Q. You read the opinion of Davies and Davis?

A. I saw it, but I don't think that I read it.

75 Q. You knew all about it at that time?

A At the time of the sale of the Mobile & Ohio bonds or at the time of the sale of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia bonds?

76 Q. Take the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia?.

48 A. My recollection now is that that opinion came to my attention in the autumn of 1870; I should think so from some circumstances that occurred about that time with which I connect that opinion.

77 Q. Did you attach that opinion to any prospectus for the sale of the bonds of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia?

A. I did not. I never issued any prospectus for the sale of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad bonds that I now recollect of. 49

78 Q. Did you attempt to give it publicity in any way; the Davies & Davis opinion?

A. I only saw one copy, and the only publicity I gave it, was to take it to firm of Evarts, Southmayd & Choate. Mr. Southmayd told me it was of no value whatever, and so did another one of that firm.

79 Q. Then in offering the East Tennessee, and Virginia bonds and Mobile and Ohio bonds, or 50 either of them, you did not make any reference to the Davies & Davis opinion?

A. Well, it is proper to say that the Fourth National Bank were offering the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia bonds, and I never offered the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia bonds, or the Mobile and Ohio bonds unless I did so as the agent of the bank in the case of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia bonds that I now remember.

80 Q. You were in frequent communication with 51 the Fourth National Bank?

A. Yes, sir.

81 Q. They knew of the opinion?

A. Yes, sir; they saw it I think, but that I am not certain of.

82 Q. Did they offer it to the public in any way?

A. Not that I am aware of.

83 Q. The Memphis & Charleston Road delivered bonds to the State of Tennessee when?

A. It never delivered any. Mr. Iselin, of Iselin 52 & Co., bought the lien on that road from the State with his own funds, and took an assignment of that lien under the provisions of law.

84 Q. That is the same Iselin to whom you showed the Davies & Davis opinion?

A. I did not show it to him.

85 Q. He knew of it?

A. I am not sure that he did.

53 86 Q. Were not you and Mr. Iselin present in the Supreme Court of the United States when this question of the lien of Tennessee bonds was being argued in the month of May, 1878?

A. I was present.

87 Q. At that time these Memphis & Charleston Railroad bonds had not been sold or negotiated?

A. They had then been sold.

88 Q. Had they been assigned?

A. Oh, yes, I think so, long before that.

54 89 Q. Well, there had been a bill pending before the United States Courts, involving that question, for some months before that time, had there not?

A. Well, as to what question that bill involved I must refer you to the records of the case: you are more familiar with it than I am.

90 Q. Have not those Memphis and Charleston bonds been lately placed on the Stock Exchange?

A. Yes, sir.

91 Q. Did you furnish the New York Stock Ex-
55 change with a copy of the Davies & Davis opinion?

A. I did not.

92 Q. Are they now being offered for sale?

A. I don't hear of any being offered.

93 Q. You said that you did not think that you had bought more than a hundred Tennessee bonds outside of the Stock Exchange. Where were those seven hundred and seventy odd old Tennessee and Pacific issues bought?

A. They were bought in the New York Stock 56 Exchange, every bond of them, or else I got them in return for bonds loaned.

94 Q. At what price?

A. I can't give the price, I don't know. But whether I bought them or received them in return for bonds, I don't know; in either case they were got in the regular way, just as every other bond that was bought, sold or borrowed or repaid. I did not know they were Tennessee and Pacific bonds 57

when I got them, I never knew what road the bond was issued to that I got; I had no means of knowing this at the time I bought the bonds.

95 Q. When you borrowed bonds as you stated what was the object of borrowing them ?

A. I borrowed bonds frequently, as I wanted them for business puposes.

96 Q. Was it not because you had sold bonds which you did not have to deliver ?

A. That question infringes on my private trans- 58 actions. It might have been for that, or it might have been because I wanted to raise them for railroads. I borrowed them for a variety of purposes.

97 Q. You said your transactions were very large on account of the railroads ?

A I didn't say on account of the railroads, did I ? I think you are mistaken.

98 Q. Under these substitution laws you said ?

A. No, I do not say that ; I said I was employed as a banker. 59

99 Q. Didn't I understand you that you acted largely as a banker for the railroad companies, in obtaining bonds to deliver under these substitution acts ?

A. Yes, purely as a business transaction.

100 Q. Now, when you were employed as banker to buy these bonds on behalf of the Railroad Companies which I referred to in the first instance, when you borrowed bonds about that time, was it not because you had sold bonds and therefore had none to 60 deliver ?

A. Not always, by a good deal ; now, for instance in the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad I borrowed some bonds to pay that debt before I could buy them ; it took time to buy them.

101 Q. Then after you bought them, or had borrowed them, I should say, to pay off this debt with,

61 and you afterwards had to buy them, didn't you try to buy them as cheaply as possible ?

A. It certainly would be reasonable to suppose so.

102 Q. It was then your interest to have Tennessee bonds as low as possible ?

A. It was to my interest, or the interest of my principal, to buy them as cheap as possible.

103 Q. To have them as low as possible ?

A. I answer as I have.

62

(Answer objected to by complainant's Counsel.)

104 Q. You also participated in transactions which took place under the act of the Tennessee Legislature for the sale of certain railroads, did you not ?

A. Not directly.

105 Q. Well, how directly ?

63 A. Not individually I mean.

106 Q. Or through your firm ?

A. Do you mean for supplying bonds to different roads ; is that what you mean ?

107 Q. Well, did you do anything under those acts ?

A. Not that I remember as a firm.

108 Q. Well, in supplying bonds ?

A. Yes, sir ; in that way we did ; we bought bonds for some of the parties who bought some of the 64 roads.

109 Q. Don't your name appear as interested in some of those purchases ?

A. Yes, as trustee for the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad.

110 Q. That was what road ?

A. The Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston Railroad.

111 Q. You were concerned in getting bonds for that purpose ? 65

A. Yes, I bought bonds of that company for that purpose as near as I remember.

112 Q. You were cognizant, then, of the proceedings that took place in Tennessee for the sale of the roads, were you not ?

A. In a certain sense I was ; I saw the paper advertisements, and also as trustee allowed my name to be used for the purchase of that road. In another sense, as to keep up with the judicial proceedings closely, I was not cognizant—in a general public way I knew of it. 66

113 Q. Do you know of a report made by the State Commissioners, that stated that the lien of the Tennessee bonds was one of the difficulties to be encountered in effecting the sale of the roads ?

A. No, I do not ; if there ever was such a report made, it has escaped my memory ; I don't think I ever saw it. All that I remember on that point was Chancellor East's decision, a newspaper copy of which I saw, in which he decided that the bondholders had no lien. If the commissioners made an adverse report I do not remember ; I knew nothing about it. 67

114 Q. Did you make any effort to call to the attention of Tennessee State bondholders in this city, that the questions in reference to paramount liens on railroads in Tennessee were then under adjudication ?

A. I don't think I did. 68

115 Q. If you had called that fact to their attention don't you think it would have enhanced the price of Tennessee bonds ?

A. I didn't consider myself the agent of the bondholders, or that it was my duty to make any such publication of so fanciful a theory as I always believed that to be.

69 116 Q. Then I understand that you did nothing whatever to divulge any claim which was advanced in respect of the interest of Tennessee bondholders in the railroads of the State?

A. I did nothing in their behalf, as I have already stated; I did not consider myself their agent.

117 Q. You stated that these new bonds of the East Tennessee, Va. & Ga. R. R. brought into the Company 82½ cents?

A. I said they were sold at 82½ cents.

70 118 Q. How much did the Company receive?

A. They received 80 cents for the first lot of them, and an additional bonus of $4,500 for the first lot of a million; after that they commenced getting higher prices, and did get higher prices; ran up to 90 cents.

119 Q. Who got that difference between 80 and 90?

A. The Company in every instance. They sold the first lot at 82½, and the bank—the 4th National 71 Bank—and the parties selling them got a commission.

120 Q. Who were those parties?

A. There was a contract that the bank was to sell them, and it employed other parties giving, one and a quarter per cent. commission on the sales.

121 Q. Was that contract in writing?

A. Yes sir, it was in writing.

Please produce a copy at the adjourned examination.

72 122 Q. What did the State bonds cost the Company?

A. Fifty-five cents on the dollar for the whole lot.

123 Q. Did not the railroad companies in which you were interested endeavor to procure the passage of the Act of January 20th, 1870?

A. I was not present at that session of the Legis- 73
lature, and have no personal knowledge on the subject.

124 Q. Was there nothing done at the meetings of the Board in reference to it?

A. Not at any meeting that I remember of when I was present.

125 Q. Was there anything done at any of the meetings?

A. I have seen no record of anything of the kind,
I think it probable that they desired its passage as 74 far as I know.

126 Q. When these purchases of Tennessee bonds were made of what were known as the new bonds issued after the war, were they selling lower than those issued before the war?

A. There was a slight difference at that time as I now remember. I have seen the new bonds sell higher, and I have seen them sell lower; the new bonds were, however, generally slightly below the price of old bonds, which difference is correctly 75 shown by the reports of the New York Stock Exchange.

127 Q. A large proportion of the bonds delivered by the roads referred to were new bonds, were they not?

A. Yes, sir; but I don't remember the number or relative proportions of new and old bonds.

128 Q. That was the case with these seven hundred and forty bonds of the Tennessee and Pacific roads, was it not? 76

A. I don't remember them as bonds that were issued to the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad. The Tennessee and Pacific Railroad was built since the war, and therefore it is reasonable to conclude they were new bonds.

129 Q. Hadn't you or your firm made a loan on the Tennessee and Pacific R. R. bonds before you became a purchaser of them?

77 A. Not that I know of. No, I think not.

130 Q. Was there not a loan made on them?

A. I don't know whether there was or not.

131 Q. Were you connected with the Memphis & Charleston R. R. in 1872?

A. I don't think I was.

132 Q. When you became an officer of Tennessee railroads after the war, had the railroad companies then possession of their property, or were some of them in the possession of the United State Government? 78

A. They all had possession as near as I can remember.

133 Q. They had received them from the United States Government?

A. Yes.

134 Q. They had accepted the conditions on which the United States Government had agreed to turn them over?

A. I should say they had. The records of the office will show better than I can tell. 79

135 Q. Didn't you or one of your firm send to the father of the complainant in this cause to borrow from him Tennessee bonds?

A. At what time?

136 Q. At any time?

A. Not that I remember of. He was frequently in the house; he was an acquaintance of Mr. Bosher.

137 Q. Do you know Dempsey Weaver?

80 A. Yes, sir.

138 Q. Was he a stockholder in Tennessee roads?

A. I don't know that he was. I think he was not. I wish to say further about Mr. Stevens, the father of complainant, that he was frequently in the house, conversed about Tennessee bonds, railroads, and other things; but whether he was ever applied to for the loan of his bonds I don't know.

139 Q. You testified before the Committee of the Tennessee Legislature during the present year, did you not? 81

A. I did.

140 Q. You remember a suit instituted in the City of New York, to obtain an injunction against the payment of principal and interest of some Tennessee bonds?

A. When?

141 Q. At any time?

A. That runs over a very long space of time. 82

142 Q. Did you know of such a suit?

A. I did not know of it. I heard a suit was instituted to compel the State to pay some past due bonds, which under the law were preferred over the interest.

143 Q. Didn't you know of it about the time it was instituted?

A. Yes, sir, I heard of it about the time the suit was instituted, that such suit was or had been instituted, that was in 1868, as I remember, May or 83 June.

144 Q. About that time did you not purchase Tennessee bonds?

A. I don't think I did.

145 Q. How much did the Mobile and Ohio bonds sell for?

A. I can't answer that from memory.

146 Q. How much did the company receive?

A. That I can't answer from memory.

147 Q. Was there not a difference from what 84 the company received and what the bonds sold for?

A. That I can't answer from memory. As I remember they were bought at 82, perhaps 85, possibly 80 cents on the dollar (but this is from memory only). They have sold at various prices since they left the hands of the company.

85 148 Q. I don't mean that at all. I mean was there not a difference in price at which the syndicate took the bonds and the prices they sold them to the public?

A. I think there was, but how much I don't know. They were sold in Europe, and are largely owned by foreign bankers.

149 Q. You are familiar with the opinion of East, Pryor & Baxter?

A. I have seen it.

86 150 Q. When did you first see it?

A. I think I first saw it sometime in the autumn of 1870, probably 1871. I can't call to mind when I did first see it.

151 Q. Then you were conscious when you entered into these transactions for the purchase of Tennessee bonds and the issuance of the new bonds claimed to hold the lien, that there was a question as to the rights or existing as to the rights of the holders of Tennessee State bonds?

87 A. You say I was conscious of this claim. My legal advisers told me the opinion of Davies & Davis was utterly worthless. I so read the law myself and so believe it to be. I was not aware of this question at the time I entered into the purchase of Tennessee bonds.

152 Q. You were conscious at the time you participated in the issuance of the new bonds?

A. I don't believe I ever heard that that question had been raised by the bondholders then; the East 88 Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia R. R. Co. had paid its debt to the State.

153 Q. But you knew of it before the bonds were all sold?

A. In the case of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia. I knew of it before they were sold. I mean the Davies & Davis' opinion.

154 Q. And also of the Mobile and Ohio?

A. Yes, sir. This question was not much considered; we considered it wholly mythical—no foundation in fact for it. 89

155 Q. Don't you know that quite a large amount of the bonds delivered by these companies to the State of Tennessee had never been in current circulation in the hands of the public?

A. No; I do not.

156 Q. Didn't you get some of them from or through some of the officers of the company?

A. I don't call to mind I ever did. If I did it has escaped my memory. 90

157 Q. Don't you know that the public officers of the State of Tennessee, or some of them, stated in their official reports that the railroad companies of the State depreciated the price of Tennessee State bonds for the purpose of purchasing them under these Acts?

(Objected to as irrelevant.)

A. I do not know of any such reports being made. If there were it has escaped my memory. 91

158 Q. Suppose you had gone into the market as an agent for the purchase of Tennessee State bonds, and purchased them straight along from day to day, or at stated intervals from week to week, would not that in a short time, with the large amount of bonds you were to purchase, so greatly enhance the price of Tennessee State bonds as to have made their purchase very much more expensive? 92

(Objected to as irrelevant.)

A. The best answer I can give to that is the effect that the purchases did produce on the market. It enhanced the price of bonds considerably, as I now remember.

159 Q. Suppose you had not sold bonds during 93 that interval, would there not have been a still greater enhancement of price?

(Objected to.)

A. I would have executed orders very injudiciously if I had told Mr. A, B or C, I was obliged to have his bonds.

160 Q. Do you decline to answer?

A. That is my answer.

161 Q. Was not J. C. Mabry the person who dealt 94 for you in transactions in Tennessee bonds at the time you are referring to?

A. Not that I remember, but I don't propose to give you a schedule of the progress of my general business in New York.

162 Q. Will you produce your books showing the transactions in Tennessee bonds on account of these railroads?

A. I will not.

163 Q. Will you produce those portions of them?

95 A. No.

164 Q. Have you no accounts entered into with those railroad companies at that time?

A. In some of them. What railroad companies do you speak of?

165 Q. The East Tennessee and Virginia, the East Tennessee and Georgia, and other railroads named in the title. Will you produce those accounts?

A. I refer to my counsel on the subject; if they decline to do so I will let you know.

96 166 Q. Will you produce those accounts showing very large sales of Tennessee bonds?

A. If I produce the account they will speak more accurately than I can here.

167 Q. Why did you not afford the purchasers of the New so-called substitution bonds or the New Mortgage bonds of these R. R. companies, issued for the alleged extinguishment of this lien, so far as claimed by you, why did you not afford them 97

the same opportunity of judging whether Tennessee State bonds were liens upon the R. R's as you had for yourself, through the legal opinions which had been published?

(Objected to.)

A. You refer to the Davies & Davis opinion?

168 Q. Yes, sir?

A. As far as I know every bond cited the law 98 under which it was issued, and they were public laws, and every man had sufficient opportunity of judging of the legal and binding effect as I had. And as to the Davies & Davis opinion, as I have heretofore stated, my counsel, in whom I place implicit confidence, stated it was wholly worthless and unsound. It passed from my mind and ceased to be considered by me as a matter of any importance whatever.

169 Q. You were one of the trustees of the Mobile & Ohio Substitution Mortgage Bonds, were you not? 99

A. I was.

170 Q. Well, did you think it equitable toward the purchasers of these substitution bonds to furnish them with the opinion in favor of their validity as liens on the roads, and not the opinion against their validity as liens?

A. I never furnished any opinion whether Mr.
Tracy's or any body else's as trustee. I simply in 100
my capacity as trustee signed the bonds. As to the publication of the prospectus, I do not know who did that. It certainly was not brought before me as a trustee, however.

171 Q. Don't you know if the opinion of Davies & Davis was circulated among prospective purchasers of these substitution bonds that it would have

101 presented some obstacles, whether serious or not, to the proposed sale of these bonds?

A. I think if there was any proof wanted of that fact. I call your attention now to the market price of the bonds, which, notwishstanding the Davies and Davis opinion and Mr. O'Conor's, opinion these bonds are selling on the New York Stock Exchange to-day at 102½ to 103. In my opinion this shows that the public does not attach any importance to any opinion which declares these Tennessee State Bonds 102 liens upon the roads.

172 Q. Then you think these Tennessee bondholders took the risk in their own hands under the notices which were incorporated in the bonds and the reference to the public acts of Tennessee?

A. I don't know where the risk comes in; according to my view there was none, what views they may have taken I can't say.

173 Q. In purchasing Tennessee bonds you bought them at the prices you have named with all the 103 overdue and unpaid coupons attached?

A. They were sold in that way.

174 Q. Those coupons were overdue and the companies used them for the payment of overdue interest?

A. Yes, sir, they were so used.

175 Q. If the railroad companies of Tennessee had promptly paid their interest, would not that have prevented a great depression in Tennessee State bonds?

104 A. That I can't say. The retiring act of 1869 was the most judicious act ever passed on behalf of the State of Tennessee.

176 Q. Were not the discounts at which the bonds were selling one of the inducements for the execution of these acts?

A. It certainly did afford an inducement, for this reason: at that time (the date of the passage of these acts), there was hardly a railroad company in 105

the State that could raise money on its own bonds.
This act came to their relief in regard to the sinking fund payments, and gave them the means or facilities with which to raise money to meet their engagements. A further inducement was to get the companies out of the hands of the State and to separate the raiload system of the State of Tennessee entirely from the State; first, because I believed the roads would be worth more if freed from interference of the State officers and directors: and 106
secondly, thereby the State debt would be so reduced that it would enable the State to resume the payment of interest, and take her place as one of the great States of the American Union, which I thought would enhance the value of my property in the State fifty per cent., and I still think so, that was the moving cause in this operation. It has been worth millions of dollars to the State of Tennessee and her bondholders by reducing the obligations of the State in a greater degree than could 107 have been done otherwise.

Furthermore, I may be permitted to say that this legislation was in entire harmony with the wish of every debt-paying man at the time, or nearly so. I never saw but one man who was honestly in favor of paying the debt of the State that opposed it, and that was Hon. Henry Cooper, and he afterwards expressed himself delighted with the result that had been accomplished in the reduction of the State debt, and gave as his reason for then oppos- 108
ing it that he was afraid the railroads would not retire their debts under it, but would use it for speculating in State bonds.

177 Q. Do you not know that the judiciary committee of one of the Tennessee Houses at the session of 1869, when the act was under consideration, reported a bill in lieu of the bill pendiug for that

109 purpose, in which they required the railroad companies to pay the State the identical bonds as constituting liens upon the roads to which they were issued.

A. I do not. If there was any such report I never read it.

178 Q. Don't you know that even on the very last day when that substitution measure was under consideration before one of the Houses of that General Assembly a resolution was offered for the 110 insertion of a proviso in that law in distinct terms saving the liens of the bondholders on the roads ?

A. I don't think I ever saw it. I do not read legislative proceedings generally and never have.

179 Q. You were cognizant that the Legislature 1869-70 made investigation in reference to the frauds of the roads ?

A. I never saw any report to that effect.

180 Q. Had you heard of that investigation ?

A. I don't think I heard of such an investigation.

111 181 Q. Were not many of the bonds which you purchased, issues which were the subject of that investigation ?

A. Not that I know of ; but in a general way there was a repudiating party which wanted every bond investigated.

182 Q. These legislative investigations and proceedings were directed principally to the new bonds ?

A. I think they were, so far as I know ; also the 112 last investigation took in the old bonds.

183 Q. I do not refer to that. I only ask you about the proceedings of 1869-70 ?

A. I don't know as to those.

184 Q. Those purchases were largely delivered back to the State ?

A. The new bonds were largely paid back to the State. Let me here call your attention to the fact that all these investigations, if they ever did come 113 to my mind, would make very little impression on me, for the reason that after the Democratic party had obtained possession of the government, and had a constitutional convention, and two or three legislatures, as was the case, and took no action towards making any preference between new and old bonds, or towards repudiating one bond and sustaining another, with the single exception of those issued to the Mineral Home Railroad, I was more and more convinced that no discrimination be- 114 tween the different classes of bonds would ever be made; and in confirmation of this the proposition of Gov. Marks to throw this bond and that over, as recommended in his message, and resume payment on a few, did not receive one single vote in the Legislature, as I remember, if it was voted on, and I think it was.

185. Q. Will you testify that none of these railroad companies, to which you refer as being connected with at that time, used any means whatever, or that 115
none of their officials used any means whatsoever, through publications or in any other mode, to depress the price of Tennessee bonds?

A. I will not testify to their action in any way, for I was not advised of all their actions; the records will inform you more accurately than I can.

186 Q. Don't you know that it was testified before a committee of the Tennessee Legislature this year that a sum of money was paid to a newspaper in the State of Tennessee and a receipt pro- 116 duced therefor, for the purpose of reducing or "bearing" State bonds, and enabling the roads to buy them at low figures?

(Objected to as incompetent.)

A. No such testimony was given before that committee in my presence.

117 187 Q. Mr. Calloway, to whom you referred, was president of the company in 1872?

A. President of what company?

188 Q. The East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad?

A. Mr. Calloway was not president in 1872 of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad; I was president at that time.

189 Q. Did not a director of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, at one of the meetings held before the delivery of the bonds to the State by that 118 company, oppose making arrangements at that time for the purchase of the State bonds on the ground that the tendency in the State of Tennessee to repudiate the debt would be to lower the price of bonds, and enable them to buy at 30 or thereabouts?

A. Not that I know of; not since my connection with the roads, as far as I know or remember.

190 Q. Was not an effort made by the railroad companies, or some of them, to oppose or defeat the passage of the funding act of 1873, on the 119 ground that the passage of that act would enhance the price of bonds, and make it more difficult for the companies to purchase them?

A. Not that I know of or remember.

191 Q. Did you not expect when you negotiated the sale of some of those substitution bonds, that they would be sold to a great extent in Europe?

A. I might say that I hoped a market would be made for them there; as to what grounds I had for that expectation I don't call to mind just now.

120 192 Q. You stated that these substitution bonds contained a certificate in reference to their being liens; why did you not print the act of 11th February, 1852, under which the lien originated or extracts from it, with the same facility with which you printed an alleged transfer of that lien?

A. In what respect do you mean to say that we did print an alleged transfer of that lien?

193 Q. I am now asking why you did not print 121
the act of 1852, or any extracts from it?

A. The act of 1852 was not pertinent to the subject; I did not conceive that it had anything whatever to do with it; this transfer—this transfer of the lien was the authority under which the transaction took place, and therefore was deemed to be pertinent, and accordingly printed.

194 Q. You have had large experience in railroads, and in negotiating railroad securities; don't you know that it is customary to print and circu- 122 late, or at least offer facilities to intending purchasers, to get copies of the mortgage securing the bonds?

A. It usually is so. In this case I think the mortgages securing the bonds were printed or circulated in that way.

195 Q. Do you mean the act of 1852?

A. No, because it had no connection whatever.

196 Q. The mortgages made February, 1869 or '70, were they printed? 123

A. They were to some extent.

197 Q, Did they refer to the laws?

A. I think so; the bonds will show.

198 Q. Then I understand you that you considered that these new bonds were secured under the law of 1852?

A. I don't say so.

199 Q. Where did the lien get its origin?

A. I refer you to the laws for that.

200 Q. Well, don't you know that if you had 124 printed on the face of substitution bonds the language of the act of February 11th, 1852, "that so soon as the bonds of the State shall have been issued for the first section of the road as aforesaid they shall constitute a lien upon said section so prepared as aforesaid," and the balance of that section, it would at least have put the prospective purchas-

125 ers of the new bonds upon inquiry and examination as to whether the State bonds were a lien upon the properties or not?

A. What would be the effect of a garbled extract from that act, such as you have read, I am unable to say.

201 Q. Suppose you had printed the whole act?

A. I do believe that if the whole act had been printed, it would be generally construed as giving the bondholders no more connection with the rail-126 road companies than the Emperor of China; I believe there is no more privity between the bond-holder and the railroad company than with the Chinese Emperor.

202 Q. I ask you, if that act had been printed, whether it would not have put the bondholder on his guard to make some inquiry as to whether the Tennessee State bonds had a security on those roads?

A. He would have been able to judge for himself, 127 but if he construed the act as I did, he would come to the conclusion it didn't amount to anything;
the act of February 11, 1852, does not provide for the identification of any bonds; he could not have told to what road it was issued.

203 Q. Suppose you had printed on the bond or circulated for the benefit of the purchasers of these new securities the message of Gov. W. G. Brownlow, of the State of Tennessee, or extracts from it, in which he declares the State of Tennessee holds this 128 lien in trust for the benefit of the State bondholders?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant, and a mere supposition without any proof.)

A. I don't think I have ever seen it, and the only way I heard of it was when it was brought into the discussion of the Mobile & Ohio case at Washington, in May, 1878. 129

204 Q. Suppose you had been the person to whom these bonds were offered, and the vendor had concealed from you the existence of an opinion given by the ex-Chief Justice of the State where the bonds were being offered for sale, would you have considered that equitable conduct on his part?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant.)

A. In reply to that I say, if he had estimated the opinion as being worth as little as I did, when I had it examined by my learned counsel, in whose judgment I have perfect confidence, I should have considered that no obligation rested upon the vendor of those bonds to give it currency; I further say I never concealed the Davies & Davis opinion from anyone whomsoever in my life. 130

205 Q. Were not a large amount of bonds of the State issued and being issued at the time or shortly before the passage of this act of 1869? 131

A. The records of the State will show very much better than I can, but I think not.

206 Q. Was not the issue of those large amounts of bonds authorized under the legislation of 1866 and 1867, and other acts passed since the war, the occasion of depreciating Tennessee bonds?

A. I must refer you to the State records as to the issuance of bonds; I never had any connection with the issuance of Tennessee bonds, and whether it occasioned a depreciation in Tennessee bonds you can judge by the sales as well as I can. 132

207 Q. Were not the companies recipients of these bonds?

A. Some of my companies?

208 Q. The companies we first referred to?

A. They all received bonds at the close of the war; it was almost absolutely necessary for them

133 to receive new bonds in order to prevent the State from losing the entire debt, as the railroads were in a dilapidated and worn-out condition, bridges and cross-ties being rotten, iron machinery worn out, captured and destroyed, leaving the roads without credit or abilty to earn money with which to make the necessary physical restoration, so as to enable them to earn money to pay the interest to the State or anybody else with.

209 Q. Then they received a large amount of 134 bonds from the State, and after they were sold the act of 1869 was passed to enable the companies to buy back those bonds at the discount then prevailing?

A. The records of the State will show the amounts and times.

210 Q. I am not asking what the records show; please answer the question?

A. I don't think that was the object at all; I have previously stated the purposes and objects of 135 the act as far as I understood them.

211 Q. That was the effect, was it not?

A. You can judge of the effect. The State of Tennessee was broken down and crippled, and so was everybody else; Georgia bonds and other State bonds were pretty much the same way; Georgia six per cent. bonds were then selling about the same price as Tennessee six per cent. bonds.

212 Q. You know Mr. Mabry?

A. I know J. M. Mabry.

136 213 Q. During his visits to New York City in 1867, 1868 and 1869, or any one of them, was he not frequently in consultation with you?

A. Not very frequently, as he never did his general business with us.

214 Q. Sometimes he did?

A. Very rarely, indeed.

215 Q. Outside of your purchases for the railroad companies, were you not a speculator in Tennessee bonds? 137

A. That is a very singular question. I bought and sold a great many things on the market; I dealt in Tennessee bonds; I had a great many customers in them.

216 Q. Were you ever short of them?

A. That question is too personal; I don't propose to answer it.

217 Q. Was it not to your interest during the purchase of these bonds on account of the railroads that the prices should be kept low? 138

A. As I now remember, I had very little interest in Tennessee bonds after the railroads commenced to buy. The efforts of my house were generally directed to fulfilling their engagements as bankers to the best of their ability.

218 Q. Who had charge of the legislative business of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia R. R. Co. during the years 1868–69 and '70?

(Objected to.) 139

219 Q. Was not C. M. McGhee frequently in the city of Nashville during the period of 1869–70?

A. I was not there myself that I remember of, and I didn't see him there to the best of my recollection.

220 Q. Why will you not answer who had charge of the legislative business of these roads?

(Objected to as immaterial and irrelevant, and because there has been no evidence that anybody had charge of such business, the question assuming something which is wholly untrue.) 140

A. That is my answer.

220 Q. Did you take any measures to inform the 141 holders of Tennessee bonds of any proceedings, executive, legislative or judicial, of what transpired in the State of Tennessee?

A. In respect to what?

221 Q. In respect to the liens on railroads?

A. I did not. It had been practically considered for twenty-five years or thereabouts that the State was the entire and absolute owner of the lien, and held it without any kind of interest on behalf of the bondholders. I think the idea of its having 142 been a lien on behalf of the holders of State bonds would have been ridiculed in any part of Tennessee. The practical construction given to it from its very first inception up to the time this suit was commenced never hinted that the lien belonged to anybody else but the State. The State had thus practically construed the law during all this time, and I so read the law, and the bondholders up to the commencement of this suit had acquiesced in this construction.

143 222 Q. At the time of the passage of the act for the sale of delinquent railroads in Tennessee was it not contemplated by these railroad companies or by some of their officers, or other parties on their behalf, that they would become purchasers of these delinquent railroads, or some of them, at the sale which was expected?

144 A. I do not know that any such thing was contemplated; of course I don't know what was in the minds of the Corporation, but as to that having been the object of the passage of the act, I do not for one moment believe.

223 Q. Was it expected that they would buy these railroads and use them as feeders to the main line?

A. Expected by whom? 145

224 Q. By railroad officials?

A. I don't know what the railroad officials expected. It was expected that the highest and best bidder would become the owner of the roads, so far as I know.

225 Q. Will you testify that there is no record or paper of The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company or it officers which purports or indicates any action in reference to the passage of the act for the sale of delinquent roads, or any pur- 146 chases or transactions consequent thereon?

A. I have never seen such paper; if any such exists I don't know of it; I cannot testify to a nonentity; if it is permissible, I wish to state that any road which the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad bought at the State sales can be bought for less than it cost. They bought one road for $23,000 and sacrificed it for less than half its cost, to avoid being compelled to keep it up and run it, as its earnings did not anything like pay the 147 expenses of operating and maintaining it, nor have the earnings of the other roads done so.

Direct examination resumed by Mr. Andrews:

226 Q. Through whom did the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company negotiate the sale of the new bonds?

A. The contract provides that the Fourth National Bank should sell the bonds either itself or through 149 agents, for which it was to have 2½ per cent. commission. The account of sales of bonds shows that they sold, under that contract, 1,393 bonds of $1,000 each, on which a commission of $34,824 was paid.

227 Q. Who were the agents or brokers who sold the bonds for the bank?

A. I think that R. T. Wilson & Co. sold most, if not all of them, and in cases where they sold the bank gave them one-half of the commission paid it.
This applies to the 1,393 bonds sold as above stated.
150 The accounts of sales show sales of $3,087,000 of the bonds. No commission appears to have been charged on the excess of sales over the 1,393 bonds sold by the bank. Probably I was chosen President of the road and made no charge for sale after that time. These three millions and eighty-seven thousand dollars netted eighty-three $\frac{59}{100}$ cents on the dollar to the road.

228 Q. In what places did your firm of R. T. Wilson & Co. make the sales of the new bonds?

151 A. Mainly, if not entirely, in New York.

229 Q. Has not your firm paid the interest on the bonds?

A. They have not. The interest has been paid by the Gallatin National Bank as agent of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad.

230 Q. Will you give the names of the persons who purchased these new bonds from your firm?

A. Adrian Iselin & Co., mainly, if not entirely.

231 Q. Where did Adrian Iselin & Co. sell those 152 bonds?

A. I must refer you to them. Really I do not know where they sold them all.

232 Q. Will you state the names of some of the holders of those bonds?

A. I do not know who the present holder are.

233 Q. How much did A. Iselin & Co. pay for those bonds?

A. The accounts I have presented will show the exact price paid by A. Iselin & Co., and other parties, if there were other parties. 153

234 Q. Did not A. Iselin & Co. sell those bonds to a large extent in the city of Geneva, through the firm of Lombard, Odier & Co., and in other places in Switzerland.

A. I must refer you to them for that information.

235 Q. Will you produce the contracts between R. T. Wilson & Co. and A. Iselin & Co., in reference to the sale of those bonds? 154

A. I do not believe I have any written contract of it; I probably have copies of some letters for a portion of it.

236 Q. Please produce them at the adjourned examination.

237 Q. Will you produce the accounts on the books of R. T. Wilson & Co., with the firm of A. Iselin & Co., during the years 1869-70, '71 and '72, in relation to transactions in Tennessee State bonds and in the new bonds of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia R. R. Co., or during any part of that time? 155

> (Respondent's counsel objects to this question as incompetent and illegal, because it relates to and embraces matters wholly private, if they exist at all, between R. T. Wilson & Co. and A. Iselin & Co., and having no bearing upon the issues of this case.)

A. As the question has been explained by the complainant's counsel, I will confer with my counsel, and if advised that it is material to the matter at issue, I will produce the accounts so far as they relate to the retirement of the debt of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia R. R. Co., to the State, and the sale of its bonds issued in lieu thereof. 156

238 Q. Did not any paper pass from A. Iselin &

157 Co. to you or your firm, showing at what price A. Iselin & Co., or their agents, sold the new bonds?

A. No such paper has passed that I now call to mind, as I don't remember it, and I don't think there has.

239 Q. Have you not stated that there was a profit made on the sale of the new bonds, over and above the amount you stated as having been received by the company?

> 158 (Respondent's counsel object, because it neither gives the time, place or person to whom the statement is alleged to have been made, and because the question is without relevancy or competency in its present indefinite shape.

A. In reply to that, I don't know whether I have or not, in the case of East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia R. R.

240 Q. Will you produce a list as far as you can 159 obtain it, of the holders of these new bonds, as well on the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia R. R., as on the Memphis & Charleston, and the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis?

A. I don't know who holds them except myself; I hold some of the Mephis & Charleston; no others.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14, 1879.

Direct examination resumed by MR. ANDREWS:

> Complainant's counsel offers in evidence "Report of Committee appointed to investigate the State Debt—Nashville, Tenn.," with testimony annexed to same, 1879, including that of R. T. Wilson as an admission and declaration. 161

Respondent's counsel objects to the same as incompetent, illegal and hearsay.

It is agreed that this report and testimony may be produced in Court subject to the objection of respondents without attaching this report and testimony to the deposition of this witness.

The witness, further answering the direct interrogatories, says:

Upon further consideration respecting the inquiries contained in interrogatories 13, 14, 15, I say that I have made careful examinations of the memorandums of purchases of the R. R. stock in my possession, and find that these show that I bought from the close of the war up to 1872 the sum of about $292,000 of the par value of the stock of 163 the East Tennessee & Georgia and of the Consolidated Company at an average cost of $37.\frac{65}{100}$ on the dollar.

In further answer to interrogatory No. 73 I herewith file a copy of the opinion of Charles Tracy, which was referred to as being published with the prospectus of the Mobile & Ohio bonds in my answer to said interrogatory. Marked Complainant's Exhibit No. 1. W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.

In correction of my answer to the 76th interrogatory I now say that I first saw the opinion of Davies & Davis in the latter part of May, 1870, but I don't remember to have read it then or since then. 164

In further answer to direct interrogatories Nos. 124, 169, 170, 171, 172, I herewith submit and file a copy of the contract with the 4th National Bank for the sale of the substitution bonds of the East

165 Tennessee, Va. & Ga. R. R. Co., Marked Complt's
Exhibit No. 2. W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.

I also file herewith copy of the contracts between
R. T. Wilson & Co. and the East Tennessee, Va.
& Ga. R. R. Co., under which the bonds of the State of Tennessee were sold to the East Tenn., Va.
& Ga. R. R. Co. with which to retire its debt to the State; and also statement or extract from the books of R. T. Wilson & Co. of the account as rendered to the road, embracing the entries made on their 166 books of said transactions. Marked Complt's Exhibit No. 3, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.; and Complt's
Exhibit No. 4, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.

In further answer to direct interrogatories 137, 8 and 9, as to a member of my firm applying to Calvin Stevens, father of complainant, to borrow Tennessee bonds, on enquiring I am informed by Mr. C. H. Bosher, my partner, that he did so apply.

In further answer to direct interrogatory 156 I think I saw the Davies & Davis opinion in the latter 167 part of May, 1870, being about one month after the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia R. R. Co. had bought most of their bonds with which to pay their debt to the State.

In reply to direct interrogatory No. I herewith submit and file the following correspondence between R. T. Wilson & Co., and Messrs. A. Iselin & Co., which exhibit all the contracts made for the sale of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia substitution bonds by the former to the latter, viz.:
168 Copy of letters from R. T. W. & Co. to A. Iselin &
Co., dated 13th May, &c.

(Marked complainants' Exhibit No. 5, W. H. D. L., Special Ex'r.)

In reply to direct interrogatory No. requesting the production of the accounts as shown by R. T. Wilson & Co's. books with Messrs. A. Iselin & Co., I have carefully examined the books of R. T. Wilson & Co., and they do not contain a single account with A. Iselin & Co., during the years named, and I herewith file copy of the account of A. Iselin & Co. rendered, showing the purchase of the only interest I ever had in any of the substitution bonds of the East Tennessee and Virginia R. R. Co. 169

(Marked Complainants' Exhibit No. 6, W. H. D. L. Special Ex'r.)

That interest occurred in this way—at the outset of the sale of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia substitution bonds, in order to give them a start, I agreed in conjunction with two other parties to buy $125,000 of these substitution bonds. This was in May, 1870, and before I knew Mr. Iselin, as my acquaintance with him began in the early part of that month as I now recollect. The arrangement to sell to Mr. Iselin was afterwards entered upon, and to show my faith in the bonds, I still proposed to take an interest in the purchase of the $125,000 with an option of $375,000 of the $500,000, which I had been in treaty about with the other parties. They fell out, and I told the company that I would take in my name the $500,000 interest, but that it must take two-fifths of these $500,000 for its own account. 170 171

The road and myself did take this interest and the bonds were offered in Europe, but the Franco-German war intervened and prevented the sale of most of them and the transaction was incomplete, and in August, 1870 A. Iselin & Co. bought out this interest, paying $7,500 for it, $4,500 of which was placed to the credit of the road and $3,000 to my credit. This is all the interest I ever had in these bonds directly or indirectly, and this interest came about in the manner I have stated, nor did I have any interest in the profits of the sales made by Messrs. A. 172

173 Iselin & Co., or anybody else, of these substitution bonds except as above stated.

Cross-examination by Mr. Humes:

241 x Q. Mr. Wilson, you have stated in your examination in chief the feelings of the railroad men and their action respecting the origin of the Act of 1869-70. What was the feeling of the leading men of the State in regard to it as a measure of 174 State relief, so far as you know?

A. Well, in reply to that question, it is proper for me to state that at the interview between Branner, Calloway, Judge Nelson, and myself, previously referred to, the question of how it would be viewed from the side of the State was thought of, and it was agreed that either Judge Nelson or Mr. Calloway should ascertain the feeling of prominent citizens as early as could conveniently be done, and before making any move toward having it enacted 175 into a law, whereupon some of them conversed with a few prominent citizens about Knoxville, (among whom was Ex-Gov. Brownlow, who, I believe, had taken or was about to take his seat as United States Senator), upon the subject of the State's interest in the matter.

I was informed that he seized upon the idea with great interest, and said that it was the very thing that the State needed. That it would afford a remedy for the embarrassed condition of the State 176 finances, and enable it to get in much more rapidly than could otherwise be done its outstanding indebtedness, which in the end, he said, would work out the salvation of the State's credit, and if it could be successfully carried out, would so reduce the debt as to enable the State to meet the interest without serious embarrassment to her citizens. This much I learned while I remained at Knoxville, say two or three days after this interview respecting the Act. After which time as I now remember I returned to New York, and received frequent letters from Mr. Calloway and others of the great popularity of the measure as viewed from the State's side of the question. All agreed, so far as I heard, that any plan which would result in so largely reducing the outstanding indebtedness of the State must inevitably work a great benefit to it. And as I have previously stated, I did not know of but one man in the State who was honestly in favor of paying the debt, who did not advocate the measure in the most hearty manner, solely as a matter of public interest to the State, to say nothing of the railroad interest in it, and that one man afterwards upon seeing the great reduction of the debt that had been effected by it, said that he most heartily approved of it. 177 178

242 x Q. In interrogatory in chief No. 45, when counsel for complainants asked you as to report of the Comptroller showing that R. T. Wilson & Company were fiscal agents of the State of Tennessee, did he produce such report, and did you not request him to do so, and has he not wholly failed to do so during this examination? 179

A. I state I did request him, and he has failed to do so.

243 x Q. What sources or means of information did the holders of State bonds residing in Tennessee and New York have of these settlements of the railroads with the State while they were going on? 180

A. The matter was a subject of public discussion in the papers of Tennessee, and the large purchases of Tennessee bonds attracted public notice more or less through the financial columns of the papers of New York, which attributed the large transactions in them to purchases made for

181 railroad account, with which to retire their indebtedness to the State, and in addition to this the substitution bonds issued in lieu of the Tennessee State bonds were advertised in New York, for sale, as is shown by the following copies of advertisements, from which it will be seen that each advertisement gave notice that the substitution bonds had been issued in lieu of the debt to the State of Tennessee, and carrying its lien by assignment from the State. I present and file herewith copies of these adver-
182 tisements and names of the papers in which they were published as Exhibits to my deposition.

(Marked Respondent's Exhibit No. 1.—W. H. D. L., Spl. Ex'r.)

244 x Q. Do you know of or did you ever hear of from the year 1865 to the bringing of these suits of any coupon holder of the bonds of Tennessee presenting them for payment to any railroad com-183 pany to whom the bonds had been issued ?

A. No, I never did ; nor do I believe any coupon holder ever did make such a demand against any railroad company. I think if such a demand had had been made I certainly would have known of it, as I had direct relations with a great many roads and knew intimately the officers of almost every railroad to which bonds had been issued. If such a thing had ever transpired I would have been informed of it. But on the contrary, notwith-
184 standing the fact that the State of Tennessee was in default upon its interest from the outbreak of the war up to the date of the bringing of this suit, with a few exceptional times when it was paying, during all this time the bondholders by their repeated funding of their past due coupons into the new bonds of the State and by registering their bonds as straight bonds of the State, time and again said by their acts that they 185 looked to the State alone as their debtor, and never intimated any claim against a railroad.

245 x Q. Who were the Commissioners for the sale of delinquent roads referred to in interrogatory in chief No. 115, and what was their character and standing in Tennessee?

A. They were Ex-Judges Robert G. MacKinney and Archibald Wright of the Supreme Court of the State, and Francis B. Fogg, an eminent lawyer. And it may safely be said that for probity, legal 186 learning, and spotless character no three men in any State enjoyed a more enviable reputation. They were all men of independent fortune, over sixty years of age, without any then or former connection with the railroads; being citizens whose patriotism and fidelity to the welfare of the State was not questioned by a single individual in it. While MacKinney and Wright were on the Supreme Court for a great many years the decisions of the Court of which they were two out of the three commanded 187 the respect of the legal mind of America.

The lawyers employed by them to conduct the business were the Hon. Edwin Ewing, Hon. Wm. F. Cooper and Wm. B. Reese; the two former of whom are universally acknowledged to be the two leading lawyers in the State. And Mr. Cooper was before the war and now is one of the Supreme Judges of the State.

246 x Q. In your answer to interrogatory in chief No. 141, you say that the father of the complainant 188 was frequently in your office, and that you conversed with him about Tennessee bonds and railroads and other things. Did he know about these railroad settlements that were going on?

A. I do not certainly remember whether he did or not, but my impression is I told him as I uniformly did holders of Tennessee bonds who talked to me on the subject.

189 247 x Q. Please state the present price of East Tennessee, Va., and Ga. Railroad stock?

A. It is about 37½ cents on the dollar.

248 x Q. How many dividends have you received from the East Tennessee, Va. and Ga. Railroad since the war?

A. I think five or six dividends of 3 per cent. each.

249 x Q. You stated in your examination in chief that the opinion of Charles Tracy was published;
190 did that opinion touch upon the subject of the lien of the Tennessee bondholders?

A. It did not.

250 x Q. Will you produce that opinion?

A. I will; and I now herewith file a copy as an Exhibit to my deposition.

191 251 x Q. What other instance besides the one given in your answer to interrogatory 31 in chief do you know of where a railroad company made a payment or payments on their debts to the State in any bonds of the State. Please give any additional reasons which you may have going to show that the payment of the railroad debts to the State in any bonds of the State with or without the legislation of 1869 and 70, was in accordance with the custom and wish of the State?

192 A. Besides the Louisville & Nashville R.R. Co. so paying off its debt after the war, say in 1866 and before the Acts of 1869 and 1870 were passed. I have the example of the payment made by the East Tennessee and Ga. R. R. Company on the 4th of June, 1862, in which that company paid $100,000 of its indebtedness to the State in any bonds of the State. It is true that this payment purports to be made to the sinking fund, but 193

it is to be remembered that the sinking fund payments had been suspended the year previous by Statute, and there was no payment due to the sinking fund, as is fully shown by a previous receipt for nine thousand dollars, dated Nov. 2, 1861, which receipt together with other receipts for payments made by that company, I herewith file,

I also herewith file a certified copy of the account of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Company with the State,

(Marked "Resp't's Exhibit No. 3." W. H. D. L., Spc'l Ex'r.)

This shows that this payment and others were passed directly to the credit of the company on the books of the State when made. No man in, or out of the State, up to the time of the passage of the Acts of 1869 and 1870, so far as I ever heard of, for 195 one moment supposed that it was necessary to enact further legislation in order to get the privilege of paying the debts of the roads in any bonds of the State—that is, no railroad man ever supposed such a thing was necessary. They had had too many urgent demands made upon them for payments to the sinking fund, to admit of their believing that it was necessary to procure legislation in order to get the privilege of paying their debts in the identical thing in which the State was constantly 196 pressing them to pay without such legislation; hence, as I have stated in my direct answer, the sole and whole object of the legislation of 1869 and 1870 was to enable the roads to substitute their own bonds so as to carry with them the lien of the State, to raise money with which to buy Tennessee bonds to pay their debts to the State, and thus meet the 197 pressing demands of the State, which were shortly to be made upon the roads in the way of their dues to the Sinking Fund. These Sinking Fund payments as stated in answer to direct interrogatory No. ——were to be resumed in 1870.

252 x Q. You say in your answer to Direct Interrogatory No. 95, that you did not know that the Tennessee and Pacific bonds that you bought or received in payment for bonds loaned were issued to the Tennessee and Pacific Road at the time 198 you bought them, and that you did not know to what roads bonds were issued when you bought them, and that you had no means of knowing this at the time you purchased bonds. Are you familiar with the custom of buying and selling Tennessee bonds on the New York Stock Exchange, and, if so, please state the manner of buying and selling bonds there, and also please state whether the purchaser of bonds has any means of knowing to what road, or 199 whether to any road at all, or for what purpose, the bonds that he is buying were issued at the time he buys them?

A. I am perfectly familiar with the rules and customs of buying and selling Tennessee bonds at the New York Stock Exchange. The bonds are classified into "Old Tenn. 6s," "New Tenn. 6s," and "New Series Tenn. 6s." The old bonds embraced all 6% bonds issued before the war to railroads, either as loans, or in payment for stock subscrip- 200 tions, those issued to turnpikes, to the agricultural bureau, to build the capital with, and for stock in banks, and for any purpose whatsoever—of these there were outstanding at the close of the war about $15,000,000 in round numbers issued for various purposes.

The New Tenn. Bonds embraced the interest funded under the act of 1866, and also the new bonds loaned to railroads and turnpikes, and also 201 some that were issued and sold to raise money for State purposes.

The New Series embraced bonds funded under subsequent funding acts to the act of 1866.

Now when a purchase is made in the regular way for "old," "new," or "new series," as the case may be, it is for delivery the following day, or it may be for cash, which means the same day; or it may be seller sixty, which means that the seller must deliver on or be- 202 fore sixty days from date of sale. In any case a delivery of any bonds of the class which is sold fulfils the obligation, and is a good delivery. The buyer cannot tell until his bonds are delivered to him at his office either the next day, or, if sold for cash, the same day, or, if sold seller sixty, sixty days hence, either the number of his bond, or for what purpose it was issued, nor, if issued to a railroad, to what railroad. No man buying a bond in the New York Stock Exchange ever did know to what 203 road it was issued when he bought it, or whether to any road at all, nor could he do so under the rules of the Stock Exchange.

253 x Q. Has there been any difference at any time between the prices of old Tenn. 6% bonds, issued to railroads as loans, and those issued by the State for purely State purposes? Please answer the same question as to new bonds?

A. There never has been any difference in the price of either old or new 6% bonds between those 204 issued to railroads and those issued for State purposes.

About the time the parties were preparing themselves with bonds, or some of them, upon which to bring these suits, I heard that they were going round from office to office seeking to exchange the bonds they had for bonds on solvent roads, and were offer-

205 ing as high as one cent on the dollar difference between bonds issued to no roads or to insolvent roads and those issued to solvent roads, and this is the only exception, and even it is not conducted through purchases or exchanges made at the Stock Exchange, which rules the prices of bonds of all kinds.

254 x Q. Did you or your firm ever make any loans on Pacific and Tennessee bonds inquired about in direct interrogatories 131, 132, 133, 134. to those 206 holding them?

A. Neither I nor my firm ever made any loan on Pacific and Tennessee bonds, either directly or indirectly, to those holding them.

255 x Q. Direct interrogatories 173 and 174 asks why you failed to afford Tennessee bond holders the same opportunity of judging whether the Tennessee State bonds were liens upon the railroads as you had yourself. Did you ever refuse or deny to any Tennessee State bondholder equal means of know-207 ing his rights which you had yourself?

A. I never refused or kept back from them (the Tennessee bondholders) any information upon this subject, but on the contrary I told one and all, when asked (and I was asked by a great many of them respecting the probable value of these bonds), what was being done, in a general way, by the roads in retiring their debts to the State, and frequently alluded to the laws under which these settlements were being made, and, so far as I now recollect, the 208 bondholders, without a single exception, approved of the roads paying their debts to the State, and joined with me in the opinion that this was the best and surest way of restoring the credit of the State. Besides this the purchases of bonds by the roads and the payment of their indebtedness to the State, and the sale of the New Railroad substitution bonds were matters of public notoriety both in New York and in Tennesee.

256 x Q. Have you copies of the receipts of the payments by the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company to the State of its debt, if you file them? 209

A. I have and I herewith produce and file them.

R. T. Wilson recalled and examined by Mr. Andrews:

Re-direct examination:

257 Q. Have you been able to find the statement or letter referred to in your previous examination?

A. I have been unable to find anything that the question referred to, as I understood it.

258 Q. Is paper now shown to you a copy of the document signed by you and which paper is now offered in evidence and marked "Complainants Exhibit, No. 7, W. H. D. L., Spc'l Exr. 211

A. With the exception of some entries on the back on the 10th page and some minor errors of copy, I think it is. This paper, which purports to be a copy of a letter, and addressed to John T. Terry, was hastily drawn by me and read to Mr. Terry, but as I now remember never delivered to him. In explanation of some statements it contains, I here state that I had nothing more to do with the act of February 25th, 1869, nor with its preparation or passage, nor with the act of 20th January, 1870, nor with the acts for sale of Insolvent Roads than I have previously stated in this deposition. The statement in this letter as to the preparation of the act of February 25th, 1869, and 212

213 that I induced its passage, simply meant to say that at the conference with Judge Nelson and others.
previously mentioned in this deposition, I drew the memorandum of the main features of the act, and left it with Judge Neilson, telling him and the railroad men with whom I was in conference, that I thought if a law of that kind were passed, it would enable the railroad companies to retire at least a portion of their indebtedness to the State. I did not mean to say in this letter that I had anything 214 more to do with the passage of the act, than I have previously stated in this deposition, nor with the passage of the act of 20th January, 1870. Respecting the statement contained in this letter as to the legislation for the sale of defaulting roads, I only meant to say that I had, in common with others, suggested and heartily approved the State's selling its interests in the defaulting roads. This suggestion, however, as I now remember, was not original with me, nor was it made at the conference with Judge 215 Nelson and others, previously referred to in this deposition; nor did I ever, so far as I now remember, solicit the passage of the bill in the legislature or any part thereof for the sale of the defaulting roads; although as a State measure and as an owner of a large property interest to be benefited, and subserved by anything that would promote the public welfare of the State, I earnestly favored these measures, sincerely believing that their adoption and carrying into effect 216 would save the State many millions of dollars, and from a most careful and intimate observation of the effects produced under this legislation, in the way of reducing the State indebtedness, I am more and more convinced of the soundness of my judgment in respect to that matter, believing that it has resulted in the saving to the State of several millions of dollars. I wish to say further, in respect to the classifying of 217 myself as a railroad man in said letter, that I only meant to say that I was a director in one of the roads, and a large stockholder in it. I was not at that time an officer in a railroad company except as previously stated.

This letter was induced by an intimation coming from Mr. Terry to the effect that if the railroad companies did not raise a fund or contribute towards a fund to procure a settlement of the State debt with the State, that 218
the bondholders would probably sue the railroads. On page 5 and line 13 it should read "and the State its debt," instead of "their." On the 18th line of the 5th page read "defeat" instead of "deferred." In explanation of the sentence commencing on the 3d line of the 7th page of said letter, in which I state that my associates and I retired about fifteen millions of the debts of the railroads, I did not mean my partners and myself; but I meant to say that my firm and such houses as 219
Drexel, Winthrop & Co., now Drexel, Morgan & Co., Adrian Iselin & Co., The New York Guaranty & Indemnity Co., Duncan, Sherman & Co., Roosevelt & Sons, and other prominent houses in this city who co-operated with me, had retired about that amount of indebtedness of the railroads to the State, which embraces the payment of debts under the retirement act, and the payment made by the parties purchasing the sold roads, through financial arrangements made by myself and my asso- 220 ciates. On the 15th line on page 7 the word "for" should read "or." On the 17th line of page 7 read "usually" for "usual."

Cross examination by Mr. Humes:

259 x Q. In your answer in chief you have said the State saved millions by the sale of insolvent roads,

221 and by effecting the settlements with solvent roads by and under the acts of 1869 and 1870. Now, please state the facts as to the sold roads, what they sold for, and what they are now worth; and what was the operation and effect as to the solvent roads, and how the State saved money through the retiring of the debts due to it from the solvent roads?

A. The Nashville & North Western R. R. was sold for $2,400,000, being a sum very much more 222 than it was worth, as will appear from the following statement of its earnings and expenses:

That road, having defaulted on its interest, fell into the hands of the State under receivership, and was leased to the Nashville & Chattanooga R. R. Co., which operated it for eighteen months previous to the 30th of June, 1871. The report of the lessee shows that it earned during this period $606,605.21. And that during the same time there was expended upon it.............$983,684 44

Showing for that period a net loss of....$377,079 23

For the next ensuing twelve months it was operated by the Nashville & Chattanooga R. R. Co. as purchaser. The earnings for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1872, were.................$613,679 13
Operating and renewal expenses...... 984,526 38

224 Net loss..........................$370,847 25

For the next fiscal year, ending June 30th, 1873, the earnings were.............. 642,681 36
Operating and renewal expenses...... 559,150 33

Net income.....................$83,531 03

For the following fiscal years, the expenses of this division of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis 225 Railway are consolidated with the general expenses of the whole line.

The freight earnings, however, are kept separate, and the passenger earnings are assumed upon the same relative basis to the freight earnings, which they bore during the previous years when they were kept separately. Showing the following result:

Total income for the year ending June 30,	1874,	490,464 94	226
" " " "	1875,	426,066 74
" " " "	1876,	416,454 49
" " " "	1877,	350,230 38

At the same relative rate of expenditure as was made in operating the road for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1873, this would show each of the succeeding years to pay a net loss, which was probably not the case, but it is certain that the net income of the road for these four years, was not sufficient to pay the interest upon one-half what it cost. 227

For the eighteen months that it was operated for account of the State, by the Nashville & Chattanooga R. R. Co., as receiver and lessee, the net loss was about $377,000.

For the first year after the purchase of the road, it was very nearly as large, and had it remained in the hands of the State, and not been sold out, it is almost certain that the State would have been brought in debt every year on account of operating expenses, and would ultimately have lost its entire debt upon 228
the road. I am intimately acquainted with the road, having had a large interest in the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway, of which it formed a part, and have been a careful observer of its operations, from the day it was purchased up to the present time, and I most unhesitatingly state that I do not believe, from the best of my judgment, that it was worth one-half what the State sold it for.

292 Then, further, the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company bought from the State, through Wicks & Donnigan, the McMinnville, Manchester and Southwestern Railroad, and the Winchester and Alabama Railroad, paying to the State for these roads $600,000 in Tennessee bonds, carrying coupon of January, 1871. It also paid to the stockholders of these companies, as part of the purchase money, in order to remove some complications, $350,000 in the stock of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad 302 Company, and expended in grading and farther extension of the Southwestern road $137,691.78 in cash.

After operating these roads for several years, during which time the net income did not amount to half enough to pay the interest on their cost, they were sold to the Nashville, Chattanooga and St.
Louis Railway for $320,000 of the forty year six per cent. bonds of the latter Company; these bonds were sold at about 70c. on the dollar, being about 231 the same price which the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company paid for the State bonds with which to make payment to the State. The accounts on the books of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company show a clear loss on this venture of $557,791.93, which is correct, and I believe that the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway, as purchaser, paid the full value for the roads bought from the State by the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, upon which this loss was made.

232 I will take next the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston road, which was purchased for $300,000 in Tennessee State bonds by C. M. McGhee and myself, as trustees for the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company, which has since been operated by that company in the most economical manner, and the income of which has failed to pay operating expenses, to say nothing of interest on its cost, by from fifteen to eighteen thou- 233 sand dollars. Hence thus far this road has really been worth nothing to the purchasers, and had the State continued operating these roads through receiverships I give it as my deliberate conviction that it would have been brought in debt every year on account of their operating expenses, and long before this time the roads would have been so run down and worn out as to render them unsafe, and incapable of being operated at any net profit, and in the end the State would have lost most if not all 234 of the debt which it held upon them.

The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company bought the Rogersville and Jefferson Railroad for $23,000, and after keeping it for several years, and operating it at a loss, sold it for notes, on which it realized about six thousand five hundred dollars.

The Memphis, Clarksville & Louisville R. R., which was purchased by the Louisville and Nashville road, was in such a dilapidated condition as to 235 make it almost impossible to operate it except at a loss, but through the support given it by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in the shape of means and business it has been restored, and perhaps is now as valuable, if not more valuable, than any of the sold roads; without this support, however, it would have entailed a much heavier loss upon the State than was the case.

And now, as to the saving to the State through the retirement of the debts under the Acts of 1869 236
and 1870.

What I meant to say was this, that there was scarcely a road in the State which would have been able to resume and maintain the payments to the sinking fund when it became payable in 1870, and that as a consequence of their failure to do so nearly every road would have gone into the hands of a receiver and been sold out, or else run at a continuous loss to the State.

Take for instance the East Tennessee, Va. & Ga. Railroad; at the date it made its settlement with the State it owed the State $4,117,000, and the Government had a claim upon it for about $637,000, which latter was claimed to be a paramount lien to all others, and to obtain which the War Department had appointed a military receiver, who had only been temporarily restrained from taking possession through the intervention of the Circuit Court of the United States; the Government claim was settled under an act of Congress a year or two subsequent for about $200,000 mainly in ten and fifteen year bonds of the road, and the State debt was settled at a saving to the company of about $1,300,000, showing a total reduction of the indebtedness on which interest had to be paid of about . . . . $1,700,000.

The road has since been run with the greatest economy, and the net earnings have only sufficed to pay the interest on the reduced indebtedness, and to pay six dividends of three per cent. on less than two millions of dollars, amounting in the aggregate to . . . . $354,289.32.

While the four per cent. sinking fund on the $4,117,000 for the nine years now elapsed is	$1,482,120,
And the six per cent. interest on the $1,300,000 saved in the retirement of the State debt amounts to . . .	702,000,
Being a total of	$2,184,120.
These two amounts being in excess of the amount of dividend paid by the sum of	$1,829,830.68.

Which amount it would have been utterly impossible for the road to pay; hence, in all probability,

it would have gone into the hands of a receiver and 241 been sold out.

From an intimate knowledge of the condition of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Co., I can state truly that that road would have been sold out but for the forbearance on the part of the State granted to the management of that company in order to give it time to retire its debt, which it was finally enabled to do mainly through parties that were interested in the welfare of the company, and who supplied the money in order to save themselves, as 242 far as possible from the great loss that would have been entailed upon them by letting the road pass into the hands of the State.

At the time that the lien held by the State was purchased from the State by A. Iselin & Co., that road was liable to have passed into the hands of a receiver for default in the payment of sinking fund and interest, and had such been the case I do not believe the State would have realized two-thirds of its debt. 243

The Mobile & Ohio Railroad was also in default on account of the sinking fund and interest, and has since failed to meet its interest on the substitution bonds and has been reorganized at a heavy loss to the holders.

The Nashville and Decatur road was also in default, and would have been sold out had not it succeeded in procuring parties to retire its debt under the acts of 1869-70, and would under these circumstances have brought probably not two-thirds of the 244 debt due to the State.

And this is true of nearly every so-called solvent road that paid its debt to the State, except the Nashville and Chattanooga, and Louisville and Nashville roads ; not a single road other than these would have been able to have made their annual interest and sinking fund payment, that I now know 245 of. Hence all would have gone into the hands of receivers and been sold out, or else run at a loss to the State. This fact, I think, was fully realized by a large number, if not all, the holders of Tennessee State bonds, who, so far as I know, without a single exception, urged that this policy of retiring the debts due the State from the railroads should be carried into effect.

In the case of the Memphis and Charleston railroad, Mr. Peter Geddes repeatedly urged me as its 246 president, to retire, or procure some one to retire the debt due to the State from that Company, and on one occasion he came to my office and made inquiry as to how I was getting along in the matter of retiring the debt of that Company to the State. I told him that the Company was ready to retire its debt as early as it could possibly procure means with which to do so; that it had made arrangements with some parties to buy and carry some of the bonds, with a view of either retiring its debts 247 on its own account, or else getting some of the parties to buy the lien from the State, who could give the Company more favorable terms of payment than the State could; that under such an arrangement, about three hundred thousand dollars of Tennessee bonds had been procured, and that as he was a holder of a large amount of such bonds, both for himself and Mr. George Smith, that to secure the needed amount, I would buy his bonds. He declined to sell his bonds, but insisted that I should 248 go forward and retire the debt at once, giving as his reason for urging me to retire the debt, that until that was done, I and my party could never be efficient co-workers in the restoration of the State's credit. The debt of that Company was purchased from the State by A. Iselin or A. Iselin & Co., thereby retiring the debt to the State in accordance with the wishes of Mr. Peter Geddes, (as fully expressed to me and as particularly urged by him on 249

the occasion to which I allude), and of every other bond-holder, so far as I know and believe, without a single exception.

I give it as my deliberate judgment, having perfect familiarity with the condition of nearly every ralroad in the State, that the State of Tennessee is from four to six millions of dollars better off than it would have been if the Retiring Acts and the Acts for the sale of the roads had not been passed.

260 x Q. How long have you known Mr. Iselin, 250 and what were the circumstances under which you made his acquaintance?

A. In March or April, 1870, I made application to the New York Guaranty and Indemnity Company to supply the money with which to retire the debt of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company to the State, and the President of that company convened a meeting of the board of directors, in order that I might submit the application and make a statement of the con- 251 dition of the roads, for the decision of the board.

Mr. Iselin was present at that meeting. It was in the early part of April, 1870, as I now remember. I saw him there for the first time in my life, so far as I know, but was not then presented to him.

The Guaranty and Indemnity Company declined to loan the money, whereupon it was procured from the Fourth National Bank.

Early in the succeeding month of May, Mr. 252
Odier, of firm of Lombard, Odier & Company of Geneva, Switzerland, arrived in America, and Mr. Iselin having heard my statement respecting the wish of our company to retire its debt to the State presented the subject to Mr. Odier, and asked an introduction to me through the President of the New York Guaranty and Indemnity Company, 253 which was granted, and about the 12th or 15th of May, I became for the first time personally acquainted with Mr. Iselin, when we took up the subject of negotiating for the bonds, which it was proposed to issue for the purpose of raising money to retire the debt to the State. And out of this transaction grew my acquaintance and subsequent operations with Mr. Iselin.

I herewith present the account of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad called for in the examination in 254 chief.

R. T. Wilson resumes:

261 x Q. In your letter to Mr. Terry you say: "That so long as the railroads were indebted to the State the temptation to them to so influence legislation, as to cause a default in the payment of coupons in order to buy them up at a discount and 256 pay them over to the State." Did now mean to say that the railroad men had influenced legislation in this way?

A. I did not. I merely meant to say, that it offered a temptation to do so.

COMPLAINANT'S EXHIBIT No. 1. 265

W. H. D. L.,—Spl. Exr.

OPINION OF CHARLES TRACY, ESQ.

The Tennessee Statute of 1852, Ch. 151, embraced in its provisions the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company (§ 10).

That statute fixed upon the road and property of the company a first lien in nature of a mortgage in favor of the State, to the amount of State bonds advanced to the company (§ 3, § 4); and it made it unlawful for the company to create any lien or incumbrance which should have priority over or come in conflict with the State's lien; and the State's lien or mortgage was declared to have priority over all other claims existing, or to exist, against the company (§ 4). 266

The 12th section of that act is as follows:

> "Be it enacted, that the State of Tennessee "expressly reserves the right to enact by the "Legislature thereof, hereafter, all such laws "as may be deemed necessary to protect the in-"terest of the State, and to secure the State "against loss, in consequence of the issuance "of bonds, under the provisions of this act; "but in such manner as not to impair the "vested rights of the stockholders of the com-"panies." 267

The company subsequently made two mortgages, or deeds of trust, the first of which expressly saves and reserves the rights and liens in favor of the State, and the second declares that it is subject to the lien of the first, and also that it should not interfere with the State's lien. 268

The act of 1869, c. 38, was passed in pursuance of the reserved power of legislation mentioned in sec-

269 tion 10 of the act of 1852. This act of 1869 provides for relieving the State from a part of its debts, by a scheme for retiring the State bonds, and transferring the State's first lien to new bonds made by the company, and certified by the comptroller, and which shall be a first lien on the road and property. The provisions of the act 1869 in this regard are clearly sanctioned by the act of 1852.

The bondholders under the first and second mortgages lose nothing by this subrogation of the hold-270 ers of the new bonds to the prior lien of the State, and have not at law or in equity any right to dispute the priority of such new bonds.

The reservation of the act of 1852 is made in ample terms. It saves a right of enactment to protect the interest of the State, and to secure the State against loss by reason of issuing the bonds; and it constitutes the Legislature the judges of what enactments may be deemed necessary for such purposes. The Legislature having deemed it neces-271 sary to pass the act of 1869 for the protection of this interest of the State, no question of its competency or validity is admissible.

Nor is there anything in the act of 1869 which does not lie clearly within the limits of the reserved power of legislation. It does not affect the first and second mortgages. It continues the lien of the State on the same property and to the same amount while it changes the payees or creditors to be protected by the lien. There is no satisfaction or ex-272 tinguishment.

The sums to be paid to the State are not paid, but are made payable to the holders of the new bonds. The State ceases to be a creditor, and the new bondholders become creditors in its place. The company's obligation or debt, with the lien or charge for payment, continue to the new creditors.

The act of 1869, therefore, is clearly valid, and the new bonds issued and certified as required by 273

it, have a first lien and a priority over the first and second mortgage bonds.

The preamble and resolutions adopted by the Board of Directors, May 25th, 1871, and the indenture executed by the company and Messrs. Duncan, Iselin and Wilson, dated July 1st, 1871, are in proper form for carrying the proposed arrangement into effect, and giving to the holders of the new bonds the benefit of a first lien on the company's property, through the parties named as 274 trustees.

being about three millions nine company is also desirous of providing any funds which it may become necessary to employ in effecting the surrender of the said State bonds, and the 278 substitution of its said railroad mortgage bonds therefor under such authority.

And whereas, The Fourth National Bank has consented upon the conditions hereinafter stated to procure such negotiation of the said railroad mortgage bonds, and to procure certain advances upon the representation of R. T. Wilson, a director of the said railroad company, that the said company may lawfully make this agreement and upon his individual promise to guaranty to the said bank the 279 prompt and full repayment by the said company of all advances made to it.

Now, therefore, in consideration of the premises and of the mutual covenants hereof, it is agreed:

The said bank shall receive for its said services in securing such negotiation, a commission of two and one-half per cent. upon the par value of such bonds, except that when other parties shall sell any of the Fifth.—All advances so made and not sooner paid shall become due and payable on the first day of May, 1871. If on or before that time sufficient shall have been realized from the sale of the said

Captain Joseph Jaques, V. P. E. Tenn., Va. and Ga., R. R. Co.

DEAR SIR:—We propose the following:

1st.—To furnish bonds and coupons of the State of Tennessee to you with which to pay your debt 299 to the State, to the extent of three millions of dollars, at fifty-five cents on the dollar in cash. You are to give us the option for three months, of furnishing the balance of the debt you owe the State, at the same price, accrued interest to be counted at the same price.

2nd. We will undertake as financial agents of the road, to negociate for the necessary money to carry out this contract and to sell the bonds to reimburse the same, employing such assistance at the expense 300 of the road as may in our discretion be necessary, leaving our compensation to be fixed by the road after the transaction is concluded.

3rd. If we are continued as the financial agents of the company and no providential interference presents or interferes, then we guarantee that your debt of say $3,915,000 to the extent retired shall be 301 done at not exceeding the rate of three millions of your company bonds for the whole.

Yours truly,

R. T. WILSON & CO.

I certify that the above is a true copy.

CLEVELAND, TENN., April 21, 1870.

MESSRS. R. T. WILSON & CO.,

Gentlemen:

Your offer to sell bonds to this road, made through its Vice President, Capt. Joseph Jaques, bearing date of the 15th instant, is received, and I have telegraphed our acceptance of your proposition, which acceptance I now confirm.

You will now proceed to negotiate for the necessary money to carry out your proposition, and you are hereby authorized to hypothecate the State 303 bonds for money so raised; also, to pledge this company's credit for the same, and whenever the extent of your ability to deliver State bonds justifies your moving in the matter of surrendering State bonds of the State of Tennessee in manner as the acts of February 25, 1869, and acts amendatory thereto provides, then you are hereby authorized to surrender the same to the Comptroller of the State of Tennessee or to his agent in New York.

With a view to this action on your part this com-304 pany hereby authorizes you to use of its mortgage bonds to the extent which you may surrender State bonds, and when you surrender State bonds you will cause the certification of the Comptroller of the State of Tennessee to be affixed on our mortgage or company bonds, in manner as the law provides for, and when so certified you are authorized and directed to hypothecate them against money borrowed until such time as you can sell them at such prices as 305 this company may from time to time authorize.

THOS. H. CALLAWAY, Pres't,

The proposition won't be made before to-morrow, 306
if then; meantime I want to know if you accept on condition that you can control the price of your bonds for one year.

April 20, 1870.

THOS. H. CALLAWAY, Pres't,
Cleveland, Tenn.

307
You know we can't issue only as we surrender, and therefore could not make any of the bonds available as a means on which to raise money. They will insist on having control of all until enough are sold to pay advances, mainly, as they say, to avoid competition in selling. I believe this can be satisfactorily arranged either with the present or other parties. Also, that we can control the price of our bonds for one year.

R. T. WILSON,
F. Agent. 308

CLEVELAND, TENN., April 20th, 1870.

R. T. WILSON,

I am willing to accept your proposition, provided the whole issue of bonds are not to be tied up so that 309 in case we may need money for any other purpose, that we will have something to raise it on, and we must have the right to price our bonds.

THOMAS H. CALLOWAY,

Dear Sir :—Haven't received the promised letter after seeing Mr. Calloway, but we suppose that you have agreed to issue a new bond, and hence we are 311 having one prepared to be ready by the 25th instant.

We now give notice that we will sell your road under our option, enough more bonds than we have heretofore agreed to supply to pay off your State debt with.

Yours truly,

New York, May 13th, 1870.

Mess. A. Iselin & Co. :

Gentlemen :

I now beg to confirm in writing the verbal agreement had with you this day, which I understand to be as follows :

336 1. The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company is to pay off the debt due the State of Tennessee, for the loan of the bonds of said State in manner as the law provides, by surrendering State bonds to the Comptroller or his his agent.

2. The said railroad company is to issue a mortgage bond, which is to take the place of the lien held by the State, for an amount not exceeding 337 three millions five hundred thousand dollars (3,500,000) principal and interest of said bonds to be payable in currency, and to be in denominations of one thousand dollars bearing seven per cent. per annum interest, with coupons therefor attached, payable semi-annually, and running to maturity within twenty, twenty-five or thirty years, as the road may elect.

3. You are to purchase of the said railroad 338 bonds, and by the acceptance of this do contract for and purchase five hundred thousand dollars at eighty-two and a half cents on the dollar, and accrued interest. This purchase secures to you the option of purchasing fifteen hundred thousand more of said bonds at the same price, which option is to run until the thirty-first day of next July.

4. The five hundred thousand dollars which you have purchased to be delivered to you by the road 339
so soon as the road can prepare them and get the State debt paid, which will probably be by the first day of July next, or soon thereafter, but not later than the thirty-first day of that month, and when delivered they are to be paid for and in like manner, in case of further purchases which you may make on your option.

5. Of the issue of said railroad bonds the road reserves one million dollars and hereby agrees not 340 to sell them without your consent before the expiration of six months and of the remaining amount, say five hundred thousand dollars, R. T. Wilson & Co., of this city, and such parties as they may associate with them, have the option to purchase the same, at the same price and for the same time which is given you on your option, with the fur-

341 ther understanding that the bonds so to be purchased by R. T. Wilson & Co. are to be offered by you, for sale in Europe, during the time your option runs, in conjunction with your bonds, upon such terms and conditions between you and them as may be agreed upon, it being understood that the terms between you and R. T. Wilson & Co. do not apply to or effect the road.

6. This contract not to be binding on you until you examine the road, which you are to do next week, 342 and then report whether you accept or decline it.

Yours truly,

367 MR. JOHN T. TERRY,

Care of Messrs. E. D. MORGAN & Co.

Dear Sir : Respecting the proposed action of holders of Tennessee bonds against Tennessee railroads about which you spoke to me, I have to say : That I have conferred with some of the parties largely interested in Tennessee railroads who confirm my views as stated to you, viz : That the rail-368 roads as such would not contribute anything whatever towards a fund to induce a settlement of the State debt on account of apprehended danger to them through the action of Tennessee bondholders who may seek to hold them for Tennessee bond liabilities under the various Acts of the Legislature of that State granting aid to railroads, &c. From the stand point of the roads' view of that question they have nothing whatever to fear, and I 369 apprehend it will be quite impossible to convince any of them of their error, if it be one, which, by the way, I scarcely believe to be possible—until they are convinced by the highest tribunal of the country.

But while this is unquestionably the position of the railroad men of Tennessee, yet I am happy to say truthfully that I do not know a single railroad man in or out of the State connected with Tennessee roads who is not now using and who has 370 not for the past three years used all their influence in the direction of the payment of the entire debt, if deemed to be practicable, or as an alternative of this to procure the best possible settlement that could be obtained for the bondholders. As a class they have intelligence enough to know the withering effects upon the general prosperity of the State of repudiation, and the State's prosperity and welfare is their prosperity and welfare, for you as a commercial man well know that of all business 371 that you can conceive of the railroad traffic business is more directly and quickly effected and shows the effects of prosperity or the reverse quicker and more directly than any other line of business.

I am well aware that the charge you made yesterday to the effect that the railroads have for previous to the past three years stood in the way of the settlement of the Tennessee debt, because it has been to their interest to get the price of bonds down so that they could buy them and pay off their debts 372 to the State, has been a current one; and while it has been as to nearly every railroad man in the State, with perhaps one or two unimportant exceptions, a slander upon them, yet it has had just enough of plausibility about it to mislead and give it currency. When I drew the original act of Feb. 25, 1869, for I was its author,

373 although it was so changed that it would scarcely be called the same, this act was prompted and supported not alone by the railroad men of the State, but largely by the best men all over the State, as being the only measure by which either the State or railroads could be saved. It was apparent to all men of even moderate sagacity that the railroads could not possibly meet the interest on their indebtedness, and pay the sinking fund, to say nothing of meeting the early maturing bonds. The penalty
374 for a failure to do this was the appointment of a Receiver by the Governor. Experience in this State-receivership business, clearly demonstrated that instead of being a remedy, it became the greatest possible evil. State Receivers administered the roads so badly that in almost every single instance the State not only failed to collect any revenue, but was actually mulcted for a large sum to pay expenses of operating the road. In addition to this great evil, so long as the railroads were indebted 375 to the State, the temptation for them to so influence legislation as to cause a default in the payment of coupons in, order that they might buy them up at a discount and pay them over to the State, was so great that every sincere friend of the State felt great solicitude for its result. But while this was so manifest, and while it was so manifestly for the interest of the State to have the Act of Feb. 25, '69, passed and the R. road debt to the State paid off, that it would appear that every wayfaring man, 376 though a fool, should have seen it as he ran. Yet such was not the case, but on the contrary many good men and many very bad men opposed the passage of the bill, and the result was a bitter contest. The good men feared it was a measure to aid railroad men to speculate in Tennessee bonds, or at least some of them said so, while others said it would be wholly impracticable in operation, because of the inability of the railroads, on account 377 of their broken down and exhausted condition and credit to avail of its provisions, while many of the bad men feared it might do just what it has done, viz: enable the roads to pay their debts and the State theirs, get them beyond the reach of State receiverships, with all their opportunities for plunder and place, and thus prevent them and their friends from keeping the roads in a shape out of which they hoped to reap rewards one way or another. To defeat the success of the measure they have used 378 every argument that could avail. When they saw the roads making rapid progress in relieving their debts they used the charge that they were conspiring to put down the price of bonds, while at one time there may have been less support from railroad men in the direction of tax levies and payment of interest by the State than there should have been, yet there has been, with perhaps one or two exceptions, nothing of this kind for the last three or four years, but on the contrary nearly all rail- 379 road men have been zealous supporters of the credit of the State. I, for one, can say conscientiously that I have at all times taken the broad view that neither State nor railroads would amount to anything unless a proper settlement with the creditors of the State was effected in one way or another that would be permanent, and to support this, or rather to prepare the way to make such a settlement probable and lasting, I not only had the measure or Act of Feb. 25, 1869, under which railroads were au- 380 thorized to retire their indebtedness, introduced and passed, but I also suggested and aided in passing the bill for the sale of the class of roads known as insolvent roads, with a view of bringing about a complete separation of Railroads and State, partly, and, I may say, largely, in order to place the State in a position where it would be to the interest

381 of all who might be in the position to have a voice in her legislative councils, to aid and support an honorable settlement with her creditors, which I have looked upon as being the first and necessary foundation stone upon which to build all prosperity, either railroad, State or individual. To show how faithfully I have preserved this line of policy, I may be excused for stating that nearly fifteen millions of dollars of the railroad debt has been retired by my house, and its associates, in which 382 I have taken the lead. Now, without boasting my friendship for the State, who can say as much, who in the last twenty-five years has contributed so largely as I have done towards making it possible for Tennessee creditors to even get anything like their just rights, and remember while I have done this I have never been directly or indirectly responsible for the creation of one dollar of indebtedness for any railroad for any other purpose which has not been paid in full with interest, and yet I am 383 usually classed as one of the railroad men in Tennessee of more or less influence in the affairs of the State. Now this much for the past relations of the railroad men, and to the State and back to the question of the rights of Tennessee bondholders against railroads, if they have any, which I most emphatically deny, but allow me to attract your attention to the fact that in the case of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad in the United States Circuit Court at Memphis, and this subject has been 384 before that tribunal fully argued by able counsel, and decided by Judge Trigg, without even expressing a doubt, to the effect that the lien of the State upon railroads for aid granted to them under the laws of Tennessee granting the aid, was taken solely for the State and was personal to it alone, and not in any manner or shape for the benefit of the holders of Tennessee bonds which had been issued to railroads and by them sold to the public. This is precisely what Judge Trigg decided, and it is what all railroad men have been advised by the best legal counsel they could obtain, and is in perfect harmony with the legislative construction and practice of the State; but as the adverse party to this decision have appealed to the United States Supreme Court at Washington, where the case is now pending, and where the decision of the Circuit Court at Memphis will be reviewed, I submit that long before any bondholder could now get his case before that tribunal, it will have been tried just as fairly as it will ever be possible for him to have it tried, and I think even more so, because I don't believe that, taken alone, there is enough in his claim, if made as the prime cause of the action to induce any court to entertain it, while in the Mobile and Ohio case he has the advantage of getting his cause before the highest tribunal of the land, not directly, but collaterally in just as good a shape to test its merits as if it were the prime cause of the action.

Now, these being the facts in the case, while so stated at the outset no railroad man that I know will give one dollar on account of the supposed claim of bondholders, or rather, to get the State to settle the its debts in order to avoid that question, yet all will cheerfully co-operate with the State creditors in any and all practicable means by which it may be hoped to reach a settlement with the State upon terms satisfactory to its creditors, and a few of the railroad men are using their best endeavors to get an early hearing of the Mobile and Ohio case at Washington, among whom I am one; as the plaintiff in one branch of that case—which, as previously stated, will just as effectually settle the case as to the right of Tennessee bondholders against railroads, as it would be possible for the bondholders to do, by all the suits

389 they could bring, and do it too from one to three years sooner than they could get their case before that Court and be heard.

Bearing on the Mobile and Ohio case, I beg to hand you herewith the brief of Messrs. Humes & Poston and Joseph B. Heiskel, and invite your attention to the argument beginning on page 12 of the same.

I will at all times take great pleasure in co-operating with the creditors of the State in their efforts 390 to procure an honorable settlement. I feel that my position is such as to make it possible for me to render them some assistance.

I remain, with much respect,

Yours truly,

R. T. WILSON.

SEVEN PER CENT FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS OF THE NASHVILLE AND DECATUR RAILROAD. 396

The mortgage is for $2,100,000, or only $17,500 per mile on an old and completed road, showing an established business, from local traffic, mainly more than sufficient to pay its interest as it becomes due, with prospects of greatly enlarged receipts from new connections which are now in progress.

This mortgage was created for the sole purpose of paying a debt due 397 to the State of Tennessee, on terms which would reduce the liability of the road about $600,000.

Of the bonds issued under said mortgage $200,000 are held in escrow to abide settlement of a claim of the United States; $300,000 have been purchased by the parties in interest, and the balance of $1,600,000 are offered for sale on favorable terms; the security, in the judgment of the undersigned, being such as to entitle them to perfect confidence.

Deposition of Jno. C. Brown.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,

WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

Calvin Amory Stevens et al. on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee issued to the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company

vs.

The Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company et al.

Deposition of John C. Brown, witness for defendants, taken in Nashville, Tennessee, April 23d, 1880, before L. W. Humes, Special Examiner, duly appointed under an order of the United States Circuit-Court, Western District of Tennessee.

Taken pursuant to agreement.

Present—W. Y. C. Humes, for Defendants.

Jno. C. Brown, being first duly sworn, deposed as follows:

In answer to oral interrogatories, he states:

My name is Jno. C. Brown; I have lived in the State of Tennessee all my life, and am now fifty-one years of age; I am a lawyer by profession and practice, and my residence is Pulaski, Giles County, Tennessee. From early manhood to the commencement of the war, and then from the close of it up to 1871, I devoted myself almost exclusively to the practice of my profession. I was elected President of the convention that revised the constitution in 1870, and presided over its deliberations. I was the first Governor elected under the new State constitution of 1870, and was inaugurated in 1871, and re-elected and inaugurated in 1873 for a second term. During the years 1869 and 1870, I was thoroughly acquainted with the sentiment of the people of the State. The acts for the sale of the insolvent and defaulting railroads originated in and were produced by a prevalent sentiment throughout the State that such measures would subserve the best interests of the State in retiring a part of its bonded debt, and to the same extent benefit the holders of her bonds. The acts of February 25, 1869, and January 20th, 1870, enabling the solvent roads to retire their debts to the State, originated in and were produced by the same sentiment, and by a sentiment that it would benefit the roads in their depressed condition by enabling them to use the State's first lien on their property to purchase up and pay the State debt in her bonds.

I was intimately acquainted with Dempsey Weaver during the years 1869 and 1870, and my administration as Governor. He was the President of the Third National Bank, and was then and had been for years a leading financial man residing at Nashville. I had frequent conversations with him during the years 1869 and 1870. He was the agent and correspondent of a very large number of the bondholders of Tennessee; he favored and approved for them the acts above referred to, as they would reduce the State debt and thereby increase her capacity to pay them. The railroads also favored it as measures of relief to them in their broken down condition.

The constitutional convention of 1870 passed no measure discriminating between any State bonds, nor has the Legislature, except as to a few issued to the Mineral Home R. R. Co. During my two terms as Governor, I received an immense number of letters from holders of State bonds from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other places, stating that now the State had reduced her debt, and asking when she was going to resume payment of her interest. The bonded debt of the State had been reduced by the sale of the insolvent roads, and by some of the solvent roads having retired their debts under the acts of 1869 and 1870. I did not preserve their correspondence, but I know the bondholders were clamorous during the whole of my administration for the payment of their interest, and stated the retiring the bonded debt under the acts of 1869 and 1870 as one of the reasons why the State should be the more able to pay their interest. Not one of them ever intimated a right to go upon the railroads, or that this legislation was a violation of their rights. In my second gubernatorial canvass I advocated the funding of the unpaid coupons, and my opponents agreed with me as to this measure. I know Mr. Weaver, as agent of the bondholders, warmly and cordially approved this measure, and many others did also. Immediately after my inauguration in 1873 I sent into the Legislature a message advocating the funding act of 1873, and in that message was given an accurate statement in figures of the amount of State bonds that had been retired by the sale of delinquent roads and settlements with solvent roads under the acts of 1869 and 1870, accompanied also with the Comptroller's report, showing the same facts in detail. Mr. Weaver and other correspondents of foreign bondholders called at the capitol and got a vast number of these printed messages and forwarded them to the foreign bondholders. I felt it my duty to ascertain thoroughly and accurately whether the bondholders approved or disapproved this funding measure. They approved it almost universally if not entirely so; I never heard of a dissent. After the passage of the measure nearly all of the holders funded their overdue coupons, and registered their old bonds under this act. The sale of the delinquent roads and the purchase of State bands by the solvent roads to settle their debts was publish all over the country, as well as the sale of the substitution bonds of the companies. Never from 1869 to the close of my administration in 1875, did I hear of State bondholders claiming that the State bonds issued to railroads or their coupons were due to them from the companies to which issued or claiming the lien. No such lien was ever set up during my official connection with the State, not even after the panic and financial depression had made it evident that it would be with the utmost difficulty the State could pay her interest, if at all.

I believe at the time of the passage of the acts of 1869 and 1870, and still believe, that the making of the settlements therein provided tended in a great degree to place the State in a position to resume payment of interest upon its entire debt; and the act of 1873, under which the debt was funded and registered, was made likewise, under the confident expectation that the interest would be punctually paid. And this undoubtedly would have been the result but for the subsequent panic and paralysis of the industries of the country. In order to force the several railroads that had not settled under the acts of 1869 and 1870 to do so, I sent either a message or the form of a resolution to the Legislature, requiring the roads to settle in a given time, or, in default, withdrawing the privilege.

And further saith not.

JNO. C. BROWN.

Deposition of Maney Bell.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,

DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

Calvin Amory Stevens et al., on versus

The Railroad Company et al.

Deposition of Maney Bell, witness for defendants, 3 taken in Nashville, Tennessee, March 15th, 1880, before L. W. Humes, Special Examiner, duly appointed under an order of the United States Circuit Court, Western District of Tennessee.

Taken pursuant to agreement,

Present—W. Y. C. Humes, for Defendants. 4

Maney Bell, being first duly sworn, deposed as follows:

My name is Maney Bell; am 30 years of age; reside at present in Nashville; am now and have been

5 since October, 1873, except a period of seventeen months, ten months from 1st of May, 1874, to 1st March, 1875, and seven months from March, 1877, to December, 1877, a clerk in the office of the Secretary of State for Tennessee; have in the office of Secretary ofState books containing receipts for bonds of the State of Tennessee issued to turnpike companies, banks, railroad companies, agricultural bureau, and for the purchase of the Hermitage, and construction of the State Capitol, and also for bonds issued un-
6 der acts to fund the past due indebtedness of the State given by the agents appointed to receive bonds of the State issued for above purposes respectively; these books contain receipts dated from 1836 to 1877; copies of receipt for each of above purposes are made a part of this deposition and are marked respectively Exhibits A., B., C., D., E., F., G., and H., I., J., K., L., and M.; said receipts show number of bonds received, numbers of bonds, date and series, and purpose for which the bonds are to be issued;
7 this was the rule, but there were exceptions in which they failed to specify the series; for every bond issued by the State as shown by these books, whether for State, turnpike, railroad, or other purpose, receipts were given by the agents appointed to receive them, except I find no receipts for special issues to Bank of Tennessee under act of 1832; the bonds issued for all purposes by the State after passage of the Internal Improvement Act of February 11th, 1852, were issued of 8 the current series, except the bonds issued to the Capitol Commissioners to be used only in the construction of the State Capitol, and two special issues of bonds (40 bonds), issued to turnpike companies. All bonds issued by the State prior to 1852, with the exception of the Series White "A" issued under Act of 1838, were special issues—in all, 3,500 bonds, special issues, about 500 of which are still outstanding. Each series of bonds 9 was distinguished by letter or color, or both, and by words on the face of the bond, showing under what act or acts it was issued, its number and date of maturity. There were several separate series of bonds issued under the Internal Improvement Act of Feb. 11th, 1852, and acts amendatory thereto, viz.: Series B white, C white, B green, and Series Green Bonds not lettered. I give order in which the different series were issued under Internal Improvement Act and its amendments, with number of 10 bonds and date of maturity.

Series "B" white,	Nos.	1	to	7,958,	due in	1892
" "	"	7,909	"	11,806,	"	1898
" "C" "	"	1	"	1,878,	"	1898
" No lettter green	"	1	"	8,470,	"	1892
" " "	"	8,471	"	10,000,	"	1900
" "B" "	"	1	"	5,203,	"	1900

Bonds of a particular series, issued under Act of 1851-2 and its amendments, were not confined to 11 a particular railroad company or other internal improvement, but were issued alike for every purpose as application was made under the Acts. For example, of the Series "B" white, issued under said Act of Feb. 11th, 1852, 48 were issued for purchase of the Hermitage, 30 bonds to the Agricultural Bureau, and others to a Turnpike Company. Nearly every railroad received bonds of two or more series. The rule of issuing bonds, as shown by the receipts, was to issue to each proper appli- 12 cant bonds whose number began with the number next after number of bond last issued, and of the current series. As to the question: "When was the fact first made known to the public of the numbers of the different series of bonds, and to what parties or corporations issued?" I answer that I find a printed statement in the form of a circular, issued

13 by Pennebaker, Comptroller, under date of July 25, 1870, setting forth the facts, but do not know that it was distributed generally ; the fact first appears in the reports of the Comptroller in a report to the General Assembly of 1875, by Jno. C. Burch, Comptroller. The receipt books show that all bonds of the State, for whatever purpose issued, and of whatever series, were numbered consecutively from No. 1 to end of series, and that receipts were required and given for same from 1838 to 1877.

14 The New Series Funding Bonds, Green F, issued under Act of 1873, were issued for past due bonds and coupons of the State, and when $1,000 in past due coupons were presented, no matter from what series of Bonds, or for what purpose or to what Company or Companies, the Bonds from which they were clipped were issued a new bond of the Funding Bond series, was issued in lieu. But as the greater part of the Funding Bond series was issued in lots of two up, it would be impossible to say that 15 any particular coupon was taken up by any particular bond of the lot. As an illustration, I give this instance, taken from funding books of 1873 : $12,990 in past due coupons (being coupons cut from 44 State bonds), and $10 in currency, making $13,000, was funded into New Series Funding Bonds, Nos.
455 to 467, date of transaction August 22d, 1873.
These coupon were clipped from Bonds for following purposes :

16

Series.	Originally issued to.	No. Coupons.		No. Bonds.	Am't.	17

Therefore could only say that any particular coupon in above lot was taken up by New Series Funding Bonds, Nos. 455 and 467, and further saith not.

1

Deposition of John S. Claybrooke.

Middle District of Tennessee:

Be it remembered, that on the 23d day of September, 1879, before me, as Examiner appointed by the Circuit Court of the United States for said district, at my office, in the City of Nashville, Tennessee, was produced and came before me John S. Claybrooke, witness on behalf of the defendants, to 2 depose in civil causes depending in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Tennessee, wherein C. A. Stevens is complainant, and the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap & Charleston R. R. Co., et al., are defendants; same, complainant, and the Knoxville & Kentucky R. R. Co., et al., are defendants; and the same, complainant, and the East Tennessee & Ga. R. R. Co. are defendants (3 cases).

And the said witness, being of lawful age and sound mind, and being by me first duly cautioned and sworn, deposed as follows. Said deposition 3 was taken by consent of counsel for the complainants and the defendants, and in their presence, and by me reduced to writing in their presence, and in the presence of the witness.

Said JOHN S. CLAYBROOKE, being sworn, deposes as follows:

I was president of the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad from 1852 to 1857, and then from 1859 to 1866; during the first period of my presidency, in June or 4 July, 1854, my company received by me from the State of Tennessee 300 bonds of the State, as a loan

5 to the company, under the Act of February 11, 1852, and the amendments thereto, each bond for $1,000, with coupons for the semi-annual interest attached thereto.

These bonds were sold by an agent of the company in New York, under my instructions, and were sold at par, and the proceeds were used in strict accordance with the requirements of the Statute.

I sold some of the bonds issued to my company
6 by the State to Mr. Carter, and also to the Bank of Tennessee, at par. I never instructed or represented to the agent who sold these bonds in New York that there was any lien on the property of the railroad company in favor of the holders of the bonds, but I instructed him to sell them, and the bonds I also sold. I sold them as straight Tennessee bonds. I hereto attach my report of 1855 to the stockholders of my company of the financial operations of 1854 as "Exhibit A" to this, my deposition, and 7 adopt its statements as true.

I am acquainted with the methods of making the semi-annual interest payments on the amount of bonds loaned to us by the State.

We paid in money into the Treasury of the State or the Bank of Tennessee the amount of interest due from us to the State, and we never were required or attempted to adopt any system whereby to secure the applications of these payments to the coupons attached to the bonds loaned to our com-8 pany.

But whenever we retained bonds issued to us by the State beyond the time when the coupons fell due, we paid this over-due interest by clipping off the coupons and returning them to the State. These were the only instances that we ever attempted to pay the identical coupons of the bonds issued to our company.

I know that we did pay our sinking fund before the war, and we paid it in other bonds than those issued to us, and we never attempted to pay in the identical bonds issued to us by the State; there was no such requirement. We kept a description of the bonds which we paid into the sinking fund, but we did not keep the numbers of the bonds issued to us. We never adopted any system to classify or identify the bonds issued to us by the State for any purpose. 9

During the time I was president, although we did not pay our interest during the war, no holder of the bonds issued to us ever presented an over-due coupon on any of such bonds to me, or any other agent of the company, and demanded payment of the same. 10

On cross-examination, the witness testified:

That the receipt he gave did contain the numbers of the bonds issued to him, a copy of which is hereto attached and marked as "Exhibit B." 11

I live near Triune, Williamson County. I am not a stockholder in the Decatur Railroad Company. I am not a director of the road, but was a director up to 1870, or until it was leased to the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co.

I never made any payments of interest on the State bonds myself. They were made by the treasurer, Frank Hardeman. They were paid into the Bank of Tennessee is my recollection. I expect that the treasurer's books are in the hands of Seay. 12

Whenever the treasurer of our company notified me that the interest was about due I raised the money. Sometimes had to borrow it.

Of all the bonds issued by the State to the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad Company, I sold myself the following amounts: I sold about twenty thousand dollars of said bonds to the Bank of Ten-

13 nessee, at Nashville, and about twenty-five thousand dollars of said bonds to Daniel F. Carter, a citizen and resident of Nashville, Tenn. These are all of the said bonds I sold myself. These were the only sale of said bonds made in Tennessee that I know of. The rest of the bonds were deposited in the Manhattan Bank, in New York. Mr. Morrison, the cashier of the Manhattan Bank, acted as agent of my company in disposing of the bonds deposited in said bank. I do not know that he made any 14 representations concerning the bonds deposited in said bank. One hundred and forty-three of the 300 bonds issued by the State to the Tennessee & Alabama
R. R. Co., as stated as above, were reserved by the company to pay a debt due Thompson & Forman for iron rails, manufactured and sold by them to the company. Said firm was doing business in England; and 140 of the 143 bonds were paid to said firm in satisfaction of their debt, at par, some time in 1855. On the bonds so held by the company 15 and not disposed of immediately, the interest was paid by cutting the coupons from each bond fifteen days before said coupons were due. They were cut off by me and handed to our treasurer, who paid them into the Bank of Tennessee.

I was appointed by the Governor as agent for the State in disposing of the bonds issued by the State to the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad Company, but never acted as such agent.

In January, 1855, there was a meeting held in the 16 City of Nashville, of presidents and other officers of the railroad companies in Tennessee, and of companies whose roads lay partly in Tennessee and partly in adjoining States, which were entitled to receive Tennessee State bonds under the Internal Improvement laws of the State.

In this meeting it was determined to appoint three gentlemen, who were to act as agents of the railroad companies entitled to receive Tennessee 17

State bonds under the Internal Improvement Acts.
The gentlemen so designated were myself, Campbell Wallace, then President of the East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad Company, and Sidney Smith, President of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company.

These last mentioned gentlemen were also to be appointed and commissioned by the Governor of the State as State agents to dispose of the State bonds under the provisions of the Internal Improvement Acts. I know that the Tennessee & Alabama Rail- 18 road Company ratified the selection of these gentlemen for the above purpose, and gave them a written power of attorney to act as agents for said company, in disposing of said bonds. And I am satisfied that the majority of the railroad companies in the State also ratified said arrangement and appointed said gentlemen as their agents.

The Governor of the State afterwards appointed and commissioned these three gentlemen as State agents, in accordance with arrangement made at 19 Nashville. Mr. Wallace declined to act as agent under either appointment, but Mr. Smith and I did accept the appointments. It was our intention to go to Europe to carry out the objects of our appointment.

Mr. Smith did go to England. I went to New York with the intention of joining him in England, but found it impossible to leave home, and therefore the scheme fell through entirely, and no action was taken in the matter. 20

Sidney Smith is dead, and Campbell Wallace now lives in Atlanta, Georgia, as I am informed.

Frank Hardeman, the former treasurer of the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company is dead.

In the report made by me as president of the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad Company in 1856

21 to the stockholders, the following language was used by me:

> " In addition to the reasons above suggested in de> " laying and not pushing forward the enterprise as > " rapidly as we would desire, we might mention
> " the great stringency which has prevailed for sev> " eral years in the monetary affairs of the country,
> " which has been especially so in regard to foreign > " capital, upon which we are more or less depend-> 22 " ent in finding sale for State bonds and other rail> " road securities."

Also, on page 10 of the same report, the following language is used:

> " The war between Prussia and Allied Powers of > " England and France having ceased, and peace be> " ing restored, we may look forward as a conse> " quence to a healthier condition of monetary af> " fairs, and a larger amount of foreign capital seek-> 23 " ing investment in American securities, and there-
> " by we will meet with a more ready sale for State
> " bonds, and other railroad securities."

In the report of Frank Hardeman, treasurer of the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company, to the stockholders, dated August 6th, 1855, under the head of disbursements is the following item:

"State Coupons	$4,770 00"

24 In the treasurer's report dated July 26th, 1856, under the head of "Disbursements" is the following item:

" State Bond Interest....	$22,972 50"
" Davidson Bonds........	549 48"

The county of Davidson took stock in the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company to the amount of $200,000.00, for which the county issued its bonds, payable to and endorsed by the railroad company, upon which bonds the railroad company was liable for the payment of the principal and interest, on failure of Davidson County to pay at maturity, and upon notice to the company. 25

We never received any such notice.

In the report of said treasurer of the company to the stockholders dated July 31st, 1857, under the head of

"TREASURER. 26

" Dr.		Cr.
	" By Cash, Davidson Bonds,	$ 918 50
	" " State Bonds....	18,180 00

During the year 1856, the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company issued about $200,000 of its own bonds, with coupons attached for interest, to secure which the income of the road was pledged, after paying all expenses and prior incumbrances."

In the treasurer's report to the stockholders dated June 30th, 1858, under the head of "Disbursements" are the following items: 27

" Cash paid State Coupons..........	$20,758 50
" Company "	1,645 41

Below this table are the following items:

" Bonded Debt—State Bonds.....	$771,000 00
" Company "	46,000 00

When the 43 State bonds now due to the company, but not issued, are received, the bonded debt will be as follows: 28

State Bonds received...............	$771,000 00
" " not "	43,000 00
Company Bonds....	46,000 00
	$860,000 00

29 In the President's report to the stockholders in 1859 is the following:

"Bonded Debt.

"Tennessee 6 per cent. Coupon Bonds,	$846,000.00
"Tennessee and Alabama Railroad "Bonds endorsed by the State.	14,000.00
Total	$860,000.00

30 In the Treasurer's report of 1860 is the following:

" Dr.	Treasurer.	Cr.
"	State Coupons	$51,300.12
"	Coupon Co. Bonds	424.29."

The Tennessee and Alabama Railroad was finished during the year 1860.

The first payment made by the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company on its Sinking Fund 31 account was in 1859, at which time it paid $6,000 to the Sinking Fund Commissioners. The reports of the treasurer of the company show that no payment by said company on the Sinking Fund account due on the 1st of January, 1860.

The treasurer's report of the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company, made in June, 1861, for the twelve months previous contains the following:

" Statement.

32 "Of the Treasury of the East Tennessee and Ala"bama Railroad Company for the year ending June "30th, 1861.

	By cash Sinking Fund	$3,600.00

There were no reports made by the President or other officers of the company after 1861, until after 33 the war. The above amounts of $6,000 and $3.600 are the only payments shown by the reports of the treasurer of the company to have been made by said company on the Sinking Fund account.

I make this last statement from an examination of the reports of treasurer from the year 1853 up to and including the report for the year ending June 30th, 1861, with the exception of the report of 1854, which I have not examined, but the report of 1862, which is not before me, may include all the Sinking 34 Fund due the State anterior to that period.

In the treasurer's report, dated August 6th, 1866, here exhibited to me is the following:

"In March, 1863, the safes of the company were broken open and some of the books and papers mutilated and destroyed; the loss to the company by the books and papers and notes will be inconsiderable, as they can be restored by diligence and labor in time for the purpose of the 35 company; a small amount of money and two (2) bonds, one State and one Davidson County bond, and some loose coupons were also taken from the safes. The numbers were also lost so, that there are no chances to recover these." The numbers were lost with the bonds and coupons themselves.

I don't suppose that he kept any account of the numbers; I certainly never instructed him to do so. R. H. Bradley, Secretary of the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad Company for some years before the 36 war, is now living at Franklin, Tennessee.

Re-examination:

The bonds that were loaned to my company by the State were payable to bearer, and were not marked or endorsed in my name nor in the name of my company so as to indicate that they had been 37 loaned to the company, but they were issued and passed to us as bank notes are. Many of the bonds issued to us we did not sell immediately, but retained them longer than the period of the falling due of the first coupons.

The witness being asked the following question: "Whether the language quoted in your answer to "cross examination from your report of 1856, and "which language is as follows; 'State bonds "'and other railroad securities.' Now, did you 38 "mean by this expression to designate or characterize State bonds as railroad securities?"

> (Complainant by counsel excepts to the foregoing question, because it seeks to elicit from the witness an answer which will attempt to construe the language used. This is a matter for the Court and not the witness.
> S. Watson, sol'r for compl't.)

The witness answers as follows: I meant to des-39 ignate the State bonds as entirely distinct and different from the railroad securities, by which latter term I meant to include the company bonds and Davidson County bonds that were a subscription to the road.

I am neither a stockholder nor director in the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company, but I am an original stockholder and holder of 10 shares in the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad Company. I understand the 10 shares have been multiplied.

40 The items quoted in the cross-examination from the Trustees' report of 1865, under the head of "Disbursements," as follows:

State coupons .... $4,770.00.

I do not know what it means, unless that it designates the amount of the interest paid to the State. I know that we never did pay the coupons attached to the identical bonds issued to us, except in the instances I have already mentioned, where we held the bonds past the time or to the time when a coupon fell due; then we clipped them off and paid them to the Bank of Tennessee on account of our interest. I know that I did not, and none of the company's officers ever did by my instructions, attempt to hunt up and pay the coupons attached to the identical bonds issued to our company in the hands of others. The two following items quoted in the cross-examination from the Treasurer's report of 1856 and 1857, viz.: 41 42

DISBURSEMENTS.

Paid to Davidson Bonds	$549.48
By cash	918.50

These two items cannot designate payments by our company on Davidson County bonds as debtors, for we never did pay any Davidson County Bond in the place of that county. These two items must mean some disbursements or expense on account of these bonds or some other purpose that I don't know. 43

The two items in the reports of the Treasurer for 1856-57, headed "Disbursement," viz.:

Paid to State bond interest..	$22,972.00
By cash State bonds........	18,180.00

are intended to designate the interest paid in 1856-1857 to the Bank of Tennessee as the agent of the State. 44

I mean by saying it was the agent of the State, that it was the agent of the State to receive the interest on the State bonds due from the company to the State, and as the agent of the State it paid her coupons both here and in New York whenever they fell due.

45 Re-cross examination:

When the company held bank notes it was not necessary to use any exertion to dispose of them, because they passed from hand to hand as money.

The resemblance between a bank-note and a Tennessee State bond is that both were payable bearer, and pass by delivery without endorsement and are both numbered.

It was no part of my duty as President of the Company to receive or pay out the funds of the company 46 unless specially instructed by the Board of Directors. In making the explanations I have made in the re-examinations in regard to the items in the Treasurer's report, I do not speak from my own personal knowledge of the transactions, but have given my opinion based upon my knowledge of the general conduct of the affairs of the company and its course of business.

47 (Complainant excepts to all that part of this deposition which gives the witness' opinion in regard to the items in the Treasurer's reports, because it is not the best evidence, and the attempted explanations are based not on personal knowledge, but on inferences drawn by the witness from other facts.

S. WATSON,
Solicitor for Compl'ts.)

The income bonds of the Tennessee & Alabama 48 Railroad Company mentioned in the cross-examination, were sold generally by the Treasurer to the citizens of Williamson and adjoining counties. The county bonds issued to the company for stock were principally sold at home; only a few were sold abroad.

Re-examination:

When in my explanations on the re-examination in chief I state that I know that my company did not 49 pay any Davidson county bonds as debtor in lieu of the county, the fact is stated on my personal knowledge and not as an opinion.

Again, when I state in the re-examination in chief as to the items "State bond interest $22,972.00, By cash State bonds $18,180.00," I state that these items represent interest paid to the State on the amount of bonds lent to us by the State, and do not represent interest paid to the holders of coupons attached to the bonds issued to us, for I can state 50 emphatically that though I presided over the meetings of the board of directors for some ten or twelve years, I never heard it even suggested that it was our duty to pay on the identical bonds issued to our company.

Counsel for the complainants desires the following questions to be asked the witness:

Q. Did you pay the item mentioned in the Treasurer's report of 1855 under the head, "State cou- 51 pons, $4,470.00," or did you pay the amount in the item of "State Bonds interest, $22,972.50?" If so, to whom were the payments made?

A. I did not do it in person. The payments were made to the Bank of Tennessee.

Q. Did you see the payments made?

A. I do not remember to have seen it paid, though I was sometimes with the Treasurer when the payments were made.

3 Q. When you state in the re-examination that 52 these payments were made to the State; do you not mean that they were made to the Bank of Tennessee?

A. I mean that they were made to the Bank of Tennessee as the agent of the State.

And further this deponent saith not.

JOHN S. CLAYBROOKE.

53 After the attorney for the plaintiff had left my office, the said J. S. Claybrooke made the following statement, viz.: "Our company was authorized by act of the Legislature to receive endorsement and guarantee of the State on our own bonds, but the company had it changed so as to make the aid of the State to the company straight Tennessee bonds, and this was done for the reason that the straight Tennessee bonds commanded a better price in the market than bonds of the company endorsed and 54 guaranteed by the State." Which said statement by agreement of counsel for parties plaintiff and defendants may be added to and made a part of this deposition above deposed to.

EXHIBIT TO DEPOSITION OF JOHN S. CLAYBROOKE. 65

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
STATE OF TENNESSEE.

At a meeting of the Board of the Directors of the Railroad Company, held at the office of the Company in on day of 1855, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted, viz.: 66

Whereas, The General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, by act passed the 11th day of February, 1852, entitled, "An Act to establish a system of Internal Improvements in this State," and by an amendatory Act, passed the 8th day of February, 1854, authorized the Governor of said State to issue bonds to various railroad companies, after they had organized and complied with certain conditions specified in said Act and amendments, the proceeds of said bonds being intended for the purchase of 67 iron rails and equipments. And

Whereas, It is very desirable that a permanent value shall be maintained for these securities, and to effect this object a plan has been suggested of having union and concert of action between the organized companies included in said Acts, to whom bonds have been or may be issued, by placing all of said bonds, as received, in one and the same channel of negotiation, to consist of two or more 68 Houses, of first character for financial power and influence, thereby, not only depreciation below their par value, but enabling the negotiating bankers and iron manufacturers to carry their market value permanently above par, and thus secure to this Company a greater amount of revenue from said bonds, and said bankers and iron manufactur-

69 ers more fully in making advances of money, rails and equipments, upon the most reasonable terms, from time to time, in anticipation of higher rates for said bonds; and whilst the several companies may be preparing successive sections of their roads for the rails, and otherwise complying in good faith with the conditions of the above-mentioned Acts.
Therefore, for the consummation of said plan, and to secure to this Company the benefits to result therefrom

70 Be it Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Railroad Company (one of the roads specified in said Internal Improvement Acts), that John S. Claybrooke, President of the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad Company, Sidney
Smith, President of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company, and Campbell Wallace,
President of the East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad Company, are hereby constituted and appointed 71 the lawful attorneys of this company (either two of their number acting and concurring), with full power and authority to enter into such agreements and covenants with bankers or iron manufacturers, as may be necessary to effect the objects set forth in the foregoing preamble and these resolutions, resolution, and for that purpose to go to New York, England, or elsewhere, as the joint agents of this company, and other railroad companies of the State of Tennessee, that act with this company in the premises.

72 Be it further resolved, That the earliest practicable arrangement of this matter by the said attorneys is desired by this company, to whom said attorneys will make a report of their doings, accompanied by copies of all agreements entered into by them on the subject of their agency.

Be it further resolved, That on receipt of said report and agreements, all bonds of the State of Tennessee then held, or that may hereafter be received 73

by their company from the State, shall be placed in the one channel of negotiation, as may be agreed for and as prescribed by said attorneys.

And be it further resolved, That when the joint channel of negotiation shall have been fully organized and established by agreements and covenants, as herein contemplated, the joint agency hereby created therefor shall cease and determine; and this company shall thereafter conduct its business in said channel, in accordance with such agreements 74 and covenants, by its own officers, independently of all other companies.

In witness whereof, the President and Secretary of this Company have hereunto set their names and attached the Company's seal, this day of 1855.

Deposition of R. C. Jackson. 1

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, }
Eastern District of Tennessee, } ss.:

Be it remembered, that, on the 30th day of August, 1879, before me, Clerk of the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Tennessee, at my office, in the city of Knoxville, within said district and the Sixth Circuit, was produced, and personally came, R. C. JACKSON, witness on the 2 part and behalf of the defendants in a certain suit now depending and undetermined in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Tennessee, wherein Calvin Amory Stevens et al., on behalf of the holders of bonds issued to the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Company, Complainant, and the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Company and the East Tennessee & Virginia & Ga. R. R. Company, Defendant, to depose and the truth to say in said suit; and, thereupon, the said R. C. JACKSON, being of lawful age and sound mind, being by me first duly cautioned and sworn to testify 3 the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, touching the matters in controversy in said suit, did answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories propounded to him, depose and say as follows:

I am 69 years of age, will be 70 next month, and I live in Knox County, in the suburbs of Knoxville; have been living here between nine and ten years; previous to that time I lived forty-two years in Athens, McMinn Co., Tennessee, and previous to 4 that time in Knox County, Tenn.

5 I am banking at present; have been since 1872—
December; have been president, and am now cashier, of the East Tenn. National Bank; I was connected with the East Tenn. & Ga. Railroad from February or March, 1849—first, as secy. and treasurer, then as secy, and treasurer and supt. of transportation, then as general supt.—until Sept. or Oct., 1863. In the summer or fall of 1875, when the road was surrendered to the government, I was made vice-president;
some time after, the time I do not exactly 6 remember, I was made general supt. of the E. T. & Ga. and E. T. & Va. Railroad Companies; after the consolidation of these two roads, which happened prior to 1870, I acted as general superintendent until the fall of 1871. As agent of the railroad company
I did receive bonds of the State loaned to the E. T. & Georgia R. R. Company, for building the Chattanooga and Cleveland branch.

This occurred in 1858 or 1859. I sold State bonds lent to this company frequently from 1853 to 1859, 7 and probably to 1860. I never sold any under par, and do not recollect of ever selling any at a premium, unless it was upon getting money advanced without interest upon a promise to deliver bonds to the amount of the loans at fixed future date, which I did in one or two instances which I recollect, and probably several. In selling such bonds I represented them as straight Tennessee State bonds, resting on the faith and credit of the State alone for their payment, and I never said or represented 8 that there was any statutory lien on the property of the railroad in favor of the holder or to secure the bonds. No purchaser ever claimed or intimated to me that any other person was liable for the redemption of the bonds but the State. All the bonds I sold I negotiated or sold in person, and not through a broker or banker. Within my knowledge, in negotiating the bonds, no representations were 9 made by the company or any of their authorized agents to the effect that the bonds were liens upon the road, in favor of the holders of the bonds, and I never heard of such a thing until within the last two or three years.

All the State bonds I received during the years 1858 and 1859, all that I sold as above stated from 1853 to 1859 or 1860 were coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, payable to blank or bearer. No system of marking or endorsing these bonds was 10 adopted or resorted to by me or the company, as I know of, as a means of identifying these bonds as the bonds loaned by the State to the company. My recollection of our method of keeping the account is that when we disposed of a State of Tennessee bond we credited State bonds and charged cash. I have no recollection of ever seeing any difference in the quotation between Tennessee State bonds previous to the war, and I looked to the quotations when I was selling State bonds (I mean Ten- 11 nessee six per cent. State bonds—the five per cents. were, of course, a little lower) in price. Since the war I have not particularly noticed the price of State bonds, but think probably there is a difference between what are called the old and new series. When I speak of quotation, I mean the New York quotations of market price. My recollection is that the interest account with the State was kept with the general interest account, and showed only the amount of interest due the State 12 semi-annually and its payment. We were required to pay the interest fifteen days before the first of January and the first of July of each year; we uniformly paid it to the Bank of Tennessee as the fiscal agent of the State, and the bank gave us a receipt each time as and for the interest so paid to the 13 State. We usually paid the interest in currency; ssmetimes we paid it in currency and coupons. I mean in any coupons then due or overdue of any six per cent. bonds of the State of Tennessee.

We never were required by the State authorities to limit ourselves to, or pay in coupons of, the identical bonds issued to our company, and never attempted to do so, nor to keep any accounts looking to that purpose. So too as to the sinking fund, we were never required to pay, and never made examination 14 as to whether or not we were paying, in the identical State bonds issued to our company, or any other State bonds. In paying interest and Sinking Fund on endorsed bonds we paid the coupons and the bonds issued by the company and endorsed by the State. I never was present but once when the interest was paid to the bank, and this was in Chattanooga in 1862 or 1863; we were careful to ascertain that the bank's accounts showed the same amount of bonds as our books showed, so as 15 to show the true amount of interest due from our Company to the State; and we paid that amount in money, or in money and coupons as the interest due from the Company to the State on account of the debt due for the bonds loaned the Company by the State. When I said that the State would receive coupons due or past due, I meant to include the coupons which would fall due on the first days of January and July, we paying in December and June previous. In paying the interest we made no attempt 16 to designate to the bank that the interest so paid should be applied to the payment of any coupons, or applied in any way. We were directed to make our payment of interest to "The Bank of Tennessee," and when we got our receipt from the bank for the interest paid, we considered we had done everything necessary to be done. Not to my knowledge, and I think I would have known of 17 it if it were done, did either of the companies with which I was connected appoint anyone in Nashville, New York, Philadelphia or elsewhere to pay the identical coupons attached to the bonds issued to these companies by the State. The East Tennessee and Georgia R. R. Company paid its last interest in July, 1863, or the year before or after, and discontinued payment for several years, and neither during that period or since have I ever heard or known of any holder of the coupons attached to the 18

bonds issued to this company, presenting and demanding payment of said coupons of said company. I am a director and stockholder of the E. T., Va. & Ga. R. R. Company, and in no other way connected with it.

The amount of my stock in the said E. T., Va. & Ga. R. R. Company is $10,000 or $11,000, and I have no other interest in it.

Complainants, by their solicitor, except to the 19 whole of the foregoing deposition upon the ground that the questions and answers are wholly irrelevant to the issues raised by the pleadings, and are incompetent.

Deposition of John J. Craig. 1

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, } ss:
Eastern District of Tennessee, }

Be it remembered, that on the 30th day of August, 1879, before me, Clerk of the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Tennessee, at my office in the city of Knoxville, within said District, in the Sixth Circuit, was produced and personally came John J. Craig, witness on the part 2 and behalf of the defendants, in a certain suit now depending and undetermined in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Tennessee, wherein Calvin Amory Stevens et al., on behalf of the holders of bonds issued to the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, are complainants, and the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, and the East Tenn., Va. & Ga. Railroad Company are defendants, to depose and the truth to say in said suit.

And thereupon the said John J. Craig, being of lawful age and sound mind, being by me first cau 3 tioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, touching the matters in controversy in said suit, did, in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories propounded to him, depose and say as follows:

I reside at Canton, Miss., and am here temporarily until I can return in safety; I reside about 200 miles from Memphis, Tenn., and about 400 miles from Knoxville, Tenn.

4 I resided in New York City from 1865 to 1868, and from 1868 to 1877 in Knoxville, Tenn., and from

5 1877 to 1879 in Miss.; I was a banker most of the time when in any business; my house of Craig, Morton & Co., of New York, acted as agents of the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap & Charleston Railway Company during the years of 1866 and 1867—the time may have embraced from 1865 to the latter part of 1868—and did negotiate the sale of State bonds issued to them by the State. As to the amount of said bonds so sold and negotiated by us, I do not think it was less than one hundred thousand dollars
6 nor more than three hundred thousand dollars. The time of selling said bonds was between the years 1865 and the latter part of 1868, as stated above, and the place of sale was Wall street, New York City. I am confident we sold said bonds at not less than 60 cents nor more than 80 cents; they were coupon bonds of the State, payable to bearer; I sold them as straight Tennessee State bonds, and did not represent them as having any lien on any railroad in favor of the bondholders. The question
7 wes never mooted as to their being issued to any railroad at all. If it had been believed or represented that there was additional security of any kind it would probably have increased the value of the bonds, but they were sold wholly as State bonds, and their value rested wholly upon the faith of the State in paying them.

I resided in Knoxville about 20 years prior to 1865, and up to that date I was cashier of the Union Bank at Knoxville from the year 1853 to the close 8 of the war. During the time I served as such cashier my opportunities for knowing and learning the value of the bonds were good, as I often had occasion, both in my official and individual capacity, to handle the different series of State bonds, sometimes holding them as collateral for money loaned, and sometimes purchasing them for myself and friends as investments. During the period I do not 9 recollect of ever having heard of such bonds having any mortgage lien on the railroads in favor of the bondholders. They were sold as straight State bonds. Prior to the war I do not think there was any difference in the market price or value of bonds belonging to the different series of State bonds issued. Since the war there has been a difference in the market price or value of old and new State bonds. By the old bonds I mean or understand those bonds issued previous to the war, and by the 10

new bonds those issued since the war, commencing with Brownlow's administration, but what the difference in price was I do not know; it varied from one to two per cent. The old bonds included the "Hermitage Bonds," "Capital Building Bonds," "Turnpike Stock Bonds," and also the bonds issued to the railroad previous to the war. I have not at this time any connection with or interest in the various railroads of the State, their stocks or securities. 11

The amount of bonds sold by us on account of the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston Railroad Company amounted, as before stated, to not less than one hundred thousand dollars, and may have been as much as five hundred thousand dollars, but it is a matter purely of personal recollection, and therefore not accurate.

Complainants by their solicitor except to the whole of the foregoing deposition, upon the ground 12 that the questions and answers are wholly irrelevant to the issues raised by the pleadings.

The deposition of MAJOR CAMPBELL WALLACE, President of the Merchants' Bank of Atlanta, taken on behalf of the defendants, at the Merchants' Bank in Atlanta, I. C. D. Woodson, a notary public, for the County of Fulton, State of Georgia, and in the presence of W. Y. C. Humes, solicitor of the defendant, on the 2d day of October, 1879.

16 The said witness CAMPBELL WALLACE, being first duly sworn, deposes and says: My name is Campbell Wallace; my age is seventy-three years; I am a resident citizen of the State of Georgia, and have been for fourteen years last past. I am now and have been for more than six years the President of the Merchants' Bank of Atlanta, actively employed in the duties of that office. I have no connection official or other, with any of the railroad companies 17 of Tennessee, nor am I at all interested in any of their stock or securities, bonds or assets, nor any bonds issued by any of them or by the State of Tennessee for any purpose, except ten shares of stock of the Knoxville and Ohio Railroad Company. Nor am I interested in any, the smallest degree, in the issue of any of these suits. I was a citizen and resident of East Tennessee all my life until my removal to Georgia in 1865. I was a director in the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad 18 Company prior to and up to 1853, when I was elected its President, and from 1853 to July, 1865, gave my time and attention almost entirely to the duties of that office, and the interest of that road. I was its chief executive officer, and financial agent. Under my direction and immediate control all its fiscal operations, transactions and contracts were made, consummated, and performed, from 1853 to 1865. I personally know that the State of Tennessee did lend its endorsement and guarantee on and 19 to the bonds of several railroad companies, including bonds of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company and of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad. And these company bonds were secured by first liens and mortgages on the railroad companies issuing them in addition to the endorsement and guarantee of the State. However, the 150 bonds of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, issued by that company with 20

the endorsement and guarantee of the State to aid in the construction of the Chattanooga Branch of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Company were secured by a first mortgage on the said Chattanooga Branch These bonds of various companies, though secured by the endorsement and guarantee of the State, as well as by first liens and mortgages

21 on the property of the roads issuing them, did not sell for as high prices as straight Tennessee State bonds bearing the same rate of interest and for whatever purpose issued, whether for railroads or purely State purposes.

Before I was elected President, the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Company had received from the State of Tennessee State bonds payable to bearer, with coupons attached, payable semi-annually, to the amount of $350,000 as a loan. After I 22 became its President, and up to July, 1861, the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Company received in addition to the above, as a State loan bonds to the amount of $812,000, of the same character and description as the above under the general Internal Improvement Act of February 11th, 1852, Ch. 151, and the Acts amendatory thereof; so that our whole debt to the State for six per cent. State bonds lent to us amounted on the 30th of June, 1860 to, and appears in the report of that date as 23 follows:

State loan, . . .	$1,162,000

The account as to Company bonds of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Co., endorsed by the State is set down:

Endorsed bonds, . . .	$150,000

In our entire dealings with the State bonds issued to our road, we regarded and treated them as the obligations of the State of Tennessee alone, and we treated, construed, and regarded our obligation 24 (arising from the loan of said State bonds to us by the State), as a debt due from the railroad company to the State alone for the amount of the bonds so lent to the company, at their nominal or face value, and they were the equivalent of money for State of Tennessee six per cent. bonds were then worth and selling at par, as the State had never defaulted in the payment of the interest on her bonds at maturity. The $812,000 of State six per cent. coupon 25 bonds payable to bearer issued to said Company during my Presidency were disposed of under my direction by the Treasurer, R. C. Jackson, and by me. They were sold as required by the law, and their proceeds applied strictly in accordance with its provisions. I sold them principally in Tennessee.

I never thought of, nor represented, nor directed any one to represent to any buyer that the payment of the bonds to the holder was secured by any obligation of the company or by any lien on the 26 property of the company in favor of the bondholders;
I did not think so myself, and never heard it suggested or claimed by any one during the period we were receiving and selling them, nor did I ever hear of such a claim by any one until within the last two years. When we received the several instalments of these State bonds from the State as loans, no State officer then or at any other time instructed, directed or requested us to adopt any system or mode of identification, marking, 27 or noting the particular bonds issued to us, nor even to preserve the numbers, and we did not ourselves adopt any such system or mode, but we simply credited to "State loan" the amount issued at the time, and on sale of them charged to cash. In paying our semi-annual interest to the State on the amount of her loan to us we did not attempt to have the payments so made applied to the particular coupons attached to the bonds issued to us; nor did we attempt to hunt up said coupons to 28 pay them ourselves; nor did we ever entertain the idea that any holder of State bonds was a creditor of the company. On the 15th of December, and on the 15th of June of each year, we paid the semi-annual installment of interest due to the State from our company on the amount of bonds previously loaned to our company by the State. We paid this

29 interest to the Bank of Tennessee, as the general fiscal agent of the State, and we paid it indiscriminately in money, or any six per cent. coupons from any State bonds, whether issued to railroads or for any purely State purpose. Having paid our interest to the State, and received the receipt for it from the bank, we felt no further concern whether the State paid her coupons when they matured fifteen days afterwards on the bonds issued to us or not; and we never sought or attempted to get the coupons
30 attached to the bonds issued to our company, nor could we have identified them. But as to the bonds of our company endorsed by the State we did seek and did pay the coupons on them as our own liability; they amounted to $150,000.00 as at first issued, and were issued under a special act for the benefit of our branch road from Cleveland to Chattanooga. In keeping the account and paying the interest due from our company for the amount of bonds lent by the State to our company, we re-
31 garded and treated it as interest due to the State from our company on the amount of loan, and not as interest due from the company to the holders of the bonds issued to our company.

If I had regarded or thought our company was liable to the holders of the coupons and bonds of the State lent to us, we would certainly, for our own protection, have pursued the same course as to them, both in regard to the interest coupons and the bonds, that we did pursue in regard to our 32 bonds endorsed by the State.

As to these latter bonds, we carefully and regularly, every six months, paid the interest coupons attached to them as our primary obligations; and we saw to it that the State authorities, the Sinking Fund Commissioners, applied each annual payment to the extinguishment of our own bonds endorsed by the State. We bought any six per cent. coupons of State bonds which were offered to us, and 33 took them sometimes to accommodate our friends giving them the money for them; and coupons so bought, and taken, we used to pay our interest to the State, no matter from what State bonds they were taken, so they were from Tennessee six per cent. bonds, and so we satisfied the State authorities that we got them before or on the 15th day of December or 15th day of June, the dates of our payments. We paid our interest promptly and regularly to the State every six months before the 34 war, and up to January 1st, 1863; but we afterwards fell behind in paying our interest to the State as follows, as I reported to the stockholders:

"The interest on State loan was paid up to 1st of January, 1863, and the balance of $155,550.00 was not paid to the State, when it fell due in 1863, 1864, and to 1st of July, 1865.

Although the State defaulted in the payment of all her interest coupons on all her bonds during the war, and although this unpaid interest of our 35 company to the State, $155,550.00, remained unpaid for several years, yet no holders of the coupons, or of any interest coupon attached to the bonds issued to our said company ever presented such coupons or coupon to our company for payment, or ever demanded or claimed payment of such coupons or coupon from our company within my knowledge or information. In making the successive annual payments to the State of the sums produced by setting apart the percentum on the amount of bonds 36 issued to our company, as required by the 7th section of the Act of February 11th, 1852, ch. 151, and also under the amendments thereto, we construed and treated them, and had them receipted for by the State officials as credits on our company's debt to the State for the State loan, and as payments in absolute discharge of that much of that indebted-

37 ness. The mode of the first act was to raise the sinking fund by preserving the State bonds after they had been assigned to the Governor and paid into the Treasury of the State by the company, and reinvesting the interest accruing on them in other State bonds in order to accumulate before the State bonds fell due a fund for the State sufficient to enable her to pay her bonds. This clause of the first act contemplated that, although these annual installments were absolute payments by the company 38 on their debt to the State, and receipted for as such when made, yet the company should continue to pay to the State the interest on the amount of bonds originally loaned to it, and these annual payments, though absolute when made, were to be credited as of the date when they and their accumulations should equal the debt due from the company to the State for the amount of State bonds lent to the company.

Seeing the management of this scheme, I detected 39 that it was liable to confusion in the keeping of the accounts at Nashville of the payments of bonds and reinvestment of interests on bonds paid in by so many companies—some twenty to twenty-five; and more especially as these matters were managed by political appointees, changed every two years with the Governor's election, and not by business men selected and retained for their financial skill. By this confusion we were in peril of losing some of our credits for bonds paid in and thus have to pay again 40 the credit so lost. For these reasons I, as President of the East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad Company, solicited and induced the Legislature, having John Marshall, as President of the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad Company, to help me, to increase the annual payments required to sums adequate to liquidate
the debts of the several companies to the State, before the State bonds should fall due, without the compeer mode above set forth, of keeping the 41

bonds, setting aside the accruing interest, reinvesting it, and thus accumulating the fund for the State.

The Legislature did increase the annual payments of percentage to 2½ per centum on the amount of bonds loaned to the respective companies, and did require the bonds in which these annual bonds were to be made to be cancelled when paid in, instead of being kept, and did allow the payments to be credited as of the dates they were actually made 42 instead of as of the date the accumulated fund should equal the Company's debt for the amount of State bonds loaned to it. The Legislature very willingly and readily adopted this measure because it increased the amount of State bonds annually to be paid by all the railroad companies to the State, and would thus accomplish the purpose of the original act of retiring by or before the maturity of the bonds as many of them as the State had issued to railroad companies. 43

The officers of some of the railroad companies were opposed to this increase of annual payments; but I, as President of the East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad Company, not only solicited and favored its adoption, but after its adoption I increased our payments beyond the requirements of the law. As evidence of this, I here, as part of my deposition, quote the following brief and truthful report on this subject made by me to the stockholders on the 3d of September, 1862, viz: 44

"The Internal Improvement law requires 2½ per cent. to be paid annually on your funded debt, which is ample to liquidate your entire indebtedness to the State before it matures.

In consequence of the distracted condition of the country. the Legislature suspended the payment of this sinking fund, but we have thought it prudent

45 and to your interest to continue to pay not only the 2½ per cent., but as much more as possible, and your company are now some three years in advance of any legitimate call that can be made for payment of sinking fund. Your funded debt at present stands as follows :

Original State loans		$1,162,000
Paid and cancelled		125,000
		$1,037,000
46 Bonds endorsed by State	$150,000
Paid and cancelled	35,000
	$115,000
Mortgage bonds		$ 800,000
Paid and cancelled		154,000
		$ 646,000
Total		$1,798,000."

47

The $800,000.00 of mortgage bonds were bonds of the company, with which the State had nothing to do.

I herewith file as exhibits to my deposition, copies of the receipts of the State officers for the $125,000.00 paid to the State in its six per cent bonds on the State loan to our company.

It will be observed that the $14,000.00 and $2,000.00 were paid in prior to 1860, and these re-48 ceipts were acknowledgments of the cancellation of the bonds, under the Act of 1859-60, Ch. 90, previously paid in. The receipts, as to the endorsed bonds, show that we did not attempt to pay these endorsed bond debts in any but the identical endorsed bonds ; while the State loan we paid in any six per cent. bonds of the State without reference to what they were issued for, whether for railroads or any purely State purpose. The Exhibits are marked Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6. 49

The Government of the United States, by its military authorities, and for military purposes, occupied and operated the road for about three years during the war, to the exclusion of the company, its agents and officers, and without compensation to the company, so far as I know. During the war the interest falling due, and unpaid by the company on its debt to the State for the State loan, on its bonds endorsed by the State, and on the 50 other outstanding bonds of the company, accumulated to the amounts following:

On State loan	$155,550 00
On bonds endorsed by the State	21,030 00
On mortgage bonds	98,910 00
Total July 1st, 1865	$275,490 00

After we made payments annually and semi-an- 51 nually of money or bonds to the State, under the Sinking Fund provisions of the 7th Section of the Act of 1852, Ch. 151, these funds thus paid to the State were no longer subject to or controlled by the companies, but were managed and controlled by the officers and agents of the State, as belonging to the State, and without accountability to the railroad companies. The practical financial effect of our annual payments to the State, under the Sinking Fund provisions, up to the 4th day of June, 1862, 52 when the last payment was made under my presidency, was the discharge of $125,000.00 of our State loan debt to the State, and the retiring of that amount of State bonds that had been issued for any and all purposes, as we had bought any State six per cent. bonds we found on the market without reference to the purpose for which they were issued;

53 and as they all bore the same price, whether issued to railroads or for any other purely State purpose.

The annual payments by the other railroad companies produced a like effect to the extent of those payments. If this scheme of the original act had been carried out, unobstructed by the war, or other adverse events, the final result would have been that the railroad companies, before the maturity of the bonds lent to them, respectively, would have paid the full amount of their respective debts to the State 54 for the State loans to them, by retiring to the State that amount of the State's own six per cent. bonds,

As the 7th section allowed us to buy and pay into the State Treasury, and we did buy and pay in any Tennessee six per cent. bonds without regard as to whether issued as loans to railroads or for any purely State purpose, many State bonds issued for other purposes that as loans to railroads, no doubt were retired and would necessarily have been so retired, leaving a like amount of the bonds issued to 55 railroads outstanding, and wholly unprovided for, except so far as the good faith and credit of the State secured them. That thus, many bonds issued to the railroads would have been left outstanding, was a result following necessarily from that provision or stipulation of the 7th section of the first act, allowing the railroad companies to make their annual payments by buying any bonds of the State of Tennessee, and paying them into the Treasury of the State after assigning them to the Governor. 56 Bonds so paid in were a perfect security to the State for the debt of the railroads to her, but were necessarily unavailable to a holder of outstanding State bonds. As to the State, the operation of this provision if carried out was to secure to her the payment of the full amount of the State loans to the railroads; and during the process and periods of payment to maintain all her six per cent. bonds issued for any purpose at one uniform price, and 57

this was the actual fact, uniformity of prices as to all her six per cent. bonds. As to the railroads, the operation of this stipulation or provision was to secure to each of them the privilege of paying their State loan debt in any State six per cent. bonds, which they could do with greater facility and certainty than if required to hunt up the particular bonds issued to them. As to the bonds themselves the operation of this provision was to benefit them, by giving them all the same chance to be retired by 58 any railroad purchase, and by increasing the State's ability to pay as her debt was diminished. When I made the last payment on the 4th of June, 1862, of $100,000 in State bonds, the payments of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Company, were three years ahead of the requirements of the sinking fund provision, although they, the sinking fund requirements, were suspended by statute, and had we not been prevented by the disasters of the war, taking away our road and destroying our income, 59
I would have continued to make the payments as fast and large as our means would have enabled us, until we had paid the State loan debt in full to the State in her own bonds or money, and extinguished our liability unless otherwise ordered by the directors. The only possible way the interest accruing on the State bonds paid into the State Treasury annually by the railroads, could be made available and used as a sinking fund, was for the State through her own officers voluntarily to set aside so much money 60 from the funds in her Treasury; just as she would so much of her taxes collected, or any other revenues for a defined State purpose; as to meet the expenses of her Public School, or any other State obligation. The practical management was of her revenues as a sinking fund to meet her own obligations.

Deposition of Neill S. Brown.

Deposition of Neill S. Brown, witness on behalf of the defendants in the foregoing cases.

The said witness, being duly cautioned and sworn, deposes and says.

My name is Neill S. Brown; am aged 69 years, and am a practicing attorney and solicitor at Nashville, Tennessee. 2

To interrogatory propounded he answers and says, that he was twice a member of the Legislature of the State, was twice or three times elected, and was once Governor of the State.

I bought among the first issue of the bonds issued for the building of the capitol, say in 1849 or thereabouts; I think I bought about $4,000 in such bonds and paid par therefor; I kept them until about the year 1854; I then invested them in a private enterprise at par; I then received from the enterprise my interest therein in bonds issued by the State of Tennessee 3 for agricultural purposes, at par, and I afterwards sold said Agricultural Bonds in 1857 or 1858 at par.

The prices mentioned as paid for and received for said bonds was the market or ruling price for all bonds issued by the State at the times mentioned, and it continued so for sometime afterwards, and had been at all times from the first issuance down until the approaching rumors of war.

4 I have no interest whatever in any bond issued by the State of Tennessee; I do own one hundred

5 dollars in stock of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad, besides which I have no interest in any bond or stock of any railroad company.

I have noticed the quotations of bonds of the State of Tennessee since the war, and do not remember that any difference was made in the quoted market price of the bonds issued to the railroads under the Internal Improvement laws, and other bonds issued by the State for other purposes.

6 (Complainant, by solicitor, excepts to the competency of this evidence, because irrelevant to the issue ; and especially to the last paragraph, because purely hearsay and not the best evidence.

S. WATSON,
Solicitor for the Compl't.)

7 The State of Tennessee owned the Bank of Tennessee, and made it the fiscal agent of the State ; it was so called and so recognized ; all the revenues of the State were deposited with the Bank of every conceivable kind, and it (the bank) paid all the obligations of the State ; sometimes the balance was one way and sometimes the other.

Cross-examination :

The Union Bank of Tennessee was the fiscal agent of the State before the Bank of Tennessee was created. I never had any dealings with bonds except as above stated. 8

And further deponent saith not.

Deposition of Columbus Powell.

vs.

MEMPHIS and CHARLESTON R. R. Co., and others.

Taken Sept. 26th. 1879, at Knoxville.

I am about fifty years of age, and reside in Knoxville, Tennessee. I lived in New York City for 2 four years after the war, from 1865 to 1869. While living in New York City I was a member of the firm of C. Powell, Greene & Co., Bankers and Commission Merchants. My firm sold a large number of the bonds of the State of Tennessee 6 per cent. coupon bonds for account of the East Tennessee and Virginia, Rogersville and Jefferson, Knoxville and Kentucky, now Knoxville and Ohio, Knoxville and Charleston and Mississippi Central Railroad Companies; and in addition to said companies, we sold 3 bonds for individuals and bankers; said bonds were mainly sold in the Board of Brokers, through a broker to a member or members of that board; occasional sales were made to individuals privately. The mode of selling bonds through the Board of Brokers in New York, was and is as follows: whenever we had State bonds for sale on behalf of our customers, whether railroads, private individuals or bankers, we gave an order to our broker to sell Tennessee bonds, 6 per cent. coupon bonds payable to 4 bearer; we did not give him any representation

5 that the bonds were issued to railroads or for what purpose, nor did we ever give him numbers of the bonds; our broker would offer said bonds when Tennessee bonds was called on the list of stocks and bonds by the President of the Board, and receive such bids from other members of the board as he was willing to accept, reporting the sales to our office when we could deliver according to contract, as follows, if for cash, deliverable on the day of sale, if on time, deliverable on the day fixed in the 6 contract, so that neither the broker who bought nor the person for whom he bought, ever knew any thing in regard to the bonds, except that they were Tennessee six per cent. bonds, did not even know their numbers, or for what purpose they were issued, nor did he even see the bonds until they were delivered in final consummation of the sale. Our broker who sold the bonds did not even know anything about them except that they were Tennessee 6 per cents. And the bonds although numbered as all 7 Tennessee bonds were, had nothing on them to indicate or show for what purpose they were issued, or to what railroad, except that they specified under what act of the Legislature they were issued. I mean in brief, that the bonds were sold as straight Tennessee State bonds, and that there was no representation, claim or suggestion made by the seller or buyer that they carried any lien on the property of the railroad company in favor of the bondholders.
Bonds were frequently interchanged and loaned between 8 the railroads, so that I myself did not know to what railroad the bonds were issued which I was selling.

In all my New York experience, and I suppose I was one of the largest sellers of Tennessee bonds for account of railroads and others, I never once heard the question raised that the bondholders could look to, or had any lien upon the railroad property belonging to the company to which the bond was 9 issued. Had frequent conversations with holders of old and new bonds, who would consult me about the payment of interest on the bonds by the State, and in all these conversations the point discussed was what the sense of the people of the State of Tennessee as to the payment of the interest on said bonds, and never heard any suggestion or allusion to a claim of a lien on the property of the railroad companies of the State in favor of the bondholder. 10

I do not think that two millions of dollars is an overestimate, but rather an under estimate, of the amount of Tennessee State bonds we sold while in business in New York City. I mean Tennessee sixes. The bonds were issued to the railroad companies by the State just as they applied for them, taking up the number at the number last issued.
There was no mode of classification as to numbers of bonds adopted by the State authorities in issuing them so as to identify and distinguish the bonds 11 issued to railroads, or any particular railroad, from the bonds issued by the State for any other purpose than for the railroads. In other words, there was no set of numbers for each particular railroad, or for all the railroads, but there was one common series of numbers for all purposes; therefore it was impossible for an outsider, seller or broker in New York, to identify any Tennessee State bond coming to him
there as a bond issued in favor of any railroad.

There was no difference in the price of Tennessee 12
State bonds, as sold on the same day, either for the East Tenn. and Virginia Railroad, a road of 130 miles in length, solvent, completed, and with full connections, and the "Knoxville and Kentucky Railroad," 40 miles, and incomplete and without connections, "The Rogersville and Jefferson Railroad," 16 miles in length, and incomplete, and the 13 "Knoxville and Charleston Railroad," 16 miles in length and incomplete, the three latter all being insolvent; nor the Mississippi Central Railroad, complete and with full connections, running 250 miles across the State of Tennessee.

I have no connection with nor interest in any railroad of the State, nor their stocks or securities.

It was a well known fact that these short insolvent railroads received twice as many bonds from the State per mile as the solvent roads, and 14 yet the bonds on the market sold at the same price, as my books will show; and I give the following illustrations of actual sales from my books: we sold through our broker, in the Board of Brokers in New York, on Sept. 20, 1866, $80,000 of Tennessee bonds at 71¾, 72¾, and 73, and we delivered in consummation of these sales bonds indiscriminately from the following roads, "E. T. & Va.," "Knoxville and Kentucky," and "Rogersville and Jefferson." This is only an illustration of what frequently 15 occurred, and in one instance sold in the same manner $100,000, in which the bonds of the Mississippi Central Railroad were delivered in common with the bonds of the railroads above mentioned and at the same price.

The reason for the name of Old and New Tennessee sixes was on account of the old carrying with them five past due coupons, when the new sixes were placed on the call of the stock board; that custom was continued after the coupons were paid 16 or funded by the State, when the difference in the market value of the old and new was reduced to a merely nominal difference.

All six per cent. State bonds issued prior to 1860, whether to build the Capitol, buy the Hermitage, pay for the State's stock in banks or turnpikes, or to railroads under the Improvement Acts, or for any other purpose, were called old Tennessee sixes, and without regard to what they were issued for, was a good delivery in the New York market, and at the same price.

Before the war the bonds issued by the railroad companies of Tennessee, with a first mortgage lien on the property of the roads and endorsed by the State, did not bring as high a price in the market as straight State sixes issued to aid the railroads or other purely State purposes. The reason for this is that the credit of the State was so high as through her fiscal agent, the Bank of Tennessee, she promptly paid her interest every six months in New York City. No doubt or apprehension was either felt or expressed as to her ability and promptness to pay her interest; while in the vicissitudes of railroad projects there was always doubt, and no such confidence did or could exist, and notwithstanding the State endorsement, it was secondary and it was felt that in case of default on part of the railroads, the State would delay until the lien on the railroad property in favor of the bondholders was enforced and exhausted before she would discharge her secondary liability.

Wm. G. Swan and I, as directors and fiscal agents of the Knoxville and Kentucky Railroad, went to New York in 1860, and sold some $30,000 to $40,000 of the first State bonds issued to that company; we sold them through brokers on the public market as straight Tennessee bonds; no representations were made by us, nor any inquiries or questions raised as to there being any lien on the railroad in favor of the holders of the bonds sold by us. We never dreamed that such a fact would have enhanced or affected beneficially the market.

And further this deponent sayeth not.

COLUMBUS POWELL.

Deposition of D. B. Cliffe.

The deposition of D. B. CLIFFE, taken on behalf of the defendants, on notice hereto attached in the case of Calvin Amory Stevens v. The Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Co. et al. 1

The witness, said D. B. CLIFFE. being duly cautioned and sworn, deposed as follows:

1st interrogatory propounded by Ed. H. East and R. McP. Smith, attorneys for the defendants:

My name is D. B. Cliff; occupation, physician; 2 residence, Franklin, Tennessee; age 56 years. I was appointed Receiver of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad by Governor W. G. Brownlow, and took charge of said road on the 14th July, 1868, and continued as such Receiver until 21st October, 1869, when I resigned. General Innis was Receiver previous to my appointment of the same road, having been appointed by Governor Brownlow. I operated the road for about thirty days at a very considerable loss; my recollection is that we 3 lost about $10,000 or $15,000 that month. On the 1st September, 1868, after consultation with Governor Brownlow, I leased the road to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, which latter company agreed to run the road and save the State harmless as far as the pay of employees, &c., was concerned. The lease was made because it was impossible to make the road pay expenses. The roadbed, cars, and machinery were in a bad condition. The hands had "struck," the roadbed was 4 grown up with wild weeds, the tanks were dry, and one bridge had been burned, and the rolling stock was in a bad condition. The employees under the 5 previous Receiver, as also under the old company, had not been paid, and "struck," and threatened to destroy the property of the company, and did burn one bridge above mentioned. The Tennessee River bridge was in danger, and I employed a guard with shot guns to protect it.

The State advanced bonds to me to the amount of $250,000 in bonds (250 bonds) for the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and 200 bonds of $1,000 each for the building of the Huntingdon branch.
6 The lessees operated the road during the balance of my receivership, and thereafter the same parties re-leased the same from the Legislature.

The experiment made by me in the running of the said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad was convincing to my mind that the road could not be operated by a receiver without loss to the State. During the month in which I run the road we did repairing to the roadbed but just sufficient to run the trains. A force sufficient to keep it in proper 7 repair would have increased our loss during that time to $30,000, or thereabouts. There was hardly a safe bridge on the road between Nashville and Hickman, a distance of 170 miles. The road was not completed by the company, and the Government of the United States completed the building of the road, a distance of some 40 or 50 miles this side, or east, of Tennessee River, as a military measure. I do not know this fact of my own knowledge, but simply as a matter of current history.

8 (Excepted to by counsel for complainant as hearsay evidence, and therefore incompetent.
S. Watson,
Solicitor for complainant.)

Cross-examined by Sam'l Watson, solicitor for complainant:

My occupation before I took charge of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company as Receiver had been that of physician, and I had also been Receiver for the State of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company. I was Receiver of the latter road from January, 1868, to Dec., 1869. I never had any experience whatever, or management, or connection with the running of a railroad before that time. 9

In politics I was in accord with the Brownlow administration. I was appointed without any solicitation to the receivership of both roads. Innis had been the Receiver for about six months previous to my appointment of the Nashville and Northwestern road. 10

I gave my deposition before the committee of the Legislature to investigate the N. & N.-W. R.R. Co. and made a report to the comptroller of the State on November 1, 1869. embracing the month of October, 1869, and in that report I did make use of the words following: "A comparison of the earnings of the road for the last fourteen months shows a steady increase in its business, and gives strong hopes of its ultimate ability to meet the payments due the State on account of interest." 11

This report embraces ten days after I went out of office of Receiver, by arrangement with my successor.

My recollection is that the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company accepted the provisions of an act of the Kentucky Legislature extending the liens of the Tennessee bonds issued to that road to that portion of the road lying in Kentucky. 12

(Excepted to by counsel for defendants, because not the best evidence.)

I consider the experience of running the road for one month as Receiver as aforesaid as conclusive to 13 my mind that the road could not be run without great loss to the State, and I would have had to cease the operation of the road after that month's trial for want of funds.

Re-examination :

Colonel Innis, previous to his appointment, was the colonel of a regiment of engineers and bridge builders in the United States Army, called the Michigan Engineers. And immediately before his 14 appointment as Receiver he was the Superintendent of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, under Mr. Burns. I had employed under me during my receivership experienced and competent railroad men. The impression I got that the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company accepted the provisions of an act of the Kentucky Legislature extending the liens of Tennessee bonds issued to that road, to that portion lying in Kentucky, was obtained while I was Receiver of said
15 railroad.

Calvin Amory Stevens et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Memphis and Charleston R. R. Co. 1

vs.

The Memphis and Charleston R. R. Co. et al.

Testimony and proofs for final hearing on the part of the respondents in the above entitled suit taken under and pursuant to the 67th Rule in Equity as amended, before William H. De Lancey, Special Examiner, duly appointed herein.

52 Broadway,
New York, March 1st, 1880. 3

Deposition taken by consent of Counsel in the above entitled suit before William H. De Lancey, Special Examiner.

(Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.)

Present—Chas. H. Tweed,
Of Counsel for Defendants and Substitution Bondholders. 4

E. L. Andrews,
Of Counsel for Complainants.

5 Joseph W. Drexel, a witness produced on the part of the respondents, being affirmed as a witness, testified as follows:

My name is Joseph W. Drexel; my age forty-nine: my residence New York City; no occupation; have retired from business.

1 Q. Before you retired from business, in what firms were you a partner?

A. In the firm of Drexel & Co., Phila., Drexel,
6 Winthrop & Co., of New York, until July, 1871, and of Drexel, Morgan & Co., and also Drexel, Harjes & Co., Paris; I retired from the firms of Drexel & Co., Drexel, Morgan & Co. and Drexel, Harjes & Co., Dec. 31, 1875.

2 Q. While you were a member of those firms did they deal as bankers in the bonds of the State of Tennessee?

A. We dealt in bonds generally, and that, of course, included the bonds of Tennessee.

7 3 Q. Had your New York and Philadelphia firms representatives in the Stock Exchanges of those cities?

A. Yes.

4 Q. Were you familiar with the manner in which Tennessee bonds were dealt in on those Stock Exchanges?

A. Yes.

5 Q. Did you ever know or hear of any Tennessee bonds being bought or sold as carrying a lien upon 8 any railroad in the State of Tennessee to which they might have been loaned?

A. No.

6 Q. Did your firm of Drexel, Winthrop & Co. in or about 1870 become the purchasers of any of the substitution bonds issued by the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company?

A. We became part purchasers to a large extent in company with R. T. Wilson & Co., A. Iselin & Co., and the New York Guaranty and Indemnity Company of the bonds issued by the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company at that time. The whole amount of the loan was $2,100,000, and we bought about $1,900,000. 9

7 Q. At the time that your firm became part purchasers of those bonds had you any knowledge of any claim of any holders of bonds issued by the State of Tennessee and loaned to the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company, or to its predecessors, that they had any lien or claim upon the property of that Company or its predecessors? 10

A. No.

8 Q. Did your firm, in connection with the N. Y. Guaranty and Indemnity Co., issue the advertisement for the sale of those bonds now shown you?

A. Yes, sir, we did—a copy of which advertisement is as follows:

December 31, 1870. 11

FINANCIAL.

SEVEN PER CENT. FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS
OF THE
NASHVILLE AND DECATUR RAILROAD.

The mortgage is for $2,100,000, or only $17,500 per mile, on an old and completed road, showing an established business, from local traffic, mainly more than sufficient to pay its interest as it becomes due, with prospects of greatly enlarged receipts from new connections which are now in progress.

This mortgage was created for the sole purpose of paying a debt due to the State of Tennessee, on terms which would reduce the liability of the road about $600,000. 12

Of the bonds issued under said mortgage $200,000 are held in escrow to abide settlement of a claim of the United States; $300,000 have been purchased by the parties in interest, and the balance of $1,600,000 are offered for sale on favorable terms; the security, in the judgment of the undersigned, being such as to entitle them to perfect confidence.

DREXEL, WINTHROP & CO.,
18 Wall Street.

NEW YORK GUARANTY AND INDEMNITY CO.,
52 Broadway and Exchange Court.

13 9 Q. If the holder of any of the bonds of the State of Tennessee which had been loaned to the Nashville and Decatur R. R. Co. or its predecessors had asserted any lien or claim upon the property of that Company by virtue of those bonds, would you have made the purchase?

A. No, sir.

10 Q. Would you have issued that advertisement and given the bonds the endorsement of your firm if you had known of such a lien or claim being as-14 serted?

A. No, sir.

11 Q. Those bonds were sold by the interested firms, or by some of them, to the public, were they not?

A. Yes.

12 Q. You and the other parties sold them to the public as first mortgage bonds, secured upon the property of the Nashville and Decatur R. R. Co., as stated in the advertisement issued by your firm 15 and the N. Y. Guaranty and Indemnity Co., did you not?

A. Yes, sir.

13 Q. Did you afterwards become yourself a purchaser of any of the substitution bonds of the Memphis and Charleston R. R. Co. issued under the purchase of the State lien?

A. Personally I subsequently bought $50,000 of the first mortgage bonds of the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co., each of which bonds bears an en-16 dorsement to the effect that the lien previously held by the State of Tennessee against the road had been vested in trustees under an assignment from the State to be held as security for that issue of bonds.

14 Q. At what price did you buy those bonds and when?

A. To the best of my recollection at 90 to 95 and 17 subsequent to 1877.

15 Q. At the time of your purchase of those bonds had you any knowledge of any claim on the part of any holders of Tennessee State bonds loaned to that R. R. Co. or any other R. R. Co. in Tennessee that they had any lien or claim upon the property of that or any other R. R. Company by virtue of those bonds?

A. I say most emphatically, no; I would not have entertained the proposition for a moment if I 18 had known of any such claims.

16 Q. Are you still a holder of those Memphis and Charleston bonds?

A. I am.

Cross-examination by Mr. Andrews:

17 x Q. Where did you reside at the times mentioned in your direct examination?

A. For part of the time I resided in Philadelphia, 19 but during these transactions I was in New York the major part of business hours, and in the summer of 1871 I came to New York to reside permanently.

18 x Q. Did you purchase $1,600,000 of those substitution bonds without getting any legal advice as to their title?

A. I did not know them under the name of "substitution bonds," but we bought about that amount in connection with other parties of the first mort- 20 gage bonds of the Nashville & Decatur Railroad. We took all the precautions we usually did in buying bonds for ourselves, and had we felt the necessity of having any legal assistance we would have called it in. I do not recollect whether we felt any such necessity or not or whether we took legal advice or not. In case we thought there was necessity for 21 legal advice we handed it to our regular attorney.

Mr. Robert Winthrop of my firm would be more likely to know than I.

19 x Q. Who brought these securities first to your notice.

A. Mr. R. T. Wilson, so far as I recollect.

20 x Q. Did you not have frequent conversations with Mr. Wilson on the subject of these securities.

A. I recollect talking with Mr. Wilson about them after the issue of the advertisement after I 22 came to New York. Mr. A. J. Drexel had more frequent conversations with Mr. Wilson previous to the purchase.

21 x Q. Did Mr. Wilson at any of the times mentioned in your direct examination exhibit to you the opinion of Judges Davies and Davis, to the effect that the Tennessee State Bonds were paramount liens upon the railroads to which they were issued, or speak to you of that opinion in any way.

A. No, sir; he never did. He could not have de-23 scribed them as first mortgage bonds had he done so.

22 x Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Iselin while the bonds were being sold.

A. Yes.

23 x Q. Did he exhibit or speak of that opinion to you?

A. No, sir; he did not.

24 x Q. Please produce a copy of any opinion which your firm received upon this subject?

24 A. I will if such a one ever existed or is now in existence.

Re-direct: 25

25 Q. Did not Mr. Donaldson, as Chairman or Mr. Williams, as Secretary of the Committee of Tennessee bondholders or any Tennessee bondholders ever exhibit to you any such opinion of Davies and Davis, or any opinion to that effect?

A. No.

26 Q. If any claims on behalf of Tennessee State bondholders that their bonds constituted a paramount lien upon the property of the railroad company to which they were loaned had been communicated to your brother Anthony J. Drexel, or to your partner Mr. Winthrop, would they in the usual course of business have communicated that fact to you before the tranaction was consummated? 26

A. Yes.

Re-Cross:

27 x Q. Could you not have obtained a printed copy of Davies and Davis' opinion had you sought for it? 27

A. I neither knew then nor do I know now that such an opinion existed. I never heard of it till within a week.

Deposition of Vernon K. Stevenson.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,

WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

1

Calvin Amory Stevens et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement Bondsof Tennessee, issued to the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company,

against

Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company et al. 2

52 Broadway, August 12, 1879.

Hearing to take the deposition of Vernon K. Stevenson, pursuant to notice.

Present—Mr. Andrews for Complainant.
Mr. Humes for Defendant.

It is consented and agreed by both parties that the deposition of the witness, Vernon K. 3
Stevens, shall be taken but once, and is to apply to each of the above-entitled actions, and be considered as testimony in each.

It is agreed by counsel that this deposition need be taken but once, and that it may be read as evidence in all the causes in which the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, 4 either at Nashville or Memphis, is party.

Vernon K. Stevenson, being first duly cautioned and sworn in each of the above entitled actions, deposes and says:

Direct-examination by Mr. Baxter, Defendant's Counsel:

Q. What is your name, age, residence and occupation?

A. My name is Vernon K. Stevenson; I was 67 years old the other day; I reside in the city of New York; I am President of the Real Estate Trust Company, and in some respects agent for railroads.

Q. Were you ever connected at any time with any of the railroads of Tennessee; if so, with what railroad, when and in what capacity?

A. I was connected with the railroads of Tennessee. I was first Commissioner for the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad under the charter. I was then first President of it, and continued so for 20 or 30 years. I was then President of the Winchester and Alabama Road, and so continued until its completion, when I resigned. I was then President of the Nashville and Northwestern Road, and continued so until after the close of the war. I was President of all three at once, I think; that is, the succession, I came into the Presidency of them. I was President of the Nashville and Chattanooga Road from about 1844-5 to 1865, and I was President of the Northwestern Road. I don't recollect exactly the time I became President of the Winchester and Alabama Railroad. It was after the first organization had failed to build the road. It was broken down, and I took it up and finished it in a couple of years, in connection as a branch of the Chattanooga Road, in connection with it and its interests. The Northwestern Road, I think, I took possession about 1858-9 as the President, but I don't recollect accurately the time. It had been under contract and broken down also. I took it up and finished it in connection with the Nashville and Chattanooga Road.

Q. Did you as president or as the officer of any 9 of said railroad companies receive any bonds from the State of Tennessee loaned to said companies by the State under the Internal Improvement Law of that State?

A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. In the negotiating or disposing of said bonds did you sell them directly to purchasers or were they sold through bankers and brokers generally?

A. Well, I think those on the Winchester and Alabama Railroad were all sold through bankers 10 and brokers, perhaps some of them might have been delivered to parties we purchased iron of and foreign parties. My impression is that they were pretty much all disposed of through bankers or brokers, either by the company directly or through parties that they dealt with.

Q. In negotiating bonds were any representations made by the company or their authorized agents to the effect that the bonds were liens upon the roads in favor of the holders of the bonds? 11

(Objected to as immaterial).

A. Never that I knew of—never in any case.
Straight bonds sold for more than the endorsed bonds; that fact had been tested by the sale of bonds with roads that I was connected with. The endorsed bonds by the State for railroads sold for less than straight bonds in all cases, and therefore parties selling bonds and parties buying bonds were each mutually anxious that no idea of 12 lien should be had on either side. There was a difference in price of one to two or three per cent. on all bonds endorsed by the State for the roads in the State and straight bonds issued by the State without any liens upon anything.

Q. Do I understand that bonds of the State of Tennessee which had been issued to pay for the 13 subscription of the State for stock in turnpikes, having no lien upon anything, sold for more than bonds of such railroad companies as the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad and the East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad endorsed and guaranteed by the State?

A. I do; the difference was one to three per cent. never less than one, that I ever recollect of, and as high sometimes as three per cent. difference.

Q. In selling State bonds loaned to railroads in 14 the New York market, what endorsement or system of marking, if any, was resorted to by which the bonds could be known in the stock market as having been loaned to any particular company?

A. There was no such endorsement that I ever heard of; none on any of the bonds that I had anything to do with.

Q. What was the difference in price, if anything, between the straight bonds loaned to the railroads under the Internal Improvement Act of 1851-2, and 15 straight State bonds that had been issued to build the Capital, buy the Hermitage, and for other purely State purposes?

A. Not one particle; they all sold precisely the same. No question was ever asked until after the war, as to any bond issued by the State being more valuable than another bond issued by the State.

Q. What was the difference in price, if any, between State bonds issued to important and solvent roads and to those that were issued to unimportant 16 and insolvent roads?

A. There was not a particle of difference; and no difference in the price after the roads became insolvent even after the war. Nobody ever asked or cared whether the bonds were issued for the Nashville & Henderson Road or whether issued for the East Tennessee & Virginia or Memphis & Charleston Road, which was then one of the best railroads in the State; nobody asked any questions and never 17 thought who they were issued to, or how they were issued.

Q. Was there any record or source of reference kept here in New York by which purchasers of Tennessee bonds could ascertain to what particular companies they had been issued?

A. Not that I ever heard of; never heard any questions asked. If you called Tennessee bonds, that's all you said, it's a Tennessee bond. There was no distinction that I ever heard of. 18

Q. When was the first information given to the public by which they were enabled to select out the bonds issued to particular railroads?

A. Well, I don't know of my own knowledge about that, I never heard of it until a few years ago.

Q. What is the difference now on the Stock Board in New York, between the price of Tennessee bonds loaned to railroads and those issued by the State for other purposes? 19

A. None that I know of; I don't know a particle of difference.

Q. What is the difference in price now between bonds of the State loaned to solvent and important roads and those loaned to insolvent and unimportant roads?

A. None at all that I know of; I don't think the question is asked in dealing in them even to-day, at least I have not known of its being asked as to what roads the bonds are issued to. 20

Q. Were the bonds loaned to different railroad companies generally disposed off as soon as issued, were they in some instances held for greater or less periods of time by the companies?

A. Well, all the strong roads held their bonds; they earned them before they got them, and they paid what the State required to be paid before they

21 got them, and disposed of them generally as necessity required future payments to be met, and generally held some all the time. One company I was connected with held its bonds and held over bonds when the road was finished. When I resigned as President I turned over the bonds to the Board that was left over, with the North-Western Railroad Company that I was building, and it ought to have been pretty hard pressed, as we took it broken down, and yet we always had more or less bonds on 22 hand. From the time of receiving until the next time of receiving we almost always had bonds on hand, sometimes a good many.

Q. Between the time that a company would receive bonds from the State and the time that it would negotiate these bonds to outside parties, was the interest paid by the company to the State or not?

A. Yes, always.

Q. What was the price of Tennessee State bonds
23 when the Internal Improvement Act of February, 1852, was passed. Were they at or above or below par, and how much?

A. I don't recollect accurately; my impression, generally, is that the bonds were never below par during the building of the road except, perhaps, in the Panic for a very few weeks. They were always about par, or a little above. Certainly that was so about 1852, and from that to 1854, 1856, and 1858.
Perhaps 1857 is the time I said there was a panic, 24 and the bonds might have been for a little while below par, but I don't think they continued so long.

Q. When railroad companies would receive bonds from the State under that law, would they keep any list or memorandum of the numbers of the bonds received by them so as to identify them and keep trace of them?

A. No; not for that purpose, but whenever any 25 were shipped I always had the numbers taken until I knew when they were received so as to identify them in case they were stolen or lost on the way.

Q. I mean by my last question was any such record kept with a view of being able to trace the numbers of the bonds so as to know what bonds to pay off?

A. No, sir; you paid in any that you had; you paid in just as you chose; bonds and coupons were indiscriminately paid in; they would be paid 26 in without regard to whether they belonged to bonds issued to them, or any other bonds, unless it was endorsed bonds. We always paid identical endorsed coupons and we paid identical endorsed bonds in redeeming them, because our immediate liability was on them, but the other bonds we never took any charge of, because we did not consider there was any lien on them; we never undertook to pay the particular bond issued to us, but whenever it came to paying endorsed bonds, they were very 27 careful to take up bonds that were endorsed for them, and so with the coupons, that is they paid the coupons that the State endorsed for them.

Q. When railroad companies of Tennessee would pay the interest, which they had agreed to pay, to whom did they pay it?

A. They paid it to the State.

Q. Through whom?

A, To the Bank of Tennessee. It was a State bank, belonging to the State, and its business was 28 geaerally done through that bank. The Bank of Tennessee was always the fiscal agent of the State of Tennessee.

Q. When a railroad company would pay in a given amount of money to the Bank of Tennessee for interest, would it designate to the bank the particular bonds or coupons upon which that money

29 was to be paid, or did it just pay in so much money on account of interest due from the company to the State?

A. Well, the companies knew always what they had to pay, and sometimes they would go and pay it. Say the company owes this to the State for interest on the bonds issued to it; sometimes they would pay in part to the State and the State would let it run a little, but we would pay it all in from time to time, but it was never paid on any particu-30 lar bond; it was paid as so much interest due the State.

Q. Who paid out this money and took up the coupons of the State?

A. The Bank of Tennessee. I suppose the money was paid into that bank, who kept the coupons as vouchers to show that they had been paid.

Q. Did any railroad company with which you had any connection, or any other company with whose course of business you were acquainted, have 31 any agent either at Nashville, New York or Philadelphia to pay the interest on straight State Bonds, that had been loaned to them?

A. No, sir, never.

Q. Did any bondholder of Tennessee ever present to any railroad company, so far as you know, any coupons of the State Bonds loaned to such company and ask payment thereof from such company?

A. Never that I heard of.

Q. These coupons which had been paid and taken 32 up by the State; were they kept by the State or returned to the companies?

A. I don't recollect of any being returned to the companies.

Q. Are you acquainted with the circumstances that led to the change in the Internal Improvement system of Tennessee from endorsing bonds of the companies by the State to loaning bonds of the State to the companies? Please state fully all con- 33 nection you had with the change of the system, if any; and state if you know what were the motives and reasons which induced such change?

A. It was brought about on the part of the railroad companies to have straight bonds because they sold for more, and the State did not care whether they endorsed or issued straight bonds, they expected to be responsible in either case, and, as at that time they did not issue any more than they were well secured in, it made no difference to the members 34 of the Legislature which they voted for.

Q. Where were you living in 1869 and 1870?

A. In New York.

Q, What business were you engaged in then?

A. I think I was in the real estate business—real estate agent here. I went into business here to start my son. He was anxious to go into law or merchandizing and he did not care which. I continued in business with him four or five years, until 1871 or 1872, when I withdrew from his business, 35 and he is carrying it on now.

Q. Was the fact known in New York in 1869 and 1870, that the railroad companies of Tennessee were paying off their debts to the State by issuing company's bonds and using the proceeds to buy up bonds of the State to retire their debts?

A. It was very publicly done. The bonds taken for that purpose bought and talked about all the time, swapping, exchanging, twisting to get the bonds to pay it it was a very notorious matter here, 36 as much so as anything, because there was so much of it; I have no doubt every bondholder was applied to more than once and the explanation made what they wanted with the bonds.

Q. Was the fact known in New York in 1870 and 1871 that the State of Tennessee had filed a bill at Nashville, claiming that the lien belonged to the

37 State, and asking to sell such a delinquent railroad as had been unable to buy up bonds of the State enough to pay off their debts?

A. It was a matter generally understood among bondholders, and it was thought by them that the bonds would be so benefited by taking so much off the market.

Q. What proportion of the entire bonded debt of Tennessee is held in New York, do you suppose?

A. Four-fifths, probably; I should think here
38 and in European agencies, but I don't know accurately.

Q. Did you ever hear any holder of Tennessee bonds complain of the action of the State and of the companies in retiring their debts, or selling out their railroads until the litigation in this case?

A. No, sir; never.

(This entire examination is taken subject to legal objection, and complainant's counsel 39 moves to strike out all the answers based upon hearsay, and not upon personal knowledge, and each and every of them.)

Cross-examination by Mr. Andrews, complainant's counsel, begun:

1 x Q. Now, Mr. Stevenson, you state that you are an agent for the railroads in this city. Will you please state what railroads you are agent for?

40 A. The Nashville & Chattanooga road and its branches.

2 x Q. Are you a holder of any of the securities of the Nashville & Chattanooga road?

A. I hold some few of the securities, but not many.

3 x Q. Do you own securities on any other Tennessee railroads?

A. No, sir.

4 x Q. Are you a holder of Nashville & Chattanooga securities, and to what amount? 41

A. I hold very little of it.

5 x Q. How much of the stock?

A. Well, I hold quite a large amount of stock of the Nashville & Chattanooga and St. Louis.

6 x Q. That is one of the roads against which bills are pending by Tennessee bondholders for the enforcement of their statutory liens, is it not?

A. Yes, sir.

7 x Q. During the time you were an officer of the Tennessee railroads did you ever have occasion to give a receipt to the State of Tennessee or its officers for bonds of the State received by your companies? 42

A. I think I have.

8 x Q. Do you know whether or not, as a matter of fact, those receipts given by you did not specify the numbers of the bonds received by your companies?

A. I don't recollect; I think it very likely, but I don't recollect. 43

9 x Q. I understand you that the companies over which you presided I think you were President?

A. Yes, sir.

10 x Q. Did you not keep a record of the numbers and descriptions of the Tennessee bonds received by them?

A. I don't recollect that they did; I may possibly be mistaken in that; their books will show more correctly.

11 x Q. You are not sure they did not keep such a record? 44

A. No, I am not sure whether they kept a record or not; they kept a record when they shipped the bonds.

12 x Q. I understand that you personally participated in the negotiations by which your Companies disposed of Tennessee bonds to the first 45 takers. I think that is a correct statement of your testimony?

A. In some cases, not generally.

13 x Q. Now in those cases in which you did personally participate in negotiating, I understand you that it was desired by the purchasers of those bonds that there should be no lien to protect those securities?

A. No, I have not said that at all.

14 x Q. I give your exact words?

46 A. I stated that it was mutually desirable by the parties, and gave as the reason that the bonds sold for less.

15 x Q. Did you ever receive any indication from any purchaser of Tennessee bonds that he did not wish to have a lien to secure the bond that he was about to purchase?

A. I don't think I ever heard the question to come up in any shape except when the bonds were being gotten up because nobody ever asked for a lien.
47 When bonds were being gotten up the straight bonds issued to the roads would bring more, and as that was a matter which would meet the wishes of the buyer I presume they would have the same feeling as the seller, as they sold for more.

16 x Q. Did the straight bonds issued by the State of Tennessee, prior to the General Internal Improvement law of 11th February, 1852, sell above par or at par. I mean all of them; and was the credit of the State of Tennessee at that time entire unim-48 peachable and unimpeached?

A. I don't recollect of their ever having sold under par. I don't think they sold for less than par, and if they did it was for a very short time and for a very small amount.

18 x Q. How did the State credit of Tennessee stand then?

A. I don't think any State stood better than Tennessee.

19 x Q. Did the straight bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued prior to the year 1851, and so in the year 1850, and during a part of 1851, until the fall or winter, did they not sell at a better price and command a higher credit than the State bonds issued after the Internal Improvement Law was passed? 49

A. I think not; if there was any difference it was a very slight difference and was not regarded; it had no effect at all.

20 x Q. Then I understand you that the State bonds issued after the General Internal Improvement Law sold for a better price than those immediately preceding its passage? 50

A. I don't think it had any effect. The general impression here was that the State was secured and therefore the large volume of bonds issued did not affect its credit.

21 x Q. What is the lowest price you think Tennessee bonds sold at; I refer to the years 1850-'51,

A. I do not recollect the bonds selling below par, 51 but not having very much connection I may be at fault in the matter. After the bonds were issued I had connection and I think I recollect pretty accurately.

22 x Q. Now you were an officer of these railroads, Mr. Stevenson; how many Tennessee bonds could be floated—were floated at par before the passage of the act of February 11th, 1852, during 1850 and 1851, easily and without difficulty?

A. You can tell if the State was giving away 52 bonds there would be many afloat, but if the State were issuing bonds where it was secured, as the early bonds were secured and all well secured, they could be issued without impairing its credit, and it was the knowledge of that fact that prevented the impairing its credit.

23 x Q. Did you know, or ever hear, or ever read,

53 that the act of the Tennessee Legislature passed on the 11th February, 1852, under which I understand that your companies received bonds, contained these words: "That so soon as the bonds of the "State shall have been issued for the first section "of the road as aforesaid, they shall constitute a "lien upon said section so prepared as aforesaid "* * * and the State of Tennessee upon the issuance of said bonds, and by virtue of the same "shall be invested with said lien or mortgage
54 "without a deed from the company for the payment "of said company of said bonds with the interest "thereon as the same becomes due."

A. I had a great deal to do with the getting up of that law, and was by when every word was scanned, talked and reckoned about. Mr. Frank Fogg wrote it. He was a brother to my brother-in-law; and I stumped the State to get it passed; we could not get it passed before, and I went to the counties where the opposition was and spoke 55 against the politicians and passed that law.

24 x Q. Did you ever hear of an Act passed at the same session of the legislature, about three weeks and a half before the passage of this general law by which the issue of State bonds to the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad for building the bridges was authorized?

A. I had very little to do with that; I believe that there was such an act passed for one road.

25 x Q. Do you know what model was taken for 56 drafting this General Improvement Law?

A. We took the the model from the earliest roads in South Carolina in getting up our charter.

26 x Q. Now, as you have read the passage I have just quoted from that law, how could you state in your direct examination that the bonds were never considered, if I am correct in quoting you, liens upon these roads?

A. In drawing up that act it was solely intended 57 to secure the State, and the law was made as distinctive as possible in that direction to secure the State only.

27 x Q. What did they mean, then, that the bonds should constitute liens?

A. Very well; the State issued bonds, and the State was liable for the bonds.

28 x Q. Did the Bank of Tennessee ever lend any of the companies with which you were connected, moneys to pay their interest with on these bonds? 58

A. I don't recollect that they did; they may have done so, but I don't recollect; I was director in the Union Bank from the time it broke down in 1837 until the war; my business was generally done there, and any borrowing was done at the Union Bank; but we did not do much.

29 x Q. Did the State bonds your railroad received contain any reference to any legislation of the State of Tennessee under which they were issued? 59

A. I don't recollect, sir; not accurately to speak of, because it is a matter I had not charged my mind with.

30 x Q. You state that the Tennessee bondholders made no objection to the act of the Legislature of 1869–70; do you not know that a committee of Tennessee bondholders about that time obtained the opinion of the late Chief Justice of the State of New York, and of another eminent lawyer in this city, to the effect that that legislation of Tennessee impaired their interests in the liens on the railroads? 60

A. No, sir. I knew nothing of it at all. A great many bondholders came here, and I was asked to the meetings about that time and afterwards. They were the large bondholders.

31 x Q. Do you not know that that opinion was printed, and publicly and widely circulated?

61 A. No, sir. Never saw it. I don't think I ever heard of it even. It may have been done, but I never heard of it before.

32 x Q. You mention that there was a great deal of buying and changing and operating, or words to that effect, in Tennessee State bonds, or by third parties under these substitution laws. Were you interested in railroads at that time?

A. Yes, sir. I was interested in the Nashville and Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad. I held 62 stock in it for thirty years.

33 x Q. You are not an officer now?

A. No, sir.

34 x Q. Were you consulted in reference to the purchases of bonds by any of these companies?

A. Yes, sir.

35 x Q. What companies?

A. The Chattanooga road had to purchase bonds to pay for the Northwestern road, and that led me in contact with buyers of other roads in Tennessee.

63 36 x Q. I suppose it was your object, and that of your coadjutor, to purchase Tennessee bonds at as low a price as possible, for the purpose of this substitution?

A. Well, I don't understand exactly your meaning. We gave the market prices and never made an attempt to interfere directly or indirectly. I think our company paid as high an average as 70% on the dollar for bonds they bought for the Northwestern Railroad.

64 37 x Q. Is that positively true of other railroad companies who obtained State bonds at that time?

A. I can speak for none but my own company. We paid the market prices; never, in any case, did we undertake to put bonds down; and the whole history of the Nashville & Chattanooga Road is that of integrity and honesty and principle from the bottom to the top in everything.

The witness deposed as follows:

During the whole time of my connection with the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad Company, 66 Northwestern Railroad Company and Winchester and Alabama Railroad Company, I was a resident citizen of Tennessee, and gave my entire time to the business of those roads; I did make all important contracts and payments for them and managed their finances—I received, and controlled and disposed of the State bonds issued to said railroads; those bonds were not generally sold by me personally to purchasers, but were forwarded by me to bankers and brokers in New York, for sale. 67

Deposition of J. G. M. Ramsey.

Caption same as in Craig's and Jackson. 1

I was eighty-two years old on the 25th day of March last, and have resided all my life in or near Knoxville, Tenn., except when I have been absent temporarily. I have been a practicing physician during my life; I have been president of several different banks, and among others of "The Tennessee State Bank", at Knoxville. I was appointed by Governor Trousdale, in 1851, the agent of the State of Tennessee, to receive for the East Tennessee and 2
Georgia Railroad Company, three hundred and fifty (350) State of Tennessee coupon bonds, payable to blank or bearer, bearing six per cent interest, evidenced by coupons attached to the bonds, payable semi-annually in the City of New York; each bond was for $1,000, and had forty years to run to maturity. The duties of my agency were to sell the bonds, and apply the proceeds to the ironing and equipping of the road, as required by the Act. I was appointed to and did act as the agent of the 3
State of Tennessee and not of the railroad company. I went in person to Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston and New York, to sell these bonds,—and sold in the New York market two hundred and forty-seven of them for cash, at rates varying from 103¼ to 104½, that is from 3¼ per cent to 4½ above par. I sold these bonds as straight Tennessee State Bonds, and procured the favorable price which I obtained for them by representing to them and showing from the Comptroller's report, that the indebtedness of the 4
State of Tennessee, amounting to only three millions of dollars ($3,000,000) one half of which was an interest paying stock; that is the State's stock in the Bank of Tennessee and the Union Bank, and by representing also the resources of the State, the extent of its territory, the fertility of its soil, and the character of its people, and its climate, its agricultural products, and its mineral resources. I never mentioned or represented that the bonds were secured by any statutory lien on the property of the road in favor of the bondholder, nor did any broker ever ask me any such question or make any such claim. I afterwards sold the balance of 103 bonds at par. These bonds were all sold prior to the year 1852, and during the year 1851. The 103 bonds which were last sold were sold at par or a little above. The Bank of Tennessee, of a branch of which at Knoxville I was President, was the fiscal agent of the State, and belonged wholly to the State, received revenues and made its disbursements in the payment of its judicial and executive officers, and in the payment of its coupons on its bonds. The proceeds of the bonds I personally disbursed. I have no connection with or interest in the railroads of the State of Tennessee, their stocks or their bonds.

And further deponent saith not.

Deposition of John M. Fleming. 1

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, }
Eastern District of Tennessee. } ss.:

Be it remembered, that on the 26th day of September, 1879, before me, Clerk of the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Tennessee, at my office, personally came JOHN M. FLEMING, witness on the part and behalf of the defendants in a certain suit now depending, and undetermined, in the Circuit Court of the United States for the 2
Western district of Tennessee, wherein Calvin Amory Stevens, et al., on the part of the holders of Internal Improvement bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co., are complainants, and the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company et al. are defendants, to depose and the truth to say in said suit. And thereupon the said John M. Fleming, being of lawful age and sound mind, being by me first cautioned and sworn to testify the truth. the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, touching the matters in controversy in said suit, did, in answer to the interrogatories and cross-inter- 3 rogatories propounded to him, depose and say as follows:

1*st Inter*. What is your place of residence, and how long have you resided here?

2*d Inter*. Have you any connection with or interest in any of the railroads of the State, their stocks or securities?

3*d Inter*. How long have you been a resident of the State, and what has been your occupation since you were 21? 4

4*th Inter*. Were you a member of the General

5 Assembly of the State of Tennessee during the years 1869 and '70, and what official position did you hold in that Assembly?

5th Inter. State the facts, reasons and public sentiments of the State which caused that General Assembly to pass the Act of January 20th, 1870, amendatory of the Act of 10th of March, 1869, enabling the railroads to retire their debts to the State and also the Act for the sales of delinquent roads at the suit of the State?

6 6th Inter. State whether any corrupt influences within your knowledge were used by the railroad companies, or their officials, or any of their agents to induce that legislation?

7th Inter. State who were appointed Commissioners of the State by the bills to foreclose the delinquent roads, and why were the three men elected who were?

8th Inter. State any other fact or facts which you may know which will throw light upon the inquiries 7 already propounded to you.

Answer to Inter. 1. I reside in Knoxville, and have lived here since May, 1855.

Ans. to 2d. None whatever.

Ans. to 3d. I was born in Tennessee, and with the exception of ten or twelve years during my boyhood, have lived within the State all my life. I am forty-six years of age. Since attaining my majority my occupation has been that of an editor and 8 lawyer; have been twice a member of the State Legislature, and for two years was State Superintendent of Public Instruction. For about twelve years, closing December, 1878, I was editor of a daily political paper in Knoxville.

Ans. to Inter. 4. I was a member of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee for 1869–70, and a portion of 1871, and held the official position of Chairman of the House Committee on Judiciary. 9

Ans. to Inter. 5. In answer to this interrogatory I can state in general terms and somewhat in detail "the facts and reasons" that influenced my own action as a member of the General Assembly, and, as I believe, the action of those of other members constituting a majority of the body with whom I co-operated in effecting the legislation referred to.

The General Assembly of 1869-70, when it met in October, 1869, found the State of Tennessee in a deplorable financial condition. The political and 10 social condition of the State from the close of the war up to that time may be described as having been one of disorder. The people were much and widely divided in sentiment, and the majority, for political reasons, had been deprived of the right of suffrage by State Legislature enactments. Pending this state of affairs the Legislature had made very liberal appropriations to works of internal improvements (at the instance, it is proper to say, in many cases of the disfranchised element), so 11 that on the first Monday in October, 1869, when the General Assembly met, it was found that our State debt, actual and contingent, had swollen to the appalling volume of about $40,000,000 to $42,000,000. The State Treasury was empty, the resources of the State for purposes of revenue were very much reduced, in consequence of the demoralization of our labor system and other causes, and the people were neither in a condition nor humor to submit to a heavy rate of taxation. 12

The State had made default in the payment of interest the previous July, and its bonds in consequence were much depreciated in the financial markets. The General Assembly found itself confronted with the alternative of providing for the payment of the interest on the debt, or of repudiating or indefinitely postponing it in whole or in 13 part. The idea of repudiation was not seriously entertained by the majority of the body, and yet it seemed utterly impracticable to provide for the interest upon the face of the debt as it then stood.

To reduce the debt, therefore, to a manageable condition became a study. Upon investigation only about $120,000 of bonds were ascertained to have been illegally and fraudulently issued, and the payment of those were interdicted. The validity of the remainder of the debt was practically recognized, 14 and the Legislature went to work to so take care of the debt as to preserve the honor of the State. An examination of the general situation disclosed the fact that a number of railroad companies to which liberal loans of bonds had been made had become hopelessly insolvent. They had ceased to pay interest on the loans, their roads were unfinished and in the hands of Receivers appointed by the Governor, under the terms of the General Internal Improvement Acts. These roads, instead 15 of paying expenses, were a burden upon the State Treasury. The rolling stock was wearing out without hope of replenishment, and the roads themselves rapidly going to decay. I had, myself, for several months before my election advocated through my newspaper the sale of all the defaulting roads as a measure of good State economy, and I was the author of the original bill providing for their sale.

My recollection is that the original bill, which was by no means perfect, but only designed as the 16 basis upon which to elaborate a more perfect bill, was drafted by me in my own room, and offered in the House, without consultation with any one. The original bill was referred to the Judiciary Committee, to which committee I presented a more elaborate bill as a substitute for the original, and my recollection is that the latter bill was reported by the committee in lieu of the original, and with some amendments finally became a law. The Commissioners appointed by the act, having selected their attorneys, undertook to proceed with their duties, but discovered, as they reported, that the law was insufficient, inasmuch as proper authority for proceeding in chancery for foreclosure had not been confirmed by the act. Thereupon a new bill, prepared, I believe, by the Commissioners and their attorneys, was presented and enacted, and under that law the defaulting roads were sold. The purpose of their sale, as before intimated, was to save as much as possible of the State's failing securities and utilize them in the reduction of the bonded debt. Subsequently to the introduction of the bill above described, and before its passage, the bill was introduced, which became a law on the 20th of January, 1870, enabling the debtor railroads to retire their indebtedness by discharging it with bonds of a series. This act was designed to remove and did remove the restriction that had been placed upon the railroad companies by the proviso to the act of 10th March, 1869, which restriction limited the payments by railroad companies, that had issued second mortgage bonds, to the same series of bonds to which the bonds belonged that had been issued to them. It was not considered that the bill (the act of July 20th, 1870) conferred any new rights or privileges upon the companies, but that it simply restored the privilege enjoyed under the Sinking Fund clause of the Internal Improvement Act of 1852, under which it was understood the railroad companies had discharged their amount indebtedness for years in bonds of the State without regard to series. This principle had been recognized from the establishment of our Internal Improvement System, by both the Executive and Legislative departments of State, and the General Assembly of 1869-70, in passing the Act of January

19

20

21 2d, 1870, did not regard it as any innovation upon the long settled policy of the commonwealth in regard to such settlements. But a few years before, the State, with the concurrence of all departments of the Government (the Attorney-General having sanctioned the proceeding), had settled with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, receiving bonds in payment without regard to series.
And this settlement was made by virtue of the provisions of the Act of 1852 and amendments thereto, 22 above referred to. This Act of Jan. 20th, was be-lived to be inherently just but there was another consideration moving the Legislature to its enactment.
The called solvent roads that were expected to avail themselves of its provisions were in an embarrassed condition. They had but recently been restored from military possession to the possession of the companies. They were struggling for rehabilitation under very discouraging circumstances. There was a general desire for their resuscitation and re-estab-23 lishment as permanent thoroughfares for our commerce, but it was apprehended that under the pressure of accumulated debt and impaired credit they would soon be compelled to suspend their payments to the State, be classified as defaulting roads, and pass into the hands of receivers, and ultimately be sacrificed at immense loss both to the State and the companies, and in their view of the case it was regarded as a measure of sound and healthful policy for all the interests involved to accept from the so-24 called solvent companies in discharge of their debts the bonds of the State, of any series, and to permit them to issue pro tanto their own first mortgage bonds, the two-fold object having the reduction of the debt of our State and the rehabilitation of our railroad system. These two measures, the bill to sell the defaulting railroads, and the bill to enable railroad companies to retire their debts, were regarded as kindred measures, and progressed almost 25 pari passu, though differing considerably in the date of final passage. The friends of one measure were generally the friends of the other, the purpose in the minds of the majority being to reduce the volume of the public debt to manageable proportions, and to marshal all available assets of the State for that purpose. As a result of the operation of the two measures the volume of the debt was reduced to about $20,000,000, a sum which, with judicious management, I think might have been car- 26 ried by the State with comparative ease. Such are the principal facts and reasons that influenced my own action, and, as I believe, controlled the action of the majority of the members of the General Assembly of 1869–70. In regard to the legislature referred to in the interrogatory as to the "public sentiments of the State" in reference to the two measures, I can only say that while they were pending they seemed to command almost universal approval. Their passage was certainly generally acqui- 27 esced in. It was not until after the refunding of the State debt in 1873, when there arose a somewhat clamorous outcry against the validity of portions of the public debt, that there was manifested any serious popular dissatisfaction with either of the measures referred to. Notwithstanding the investigation of a joint select committee, of which I was a member, had shown that in some cases there had been irregularities in the procurement of bonds from the State, the legality of their issuance and the val- 28

idity of the debt had not been seriously disputed until 1873, as before stated, nor had the propriety and wisdom of the legislature referred to until then become a subject of grave popular complaint. Such is my recollection.

Ans. to Inter. 6.—No such influences were used by any of said parties within my knowledge.

29 Ans. to Inter. 7.—The commissioners appointed by the Legislature to sell the defaulting railroads were Hon. R. J. McKinney, Hon. Archibald Wright and Hon. Francis B. Fogg. The first two named had been Judges of our Supreme Court of Tennessee, and the last named was a lawyer of advanced age and marked eminence. All three were conspicuous personages in the Commonwealth, in whose integrity the whole population had confidence. It was because of their ability and universally recog-
30 nized incorruptibility that they were selected as commissioners by the General Assembly.

Ans. to Inter. 8.—I believe no other material and relevant fact occurs to me calculated to throw light upon the inquiries propounded to me.

And further deponent saith not.

creditors of said railroad companies, and also that the names and residences of a number of persons interested in the said before-named roads or railroad companies are also unknown, although 18 diligent inquiry has been made to ascertain the same. It is, therefore, in pursuance of the provisions of an act of the legislature of the State of Tennessee, passed on the 21st day of December, 1870, Entitled "An Act to amend the Act of 1870, Chapter 79, for the State's interest in delinquent railroad companies," passed July 1, 1870, and also in further pursuance of a decree rendered by the Chancery Court at Nashville, in the above-entitled cause rendered on the 15th day of 19 April, 1871, and of the allegation and prayer of the original and amended and supplemental bills in the cause, ordered that the said above-named defendants, Bristol, Stedman & Co. and A. L. Maxwell and all of said unknown stockholders, holders of bonds issued by the State to said companies, and other persons interested in said several roads or railroad companies before named, enter their appearance herein, on or before the seventh Monday of the present Term of this Court, being the 15th day of 20 May next, 1871, said day being a Rule day for the return of processes and for the publication in lieu thereof, by order of the Chancellor of said Court, in pursuance of the law in such cases made and provided, and that all of said defendants, or so many of them of the different classes as the Court may deem sufficient to represent all of each class,

21 be required to appear and put in such defense to said bills as they may respectively deem proper under the provisions of said act of December, 21, 1870, or the original and Amended and Supplemental Bills will be taken for confessed as to them, and set for hearing ex parte, and that a copy of this order be published for four consecutive weeks in the Nashville Union & American, and the Republican Banner.

Deposition of Ex-Governor James D. Porter. 1

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Mississippi Central & Tennessee Railroad Company, 2

vs.

THE CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS & NEW ORLEANS RAILROAD COMPANY et al.

Before JOHN C. SWEENY, Notary Public in and for Henry County, Tennessee. 3

At Paris, Tennessee; taken in pursuance of an agreement of counsel.

Present—JAMES FENTRESS, of counsel for defendant.

EX-GOVERNOR JAMES D. PORTER, a witness produced on the part of the defendants, being by me first duly cautioned and sworn as a witness in the 4 above-entitled suit, to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, deposes and says:

5 1 Q. State your age and residence?

A. I am fifty years of age, and reside at Paris, Tennessee.

2 Q. Are you familiar with the past history, politics and policy of the State of Tennessee, particularly as to her system of Internal Improvements, and if so, please state your means of knowing,—the offices, if any, that you have held in said State, and when and whether her internal improvement system was or not a leading feature in her politics and 6 policy?

A. I am familiar with the history, politics and policy of the State; I am a native of the State of Tennessee, and have been an active participant in the affairs of the State for more than twenty years;
I was a member of the State Legislature for the years 1859–60–61; was a member of the Constiutional Convention of 1870; during the year last named, I was elected Judge of the Twelfth Judicial Circuit of the State for the term of eight years, and 7 after a service of three and a half years I resigned and soon thereafter I was nominated and elected Governor of the State, and was again elected in the year 1876 for a second term; in these several offices I had much to do with the Internal Improvement system of the State, and in the construction of the laws providing for that system during my service as Governor; I was ex officio a member of the Board of Commissioners for the sale of delinquent railroads, and read critically all acts of the Legislature 8 relating to the subject; the settlement of the public debt of the State created in aid of the construction of our turnpike and railroad system was the hope and leading thought of my administration, and to aid in this settlement I made a careful examination of the several series of bonds to test in my own mind the propriety and validity of their issuance and the liability of the State for their payment;

during my term of office as Governor, the public 9 debt, just referred to, was the leading question discussed upon the hustings, by the Press and the Legislature; In my last message to the Legislature I stated that it was "paramount to all questions of legislation that can engage the attention of the General Assembly."

3 Q. Please state how long the Internal Improvement system has been the leading question before the Governors and Legislatures and people of Tennessee? 10

A. It was an important question from 1829 to 1834; since the last date it has been a leading question before the people and in the legislature; the Constitution of the State, adopted in 1834, enjoined the establishment of an effective system of Internal Improvement.

4 Q. Please give an outline of the different schemes which were discussed before the people and in the Press and by the Legislature of the State of Tennessee for carrying out the Internal Improvement 11 system of the State?

A. The first scheme discussed and adopted was the one inaugurated in 1829, providing for the appointment of six Commissioners of Internal Improvement, who were to determine what improvements were necessary, and what amount of money should be appropriated; this scheme continued in force until 1834, when a new constitution was adopted; under its provisions the public demanded a new system, which was provided by the Act of 12 1835, authorising the construction of railroads and turnpikes, and making the State a stockholder to the amount of one-third of the stock, payable in bonds of the State, in cases where the balance of the stock was subscribed by the company; by the act of 1837-8, the State took half of the stock in the improvements thereafter made, upon the same terms as provided by the Act of 1835; these acts were re-

13 pealed by the Act of 1839–40; by the Act of 1847–8 the State was authorized to aid Internal Improvements upon terms therein prescribed by endorsing the bonds of such companies as brought themselves within the provisions of the act. This act continued in force with some slight modifications until 1851–2, when in response to a public sentiment that had been aroused to a point of enthusiasm, a general system of Internal Improvements was provided and the railroad system of Tennessee created.

14 5 Q. Why, if you know, was each scheme abandoned and its successor adopted. Particularly, why was the scheme enacted by the Acts of Tennessee of 1847–8, Chapter CLXIX, Section 2, et seq., modified by Acts of 1849–50, Chapter XLII, Section 11, et seq, and abandoned by Acts of 1851–2, Chapter CLI?

A. The schemes provided from 1829 to 1851–2 were abandoned as soon as they were fairly tested, because they failed to meet their promise or the 15 expectation of the country. The scheme of 1847–8, was abandoned because no market could be found for endorsed bonds at anything like their par value.

6 Q. State if you know what was and has been the practical construction by the State of the Acts of 1851–2; please answer fully?

A. The construction given to this Act by the State authorities, and by all departments of the State government has been uniform; the said Act provided for a sinking fund, to be paid by the several 16 roads to which State aid had been granted, to be used in retiring the debt thus created; under this Act the sinking fund could be, and was, paid for several years in any of the bonds of the State; the bonds issued by the State to rebuild the roads after their destruction during the late war were accorded the same dignity as the bonds issued to build the roads before the war, and the same lien is fixed by Statute 17 upon the roads in favor of the State for both series; the State claimed and exercised the right of selling the delinquent roads without regard to the holders of the bonds, and reserved the right of doing anything necessary to protect the interest of the State; under said Act there is no provision to distingush the bonds issued to one road from those issued to any other road, and in cases of the sale of railroads or the payment of money by Receivers, the proceeds have in every instance been turned over to the State 18 without regard to the holders of the bonds of the State.

7 Q. Have you been acquainted with the market value of bonds of the State of Tennessee since 1851-2?

A. I am, and have been acquainted with the market value of our State bonds since 1851-2.

8 Q. Please state what difference, if any, was made in the money markets between Tennessee
bonds: 19

(1) Issued to build the capital;

(2) To buy the Hermitage;

(3) To the Union Bank;

(4) To the Bank of Tennessee;

(5) To Agricultural Bureau; 20

(6) To Turnpike Companies; and

(7) To Railroad Companies?

A. There has been no difference in the market value of the several series of bonds named in the interrogatory, except in the instance where the 21 bonds carried only five per cent. interest, which was true of some of them; generally they carried six per cent.; all bonds carrying five per cent. were of of equal value, and all carrying six were of equal value.

9 Q. Has there ever been any difference in value in the money markets between State bonds issued in aid of insolvent railroads and those issued in aid of solvent railroads; or between bonds issued to build the Capital, buy the Hermitage or to 22 establish the Agricultural Bureau, and either of the before mentioned bonds?

A. The bonds issued to solvent and insolvent railroads enjoy the same dignity, and there has not been the slightest difference in their market value, and both have rated in the money market at the same price as the bonds issued for the building of the State Capital; those for the purchase of the Hermitage, and those issued to the Agricultural Bureau.

23 10 Q. Do you know any railroad to which State bonds were issued which was not at the time of such issuance, or at any time since, worth the amount of the bonds issued to it; if so, give an instance; also give an instance, if there is any, in which a railroad was worth the amount of bonds issued to it at the time of such issuance and has so continued ever since?

A. The Tennessee & Alabama Railroad, the McMinnville & Manchester, the Tennessee & Pacific, 24 the Knoxville & Charleston, the Rogersville & Jefferson, the Knoxville & Kentucky, the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap & Charleston, the East Tennessee & Western North Carolina Railroads, were never worth the amount of bonds issued to them respectively by the State, or half of the amount issued; the Louisville & Nashville, the Mississippi & Tennessee, the Nashville & Chattanooga, the Memphis & Ohio, and the Nashville & Decatur, are instances of railroads that have at all times been con- 25

sidered of equal or of greater value than the amount of bonds issued to them respectively by the State of Tennessee.

11 Q. Has the State of Tennessee ever defaulted in the payment of interest on all her bonded indebtedness; if so, when, and for how long?

A. The State defaulted on the interest due during the late war, and upon all instalments of interest upon the entire bonded debt (except small amounts 26 held by educational and charitable institutions) with the exceptions of about four millions ($4,000,000) of dollars of interest paid during the years 1866-7-8-9, and the instalments maturing July, 1874, January, 1875, and July, 1875.

12 Q. After the State of Tennessee had been in default on her interest, was there not at any time a difference in the market value of bonds issued to solvent railroads, and those issued to insolvent railroads, or those issued to build the capital? 27

A. The default of the State did not affect the relative value of the bonds issued by the State for any purpose or enterprise.

13 Q. Did you ever hear prior to or during your administration as Governor of Tennessee, of any holder of bonds issued by the State in aid of railroads claiming or intimating that he claimed that such bonds were a lien on the railroads to which they were issued; if so, who, and when?

A. No such claim or demand was ever made, and 28
I never heard that such a claim was made until about the time of the institution of this suit.

14 Q. How long prior to the institution of this suit did you hear of such claim of lien?

A. Within a few weeks.

15 Q. Did you, while Governor of Tennessee, have

29 any correspondence with the holders of Tennessee bonds, and if so, did they not in such correspondence claim that their bonds were secured by a lien on the railroads to which they were issued ?

A. I had an extensive correspondence with the holders of our State bonds; not one of them intimated an opinion that the railroads were in any event liable for the bonds issued to them, or that a lien was reserved on the roads for their payment.

16 Q. Did the State at any time institute legal 30 proceedings to enforce the lien which she reserved in her Internal Improvement laws against any railroad on account of the aid furnished it, if so, when; and were said roads sold, and if so, what roads, and when ?

A. In January, 1871, the State filed a bill in the Chancery Court at Nashville, against the Edgefield and Kentucky, the Nashville and Northwestern, the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville, the McMinnville and Manchester, the Winchester and Alabama, 33 the Southwestern or Southern, the Knoxville and Kentucky, the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston, the Knoxville and Charleston, the Rogersville and Jefferson, and the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina Railroads to enforce the lien reserved by the State for the bonds issued to them respectively; sales of these roads were made at different times during the next few years succeeding the date of the filing of the bill; the last sale was that of the Knoxville and Charleston Railroad, 32 made under my own direction in the year 1876.

17 Q. When these railroads were sold, how were the proceeds of sale disposed of by the State; state also whether any bondholder claimed that such proceeds ought to be applied to payment of his bond ?

A. The roads were paid for by their purchasers in any of the bonds of the State, and they were cancelled and filed in the office of the Comptroller of the Treasury; no bondholder claimed proceeds of these 33 sales for any purpose.

18 Q. How was the Tennessee Pacific Railroad disposed of by the State, was it sold; if not, what arrangement was made as to it?

A. The Legislature passed an Act relinquishing the lien of the State on the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad on the payment of three hundred thousand dollars ($300,000) in the bonds of the State; one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000) in bonds was paid when the contract was made, and 34 in the year 1876 it was sold under my direction to the highest bidder at public out-cry for the balance of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and interest, and was paid for in the bonds of the State.

19 Q. Have you any interest in the bonds of the State of Tennessee or in the stock of any railroad; state also whether you had, while Governor of Tennessee, any bonds of the State of Tennessee or any stock in any railroad?

A. I have no interest in Tennessee bonds, neither 35 have I in the stock of any railroad, and did not have during my terms of office as Governor.

20 Q. State, if you know, whether the State of Tennessee, under her Internal Improvement laws, took possession of any railroad in Tennessee by Receivers, and if so, when, and what roads?

A. Receivers were appointed for the Nashville and Northwestern, the Edgefield and Kentucky, the Mississippi Central, the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville, the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and 36
Charleston, the Knoxville and Charleston, the Knoxville and Kentucky, the Winchester and Alabama, the McMinnville and Manchester, the Rogersville and Jefferson Railroads; I cannot now answer as to the date of the appointment of Receivers, but all of the roads mentioned were in the hands of Receivers for several years except the Mississippi Central, and

37 they were so held and operated until they were sold under a decree of the Chancery Court at Nashville under proceedings instituted in 1871.

21 Q. State whether the State in the selection or appointment of any Receiver to take charge of a railroad under her Internal Improvement laws, in any way consulted with any holder of her bonds as to the propriety of such step?

A. I am satisfied that no holder of any bonds of the State was ever recognized as being interested 38 in the question, and that none of them ever claimed the right of making a suggestion as to the duty of the State; in the case of the Mississippi Central Railroad, the Receiver was appointed upon my own motion, as a means of protection to the State;
no holder of the bonds of the State was consulted;
no one of them advised me or suggested what course to pursue, and as payments were made by the Receiver, the amount of them was passed into the Treasury without any expression of dissent or ap-39 proval from the holders of our bonds.

22 Q. When you appointed a Receiver of the Mississippi Central Railroad, how many of the bonds claimed to have been issued to it and the Mississippi Central and Tennessee Railroad by the State were then outstanding? If you cannot state how many exactly, give as near as you can the amount?

A. A large number of the bonds issued to this road—about half of them—had been cancelled, when the Receiver was appointed.

40 23 Q. Did you appoint the Receiver and seize and hold the Mississippi Central Railroad for the amount of unpaid outstanding bonds or for the whole amount of all the debt created by the issuance of State Bonds to such road, without regard to whether the bonds issued to such road had been paid in to the State and cancelled or not?

A. In dealing with this road I paid no attention to the fact that about half of the original issue had 41 been cancelled; the cancelled bonds had been paid in on the sinking fund account of this and other roads or paid in by other railroad companies, turnpike companies or others, in satisfaction of debts due from them to the State; and when final settlement was made by the purchaser of this road, the debt of the State, being the amount of the bonds loaned to this Company, amounting to one million one hundred and ninety-nine thousand one hundred and eighty dollars ($1,199,180) principal, with the 42 interest, was paid to the State in State Bonds.

24 Q. Did or not the State authorize sureties on the bonds of defaulting officers of the State to pay into the State any of her outstanding bonds and coupons? And, if so, were any State Bonds so paid in?

A. This authority was accorded by the Acts of 1875 and 1877 to sureties of defaulting revenue officers; a considerable number of bonds were paid in and cancelled under this authority; these pay- 43
ments were made in any series of registered or funded bonds.

25 Q. Did the State by its Receiver in charge of the Mississippi Central Railroad collect any amount of money above its running expenses? And if so, what amount?

A. The State collected from the Receiver of this road one hundred and ten thousand dollars ($110,000) in currency over and above running expenses? 44

26 Q. What was done with said $110,000? Did the State hold it as a trust fund?

A. It was passed into the State Treasury as ordinary revenue, and used and appropriated in the same manner. No trust relation was recognized by the State authorities in connection with said fund.

45 27 Q. Did you as Governor of Tennessee call public attention to the fact that said $110,000, or any part thereof had been collected by the State in money from said railroad? And if so, how and when?

A. In my message to the Fortieth General Assembly of the State, delivered January 1st, 1877, I communicated the fact that the Mississippi Central Railroad had defaulted on two installments of interest due on the bonds loaned to the Company by 46 the State, and that I had appointed a Receiver, who had taken possession of the road, and that he had up to that time paid into the Treasury of the State sixty thousand dollars ($60,000) in currency. This message was copied very generally by the newspapers of Tennessee and by a number of leading papers out of the State.

28 Q. Had the holders of Tennessee Bonds been in correspondence with you at or before that time? And if so, state whether you made any mention of 47 such correspondence in the same message in which you mentioned the appointment of a Receiver of the Mississippi Central Railroad, and the payment by him as such of $60,000 to the State, as stated in your last answer?

A. I had been in correspondence with the holders of our bonds, and in the message referred to in last answer I communicated a part of this correspondence to the Legislature.

29 Q. Please file as part of this your deposition 48 said message?

(A. The message is filed herewith, marked "Exhibit 1, J. D. P.")

30 Q. I see on page twelve of said printed message that you state "Negotiations are now pending "by which the past due interest and sinking fund "due from this Company, and possibly the princi-"pal not yet due, will be paid at an early day."

Now please state whether the said message came to 49
the knowledge of the holders of Tennessee Bonds, if you know, and particularly, whether the said message came to the knowledge of the complainant, C. Amory Stevens ?

A. This message did come to the knowledge of many of our creditors; I know it from the fact that in February, after its delivery, I received a communication signed by C. Amory Stevens, and more than twenty others, submitting through me to the Legislature and people of Tennessee a series of 50 propositions looking to an adjustment of the State debt, in which they propose that certain reforms recommended in said message be enacted into a law.

31 Q. Will you please file said written communication as a part of this your deposition ?

A. I file the communication; marked "Exhibit 2, J. D. P."

32 Q. Did complainant (C. Amory Stevens) or any other bondholder request you, as Governor, to set apart said $60,000 to the payment of the bonds held 51
by them or in any way intimate that they, as such holders, had any claim on said fund or any fund realized from the Mississippi Central Railroad under the State Receivership ? If so, state it ?

A. Neither C. Amory Stevens nor any other creditor of the State ever made any request or suggestion in relation to said fund. These parties were treating with the State as their debtor, and never intimated then or at any subsequent period during my administration that the State held the relation of trustee or 52 thatthey had any claim upon said fund.

33 Q. Did you mention the fact that the Internal Improvement Debt of the Mississippi Central Railroad had been paid to the State in any of your public messages to the Legislature ? If so, when ? State also whether such message was brought to the attention of the holders of Tennessee bonds, if you know ?

53 A. I communicated the fact, that the debt of the Mississippi Central Railroad had been paid to the Legislature in a message of December 5th, 1877, and in another message of January 6th, 1879; the Legislature was convened in extra session on the 5th December, 1877; I was in correspondence with our creditors before this call was made, and the leading ones were generally advised of my purpose to make it; Messrs. Eugene Kelly, E. D. Morgan and Company and others requested me by letter 54 to make the call, and I take it that they read my message; it was generally published.

34 Q. You speak of a very extensive correspondence between you as Governor and the State authorities of Tennessee with the holders of Tennessee bonds; please state whether they made any proposition of settlement of the whole bonded debt of the State? And if they made more than one proposition, state each, with a short chronological history of whether such proposition was entertained or 55 acted on by the State or its authorities?

A. Immediately after my inauguration as Governor in January, 1875, the creditors of the State commenced a correspondence with me in relation to the public debt; after the default was made in the payment of the interest in July of that year, this correspondence increased in volume and in interest, until the 20th of December, 1876, a number of the leading creditors of New York addressed a letter to me, asking me to recommend the appointment of a 56 commission to visit New York to confer with holders of Tennessee bonds with the view of an adjustment of the debt; I made this recommendation to the Legislature; after some hesitation and delay, and a second appeal by creditors (dated 15th February, 1877), the commission was appointed by the Legislature; this commission visited New York, and on the 8th March, 1877, met with a committee of arbiters appointed at a meeting held at the Clearing 57

House on the 20th of January, 1877, and after a discussion by the two committees, the arbiters recommended an adjustment of the State debt at the rate of sixty per cent. of the total amount, and forwarded their recommendation in writing to me; after ascertaining that this recommendation for settlement was acceptable to the creditors, upon the completion of the assessment of the property of the State for taxation, I convened the Legislature in extra session, and submitted this proposition and recommended its 58 adoption with the utmost earnestness in a message dated the 5th of December, 1877, which is filed herewith as "Exhibit No. 3, J. D. P.;" after a delay of several days by the Legislature in discussing this proposition, it was clearly demonstrated that it would be rejected, and that the body would adjourn without accomplishing anything; about the 10th of December several creditors appealed to me to submit a proposition for settlement at the rate of fifty per cent. of the whole debt; I hesitated, fearing 59 that this propostion would not be acceptable to the creditors; the following day I received a telegram from C. Amory Stevens, one of the large holders of Tennessee bonds, urging me to submit the fifty cent settlement to the Legislature and assuring me that it would be acceptable to the investment holders of our bonds; thereupon, I intimated a request to the Legislature to adjourn, and immediately convened that body in extra session a second time, submitted the last-named proposition and recommended 60 its acceptance in a message dated December 12th, 1877; said message is filed herewith as "Exhibit
No. 4, J. D. P.;" the Legislature adjourned without making the settlement and during the remainder of my official term I maintained a correspondence with the creditors of the State.

35 Q. Did any of the New York holders of State bonds come in person and visit you or the Legisla-

61 ture of Tennessee at Nashville in the fall or winter of 1877? If so name some of them and state if you know what was their business in Nashville at such time; state also if you know whether they personally urged legislation looking to a settlement of all the bonded debt of the State?

A. There were several holders or representatives of holders of Tennessee bonds present at Nashville in December, 1877, during the sessions of the Legislature mentioned in my answer to last interrogatory;
62 I do not remember the names of any of them except that of Mr. P. Geddes; they were here to aid as far as they could in effecting a settlement of the State debt.

36 Q. Do you mean by "P. Geddes," Peter Geddes, of New York, member of the "Committee of Tennessee Bondholders," and member of the firm of Geddes & Smith? And if so, was he in conference with you at said time? State also whether he was or not fully advised on the condition of the bonded 63 debt of the State, and particularly whether he knew of the proposed settlement of the Internal Improvement Debt of the Mississippi Central Railroad to the State, if you know?

A. In referring to P. Geddes in answer to last interrogatory, I allude to Peter Geddes, of the firm of Geddes & Smith, of New York City; he was in daily conference with me at the time of his visit; he was well informed in all matters relating to the State debt, and I conferred with him with perfect frank-64 ness; he was fully advised of the proposed settlement of the debt of the Mississippi Central Railroad—indeed the first intimation I had of a purpose to discharge this debt within a certain fixed time came from Mr. Geddes in a letter from him to the Comptroller of the Treasury which was sub, mitted to me.

37 Q. Are the letters and telegrams from holders of Tennessee bonds incorporated with your messages of December 5th, and December 12th, 1877, true 65 copies of such letters and telegrams ?

A. They are.

38 Q. Please state whether the letters signed by Mr. Geddes and dated August 1st, 1877, August 23d, 1877, August 27th, 1877, and August 29th, 1877, addressed to James L. Gaines, or James L. Gaines, comptroller, were ever seen by you ? If so, when and under what circumstances. Please also file a true copy of each of said letters, as part of your deposition ? 66

A. The letters named in the interrogatory from Mr. Geddes were received in due time by mail, and immediately submitted to me; the several answers to them were written at my request, and first submitted to me for approval; true copies of said letters are filed herewith as "Exhibits No. 5, 6, 7, 8, J. D. P."

39 Q. In the letter of August 27, 1877, Mr. Geddes refers to an interview which he had just had with Mr. Osborn. What Mr. Osborn did you understand 67
he referred to in said letter, and what connection, if any, did he have with the purchasers of the Mississipi Central Railroad ?

A. I understood him to refer to W. H. Osborn, president of defendant, the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans Railroad.

40 Q. In the letter of Geddes and Smith and E. D. Morgan & Co., of February 23d, 1877, addressed to you as Governor, it was suggested that the debtors of the State be required in "a reasonable time, say 68 by or before July 1st, 1877, to pay off every obligation due from them to the State as they may now do," etc. What debtors and obligations does this refer to ? Please make a true copy of said letter a part of this your deposition.

A. The reference was to the railroads to which bonds for their construction or equipment had been

69 loaned; I file a copy of the said letter, marked "Exhibit 9, J. D. P."

41 Q. In Peter Geddes' letter of August 27th, 1877, aforesaid, he refers to the paying off the lien of Tennessee on the Mississippi Central Railroad, and states that there was little doubt that the last of Tennessee's advances to railroads would be paid off that fall, and that it was quite well understood in New York, "thus freeing her, and her creditors too, for that matter, from a very troublesome disorder."
70 Please state whether from your interviews and correspondence with holders of Tennessee bonds they intimated any objection to railroads paying off the State's lien on account of Internal Improvement aid, or whether they favored it?

A. No objection was ever made by the holders of Tennessee bonds to the settlements made by the State with the railroads; on the contrary, my understanding derived from my correspondence with them was that they agreed with me in the importance of 71 a settlement with all the roads at the earliest day.

42 Q. Did the complainant, Calvin Amory Stevens, have any correspondence with you? If so, please file copies of such letters, circulars, etc., as he sent you in February 1, 1877, January, 1878, and December, 1877, at the time the special sessions of the Legislature were in session. Please file the original circulars, if any, and the envelopes in which such were enclosed, and make such letters and circulars Exhibits to this your deposition?

72 A. The first communication from complainant is dated February 15, 1877, and is "Exhibit 2" to this deposition; the next is incorporated in "Exhibit 4" of this deposition, and is dated December 11th, 1877; the next two are dated December 15th, one a letter, the other a telegram; they are here filed as "Exhibits 10 and 11, J. D. P"; the next is a circular, dated July 19, 1878; I mark said circular with the envelope in which it was received as "Exhibit 12, J. D. 73

P"; the next is a letter of January 25th, 1878, marked "Exhibit 13, J. D. P," enclosing certain newspaper clippings with headings in complainant's handwriting, which are here filed as part of the last-named exhibit.

43 Q. Did you acknowledge receipt by letter of complainant's letters of January 24th and 25th, 1878, if so, file a copy of such letter?

A. I answered said letters; a copy of my answer is here filed as Exhibit 14, J. D. P. 74

44 Q. You refer in Exhibit 14 to a letter of 24th January, 1878, written by complainant to you; please file said letter and also copy of your letter of 19th January, 1878, to Mr. Manning, to which you refer, which you say was furnished complainant.

A. I file copy of letter to Mr. Manning, marked "Exhibit 15, J. D. P.," and copy of letter from Mr. Stevens, marked "Exhibit 20, J. D. P."

45 Q. The complainant in his deposition states 75 that he got two of the bonds sued on from John B. Manning, in fall of 1878; did said Manning have any correspondence with you? if so, please file copies of his letters?

A. I had correspondence with John B. Manning; I file three letters from him, marked "Exhibits 16, 17, 18, J. D. P."

46 Q. Did you have correspondence as to the State debt with other holders of her bonds than those mentioned hereinbefore? 76

A. I had correspondence with many other holders of Tennessee bonds; a large number of letters and telegrams from them in relation to the State debt are on file at the State Capitol.

46 Q. After you had appointed a receiver of the Mississippi Central Railroad were there any propositions to settle with the State by any party; if so, state each and what the State did as to them?

77 A. J. B. Alexander was appointed by the United States Courts of Tennessee, Kentucky and Louisiana Receiver of this road embracing the entire line from Cairo, Illinois, to New Orleans; there was a decree entered in the United States Court at Memphis, authorizing him to pay the defaulted interest to the State; he proposed to pay it, and tendered his check for it; I refused to receive the money and continued to operate the road through the State Receiver until the entire debt, principal and interest, 78 was paid.

48 Q. Did you as Governor of Tennessee make any representations to the purchasers of the Mississippi Central Railroad prior to their purchase as to the debt and lien claimed by the State on said road under her Internal Improvement Acts; if so, state them?

A. The purchaser was informed in advance of the purchase that the State had an exclusive lien on the Tennessee part of the road for the payment of the 79 amount of the bonds loaned to the company, and that under our law, the purchaser could be substituted to the rights of the State upon the payment of the debt; I also informed him that the debt would be paid in Tennessee bonds; at the same time the purchaser was notified that I would not surrender the possession of the road until the entire bonded debt was paid; under our Internal Improvement Acts, the stockholders of the company could recover possession of the road from the State by 80 paying the defaulted interest, but this right did not belong to any of the other parties who were demanding the surrender of the road, and I employed this power to coerce the purchaser to pay off the entire debt.

49 Q. Did you as Governor make any suggestion or representation to said purchasers before the purchase of the Mississippi Central Railroad as to substitution of mortgage bonds to the lien of the State? if so, state it. 81

A. I discussed the question of substitution with the representatives of the purchasers, and stated, pending negotiations for the purchase, that mortgage bonds could be issued by the purchaser and substituted to the lien of the State.

50 Q. Please examine acquittance and assignment here handed you and state whether you, as Governor of Tennessee, and Charles N. Gibbs, as Secretary of State, executed and delivered the same on the day it bears date to the trustees named in the mortgage made by the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans Railroad Company, the defendant, on Nov. 8, 1877? 82

A. The acquittance and assignment mentioned in interrogatory was executed by myself, as governor, and Chas. N. Gibbs, as Secretary of State; at the time it bears date.

51 Q. Please make an Exhibit of said acquittance and receipt to your deposition? 83

A. I file it herewith marked, "Exhibit 19, J. D. P."

And further deponent sayeth not.

EXHIBIT No. 1.—J. D. P. 89

MESSAGE OF JAS. D. PORTER, GOVERNOR OF TENNESSEE, TO THE FORTIETH GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF TENNESSEE.

MESSAGE.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

Assembled in obedience to the laws of Tennessee, 90 to perform the legislative functions of the State Government, you will not, I am confident, be unmindful of their magnitude, or wanting in wisdom or courage for their performance; your action will affect all the great interests of our people, and I promise executive co-operation in all measures you may devise for their relief.

FINANCIAL CONDITION OF THE STATE.

The funded and registered bonds outstanding, 91 amount to $22,812,400; the bonds belonging to East Tennessee University, not required to be registered, amount to $396,000; the fundable bonds and coupons not presented, amount to $1,021,000; the past due interest amounts to $2,088,756; these sums constitute the State debt, and amount to $26,310,156; from this sum is to be deducted $1,671,916, loaned to the Memphis and Charleston Railroad; $1,199,180, loaned to the Mississippi Central Railroad;
$316,774, loaned to the Mississippi and Tennessee 92
Railroad; $14,150, due from purchasers of the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad; $51,125, due from purchasers of Knoxville and Charleston Railroad, and $204,000, due from purchasers of the McMinnville and Manchester Railroad, aggregating $3,458,145, all of which will be paid, leaving as the debt to be provided for, $22,852,011, less $95,636.10, interest

93 from solvent railroads due January 1st, 1877. The outstanding warrant account amounts to $129,060.21, and there is in the Treasury the sum of $139,332.19, in cash, with taxes due and uncollected, amounting to $1,570,659.50.

For a statement in detail of the financial condition of the State, reference is made to the comprehensive reports of the Comptroller and Treasurer, which are herewith transmitted. It will be observed that in the two 94 years past a material reduction has been made in the current expenses of the State, and the estimate made by the Comptroller for the next two years shows that a further reduction will be made; these estimates are based upon existing statutes. In considering this subject, the fact must be remembered that the shrinkage in values has reduced the assessment roll in two years $20,425,835, causing a reduction of $81,703.34 per annum in the revenues of the State; this reduction in values is not alarming;
95 the taxable property of the State is now $268,002,485; this is only four millions and a fraction of a half less than it was in 1872; it is nearly sixteen millions more than it was in 1870, and is forty-five millions more than it was in 1869, and fifty millions more than it was in 1868.

The borrowed money account due at my inauguration, the warrant account, the interest on the school fund, and the interest on bonds of the State held by schools and colleges, has been paid from the 96 revenues of the State. In June preceding the maturity of the interest on the bonded debt, due July 1st, 1875, after it had been ascertained that it was impossible to meet it out of the revenue of the State, under my direction the Comptroller of the Treasury undertook to negotiate the loan of a sum sufficient for that purpose; the terms offered to the State were harsh and unreasonable, and the interest demanded was so exorbitant that it was determined 97 by the executive officers to let the payment go by default, and to rely for the future upon the revenues of the State; since that time no money has been borrowed for any purpose. Default was again made in the payment of the interest due January 1st, 1876, and again for the interest due July 1st, 1876,

and again for the interest due January 1st, 1877.
When the money for the payment of the interest due July 1st, 1874, and January 1st, 1875, was provided, there were balances amounting to about $60,000 98 not presented at the time, and the payment of these balances was deferred until September 15th, 1876; in the preceding month the Comptroller of the Treasury, under my direction, announced the readiness of the State to pay these balances at that time, together with the installment of interest due July 1st, 1875; the Treasurer commenced the payment at the time appointed, and all the coupons of bonds registered to that date that have been presented have been paid. 99

The present rate of taxation will not pay current expenses and meet the interest on the State debt, and the determination on the part of the people is fixed and settled not to increase it. This conclusion results from a want of ability on the part of the taxpayer. The creditors of the State realize the magnitude of our difficulties, and will make such a concession as will make future interest payments easy and certain. Their readiness to adjust the debt is disclosed in the following communication: 100

"NEW YORK, December —, 1876.

"To His Excellency JAMES D. PORTER,
Governor of Tennessee:

SIR:—The undersigned holders of bonds of the State of Tennessee, believing that the

101 best interests of Tennessee, and of her public creditors, will be served by an early permanent adjustment of the claims of such creditors, on a basis honorable to the State and equitable to them, respectfully ask your Excellency, in the full belief that such a settlement is practicable, to recommend that the Legislature of Tennessee, as early as may be possible at its ensuing session, appoint a commission to come to this city and confer with the holders of bonds of the 102 State of Tennessee, for the purposes mentioned herein.

"We remain your Excellency's most ob'd't servants,

"GEO. SMITH, London, England, by GEDDES & SMITH, Agents, etc.
"BROWN BROTHERS & Co., Agents.
"DREXEL, MORGAN & Co., Agents.
"E. D. MORGAN & Co.
"WARD, CAMPBELL & Co.
103 "JAMES G. KING'S SONS,
Agents for Holders.
"GEORGE W. STANTON.
"P. GEDDES."

These parties represent several millions of dollars of the bonds of Tennessee, and are gentlemen authorized to speak and act; and I am assured, from my correspondence with other creditors of the State, that this proposition will 104 be generally acceptable. I earnestly recommend the adoption of the suggestion for a conference with the creditors of the State. The proposition comes from the largest holders of Tennessee bonds. It had its origin with them, and the State can enter upon the negotiation with confidence, and without a sacrifice of her good name. It is of the first importance to the State that this vexed question shall be settled and removed from the politics of the State. It is the one great barrier to present and future prosperity. 105

CRIMINAL EXPENSES.

I renew the recommendation made two years ago to the Thirty-ninth General Assembly, for the passage of an Act requiring the several counties to pay their own criminal expenses. The State has paid for this purpose, during the two years past, the sum of $389,585.63, and during the continuance of 106
our present system there can be no material reduction. Tennessee is one of five, out of thirty-eight States of the Union, where criminal prosecutions are made a charge upon the State Treasury; in thirty-three of them the counties where crimes are committed pay all costs, and the result in these thrty-three States is that the local officers are more active and vigilant in preventing extravagant charges, and I am satisfied that where local responsibility is provided, that bills of cost will be subjected to a scru- 107 tiny they cannot now receive; the Comptroller of the Treasury, in auditing these bills of cost, is only required by law to see that the several items are taxed in accordance with the Statute; if they were referred to the County Judge, or Chairman of the County Court, the necessity for their creation would be discussed, and, it is believed, the criminal law will be administered with more economy, and, by bringing the subject directly before the people, they would stimulate greater vigilance on the part of 108 officials, and require the punishment of criminals to be made with promptness. In cases where rewards are offered by the Governor for the capture of escaped criminals from the County Jails, if the counties were required to pay the reward, it would secure the construction of safe prisons, and more watchfulness on the part of the keepers.

109 THE INFERIOR COURTS.

There are thirty-six Judges of the Inferior Courts of Tennessee. In the neighboring State of Kentucky, with a population greater than our own, with the same character of people, there are twenty-four; compared with the other adjoining States, the inequality is against us in a greater degree. Something is doubtless due to the errors of our system, still it is clear that the inferior courts of the State are too numerous for the amount of business now 110 on their dockets. During the past year I caused circular letters to be addressed to the clerks of these courts, for the purpose of ascertaining the number of causes tried within twelve months, with the number and character of those docketed and undisposed of; about one-third of the clerks responded to these inquiries, and facts sufficiently numerous were elicited to show that a number of courts can be abolished without detriment to the public service.

111 The statements made by the clerks will be placed before you.

COST OF LITIGATION.

Citizens of the State complain that the cost of litigation is so considerable, that they are in many cases deterred from asserting their rights in the courts of the State; the complaint is a well-founded one, and I know of no more acceptable service to the public than the correction of this evil; costs paid by litigants in the courts of Tennessee are fifty 112 per cent. in excess of the costs paid by citizens of several of the adjoining States for the same service, and are unreasonable and excessive, and ought to be reduced.

FEES AND PERQUISITES.

I renew the following recommendation made in my message to the 39th General Assembly: "Much complaint is made by the taxpayers of the State at 113 the amount of fees and perquisites received by many officeholders in Tennessee. The compensation of all public servants should be reasonable, but no place should have attached to it such an income as will justify the employment of corrupt means in obtaining it, and I recommend the passage of a general law, limiting the incomes of all officials to a certain amount, and providing that all fees in excess of the prescribed limit shall be paid into the public treasury. 114

ARBITRATION COMMISSION.

Hon. S. W. Cochran, of Obion County, L. D. McKissick, Esq., of Shelby County, and Howell E. Jackson, Esq., of Madison County, were appointed and commissioned as a Special Commission, under the Act approved 18th February, 1875. In spite of the industry of the Judges of the Supreme Court, and the valuable labors of the Courts of Arbitration for Middle and West Tennessee, the business of the 115 Supreme Court continues to accumulate; under our present system of practice it is uncertain when the docket of this Court can be heard. The number of causes already filed at Nashville would occupy the Court for a year. It is needless to remind you of the fact that this state of things is the reasonable cause of much complaint, and that relief is demanded and expected by the country, not by another resort to temporary and expensive expedients, but by such a change of practice as will secure the citizen 116 against a recurrence of the present state of the docket. The transcript of the records of causes appealed to the Supreme Court are made voluminous by the incorporation of all records and the statement of all facts, material or otherwise, used in the Court below; the result is, that the larger part of the time of the Supreme Court is occupied in read-

117 ing and hearing a discussion of issues not pertinent, when if appellants were required by law to assign reasons for the appeal, by making a simple assignment of errors, the Court would always be advised of the issue involved in the litigation, and would be able to dispatch double the amount of business, and at an immense saving to the taxpayers; the adoption of this suggestion and the re-enactment of the Statute annexing a penalty by way of damages to appeals from judgments for money, will discourage 118 appeals that are not meritorious.

LEGISLATIVE EXPENSES.

Modern legislation has quadrupled the pay of the principal Clerks of the two Houses of the General Assembly for preparing the indexes for the journals and for copying and preparing the same for the printer, without a reason for this increased expenditure. The old standard of compensation was a liberal one, and I recommend a return to it.

119

SCHOOLS FOR THE BLIND AND DEAF AND DUMB.

The annual appropriation of five thousand dollars to each of these schools is no longer necessary; the per capita allowance of two hundred dollars per annum to the pupils of the State, is ample for the support of these schools.

IMMIGRATION.

120 I submit the report of the Commissioner of Immigration. The resources and advantages offered by Tennessee to the immigrant and to the capitalist have been generally and very intelligently advertised during the past two years, resulting in the investment of a large amount of money in our State; many immigrants have been induced to come to the State; they are generally people of substance, who have been attracted by its fertile soil and genial 121 climate. The people have co-operated with the State officials in encouraging immigration, and their own peaceful and hospitable disposition has furnished the argument and the inducement to come to Tennessee.

I recommend the repeal of the act appropriating two thousand dollars to the Bureau of Immigration, and the passage of an act requiring the Commissioner of Agriculture, Statistics and Mines to perform the duties of Commissioner of Immigration, 122 without additional compensation.

APPROPRIATIONS.

I renew the following recommendation made to your predecessors: "Comptroller Burch, in his report to my predecessor, calls attention to the requirements of the Constitution, that money shall only be drawn from the treasury in consequence of appropriations made by law: Constitution, Art. 2, Sec. 24; and also to the requirements of the Code, 123 that the Comptroller shall, at stated times, report 'the unexpended balances of the several appropriations.' Notwithstanding this provision in the Constitution, with a legislative construction clearly indicated in the Code, it is believed that specific appropriations are the exception, and that for many years the public moneys have been expended without the authority contemplated by the Constitution. If that instrument is regarded and estimates required from the executive offices, the Legislature 124 is enabled to see what amounts may be necessary, and can place a check upon expenditures by prescribing a limit beyond which they shall not not go. The mere fact that an appropriation is to be made requires investigation of the amount necessary to be set apart for the purpose, and promotes inquiry into former as well as present expenditures,

125 while the system now practiced does nothing to insure a faithful performance of this important duty. Under the present system the Comptroller complains of the extent of the discretion practically left to him. He is to examine and adjust all accounts and claims against the State which are by law to be paid out of the Treasury: Code, 207, s. s. 1. With a proper system, nothing could be the subject of a warrant but such as had been included in some appropriation made by law." The Supreme 126 Court has declared "that an indebtedness of the State, fixed and recognized by law, was payable out of the Treasury without a specific appropriation."

Still, it is the duty of the General Assembly to make specific appropriations for the various purposes of the State, and relieve the Comptroller of the Treasury of the discretion now necessarily exercised by him.

CONVENTIONAL INTEREST.

127 I recommend the repeal of the law authorizing a conventional rate of interest as high as ten per cent.; the law has failed to meet a single promise of its friends, and its repeal is very generally demanded by the people of the State.

THE PENITENTIARY.

The Act of the Legislature, approved March 22, 1875, provided for a lease of the State prison and labor of the convicts for a period of five years, if 128 the highest bid offered was "satisfactory to the Governor and Inspectors." Notice of the proposed lease was duly made, and proposals invited. Only three bids were made; these were pronounced unsatisfactory, and the whole subject remitted to the General Assembly. I transmit the report of the Governor and Inspectors, with a detailed statement of their action. Subsequently I extended the lease with the present lessees for the period of eight 129 months, for a rental of ten thousand one hundred and eighty-one dollars and seventy-five cents ($10,181.75) quarterly for eight hundred (800) convicts, and for any larger number the rent shall be proportionally increased. Said lease can be vacated by either of the contracting parties, at any time, on giving thirty days' notice in writing. A copy of the lease is herewith transmitted.

The present system of employing convict labor is wrong; but I am not certain that the general senti- 130
ment of the people of Tennessee is not in favor of it. The taxpayers have been so heavily burdened in the past with taxes levied to support this institution, that there is danger that they will acquiesce in any policy, however mistaken or mischievous it may be, that secures them from taxation. If it is determined to lease the labor of the convicts, no authority should be given to the lessees to employ the convicts outside of the prison, unless it is done where secure prisons can be provided, or upon the 131 islands of the Mississippi river, where escapes are almost impossible. It has been suggested that the State should employ the labor of the convicts in building or repairing public roads.

The State owes it to her citizens to employ this labor so as to avoid competition with the mechanics of the State; but it would be impossible to use it in the construction of roads without taxing the people heavily for their support, and for the support of a strong force as guards. Under the late lease the 132 lessees were authorized to sub-let the labor of the convicts to farmers and railroad contractors, and the result shows that a large number of them have escaped in the face of the utmost watchfulness. I can suggest no plan for the employment of this labor that is not subject to objection; but, under existing circumstances, I do not see how another

133 lease of the prison can be avoided. If it is done, the employment of convicts outside the prison should be restricted to the iron and coal mines; and if the lessees are required to employ all the able-bodied convicts, whose punishment will allow them to be worked outside of the prison walls, in the mines, this would embrace a large per cent. of the labor, and will almost destroy anything like competition with the mechanical labor of the State. This plan will meet with the earnest opposition
134 of about three hundred respectable miners now engaged in mining coal; but so long as the Penitentiary system is maintained, the convicts must be employed at some manual labor, and this will bring them in competition with the fewest number, and will be productive of the good result of cheapening the price of coal and iron ore, and of stimulating the development of our manufacturing interests. The lessees should be required to receive the convict at his place of conviction. The State
135 has paid during the past two years, for bringing convicts to the State prison, $25,005.73. The lessees move convicts from point to point at a rate more than fifty per cent. less than is paid by the State.

The lessees now pay a reward of $25 (twenty-five dollars) for the capture of escaped convicts. It will cause more care and watchfulness on their part hereafter, if they are required to offer such reward as the superintendent of the prison may decide is 136 necessary, and be compelled to make publication of it whenever he decides that is is important.

INSPECTORS OF THE PENITENTIARY.

No necessity now exists for this office. The duties once required of them can be performed by the superintendent without an increase of compensation.

137 On the 8th of May, 1876, the Railroad Commissioners sold the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad at public outcry, to the highest bidder, to satisfy an unpaid balance due to the State, amounting to $150,000, with interest from July 1, 1870. The company became the purchaser, and has paid, through the counties of Davidson and Wilson, the sum of $178,000 in the bonds of the State, leaving a balance of $3,500 in bonds and $10,650 in cash unpaid, for the payment of which no provision has yet been made.

138 The Knoxville and Charleston Railroad was sold by the Commissioners to Messrs. O'Conor & Co. at the price of $75,000—one-fourth in cash, and the balance in one, two and three years. One-half of the purchase money has been paid in the bonds of the State, and with the bonds received from the counties of Davidson and Wilson, have been cancelled, and are on file in the office of Comptroller of the Treasury.

139 The Mississippi Central Railroad failed to pay the semi-annual interest due on 1st July, 1875, and 1st January, 1876, on the bonds loaned by the State. On the 25th day of February, 1876, I appointed R. P. Neeley, of the County of Hardeman, Receiver, and, under my directions, he took immediate possession of the road, and has been operating it in the interest of the State. Since this road has been in the hands of a Receiver it has been kept in good repair, its running expenses paid, and the sum of $60,000 paid into the Treasury of the State on account of taxes and interest. This management on the part of General Neeley occurred at a time of great business prostration, and is much to his honor and credit. Negotiations are now pending, by which the past due interest and sinking fund due from this company, and possibly the principal not yet due, will be paid at an early day. 140

141 MEMPHIS AND LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD.

I invite attention to the following statement of facts made by my immediate predecessor in his message to the Thirty-ninth General Assembly. It discloses the reason why I have not taken action under Resolution number 72, adopted by the same legislature, instructing the governor to institute suit for the enforcement of a claim of the State against this company:

142 "The act of the 21st of February, 1856, extending aid to the Little Rock Railroad Company authorizes the governor of the State to endorse 350 bonds of the City of Memphis, for one thousand dollars each, to be paid to the Memphis & Little Rock Railroad Company, provided the said Memphis & Little Rock Railroad Company should first endorse each of said bonds, guaranteeing payment of principal and interest of the same, and provided further, that the City of Memphis shall first, by its proper 143 authorities, execute a mortgage, giving to the State of Tennessee a priority of lien on the stock and interest of said city in said railroad company; and provided further, that said railroad company shall give to the State of Tennessee a prior lien upon the whole of the iron and equipments upon the first division of said road, extending from Memphis to the Saint Francis River in Arkansas, &c. Section 12 of said act provides further, 'That the said city bonds shall not be so endorsed until the proper au-
144 thorities of the City of Memphis shall provide and set apart a fund known as a sinking fund; out of which shall be paid, over and above the six per cent. interest, two per cent. per annum on the said bonds, commencing five years from that date.'

"These bonds were issued, and in 1856 and 1857 endorsed by the Governor of the State. After a careful examination of the archives of the State, I have been unable to find any mortgage upon the 145 stock of the city of Memphis in said road, or upon the iron and equipments of the first division of said road. I have caused search to be made also in the Register's office at Memphis, and in the proper offices in the State of Arkansas, for some registration of such mortgages, but without avail, and I can find no evidence that such mortgages have, in fact, been made. The execution of these mortgages, and providing a sinking fund, were conditions precedent to the right and power of the Gov- 146 ernor to endorse said bonds, and the liability of the State did not attach in the absence of a compliance with such conditions."

I am satisfied the mortgages referred to by Governor Brown were never executed, and that the State has no lien, as is assumed in Resolution 72.

Holders of these bonds endorsed by the State have demanded payment of the past-due interest, and, without any legislative declaration on the sub- 147
ject, I have not hesitated to say the State was in nowise responsible for its payment, or for the payment of the bonds at maturity.

SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

I commend to your earnest consideration the report of this officer, herewith transmitted, and to his more elaborate report of a year ago, copies of which will be furnished to you. The present incumbent has been zealous and untiring in his efforts to ad- 148 vance the cause of education, to popularize the common school, and to teach the public that it is to that agency we must look at last for the diffusion of that noble lesson of our own State Constitution, "that knowledge, learning and virtue are essential to the preservation of republican institutions."

The reports of the Secretary of State, the Libra-

149 rian, and Superintendent of the Capitol, are transmitted for your information.

STATE NORMAL COLLEGE.

Under the Act of March 23d, 1875, I appointed J. B. Lindsley, Edwin H. Ewing, Samuel Watson, R. W. Mitchell, L. G. Tarbox, and John J. Reese, as the State Board of Education. Recently J. W. Hoyte and Leon. Trousdale were appointed members of the Board vice Samuel Watson, deceased, 150 and L. G. Tarbox, resigned.

The Board of Trustees of the University of Nashville gave to the State Board the use of its buildings, and the school was located at Nashville.

The Board of Trust of the Peabody Education Fund donated to the school for the first scholastic year the sum of $6,000, and $9,000 for the present year. The school is now in successful operation under Dr. Eben S. Stearns, as president, with a corps of competent teachers, and is a first-class in-151 stitution for the education of teachers. It has not been a charge upon the treasury or upon the people of the State, and furnishes gratuitous instruction to all comers. The institution is supported by the Peabody Board of Trust. This support will be withdrawn at the close of the present scholastic year, and I earnestly appeal to the General Assembly to provide the means necessary for its maintenance, not by a new levy of taxes, but by the appropriation of $10,000 of the school fund not pro-152 vided by law. The withdrawal of that amount will add materially to the efficiency of the public school system, and will maintain an institution full of promising results to the educational interests of Tennessee. The great defect of our school system is the want of competent teachers. This school will supply this want, and furnish them from our own people.

For the history of the operations of this school I 153 refer to the report of the State Board of Education, made to the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURE, STATISTICS AND MINES.

In transmitting the report of the Commissioner of this Bureau, I adopt the following article, taken from the editorial columns of the leading mining and manufacturing journal of this continent, The Iron Age, published in the city of New York: 154

"THE TENNESSEE BUREAU OF MINES.

"Of late years the attention of ironmasters, both at home and abroad, has been constantly directed to the South, and especially to Tennessee. Probably at this time there is more inquiry as to its mineral resources, from foreign capitalists, than concerning those of all the rest of the Southern States. A million dollars of British capital have already been invested within the past two years, and 155 there is a strong probability that this is but the foretaste of other millions. For this result the State is indebted to its wonderful resources, but also in a large degree to Col. J. B. Killebrew, Chief of the Bureau of Agriculture, Statistics and Mines, of that State. We acknowledge our great indebtedness to him personally, and to his various publications for information which we have uniformly found trustworthy. During the two years this bureau has been in existence 4,000 copies of the 156 Resources of Tennessee, a book of 1,200 pages, have been distributed, besides 8,000 abridgements. Prof.
Huxley, speaking of the work and its author, said:
'I am indebted to this most admirable work, of which a copy was presented to me yesterday, a report of the Resources of Tennessee, which, in my judgment, does infinite credit to the State that paid

157 for it and the person who put it together, which I do not profess to have read since yesterday, yet out of which I have contrived to pick the sort of information I want of the structure of the region where we now stand.'

"We have heard it whispered that some persons in Tennessee have suggested the abolition of this Bureau. Such a course would be most short-sighted, and occasion the highest injury to the State. Tennessee needs capital from abroad, and this 158 Bureau has brought it. Col. Killebrew is wise enough to see that it is not alone in the development of its mineral resources that wealth is to be found, but in the agricultural as well, and his effort has been to bring in capital to this end. No State can, at the present day, afford to dispense with such agencies, because capitalists look for information from official sources, and not from parties who wish to sell, and we speak from personal knowledge and examination when we say that the publications of 159 Col. Killebrew are among the fairest statements of the resources of a State we have ever seen. Governor Porter, in his canvas of the State, said: 'Our resources have been advertised all over this continent, and in many parts of the old world. Any man who has been looking for a farm, for a water-power, for a mine of coal, iron or copper, has had his demand for information supplied from this Bureau; and I state it as a fact, the climate, soil and productions of the State of Tennessee have been 160 more generally and intelligently advertised than those of all the States of the South combined.'

"It would be a source of the greatest regret to those who know its value, if the Bureau were to be discontinued.

"So competent and conscientious a public officer cannot be spared until the great work he has undertaken, and thus far successfully performed, is fairly completed. If every Southern State had placed the 161 work of acquainting the public with its resources in equally competent hands, immigration would have been less difficult to obtain, and capital more disposed than now to seek investment there."

BUREAU OF INSURANCE.

State supervision of the business of insurance is necessary for the security of the citizen and for the protection of solvent companies; this supervision is now exercised by the State Treasurer, who is ex 162 officio Commissioner of Insurance. The duties of Treasurer demand the undivided time and attention of that official; his duties as Commissioner of Insurance are necessarily secondary to that, and he cannot give to the business of insurance the attention it deserves. The law requires that he shall, under certain circumstances, visit and examine any insurance company in the State; he cannot do this without neglecting the more important duties of the 163 Treasurer's office.

I recommend that the office of Commissioner of Insurance be made separate and independent; the fees now authorized by law will be ample compensation for the services of a commissioner. I transmit the report of the Commissioner of Insurance, and commend his recommendations to your consideration.

UNITED STATES SURVEY OF TENNESSEE.

It affords me pleasure to announce that principally through the representations of Dr. J. M. Safford, State Geologist, the Superintendent of the United States Coast Survey, concluded, during the year just closed, to inaugurate, and is now actually carrying on, a geodetic or correct surface survey of Tennessee. This is in accordance with an act of Congress,

165 providing that in States in which geological surveys are in progress, the United States Coast Survey may institute geodetic work for the benefit of such geological surveys. The surface survey thus inaugurated within our borders is one of primary importance. Its results cannot fail to be of great service, and that too, without cost to the State. Tennessee is deplorably deficient in the matter of correct maps. There is no map of the State worthy of the name, nor can there be until such data are at 166 hand as will be supplied by the operations of the Coast Survey. Good maps are needed, not only to meet the wants of geological delineation, but for educational, commercial, political, and numerous other purposes. Such we are now in a fair way to have. The Coast Survey will, doubtless, within a reasonable time, supply a complete outline map of the State, based on accurate instrumental observation and trigonometrical calculations. This work in Tennessee is under the general direction of Dr.
167 Safford, as State Geologist, and is executed by Prof. A. H. Buchanan, of Wilson County, who holds his place under the Superintendent of the Coast Survey, to whom he reports, and from whom he receives all instructions as to the details of the work. It is thus in the hands of well-informed and able gentlemen. Out of the yearly appropriation made by Congress for the benefit of the Coast Survey, $2,000 were set apart for the work in Tennessee. The survey was commenced last summer, Dr. Saf-168 ford selecting the part of the State lying between Nashville and Knoxville, as the initial region. Considering the shortness of the time a large amount of very satisfactory work has been done. The country designated has been reconnoitred and provisionally mapped; suitable points have been selected for stations, and a base line located. The latter runs over ground in the vicinity of Lebanon, and will be measured during the summer. Reconnoitering has been commenced west of Nashville, and will be extended to the Mississippi river so soon as practicable. For further information in regard to this work I refer you to the report of the State Geologist, to be made to you at an early day. To facilitate the survey so auspiciously commenced, I recommend the passage of an act authorizing the surveyors to run the necessary lines upon lands within the State, to adjust damages, if such should occur, and for the protection of signals, marks, monuments, and other property pertaining to the Coast Survey. 169 180

PROTECTION OF SIGNAL LIGHTS ON THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER.

The Federal Government has established a number of signal lights, and other aids to navigation on the banks of the Mississippi river, in the State of Tennessee; at certain points malicious persons have interfered with these aids to navigation; lanterns have been broken and lights extinguished, thus endangering steamers and other vessels navigating the river. This is a subject of public concern, and I recommend the passage of an act protecting these aids to navigation, with a provision for the punishment of persons injuring or destroying them. 171

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The necessity for the creation of a State Board of Health is commended to your attention. In the twelve States where such a board is provided, very much has been accomplished by arousing the public to a sense of the necessity for the adoption of sanitary measures in order to prevent the operation of causes productive of disease. 172

Since the completion of our railroad system a large per cent. of the population of the State is in 173 direct and daily communication with some one of the great centres of population, and citizens of the agricultural districts are as subject to epidemical diseases as the inhabitants of the cities and towns, and have a common interest in the adoption of preventive measures.

If, by the adoption of this reform, disease can be mitigated or prevented, or the life of a single citizen saved, to that extent it will be a contribution to the wealth of the State.

THE MILITIA.

At the request of the Secretary of War the Adjutant General of the State recently made to that officer a report of the military strength of Tennessee; this report shows that we have within the military age 239,764 men; that we have no complete or efficient military organization except a few volunteer companies.

I submit to the General Assembly the propriety
175 of giving force and effect to our Declaration of Rights "that the sure and certain defense of a free people is a well regulated militia."

INSPECTORS OF ILLUMINATING OILS AND FLUIDS.

The act creating this office has been productive of much good to the people of the State in protecting them from the use and purchase of spurious and dangerous burning fluids. The fee now allowed the inspectors should be increased, that allowed under 176 the existing act is so inadequate that in the small towns inspectors cannot afford to provide themselves with the necessary instruments for the testing and guaging, or weighing the fluids, and the result is there are now only seven inspectors on duty in the State.

I transmit the report of the inspectors at Nashville, Memphis, Jackson, Brownsville and Chattanooga.

CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION AT PHILADELPHIA. 177

I transmit the report of Gen. J. T. Wilder, Commissioner from Tennessee; his services have been of great value to the State, and should receive suitable recognition from the General Assembly.

I also transmit the biennial report of the Trustees of East Tennessee University concerning the State College, with the report of the Treasurer of that institution.

HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE. 178

The act of 23d March, 1875, directed the Governor, Comptroller, and Treasurer of the State to sell the "land purchased by the State for the location of Hospitals for the Insane in the Eastern and Western divisions of the State," "provided said lands shall not be sold for less than three-fourths of its original cost." No lands were bought in the Western division; in the Eastern division a tract was purchased, and is now the property of the State. 179 This tract of land should be sold, and the terms should be left to the discretion of the officers mentioned in the act referred to; under section 3 of the same act, I appointed James S. Boyd and J. M. Carter, of Knox County, to act in conjunction with the Attorney-General to make settlements with all "persons to whom the State is indebted on account "of said Hospital for the Insane;" their report is on file in the office of the Comptroller of the Treasury.

180

THE NAVIGATION OF THE TENNESSEE RIVER.

In pursuance of Senate Joint Resolution, No. 64, I have appointed a Board of Commissioners to consider plans by which the passage of railroad bridges can be made in safety by boats navigating this river.

The Commissioners have made no report.

181 GEOGRAPHICAL CONGRESS AND SYNDICATE OF TRADES.

In pursuance of Resolution No. 52, adopted by the 39th General Assembly, I appointed Commissioners to the Geographical Congress and Syndicate of Trades, held at Paris, France, in August, 1875. Four of the Commissioners, Messrs. Bronson Bayless, Albert Akers, Nathan Adams, and Volney S. Stephenson, were in attendance, and through their agency a diploma was awarded to the State of 182 Tennessee.

The Commissioners have as yet made no official report.

A. O. P. NICHOLSON,

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Tennessee, died the 23d day of March, 1876. Few citizens of Tennessee have been honored like this distinguished man; member of the General Assembly, Chan- 183 cellor, President of the Bank of Tennessee, delegate to the Constitutional Convention, Judge of the Supreme Court, Senator in Congress, and to his greater honor and credit it can be said, that in the performance of all the high trusts committed to him by his fellow citizens, he never deviated from the line of principle and integrity.

The General Assembly will respond to the sentiment of the people of Tennessee by giving expression to their feeling of sorrow at the death of this 184 eminent man, and that of his illustrious compeer,

ANDREW JOHNSON.

On the 31st day of July, 1875, Senator Andrew Johnson, the seventeenth President of the United States, departed this life. The death of this illustrious private citizen and eminent public officer, brought deep sorrow upon the public heart, and the general bereavement has become the more bitter by subsequent political development, threatening alike to freedom and our free institutions, in which, had he lived, he would have acted a conspicuous part in behalf of the people whose cause he made his own. The life of the deceased is full of encouragement, illustrating that neither humble origin, poverty, or want of sound influences in early life, present insuperable barriers to the triumph of an indomitable will and free spirit. 185

186 The life of this distinguished man must pass into our country's history, and while it is open to the criticism of opponents and the admiration of friends, all admit that it would be impossible to draw a circle of a great man and wholly exclude therefrom Andrew Johnson.

His hopes in the future of our country were based upon the following sentiment, uttered to a friend, as he was leaving his home for the last time: "Our country supplies its own saving power in the honesty and patriotism of its people." May the people be equal to the present troubles! 187

As Chief Executive I attended his funeral, and tendered to his family a spot upon Capitol Hill as his last resting place.

The death of Senator Johnson created a vacancy in our representation in the Senate of the United States, and I commissioned Hon. D. M. Key, of the county of Hamilton, to fill the same ad interim.

FEDERAL INTERFERENCE WITH STATE GOVERNMENTS. 188

The representatives of the people of Tennessee cannot disregard the recent action of the Federal authorities in certain States of the South—notably in Florida, Louisiana, South Carolina, and Virginia; in three of them towns and districts have been gar-

189 risoned with troops of the United States at a time of profound peace, without any proper demand being made for assistance by the local authorities, and the State House of South Carolina was subjected to an armed occupation by Federal troops. The army was made the arbiter of a disputed election, and has been prostituted to the base purpose of organizing a partisan Legislature. The order of a subaltern, excluding the representatives of the people from the State Capitol, was made impudent-190 ly and without shame, in the interest of judicially declared fraud, and against the judgment of the law as rendered in the highest court.

The representatives of the people of Tennessee should protest against these accumulated outrages with the utmost solemnity and energy.

CONCLUSION.

I earnestly recommend that bills for the appropriation of money be considered at an early day.
191 The pernicious custom of postponing the consideration of a question of the first importance to the country, to the closing hours of the session, encourages hasty and inconsiderate legislation, and the appropriation of money without discussion, to purposes of doubtful propriety.

JAS. D. PORTER.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE,
Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 1, 1877.

192

EXHIBIT NO. 2.—J. D. P. 193

NEW YORK, Feb. 15th, 1877.

To His Excellency James D. Porter,
Governor of the State of Tennessee:

SIR: On the 26th of December last, we had the honor of addressing to your Excellency a letter on the disordered condition of the public debt of the State of Tennessee, of which we are owners and the representatives of owners of a large amount, and of conveying to you in same an expression of 194 our confidence and belief that a permanent adjustment of the debt on a basis equitable to the holders of it and honorable to the State was practicable, begging that your Excellency would recommend to the Legislature to appoint a commission to come to this city and confer with the creditors of Tennessee, with a view of bringing about such an adjustment.

We have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of communications to us severally addressed by your Excellency, accompanied by a resolution of 195 the Legislature of Tennessee, approved on 27th January, ult., in which the holders of the public debt of the State are invited to submit to the General Assembly, through your Excellency, propositions for an adjustment of said debt, and at the same time to most respectfully express to your Excellency, and through you to the Legislature and people of Tennessee, our great regret and disappointment that the Legislature did not think it expedient to appoint a commission to come to New 196 York, to confer with the creditors of the State for the purpose mentioned, because such a conference we still believe would have developed a plan of adjustment that, while doing equity to the creditors of Tennessee, would, by bringing her revenues and finances into harmonious and easy working order, restore her credit, and again place it firmly 197 on the high and solid ground it once occupied, offer encouragement to capital to seek employment within her borders in the development of her unsurpassed natural resources, and result in the greatest good to the people of the State generally, enabling them to transmit to posterity, together with the good name which they inherited, a heritage far richer than had come down to them from their fathers.

We have carefully considered the liabilities and 198 resources of Tennessee.

We know that her great wealth of mine, field, and forest are only in the infancy of development.

We know, also, how much the future development of the vast, but now comparatively latent, resources of the State depends upon a restoration of her credit and the re-establishing of her financial system on a sound basis, and knowing, moreover, that the public creditors of the State would be benefited, in common with the people of Tennessee, 199 by a restoration of her credit, and by giving her a healthy fiscal system, we beg leave to submit to your Excellency, and through you to the Legislature and people of Tennessee, the following propositions as to what can be done by the people of Tennessee, with the co-operation of their public creditors, for the immediate adjustment of their public debt, and for its ultimate extinguishment in an easy, gradual, and feasible way—a way which, if adopted, we feel very sure we hazard nothing in 200 saying will be productive of the most beneficent results to the people of Tennessee.

It will be observed how essential to the success of the plan we submit for present adjustment and ultimate extinguishment of the State debt, will be the cordial co-operation of both debtor and creditor, and to what extent we propose that the public creditors of Tennessee shall contribute to its success.

We propose: 201

1. That the revenue laws of the State shall be amended so that the collection of taxes may be assured at the time or times when they become due and that at the smallest possible cost to the taxpayer.

2. That the reforms proposed and recommended to the Legislature by your Excellency in regard to the cost of county criminal prosecutions be enacted into a law. 202

3. That the expenses of the State Government be reduced to as low figures as is consistent with the maintenance of its dignity.

4. That the present rate of taxation be maintained, and that the other sources of revenue be not diminished.

5. That the State levy annually a special tax of one mill on the dollar of taxable property, the proceeds of which, in every year, together with 203 any surplus revenue, shall be used in the purchase, cancellation, and destruction of the new issue of bonds which it is proposed herein to issue for existing bonds and past due coupons of July 1st, 1877.

6. That the Legislature pass a law authorizing the funding of all outstanding bonds of the State, of all past-due coupons thereon, and of the coupons which will fall due on July 1st, 1877, into new 204 bonds of the State bearing date July 1st, 1877, and having fifty years to run to maturity, bearing interest for a period of five years from their date at the rate of three (3) per cent. per annum; for a second period of five years thereafter interest at the rate of four (4) per cent. per annum; for a period of five years from the termination of the last men-

205 tioned period interest at the rate of five (5) per cent. per annum; and thereafter, until maturity and payment, interest at the rate of six (6) per cent. per annum. Interest upon each bond to be payable semi-annually on January 1st, and July 1st, in every year from and after its date, and the coupons evidencing it to be receivable by the State for all taxes and dues payable to the State; and bonds to be for $100, $500, and $1,000 each.

The debt of the State, as may be readily ascer-206 tained, will be within her control and easy power to manage and protect from the start, if, as we sincerely hope may be the case, the plan herein outlined is availed of, and we may add that our aim has been to make it within the easy power of the people of Tennessee to avail of it.

As will be perceived by your Excellency, the Legislature and people of Tennessee, the public creditors of Tennessee, in acquiescing in this proposed plan of co-operation between them and the 207 people of Tennessee for restoring the credit of the State, and ultimately extinguishing her public debt, will voluntarily relinquish about $7,000,000 of their claims against Tennessee—an amount equal to about one-third of the entire amount of her public debt.

On the other hand, we propose that the people of Tennessee adopt the easiest and simplest mode which we can conceive of for the ultimate extinguishment of their entire public debt, a mode which, while it will only produce the very moderate annual 208 sum $268,000 at the present low valuation of property, will, by its silent but sure work, pay off the debt completely, while, by its operation, it will so reduce the amount upon which, under this plan, interest will require to be paid, that at the expiration of each period for an advance in the rate, the reduced amount for which interest will have to be provided, and the certain increase in the value of property, will together work to make the present 209 rate of taxation quite sufficient to meet all demands upon the State.

During the first fifteen years of the currency of the proposed new issue of bonds we estimate that the proposed special tax for its ultimate payment will pay off between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 in bonds, allowing twenty per cent. of the tax for its collection and the expenses connected with buying bonds with the proceeds.

When it is considered that this can be accom- 210
plished at so small an annual charge to the people of Tennessee, and that such certain beneficial results to them are sure to follow, we have the greatest confidence that their loyalty to Tennessee, their determination to preserve and perpetuate her honor and good name, will be sufficient to induce them to make the manly effort to that end of unitedly raising a one-mill tax on their property annually.

We are quite well aware of the partial failure of crops in Tennessee in the years 1873 and 1874, and 211
of the depressed condition of business, and of all industries in the State, but throughout the country their exists the same depression — stagnation.

In full recognition of this depression and stagnation, which there is every reason for believing will soon give place to better times, we have in the plan herein submitted for a rearrangement of the finances of Tennessee, made her obligations within her means and evident ability to meet now. 212

With the existing rate of taxation, and the proposed special tax for the extinguishment of the debt, which together make a five-mill tax, it may not be improper to compare the rate of taxation in the States which border on Tennessee:

213

	Mills.
In Arkansas the rate is................	10
In Mississippi the rate is...............	6½
In Alabama the rate is...............	7
In Georgia the rate is..................	5
In North Carolina the rate is...........	$3\frac{3}{10}$
In South Carolina the rate is...........	12
In Virginia the rate is.................	5
In Kentucky the rate is...............	4½

214 In conclusion, we beg to express to your Excellency, and through you to the Legislature and people of the great State of Tennessee, our confidence that all will unite with us in this effort to make it possible to avail of the proposed co-operation of the creditors of Tennessee to bring about so desirable a result as the re-establishment of her credit on a plan so favorable as we have herein outlined, and we have the honor to be, your obedient servants,

EXHIBIT No. 3.—J. D. P.

Message of Governor Jas. D. Porter to the Fortieth General Assembly of the State of Tennessee.—First Extra Session.—December 5, 1877. 219

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

I have convened the General Assembly in extraordinary session for the purpose of considering the following recommendation to adjust the State debt: "That after adding the arrears of interest the 220 aggregate amount of the State debt should be readjusted by the issue of new bonds at the rate of sixty per cent. of the total amount; i. e., for every sum of one thousand dollars, new bonds should be given in exchange and full settlement for six hundred dollars, or for proportionate amounts, the new bonds to carry six per cent., payable semi-

221 annually in the City of New York, the principal payable in thirty years, the interest coupons to be received by the State for all taxes."

This is the recommendation made by a Committee of Arbiters, appointed at a meeting of citizens held at the Clearing House in New York City in January, 1877. In a special message, I urged the General Assembly to send this committee of conference, and recommended that all questions touching the 222 State debt "be postponed to await the action of the arbiters," and announced that if this policy was adopted, "and if time becomes essential, I will not hesitate to convene the General Assembly in extraordinary session."

On the 19th of March, 1877, the Legislative Committee reported to the General Assembly the result of the conference: seven days thereafter the two Houses adjourned without taking action upon this report. Under the circumstances mentioned I have 223 recognized it as my duty to call you from your homes to consider this recommendation, and to respectfully and earnestly recommend its adoption.

Since the adjournment of the General Assembly, the debts due from the Memphis & Charleston and Mississippi Central Railroads, have been paid; deducting the sum of $299,814, the amount of the debt of the Mississippi & Tennessee Railroad, not due, and for which the State has ample security, the debt of the State on the 1st January, 1878, will 224 amount to $23,212,606; this includes the bonded debt not due, the bonded debt past due, five full instalments of interest, and balances of several instalments not presented, amounting to $40,000. The greater part of this debt was incurred prior to 1861. The following table exhibits the amount issued since the late war between the States, the amount canceled and the amount now outstanding:

225

	Registered and not canceled.	Registered and canceled.	Canceled before registration.	East Tennessee University.	Mineral Home.	Unaccounted for.	Total.
Green, no letter....	2,388	321	7,021	113	120	37	10,000

Grand Total.....	6,047	924	14,741	252	120	290	22,344

226

The first series, Green, no letter, were issued under the Act of 1851-2, and amendments, $9,593,000 issued to railroads and turnpikes, and $407,000 were renewals of bonds past due. The second series, 227 Green "B," were issued under authority of the Act of 1851-2, $290,000 were renewals for past due bonds, the balance issued to railroads and turnpikes.
The third series, Green "C," and fourth series,
White "D," issued under Acts of 1866 and 1868, were for past due interest, and known as Funding Bonds. This table shows that there are now outstanding $3,033,000 of the bonds popularly known as "Brownlow Bonds."

228 The debt is accumulating at the rate of four thousand dollars per day, and if the present condition of affairs continue, it is an easy calculation to determine how soon the debt will gain volume enough to destroy the prosperity of the State and bring discredit upon all of its citizens.

229 THE VALIDITY OF THE DEBT.

No question can now arise as to the validity of the public debt with the exception of the inconsiderable amount issued to Mineral Home Railroad, which has been declared fraudulent; the people of Tennessee through their representatives have in the most formal and solemn manner recognized it by the bonds of any series being declared receivable in payment of the purchase money for delinquent rail-230 roads. It was again recognized by the funding act of 1873, by which the obligation of the State was renewed to pay interest on the entire debt and the principal at maturity, and the validity of the several series of bonds have been recognized by the 39th and 40th General Assembly by being declared receivable in discharge of debts due to the State, and I assume that no judicial tribunal would now pronounce against the funded and registered bonds.

But the New York arbiters say in the report made 231 to the General Assembly, after full discussion with the Legislative Committee, "when all the circumstances under which the debt was incurred, the peculiar condition of affairs in the State together with its present ability and its future resources," that the compromise recommended by them is "just and fair both to debtor and creditor." The adoption of this recommendation of a tribunal so disinterested and distinguished, without consulting the holders of our bonds, would relieve the State of the sus-232 picion of unfairness or of the charge of repudiating an acknowledged liability. But such a number of the bondholders have signified their willingness to accept the terms of the adjustment as to satisfy me that if it is made it will be generally acceptable. I transmit the proposition of the bondholders. The terms are liberal to the State, the creditors voluntarily make the suggestion, and it is consistent with the dignity of the State to accept the abatement. 233

The financial condition of the State is the only barrier to immediate prosperity. Its greatest want is capital and immigration. Both will avoid us unless the public debt is provided for. Men do not buy where the tenure of property is insecure, or where public obligations are disregarded. One of the highest duties of the citizen is the maintenance of the public credit; without it little is left worthy of public preservation.

THE ABILITY OF THE STATE.

There is to my mind no question as to the ability of the State to meet the interest on the debt, if adjusted upon the terms offered by its creditors. The present assessed value of the property of the State is $236,000,000, and is an unusually liberal one to the taxpayer. Tennessee contributes to the markets of the world, with her cotton, grain and tobacco, as largely, and is as rich in soil, minerals and productions as any State in the Union. The value of the 235 principal crops raised in Tennessee during the year 1876, amounted to $47,126,310, not less than one-third of which was surplus. The productions of the State of Kentucky for the same period was $2,687,560 less. Tennessee produced seventeen millions more than Virginia, three millions more than Georgia, more than Maryland and South Carolina combined, mor than Alabama and Florida, and seventeen millions more than North Carolina, while the difference in population is in favor of Kentucky and Georgia, 236 and Maryland and South Carolina combined. The productions of the State for the year 1877, amount to over $52,000,000, with an increased surplus of cotton, wheat and tobacco, and the value of farm products is greater per capita in Tennessee than it is in any of the States named, and greater according to the last census report than it is in the rich 237 States of New York, Pennsylvania and Missouri. There are other productions of the State, cattle, mules, horses, sheep, bacon, fruit, marble, iron, from which large revenues are derived, with an increasing area and capacity for production.

The bonds of the State were issued for purposes of internal improvement, very many of them were sold above par, and are now held by the original purchasers, by educational and charitable institutions; among the latter class is the Peabody Insti-
238 tute, at Baltimore, Maryland, which has signified through the proper officer a willingness to accept the terms of the proposed adjustment; the greatest American philanthropist, George Peabody, left as part of the endowment to this institution that bears his name, $364,000 in the bonds of the State of Tennessee. Since 1868 the children of Tennessee have received from the Peabody Trust Fund, for their education, the sum of $191,650, and for the year 1878, an appropriation that will make it 239 exceed $200,000. The State of Tennessee cannot, in my opinion, accept this abatement, or that proposed by the holders of bonds issued for the erection of the capitol, those held by educational institutions, by charities, or by persons whose guardians made the investment in pursuance of our statute authorizing the investment of the estate of minors in the bonds of the State.

If the adjustment recommended is adopted I recommend that the new bond shall bear date July 240 the first, 1878, to carry interest from that date; provision for a sinking fund can with propriety be postponed, but in case of a surplus in the Treasury after liquidating the appropriations made by law, it would be well to provide for its investment in the bonds of the State, and in this way inaugurate a system for the gradual extinguishment of the principal of the debt.

The Comptroller of the Treasury, in his biennial report to the General Assembly, states that "it is believed that the compensation allowed Trustees is inadequate to the labor and responsibility of the office, especially in the smaller counties, where there is little or no municipal taxes to be collected," experience has confirmed the wisdom of this recommendation ; in one of the Counties of the State there is no Collector, no one being willing to accept the 242 office for the compensation allowed by law ; in several others, resignations have been tendered. The revenue cannot be efficiently collected in the smaller counties for an inadequate compensation, and I recommend such an amendment to the statute as will secure this result.

It will be necessary to provide by law for the expenses of this extraordinary session of the General Assembly.

CONCLUSION. 243

The gravity of the question submitted to you will, I doubt not, command your most deliberate consideration ; counselling wisdom and calmness in its discussion, I leave it with you in the confident belief that your action will be controlled by your convictions of duty to your constituents.

JAMES D. PORTER.

James L. Gaines, Esq.,
Comptroller,
Nashville, Tenn.:

Dear Sir—Your favor of the 25th instant is received and noted. As stated in ours of 24th instant, the members of this firm have held and owned Tennessee 250 State bonds for more than twenty years, having faith in them as a safe and good investment. The Clearing House Committee, of New York, Geo. S. Coe, Esq., Chairman, recommended an adjustment of the State debt of Tennessee by issuing a new six per cent. bond, with coupons receivable for all taxes and due to the State, to the extent of sixty per cent. of the principal and accrued interest of the present outstanding State bonds, and if the Tennessee Legislature 251 would certainly adopt this plan of adjustment, without any modification whatever, we would be willing to accept it, as far as we are concerned, and, as stated in ours of the 24th inst., we believe it would be generally accepted by the bondholders if promptly offered; but, in our opinion, the bondholders would not accept any less than this. If the Legislature will certainly adopt the Coe recommendation, then we should be pleased to see an early called session of the Legislature. We have no objection 252 to you placing this letter and ours of the 24th inst. in the hands of Governor Porter, as suggested by you.

Truly respectfully,
G. W. Norton & Co.

263 To His Excellency, GOV. JAMES D. PORTER,

Dear Sir:—Your favor of the 29th ult., addressed to Messrs. Geddes & Smith and ourselves has been received, advising that you propose to convene the General Assembly after the new assessment has been completed, in November, for the purpose of adjusting your State debt.

264 You ask if a settlement upon the basis proposed by the Arbiters in March last will be acceptable to the bondholders, and desire us to confer with them and advise you. We will communicate with you later on, after learning the views of the foreign holders whom we represent, as, also, of some of the larger holders here.

We are told that it is represented in Tennessee that large amounts of your State bonds are held by parties who bought at late current prices. We believe that very few are so held. Our observation leads us to believe that nearly all the bonds which the necessities or fears of holders have forced to sale of late years have been absorbed by your railroads for settlement with the State. We find them generally held by original investors, who believe that your State will in the end pay them, principal and interest. 265

MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR JAS. D. PORTER TO THE FORTIETH GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF TENNESSEE.—SECOND EXTRA SESSION—DECEMBER 12, 1877. 267

EXECUTIVE OFFICE,
NASHVILLE, Tenn., December 12, 1877.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

I have convened the General Assembly in extraordinary session for the purpose of adjusting the State debt. Before final action was taken upon the proposition submitted on the 5th of December, 1877, to the first extra session of the Fortieth General Assembly, a number of the creditors of the State, representing several millions of her debt, forwarded the following communication to this office: 268

NEW YORK, December 11, 1877.

TO GOV. JAS. D. PORTER:

I am a large holder of Tennessee bonds, which

269 have been held for years strictly for investment account. I was a signer of the former petition sent you through the Committee of Arbitration, and while I would prefer to have that proposition accepted, yet if it would require a revenue bill that is deemed by the Legislature to be higher than the State can afford to pay without seriously retarding the prosperity of the people, I prefer to change the original offer, and do hereby change it. I propose to take fifty cents on the dollar. I think this dis-270 patch represents the sentiment of most of the investment holders. They recognize the embarrassed condition of the State, growing out of the war, and are willing to meet the situation in a spirit of liberality, and now ask the Legislature, through your Excellency, to reciprocate this feeling, and make a settlement without further delay. Please submit this to the Legislature for its action.

The Estate of Calvin Stevens,
271 C. Amory Stevens, Trustee.

New York, December 10, 1877.

To Gov. Jas. D. Porter:

We hold and represent Tennessee State bonds, which have been held for years as an investment, which we hereby offer to fund into New Tennessee 272 State bonds at fifty cents on the dollar of principal and accepted interest, and we respectfully request you to submit this proposition to the Legislature for its acceptance or rejection.

Inman Swann & Co.

LOUISVILLE, December 10, 1877. 273

To Gov. JAS. D. PORTER:

We are willing for the proposition of arbiters to be made fifty cents instead of sixty, rather than the adjustment should fail.

G. W. WHARTON & Co.

NEW YORK, December 10, 1877.

To Gov. JAS. D. PORTER:

274 Having heard that there is no probability of the sixty per cent. proposition being accepted, we would request you to recommend to the Legislature to pass a law funding the debt of the State at fifty per cent. of the principal and past due coupons, in bonds bearing six per cent. interest. We will accept this for the bonds we represent, and think we can induce a large majority of bondholders to do the same.

A. ISELIN & Co.

275

NEW YORK, December 10, 1877.

To his Excellency, JAS. D. PORTER,

Governor of Tennessee:

On behalf of clients I offer to accept for bonds and interest at fifty per cent. new six per cent. consols, with first coupon payable July, 1878, and if not January, 1879. I beg you to lay this before the Legislature.

JOHN B. MANNING.

NASHVILLE, December 10, 1877. 276

To his Excellency, JAS. D. PORTER:

Dear Sir—The following dispatch has just been received:

NEW YORK, December 10, 1877.

B. F. WILSON, Nashville, Tenn.:

My firm holds bonds for themselves and others, 277 and are willing to fund at fifty on principal and accrued interest into six per cent. bonds, and if you think it best to do so you may hand this proposition to the Governor, to be submitted to the Legislature by him. It will take time to see many of the bondholders, and especially those who hold as investors, but most all of this class, so far as I have seen them, prefer to have the matter settled at fifty rather than have no settlement made.

R. T. WILSON.

And in an unofficial way I have been informed that the great body of the creditors have indicated a willingness to accept the same terms.

The creditors of the State understand the temper of our people, both have become the victims of unscrupulous speculators, their influence and counsel has aroused suspicion in the mind of the citizen and 279 a feeling of distrust on the part of the creditor, and the good and great name of Tennessee is in danger of being sacrificed to the avarice and greed of these mere adventurers. The creditors now come forward and offer a concession to meet what they understand to be the views of the represntatives of the people. It is a liberal and generous one, and in my opinion should be accepted without hesitation or delay. We cannot ask for a further abatement, or longer postpone the settlement of a question demanded by 280 every consideration of justice and policy.

I transmit a statement from the Comptroller of the Treasury exhibiting the levy necessary to meet the obligations of the State if the proposition of the creditors is accepted. This statement does not include $70,500 income from the lease of the Penitentiary, not less than $56,000 from present valuation of railroads, together with the revenue to be derived from the tax on telegraph lines and sleeping cars. 281

If a compromise of the debt is made it will be the duty of the General Assembly to provide the revenue necessary to carry it out. It would also be necessary to provide by appropriate legislation for the expenses of the first and present extra sessions of the General Assembly.

I appeal to the General Assembly to rescue the State from its present peril, and to preserve something of its credit. The people of Tennessee are not prepared to learn the full lesson of repudiation; 282 they are still sensible of the responsibility resting upon them of maintaining the good name impressed upon the State by so many of their sons. The time has been when the prestige of Tennessee, the high standard of her commercial crdit, made all of her sons proud of their nativity. Do not let us turn our backs upon this honorable history.

JAS. D. PORTER.

COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE,
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 12, 1877.

To His Excellency,
JAMES D. PORTER, Governor, etc.:

Sir—In reply to your inquiry of this date in regard to estimate as to what tax it may be necessary to levy on the assessed taxable property of the State in order to pay 6 per cent. interest on the State debt adjusted at 50 cents, I have the honor to 284 convey herewith estimate which assumes that current expenses and interest on school fund were provided for at the regular session of this Legislature.

From this statement it will be seen that an additional levy of three mills, or 30 cents on $100, will be sufficient to provide for the interest on the State debt, provided the debt should be adjusted at fifty cents on the dollar:

285	Bonded debt, funded and registered, including accumulated interest to July 1, 1878		$23,212,666 00
	Adjusted at fifty cents		11,606,333 00
	Interest on $11,606,333 at 6 per cent.		696,379 98
286	Assessed taxable property in the State as per tax aggregate for 1877 (DeKalb County estimated)	$236,799,580 00
	At 30 cents on $100 this tax aggregate will yield.	$710,398 74
	Deduct 13 per cent. for cost of collection, delinquencies, etc	92,351 84
	Net	$618,046 90
287	Add amount derived from tax on merchants, which tax is governed by the tax on property, it being estimated that at 10 cents on $100 the tax on merchants will yield $32,000. Then at 30 cents on $100 it will yield	96,000 00
288	Total estimated receipts from tax on property and tax on merchants at 30 cents on $100		$714,046 90

Respectfully submitted

James L. Gaines,

Comptroller.

(Private.) New York, Aug. 1, 1877.

Hon. James L. Gaines,
Comptroller,
Nashville.

Dear Sir :—I think that I may now safely say to you confidentially that the parties in interest will be prepared to pay off the debts of the Mississippi Central to your State just as soon as it is safe for them to do so. 290

I was amused when I read in the American newspaper the other day the very brief notice of the payment of the debt of the Memphis and Charleston road to the State which it published. A stranger would conclude that it was published solely to account for your being in New York, about which the public might be concerned, to assure the people of Tennessee that you were not here to pay off the State debt, or anything of that kind.

291 I have not yet heard from Mr. Smith, and am therefore not able to indicate what view he may take of the conditions upon which Governor Porter says he will call an extra session of the Legislature. I have, however, not changed my own views as to what should be done, but I am more firmly convinced than ever that the proposition of the bondholders should be accepted, or one its equivalent, which I think might be gotten up, offering to settle at say 75 per cent. of principal and interest in 6 per cent bonds, coupons receivable for all taxes and dues 292 to the State. If any hope were held out that a settlement can be effected at the equivalent of our proposition, say 75c., I would do my best to get all the principal bondholders to make a proposition to settle at that, and I think that with careful handling it could be carried. Of course there are always some who hold back, but I think that the great majority

293 would take 75 per cent. under the name of the equivalent of their proposition already made.

The debts of the railroads to the State may now be regarded as practically settled. What remains is simply a question between debtor and creditor.

Freed from the complications which grew out of these railroad debts the discussion of the debt question will be very clear and simple henceforward.

If a few of you men of influence and character would unite in an effort to bring about a compro-294 mise on the basis of 75 per cent. I think it could be effected satisfactorily to all, while it is very doubtful if an acquiesced in settlement at a lower figure would ever be regarded as other than a forced one by the public and the bondholders.

The intervention of the so-called arbiters of the Clearing House was the most unfortunate thing that could have happened.

Personally I have worked hard to save the remnant of Tennessee's once good credit, and I make 295 this last effort to complete the job. If it fails, let it be so. Posterity will ever regret a blunder made now.

If you think so advisable you may convey to the Governor at your convenience the substance of what I have said, and let me know what he may have to say in reply.

Very truly yours,
P. GEDDES,
P. O. Box 936.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23, 1877.

JAMES L. GAINES, Esq.,
Comptroller.

Dear Sir:—I duly received your esteemed favor of the 8th current.

Since then I learnthat the Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad Company have voted to pay off their 298 debt to Tennessee. This practically settles up all advances made by the State to railroad companies, and reduces the whole State debt question to one between the people of Tennessee and the investors in their public debt. What the latter will agree to do I cannot say. They may or may not adhere to their proposition of last February.

If the people of Tennesseee under any circumstances are liable to do anything disgraceful in regard to their public debt, or permit anything of that kind 299
to be done, of which you seem to entertain fears, should a settlement not be come to this year, and the debt question become one of the issues in the State canvas of next summer, the inquiry forces itself upon the bondholders, of how much value would the reduced debt of such a people be to the holders of it?

This is a very serious question in view of the fears you express, and of what I will now only characterize as the extraordinary legislation of last winter. 300
I shall be happy to hear from you in reply at your convenience.

Mr. Smith has been travelling since the beginning of July, and hence we do not hear from him.

I am,
Very truly yours,
P. GEDDES,
P. O. Box 936.

301 EXHIBIT NO. 7—J. D. P.

(Private.) NEW YORK, August 27, 1877.

HON. JAMES L. GAINES,
Nashville.

My Dear Sir :—I have just had an interview with Mr. Osborne, who reports that in thirty days the parties in whose interest the Mississippi Central was bought in the other day will receive a confirma-
302 tion of their purchase. It is quite well understood here that so soon as they can do so with safety, they will pay off the lien of Tennessee on the Miss. Central, and that they now think they can safely pay it off sixty days hence.

There is thus little doubt that the last of Tennessee's advances to the railroads within her borders will be paid off early in the fall, thus freeing her and her creditors too, for that matter, from a very troublesome disorder.

303 Although you do not in your note of the 8th current give much reason to hope that a settlement of Tennessee's debt on any other than the Coe Committee's plan is now practicable, I still cling to the belief that the honest citizens of Tennessee who must be still in the majority would much prefer to pay the State debt in full, if some plan were submitted which would make it clearly possible for them to do so.

304 The outstanding bonds of Tennessee are mainly held by investors, by trustees and Trust Institutions. The "margins" of speculators in and out of Wall street have long ago disappeared, and the bonds upon which they were held been sold.

Now, investors, and parties, and institutions holding in trust prefer much any reasonable reduction of the rate of interest their investments will produce to a reduction of the principal.

For the past four years they have been receiving 305
lower rates of interest and smaller dividends on their investments than they have been accustomed
to. Many of them, judging by the large subscriptions to government four per cents. recently, have come apparently to the conclusion that lower rates
of interest than formerly prevailed will hereafter permanently prevail. This is the mood in which they now appear to me to be, and it has suggested
the idea that advantage might possibly be taken of
so favorable a time and circumstances by the 306
friends of Tennessee to bring about a compromise of the rate of interest on her debt which wonld enable her with ease to pay it all off.

I will not discuss her ability to pay her debt, but will assume it and pass on to my suggestion, which
is as follows:

The State to issue new bonds for the principal
and past due interest of her existing bonds, to bear interest at 4 (four) per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, January 1 and July 1, in each year, 307
coupons to be attached to the bonds representing
each payment of interest, to be receivable by the State for all taxes and dues to the State, and to be free from taxation of any kind in the State. The bonds themselves to be payable fifty or one hundred years hence, and redeemable by the State at any time after six month's notice that the State is prepared to pay them.

The bondholders of Tennessee may object to making such a proposition of compromise; but if I get 308
from you and the Governor encouragement that if such a proposition were made by the holders of more than half the debt, it would be accepted, I will exert myself with Mr. George Smith and other well known large holders to make it.

Firmly convinced as I am that a settlement in full, if by any possibility it can be accomplished,

309 will be of immense present and future advantage to Tennessee and Tennesseeans, I hope that you will induce Governor Porter and the other friends of State credit to give my suggestion careful consideration.

I do not dare to mention it to any one yet, but will set the wheels in motion if hope of acceptance is held out, and will, if necessary, go to Nashville for the purpose of an interview with the Governor and yourself.

310 If the friends of Tennessee in Tennessee will extend to her a helping hand, I think that she can still be restored and her honest pride saved.

Let me hear from you on receipt and write further afterward.

Truly yours,

P. GEDDES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29, 1877.

HON. JAMES L. GAINES,
Nashville, Tenn.:

My Dear Sir:—I thank you for your favor of 25th current, and for the information and suggestion therein communicated.

Seeing by the morning papers that the Governors were to meet yesterday at the Continental Hotel, Philadelphia, I telegraphed to Governor Porter

312 there asking him where a letter would reach him today, and after hearing from him wrote him with a copy of my last letter to you, asking him to let me have the benefit of his views thereon in advance of his arrival here, and saying that if agreeable to him I would with pleasure call upon him when he comes to New York.

In case Tennessee wants to pay off her debt it will be of great advantage to her to arrange for a 313

low rate of interest on it. Bonds bearing a low rate of interest can be with greater ease or at lower cost bought for a sinking fund than can bonds bearing full rates.

This is a point I had in view when we made our proposition of compromise, and one which I hope will have some weight yet with you.

Yours truly,

P. GEDDES.

314

EXHIBIT NO. 9—J. D. P.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23d, 1877.

His Excellency,
JAMES D. PORTER,
Governor of Tennessee:

SIR: We beg leave to call your attention to the 315
enclosed telegram to the New York Herald, from its Nashville correspondent, cut from this morning's issue of the Herald, and to confirm our dispatch to you of this morning by telegraph in relation thereto, as follows:

> "Proposition from large and influential New "York and Baltimore bondholders expressed to you "on Wednesday, and should be received to-day. "Bondholders here know nothing whatever of a 316
> "meeting or of resolutions reported in Herald to-"day as having been sent to you, and by you trans-"mitted to legislature, with a special message.
> "This may be a movement designed to destroy or "embarrass any proper adjustment."

No meeting of bondholders of Tennessee, so far as we are aware or can ascertain, has either been called

317 or held in this city. Neither have we heard at any time of a purpose to call or hold such a meeting, nor of a purpose or desire on the part of real holders of Tennessee bonds to take any action whatever, outside of what has been taken through and in the communication which we, with others had the honor to address to you under date the 15th current. It could hardly be possible to call or hold a meeting here of Tennessee bondholders without our knowing or hearing about it. Such being the case, we thought it 318 our duty to telegraph to your Excellency as we did this forenoon. It occurred to us that possibly an attempt to mislead your Excellency and the people of Tennessee as to the sentiments and wishes of the real holders of the indebtedness of the State had been made, akin to the attempt made last year to create a false impression, through a letter to the State Treasurer, to which the name of one of the Astors had been forged.

The debtors of the State, with all of which she has 319 been extremely liberal, even to the injury of her own credit many here believe, are supposed to be antagonistic to the consummation of any plan for the restoration of Tennessee credit now, the complete prostration of which, it is supposed, would be for their immediate pecuniary advantage. This view, if entertained by any of the debtors of the State, is unsound. For, with every decline in the credit of the State, their credit inevitably suffers.

But, to remove this cause of a real or apparent 320 antagonism between the debtors and creditors of the State, and also to remove—which is of immediate and great importance—an obstacle which is calculated to prevent or, at least, hinder the people of Tennessee and their public creditors from coming to an agreement with respect to what each should do to restore the credit of the State, and place it on a solid basis, we would respectfully suggest to your Excellency that the debtors of the State be required, 321

within a reasonable time, say by or before July 1st, 1877, to pay off every obligation due from them to the State as now they may do, after which time only such advances as were specifically made to each to be receivable in payment or cash; this is to apply to principal and interest.

We submit to your Excellency whether there would be any hardship or injustice in requiring this, and assure you that the creditors of the State would regard such a step as one taken in the right direc- 322
tion; and

We remain
Your Excellency's Ob't Serv'ts,
GEDDES & SMITH.
E. D. MORGAN & CO.

The views above given, we beg to add, are for your own personal consideration.

I, William H. DeLancey, Special Examiner, do hereby certify that an original letter, of which the foregoing is a true and exact copy, was produced before me on the examination of Peter Geddes, a witness produced on the part of the complainants, and was submitted to him and acknowledged by him, as appears in his deposition, to which this is 324

To GOV'R JAMES D. PORTER:

The undersigned do not believe that any compromise measure at less than fifty per cent., bearing six per cent. interest, would be accepted by the 326 bondholders, and that the practical effect of a measure at a less compromise rate, of either principal or interest, would be to leave a great majority of the bonds outstanding, and practically no settlement of the State debt.

GOV. JAS. D. PORTER, Nashville, Tenn.

Dear Sir:—I telegraphed you Dec. 11th, and 328 again to-day. I feel it my duty to further say: That while I fully recognize and sympathise with the financial distress of Tenn., yet I cannot entirely disregard my own embarrassment and that of my fellow bondholders.

I represent one of the many estates which purchased Tenn. bonds at a time when her credit stood high, and none feared that she would do aught to lower it. We now offer liberally to share half of 329

the loss. Speaking for one (and I believe that I express the sentiment of the majority) I cannot discount my just claim at better than 50 and 6 per cent. (fifty per cent. of old bonds and interest due changeable for new bonds bearing six per cent. interest), nor can I yet believe that the Legislature of Tenn. will force her creditors (who have offered so liberally) to take less.

Allow me to call your attention to a fact of which you may not be aware. John T. McKinnon speaks 330 for (if he has not already overstepped his instructions) a self-appointed syndicate. It is well-known that the syndicate own few, if any, of the bonds. They do not represent the bondholders. In fact the bondholders denounce their interference and mercenary motives. This self-constituted syndicate does not seek only to improve and promote the best interests of the South.' Its sympathy would seem to be quite as much with itself. With a subscribed capital of only ten thousand dollars, it aims to in- 331 crease it by levying a regular broker's commission on the already over-burdened stockholders.

As a sovereign State your unfortunate creditors appeal to you to act as becomes your dignified position—to deal directly with bondholders, to treat as discreditable impertinence, this interference of a self-appointed syndicate, that speaks without the authority of your creditors, and whose misrepresentations and mercenary motives they generally denounce. 332

338

At a meeting of Bondholders of the State of Tennessee, held pursuant to the above call, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted :—

Whereas, on the 8th March, 1877, at a meeting between a committe of five members of the Tennessee Legislature (of which Col. John H. Savage was Chairman), and a Committee of Arbitration (of which Mr. George S. Coe was Chairman), to whom had been referred the question of a fair and equitable adjustment between the Southern States in default and their bondholders, the debt of the State of Tennessee was fully discussed, with the view of ascertaining and determining what a fair and equitable adjustment of it would be ; and 339

Whereas, at the conclusion of the conference between the Committee of the Tennessee Legislature and the Committee of Arbiters, the Committee of Arbiters made an award that the debt of the State of Tennessee ought to be re-adjusted by the issue of new bonds, at the rate of sixty per cent. of the total amount of the debt and interest : the new bonds to bear interest at six per cent., payable semi-annually and the coupons for interest to be made receivable for all taxes and dues to the State ; and 340

341 Whereas, The Session of the Legislature expired by constitutional limitation a few days after the award of the Arbiters was rendered, and there was no time to enact a law to give it effect; and

Whereas, it was very generally understood that an extra session of the Legislature would be convened to accept a proposition from the bondholders to compromise the State debt, on the terms of the award of the Committee of Arbitration and to enact a law to 342 fully carry it out, the holders of a large amount of bonds of Tennessee did make and send to the Governor propositions of compromise on the terms of said award, and the Governor did thereafter convene the Legislature in extra session to consider said proposition; and

Whereas, during the sitting of the legislature, the intervention of other parties, proposing and advocating before it other and different terms of settlement
343 than those considered by the Committee of the Legislature and the Committee of Arbitration, and awarded by the latter Committee, and agreed to by the bondholders, was prejudicial to the interests of the State of Tennessee, and to her creditors, in so far as it has delayed a settlement; and

Whereas, the bondholders of Tennessee had neither an agent or any other person to represent them before the Legislature, and fully expected that 344 the Senators and Representatives of the people of Tennessee would ratify and confirm the award of the distinguished and disinterested gentlemen who had acted as a Committee of Arbitration, and accept the proposition of the bondholders made in accordance therewith, unhesitatingly; therefore,

Resolved,—That efforts made by any person who purported to represent the bondholders of Tennessee 345 were entirely unauthorized, and that the declaration alleged to have been made at Nashville that a settlement could be effected with the bondholders upon a lower basis than that proposed by the Committee of Arbiters, of which Mr. Geo. S. Coe is Chairman, has no foundation in fact, so far as it relates to the great body of bondholders.

Resolved—That while we deplore the attitude assumed by the Legislature, while assembled at Nashville in December, toward the bondholders, we believe that it resulted from the influence and unwarrantable interference of other parties than real bondholders, or their representatives. 346

Resolved—That we have an abiding belief that the people of the great State of Tennesssee will not, by the rejection of honest claims which they are abundantly able to pay, suffer a stigma long to rest upon them; the effect of which will be to paralyze the prosperity of the State; subvert its best interests; and engender that demoralization which must ultimately result in losses to its citizens, even far greater than to its creditors. 347

Resolved—That the people of Tennessee be urged to adopt such Legislation as will uphold the honor of the State, and evince proper regard for the high integrity which has has hitherto characterized her citizens.

348 Resolved—That a Committee of five be appointed, consisting of Eugene Kelly, John T. Terry (of E. D. Morgan & Co.), J. G. K. Duer (of James G. King's Sons), Peter Geddes (of Geddes & Smith), and Dr. R. S. Moran—Eugene Kelly to be Chairman—to take such action as, in their judgment, may be for the interest of the bondholders, but with the under-

149 standing that no settlement less favorable than the award of the Committee of Arbitration be accepted.

151 Dear Sir,—Your favor of the 19th inst. did not reach me immediately, otherwise it would have received an earlier acknowledgement.

In my communication of yesterday, I aimed to state the facts as I understand them. Should you think it proper to publish it, you are, of course, at liberty to do so. If you have any suggestion to offer that will enable me to better state the truth, and prove the sincerity of our motives, I shall be pleased to receive them, and will give them prompt and due 152 consideration.

I am not surprised that you regarded our recent meeting as you have. Indeed, but for the timely remarks of Messrs. Moran, Inman, Swann and myself at that meeting, its action would have seemed less guarded and judicious than it was. Messrs. Terry and Pomeroy may not have intended wrong, but, in my opinion, they misapprehended the situation in Tennessee when they stated, as they did at our meeting on the 16th, that if the [50 and 6 per cent. proposition had not been offered to that Legislature, the 60 and 6 per cent. would have been adopted by it. 353

I enclose herewith accounts of the meeting as reported by the Times, World, Tribune and Herald. The Baltimore Sun of the 17th inst., whose reporter was present, reported in some respects more fully what was said at that meeting. The remarks of Dr. R. S. Moran and Eugene Kelly, as given in that paper, are worthy of your notice. I think it but just to Mr. Manning to state that Dr. R. S. Moran represented him, and expressed his sentiments at the meeting. 354

I also enclose a written copy of the resolutions, in accordance with a resolution passed at the meeting of the Committee of Tennessee Bondholders, held January 19, 1878.

TENNESSEE'S DEBT.

WHAT THE BONDHOLDERS SAY ABOUT THE LEGISLATURE'S ACTION.

A meeting of holders of bonds of the State of Tennessee, was held yesterday afternoon, at the office of John B. Manning, No. 14 Wall street. The call was signed by E. D. Morgan & Co., Brown Brothers & Co., Eugene Kelly, Geddes & Smith, James G. King's Sons, A. H. Pomeroy, George W. Stanton and C. Amory Stevens. 369

About thirty-five gentleman were present, representing from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 of the bonds. The total issue of the State Bonds, with accrued interest, aggregates, in round figures, $23,000,000.

Mr. Eugene Kelly was made chairman. He at once called upon Mr. A. H. Pomeroy to present the resolutions, and, without opposition, the following were adopted, with a preamble which, in substance, recites the action taken by the Legislature of Tennessee, and also that of persons endeavoring to effect a settlement on a different basis than that desired by the bondholders : 380

Resolved, That the efforts of any person who purported to represent the bondholders of Tennessee were entirely unauthorized, and the declaration, alleged to have been made at Nashville, that a settlement could be effected with the bondholders upon a lower basis than that proposed by the Committee of Arbiters, has no foundation in fact, so far as it relates to the great body of bondholders. 371

Resolved, That while we deplore the attitude assumed by the Legislature, during the Special Session, towards the bondholders, we believe it resulted from the influence and unwarrantable interference of other parties than real bondholders or their representatives. 372

Resolved, That we have an abiding belief that the great State of Tennessee will not, by the rejection of honest claims which it is abundantly able to pay, suffer a stigma long to rest upon it, the effect of which will be to paralyze the prosperity of the State, subvert its best interests and engender that demor-

373 alization which must ultimately result in loss to its citizens even far greater than to its creditors.

Resolved, That the people of Tennessee be urged to adopt such legislation as will uphold the honor of the State and evince proper regard for the high integrity which has hitherto characterized its citizens.

The first resolution was directed in part towards the Bond Funding Association, an account of the labors of which was given in The World of yes-374 terday. It was also, it is thought, intended to hit some of those present who had, after the 60 per cent. bill failed to pass the Special Session of the Tennessee Legislature, informed the Governor, or some of the legislators, that they would take 50 per cent.

As the 60 per cent. award has fallen through, the question arose as to what should be done next. Mr. C. A. Stevens, as Trustee of the estate of Calvin Stevens, read his correspondence with the Governor 375 of Tennessee, and others read dispatches showing what they had done. Mr. Albert Crane offered a resolution to the effect that since negotiations had been broken off bondholders should resolve to take nothing less than 100 cents on the dollar. He thought the bondholders ought to stand on their dignity. The State was able to pay, and eventually would be obliged to. Mr. Pomeroy followed, saying he wished the matter of a compromise had never been broached, and cited the case of Illinois, 376 whose bonds were at one time worth only five or six per cent., but she now enjoys as good credit as any State. He thought it would have been the same with Tennessee if she had been let alone. Mr. Kelly replied that he did not think the cases were parallel, so far as present action was concerned. The majority of bondholders had expressed their willingness to take less than par for their bonds, and he thought they ought not to demand more 377 than they had offered to compromise for. Mr. Peter Geddes, who represented Scotch bondholders, and who has recently visited the State to study the subject, was also opposed to any such expression, as likely to invalidate any progress that had been made. The Rev. Dr. Robert Moran, who has also studied the subject in the State, agreed with the preceding speaker, and said that with a new legislature he felt sure the proposed compromise could be effected. This counsel prevailed. and the matter 378 was settled by the adoption of a resolution offered by Mr. J. T. Terry, of E. D. Morgan & Co,, which provided for the appointment of a committee of five, of which the chairman of the meeting should be chairman; this committee to take such action as its judgment may dictate. Messrs. Eugene Kelly, Peter Geddes, John T. Terry, Rev. Robert D. Moran, of North Carolina, and Mr. Duer, of James G. King's Sons, were appointed such a committee."

C. AMORY STEVENS, Esq., New York:

Dear Sir:—I have received your communications of the 24th and 25th inst., with copy of resolutions adopted at the late meeting of the creditors of Tennessee.

381 I have no comment to make upon the action of the creditors, except to reiterate my communication of the 19th inst., addressed to Mr. Manning, a copy of which was furnished to yourself.

382 JANUARY 19th, 1878.

Mr. JNO. B. MANNING, New York:

Sir—I have read the proceedings of the meeting of the creditors of the State of Tennessee, held at your offices on the 16th inst., when it was resolved that no settlement of the debt would be accepted on a lower basis than sixty cents.

In a special message to the Legislature of Tennessee, delivered on the 12th of December last, I 383 recommended the compromise of the public debt upon a basis of fifty per cent. This was done upon the authority of a number of the large creditors of the State communicated to me by telegraph. Among others, a telegram was received from Mr. C. Amory Stevens, the Trustee of the estate of one of the largest creditors, in which he proposed "to take fifty cents on the dollar," and urged me to submit the proposition to the Legislature, and gave expression to the opinion that his dispatch "repre-
384 sent the sentiment of most of the investment holders," and from yourself I received the following telegram:

"NEW YORK, December 10th, 1877.

"To His Excellency, JAS. D. PORTER,
"Governor of Tennessee:

"On behalf of clients, I offer to accept for bonds and

"interest at fifty per cent. new six per cent. consols 385
"with first coupon payable July, 1878, and if not "then, January, 1879, I beg you to lay this before
"the Legislature.

"JOHN B. MANNING."

This with others of similar import was submitted to the Legislature in good faith and in the honest belief, founded upon assurance made by the creditors whose correspondence was communicated to the Legislature that if this offer was adopted by the 386
State that it would be generally acceptable to the creditors. At the meeting referred to, no allusion was made to your agency in the business, and your own silence—coupled with the action of the creditors at the meeting before mentioned, is a reflection upon my own character and conduct, and puts me in the attitude of trifling with a great question, by recommending a compromise without the assent of the creditors, after assuming that they had a right to a hearing. 387

If this compromise had been adopted by the Legislature the taxpayers of the State would, in my opinion, have ratified it and accepted it as a final adjustment of the question. As it is, public opinion, as represented by those who favored it, has settled upon it as the basis of a future settlement.
For this, yourself and those who acted with you are responsible, and you cannot complain if there is no reaction in public sentiment responsive to the resolutions adopted at the late meeting of the creditors. 388
If this meeting had been held in December last its moral influence would have been of incalculable benefit in the assurance that it would have carried to the minds of members of the Legislature that they were dealing directly with the creditors of the State. Then they would not have been confronted at every legislative step and misled by a lot of spec-

389 ulators and adventurers whose aspiration was a bear movement, out of which it is believed they made many thousands of dollars.

I will send a copy of this communication to Mr. Stevens.

I have the honor to be,
Very respectfully,
Jas. D. Porter.

Sir,—I have taken the liberty of telegraphing you 392 to-night as follows: "Am authorized on behalf of large number of Tennessee bondholders to submit proposition of compromise by accepting sixty cents on dollar for bonds and past due coupons, payable in new six per cent. consols, and ask you to convene Legislature to carry out compromise," which I now beg to confirm.

From a letter received from your City I inferred that a proposition from the bondholders would be 393 acceptable, and that the Legislature would be called together to consider it. There are a great many holders of bonds who feel that Tennessee has the ability to pay her debt in full. Still, they are willing to accept a compromise rather than let the matter remain unsettled longer.

Trusting the above will be favorably received, I have the honor to be,

SIR:—I beg to acknowledge your favor of 3d inst. At the time I telegraphed you I was unable to say how many thousand bonds of Tennessee I represented. I suppose I have consulted with some $2,000,000 worth, and they seem satisfied to accept a compromise of 60%, while they would at the same time feel grateful for a better settlement. People 396 have a delicacy in stating the amount of Tennessee bonds they hold, fearing it might injure their credit, but this fear, I hope and trust, will be done away with, now that Tennessee is coming forward to settle her debts to the best of her ability. I understand you are in favor of paying dollar for dollar, and I wish all your citizens were of the same mind.

By this registered letter I send you the following

NEW YORK, Jan. 24, 1878.

To His Excellency GOV. JAS. D. PORTER,
Nashville, Tenn.:

Sir—I thank you for your outspoken views, as expressed in your favor of the 19th inst. It enables me to correct a misapprehension which you manifestly entertain, and to place my associate and self 410 correctly before you and the public.

In behalf of myself and others who entertained similar views, I offered and urged the 50 and 6% settlement; not that I thought it just to ourselves, or honorable to the State of Tennessee. Indeed, I believed then, as I do now, that anything less than 60 and 6%, the arbitration award, would be neither just nor honorable.

I judged, however, from the reported proceedings of the Legislature that the passage of the sixty and 411 six bill was then highly improbable. At the same time I had what I then deemed good reasons to believe that if the creditors would only modify their proposition by substituting 50 for 60 in the bill, the Legislature would very gladly accept it.

It was under this impression that a few of us, consulting together, thought it expedient under the circumstances, to advise your Excellency that such a modification would, in our opinion, be accepted by the creditors. This modification was proposed, 412 however, without any authority from the great majority of the bondholders, but it was thought by those of us who made it, that an adjustment, even on the basis of 50 and 6% would be accepted by most of the investment holders, rather than that the Legislature should adjourn without final settlement of the debt. I believe even now, if the Legisla-

413 ture had promptly accepted our proposition, the majority of the bondholders would have concurred in it. But, while your Excellency fully appreciated our honest efforts, the Legislature did not respond to them in the spirit in which they were made. A certain few wisely and eloquently endeavored to uphold the honor of the State by doing justice to her creditors. The majority, however, seemed to regard our increased liberality very much in the light of gratitude as de-414 fined by a French philosopher—"a lively appreciation of favors to come." They pressed for even further concessions. They treated "the pesky bondholder" as a public enemy, an outside barbarian, whose rights were unworthy of recognition. They forgot, however, the solemn promises which the State had made when she sought the capital of her creditors to carry on those internal improvements which have enhanced the value of property in Tennessee far beyond the amount borrowed.

415 Under such circumstances it would certainly seem quite natural and right that the great majority of bondholders who never offered settlement at less than 60 and 6% should adhere to the Arbitration Award, even more firmly than before, while those of us who did offer even further concessions to that Legislature, remembering the spirit in which it was received, are determined never again to renew it. There is now prevailing one unanimous sentiment among the bondholders—60 and 6% or repudiation 416 is the question for Tennessee to decide.

As your Excellency has very properly suggested, an earlier public expression on the part of the bondholders themselves would have been of incalculable benefit. But we were deceived. The same "Funding Association" that befogged the Tennessee Legislature also befogged us. As soon as we discovered how misrepresented we had been we gave public expression to our views. And that the public may 417 more fully know who are the bona fide creditors seeking their honest dues, and who are of the Syndicate Ring seeking only to prey on the misfortunes of both creditor and debtor, it is proposed, at an early day, to even more clearly expose the inner workings of the "Funding Association, Limited." By its acts it has proved itself one of the most mercenary and unprincipled conspiracies that has ever disgraced the annals of a people.

I presume that your Excellency's allusion to "a 418 bear movement, out of which many thousands were made," applies to the Syndicate Ring. If intended as applicable to others, allow me to assure you that it is a mistake. I am well aware that a stranger, whose name we have been unable to ascertain, asserted, at our meeting of the 16th inst., that he so regarded the dispatches, on the strength of which you reconvened the Legislature. There may have been seeming cause for suspicion on the part of those who bought the bonds at 47 and sold them at 419
34; but it was an unfounded suspicion. A more false statement could not have been uttered, if it was intended for my associates and self, whose dispatches you submitted to the Legislature.

Allow me to add, that whatever difference of opinion may exist in other respects, I think that I may safely say that there is one point on which there is unanimity of opinion. The creditors of Tennessee fully appreciate the earnest and sincere efforts of your Excellency in support of their rights, 420
while Tennessee herself must ever gratefully remember you as the devoted champion of her honor and integrity.

With assurances of respect and esteem, I remain,

Very respectfully,

C. Amory Stevens.

Deposition of JAS. D. PORTER, witness for defendants, taken in Paris, Tennessee, March 9th, 1880, 3 before L. W. HUMES, Special Examiner, duly appointed under an order of the United States Circuit Court, Western District of Tennessee.

Taken pursuant to agreement.

Present—W. Y. C. HUMES, for Defendants.

JAS. D. PORTER, being first duly sworn, deposed as follows: 4

I am a resident of Paris, Tennessee, and have been all of my life; I am 50 years old; I was Governor of the State of Tennessee twice, covering the years 1875-6-7 and '8.

5 The leading thought of my administration was an adjustment of the State debt.

After the State defaulted in the payment of the interest, I saw that it was impossible to pay the interest out of the revenues of the State according to the assessment existing at that time; about this time I received this communication (which I make Exhibit " A " to this my deposition), and I communicated it to the legislature in my biennial message of January, 1877; the legislature did send the com-6 mission to New York in answer to my recommendation, and they met a committee of arbiters appointed at a meeting held at the clearing house in 1877, a meeting held and controlled by the bondholders of Southern State bonds and held in the interest of these bondholders; after a discussion between this committee of arbiters and this Tennessee commission, the Court of Arbitration recommended a settlement of the debt of the State of Tennessee by the issuance of new bonds at the rate of 60% of the total 7 amount; these New York arbiters in their communication to me stated that this settlement would be just to the bondholders and honorable to the State;
the legislature adjourned for the want of time without considering their recommendation; in the autumn following, I put myself in communication with some of the leading bondholders to know if they would accept the recommendation of that arbitration; they were generally favorable to it; I therefore called the legislature together in extra 8 session the 5th of December, 1877, and submitted a message of that date to them in which I warmly urged that settlement; I submit the message and the accompanying documents as a part of this my deposition, and as Exhibit B. hereto; the originals of the letters in my message, Exhibit B hereto, I do not know where they are, they are not in my possession, but I do know they are true and accurate copies, as I compared the proof with the origi- 9 nal before I sent the message to the legislature; I am satisfied I sent the original letters to the printer with the manuscript of the message; I did this because I did not consider them matters to be preserved after I had them printed in the message.

After the legislature had spent some days in wrangling, they were about to adjourn without doing anything as to the State debt, and I felt that I had done my duty and would let them go, but just at this time I received the telegram, Exhibit 10
No. 2, to Calvin Amory Stevens' deposition, and upon the receipt of this telegram, I at once convened the legislature and sent them a second message; that telegram alone induced me to convene the legislature, and but for it I would not have convened them in the second extra session; it had been suggested to me on the day before, but I yielded to Stevens' telegram because I knew from the books he was a large bondholder, and I believed from his telegram he expressed the sentiments of most of the 11 bondholders.

Neither B. F. Wilson, R. T. Wilson or C. M. Mc-Ghee had, nor attempted to exercise, the slightest influence upon my conduct to bring about a settlement of the State debt through the Legislature, nor made any effort to do so, except that on the 10th of December, 1877, B. F. Wilson handed me a telegram from his brother, R. T. Wilson, in which R.
T. Wilson said his house held or represented some Tennessee bonds, and that they were willing to ac- 12
cept that compromise of 50 cents on the dollar.

I am satisfied my first communication after the meeting of the New York arbitrators was with Messrs.
E. D. Morgan & Co. I wrote them because of the high standing and character of Governor Morgan, and I knew he had a controlling influence among the bondholders of the State, and I communicated

13 with them often on this subject. As will be seen from the letter of July 7, 1877, from Messrs. E. D. Morgan & Co., Exhibit B to my deposition, I had written to them June 29th, 1877, asking if a settlement of the State debt as proposed on the basis of the New York arbiters would be acceptable to the bondholders, and in their reply they say they will consult the bondholders they represent, and write. And they did, as will be seen from their letter to me of October 19th, 1877, in Exhibit B to my deposition hereto.

I had personal interviews with Mr. Peter Geddes in reference to the compromise of the State debt both in New York and Nashville. While he was in Nashville he was in consultation with other gentlemen and myself, who were friendly to and urging the compromise of the State debt. I did not have a doubt of the validity of the debt, and the absolute and entire liability of the State to pay it, and my efforts to bring about an adjustment did 15 not have the slightest reference to the railroads or a single railroad interest; nor was my action influenced by any opinion that in any contingency were they liable for it, or any part of it. And in all of my correspondence with the bondholders no one of them ever intimated a contrary opinion.

The financial condition of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company during my administration was so deplorable that I really feared the State would lose the debt due from the road. The 16 company was about to default in the payment of the interest on its debt, and its officers came to me and told me before the interest fell due, that they could not meet it, and asked me if I would put a State Receiver in charge if they defaulted. I told them that I would—that I would treat them as I had others. They told me the road would settle the entire debt under the Act of 1869–70 if let alone. I did not think it could, and told the officers of the 17 road that if they wanted to hold it they must put up a guarantee for the defaulted interest and they did put United States bonds, and I held them as indemnity for the defaulted interest until the road finally paid its entire bonded debt; although they repeatedly applied to me to relinquish the indemnity so as to enable them to buy bonds and pay off the bonded debt, but this I refused to do, and held the indemnity until they settled the entire bonded debt. 18

During my administration the Mississippi Central Railroad defaulted, and I at once put it into possession of the State Receiver, under the Act of 1851–2, and I so held the road from Kentucky to the Mississippi line until the purchasers paid off the entire bonded debt of the road under the Act of 1869–70, and I refused from time to time applications from the Receiver of the United States Court, holding for the mortgagees, to pay the defaulted interest, and I told him I would not release the road until 19
the entire bond debt due from it to the State was paid, and I so notified the purchasers before their purchase of the road under the decree of the United States Court, that I would give no one charge of the road until its entire bond debt was paid, and I held it until they came up and paid it under the Act of 1869–70. Under the Internal Improvement Act the stockholders, upon the payment of the defaulted interest, were entitled to the management of the road, and I know the purchasers had no such right under 20
the law, and I used this power to coerce from them
the payment of the entire bond debt under the Act of 1869–70. The Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad during my administration settled their bond debt under the Act of 1869–70. Legal proceedings on behalf of the State had been begun before I was Governor for the sale of the deliquent roads, the 21 Knoxville and Charleston and Tennessee and Pacific, the sales of these two roads were perfected during my administration under the Act of 1869-70, the payments for them were received by me and the possession of the roads delivered to the purchasers. The interest collected and paid over by the Receiver of the Mississippi Central Road passed into the treasury as ordinary revenue. No claim was ever made by the holders of coupons of the bonds issued to that road for the interest collected by my 22 Receiver. I am a lawyer by profession; I was elected Judge of the 12th Judicial Circuit at the regular election in 1870, for the full term of eight years, and I resigned after a service of 3½ years.

I have never had the slightest interest in or connection with any railroad, except as Governor of the State and representing her interest I have on the hustings a hundred times told the people I believed they were liable for the whole debt and ought to pay it. And I have never advocated the 23 payment of less than that except where I believed it was best for the creditor and he was willing to take it. And in all of my recommendations to the Legislature to pay less, it was where the propositions came from the bondholders. And in my biennial message to the Legislature just as I retired from the office, I told them I believed it would be best for the people to shoulder and pay the entire debt; said passage of said message is hereto made, Exhibit "C."—And further saith not.

New York, December, 1877.

To His Excellency, James D. Porter, Governor of Tennessee:

Sir: The undersigned holders of bonds of the State of Tennessee, believing that the best interests of Tennessee, and of her public creditors, will be served by an early permanent adjustment of the claims of such creditors on a basis honorable to the 26 State and equitable to them, respectfully ask your Excellency, in the full belief that such a settlement is practicable, to recommend that the Legislature of Tennessee, as early as may be possible at its ensuing session, appoint a commission to come to this city, and confer with the holders of bonds of the State of Tennessee, for the purposes mentioned herein.

We remain your Excellency's most obedient servants. 27 to the

FORTIETH GENERAL ASSEMBLY

of the

STATE OF TENNESSEE.

FIRST EXTRA SESSION.

December 5, 1877.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

32

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

I have convened the General Assembly in extraordinary session for the purpose of considering the following recommendation to adjust the State debt: "That after adding the arrears of interest the aggregate amount of the State debt should be readjusted by the issue of new bonds at the rate of sixty per cent. of the total amount; i. e., for every sum of one thousand dollars, new bonds should be given in exchange and full settlement for six hundred dollars, or for proportionate amounts, the new bonds to carry six per cent., payable semi-annually in the city of New York, the principal payable in thirty years, the interest coupons to be received by the State for all taxes." 33

This is the recommendation made by a Committee 34 of Arbiters, appointed at a meeting of citizens held at the Clearing House in New York City, in January, 1877, after a conference with the delegation appointed by the General Assembly. On the 22d of February, 1877, in a special message, I urged the General Assembly to send this committee of conference, and recommended that all questions touching the State debt "be postponed to await the action of the arbiters," and announced that if this policy was adopted, "and if time becomes essential 35 I will not hesitate to convene the General Assembly in extraordinary session."

On the 19th of March, 1877, the Legislative Committee reported to the General Assembly the result of the conference; seven days thereafter the two Houses adjourned without taking action upon this report. Under the circumstances mentioned, I have recognized it as my duty to call you from your homes to consider this recommendation, and to respectfully and earnestly recommend its adoption. 36

Since the adjournment of the General Assembly, the debts due from the Memphis & Charleston and Mississippi Central Railroads have been paid; deducting the sum of $299,814, the amount of the debt of the Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad, not due, and for which the State has ample security, the debt of the State on the first of January, 1878, 37 will amount to $23,212,606; this includes the bonded debt not due, the bonded debt past due, five full installments of interest, and balances of several installments not presented, amounting to $40,000. The greater part of this debt was incurred prior to 1861. The following table exhibits the amount issued since the late war between the States, the amount canceled and the amount now outstanding:

	Regist'd and not canceled.	Regist'd and canceled.	Canceled before Registration.	East Tennessee Unive'ity.	Mineral Home.	Unaccounted for.	Total.
Green, no letter	2388	321	7021	113	120	37	10,000
" "B"..	645	114	4283	100	....	61	5,203
" "C"..	598	60	1401	2	...	139	2,200
White, "D"..	2416	429	2006	37	....	53	4,941
39 Grand Total...	6047	924	14711	252	120	290	22,344

The first series, Green, no letter, were issued under the Act of 1851-2, and amendments, $9,593,000 issued to railroads and turnpikes, and $407,000 were renewals of bonds past due. The second series, Green "B," were issued under authority of the Act of 1851-2, $290,000 were renewals for past due bonds, the balance issued to railroads and turnpikes. The third series, Green "C," and fourth 40 series, White "D," issued under Acts of 1866 and 1868, were for past due interest, and known as Funding Bonds. This table shows that there are now outstanding $3,033,009 of the bonds popularly known as "Brownlow Bonds."

The debt is accumulating at the rate of four thousand dollars per day, and if the present condition of affairs continue, it is an easy calculation

to determine how soon the debt will gain volume 41 enough to destroy the prosperity of the State and bring discredit upon all of its citizens.

THE VALIDITY OF THE DEBT.

No question can now arise as to the validity of the public debt with the exception of the inconsiderable amount issued to Mineral Home Railroad, which has been declared fraudulent; the people of Tennessee, through their representatives, have in the most formal and solemn manner recognized it 42
by the bonds of any series being declared receivable in payment of the purchase money for delinquent railroads. It was again recognized by the funding act of 1873, by which the obligation of the State was renewed by paying interest on the entire debt and the principal at maturity, and the validity of the several series of bonds have been recognized by the 39th and 40th General Assembly by being declared receivable in discharge of debts due to the State, and I assume that no judicial tribunal would 43
now pronounce against the funded and registered bonds.

But the New York arbiters say in the report made to the General Assembly, after a full discussion with the legislative committee, "when all the circumstances under which the debt was incurred, the peculiar condition of affairs in the State, together with its present ability and its future resources," that the compromise recommended by them is
"just and fair both to debtor and to creditor." 44
The adoption of this recommendation of a tribunal so disinterested and distinguished without consulting the holders of our bonds, would relieve the State of the suspicion of unfairness or of the charge of repudiating an acknowledged liability. But such a number of the bondholders have signified their willingness to accept the terms of the adjustment as

45 to satisfy me that if it is made it will be generally acceptable. I transmit the proposition of the bondholders.
The terms are liberal to the State, the creditors voluntarily make the suggestion, and it is consistent with the dignity of the State to accept the abatement. The financial condition of the State is the only barrier to immediate prosperity. Its greatest want is capital and immigration. Both will avoid us unless the public debt is provided for.
Men do not buy where the tenure of property is insecure, 46 or where public obligations are disregarded.
One of the highest duties of the citizen is the maintenance of the public credit; without it little is left worthy of public preservation.

THE ABILITY OF THE STATE.

There is to my mind no question as to the ability of the State to meet the interest on the debt, if adjusted upon the terms offered by its creditors. The present assessed value of the property of the State 47 is $236,000,000, and is an unusually liberal one to the tax-payer. Tennessee contributes to the markets of the world, with her cotton, grain and tobacco as largely, and is as rich in soil, minerals and productions as any State in the Union. The value of the principal crops raised in Tennessee during the year 1876, amounted to $47,126,310, not less than onethird of which was surplus. The productions of the State of Kentucky for the same period was $2,687,560 less. Tennessee produced seventeen millions 48 more than Virginia, three millions more than Georgia, more than Maryland and South Carolina combined, more than Alabama and Florida, and seventeen million more than North Carolina, while the difference in population is in favor of Kentucky and Georgia, and Maryland and South Carolina combined. The productions of the State for the year 1877 amounted to over $52,000,000, with an increase surplus of cotton, wheat and tobacco, 49 and the value of farm products is greater per capita in Tennessee than it is in any of the States named, and greater, according to the last census report, than it is in the rich States of New York, Pennsylvania and Missouri. There are other productions of the State, cattle, mules, horses, sheep, bacon, fruit, marble, iron, from which large revenues are derived, with an increasing area and capacity for productions.

The bonds of the State were issued for purposes 50 of internal improvement, very many of them were sold above par, and are now held by the original purchasers, by educational and charitable institutions; among the latter class is the Peabody Institute, at Baltimore, Maryland, which has signified through the proper officer a willingness to accept the terms of the proposed adjustment; the greatest American philanthropist, George Peabody, left as part of the endowment to this Institute that bears his name, $364,000 in bonds of the State of Ten- 51 nessee. Since 1868 the children of Tennessee have received from the Peabody Trust Fund, for their education, the sum of $191,650, and for the year 1878, an appropriation that will make it exceed $200,000. The State of Tennessee cannot, in my opinion, accept this abatement, or that proposed by the holders of bonds issued for the erection of the Capitol, those held by educational institutions, by charities, or by persons whose guardians made the investment in pursuance of our statute authorizing 52
the investment of the estate of minors in the bonds of the State.

If the adjustment recommended is adopted, I recommend that the new bond shall bear date July the first, 1878, to carry interest from that date: provision for a Sinking Fund can with propriety be postponed, but in case of a surplus in the Treasury

53 after liquidating the appropriations made by law, it would be well to provide for its investment in the bonds of the State, and in this way inaugurate a system for the gradual extinguishment of the principal of the debt.

THE COLLECTION OF THE REVENUE.

The Comptroller of the Treasury, in his biennial report to the General Assembly, states that "it is believed that the compensation allowed Trustees is 54 inadequate to the labor and responsibility of the office, especially in the smaller counties where there is little or no municipal taxes to be collected;" experience has confirmed the wisdom of this recommendation; in one of the counties of the State there is no collector, no one being willing to accept the office for the compensation allowed by law; in several others resignations have been tendered. The revenue cannot be efficiently collected in the smaller counties for an inadequate compensation, and I re-55 commend such an amendment to the statute as will secure this result.

It will be necessary to provide by law for the expenses of this extraordinary session of the General Assembly.

CONCLUSION.

The gravity of the question submitted to you will, I doubt not, command your most deliberate consideration; counselling wisdom and calmness in its 56 discussion, I leave it with you, in the confident belief that your action will be controlled by your convictions of duty to your constituents.

61 LETTER FROM G. W. NORTON & CO., LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY.

LOUISVILLE, KY., October 27, 1877.

JAMES L. GAINES, Esq., Comptroller,
Nashville, Tenn.:

Dear Sir: Your favor of 25th inst. is received and noted. As stated in ours of 24th inst., the members of this firm have held and owned Tennessee State bonds for more than twenty years, having faith
62 in them as a safe and good investment. The Clearing House Committee of New York, Geo. S. Coe, Esq., Chairman, recommended an adjustment of the State debt of Tennessee by issuing a new six per cent. bond, with coupons receivable for all taxes and dues to the State, to the extent of sixty per cent. of the principal and accrued interest of the present outstanding State bonds, and if the Tennessee Legislature would certainly adopt this plan of adjustment, without any modification whatever,
63 we would be willing to accept it, as far as we are concerned, and, as stated in ours of the 24th inst., we believe it would be generally accepted by the bondholders if promptly offered, but in our opinion, the bondholders would not accept any less than this. If the Legislature will certainly adopt the Coe recommendation, then we should be pleased to see an early called session of the Legislature. We have no objection to you placing this letter and ours of the 24th inst., in the hands of Governor Porter, as sug-
64 gested by you. Truly respectfully,

G W. NORTON & CO.

LETTER FROM E. D. MORGAN & CO., NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, July 7, 1877.

To His Excellency, Gov. JAS. D. PORTER,
Nashville, Tenn.: 76

Dear Sir: Your favor of the 29th ult., addressed to Messrs. Geddes & Smith and ourselves, has been received, advising that you propose to convene the General Assembly after the new assessment has been completed, in November, for the purpose of adjusting your State debt.

You ask if a settlement upon the basis proposed

77 by the Arbiters in March last will be acceptable to the bondholders, and desire us to confer with them and advise you. We will communicate with you later on, after learning the views of the foreign holders whom we represent, as also of some of the larger holders here.

We are told that it is represented in Tennessee that large amounts of your State bonds are held by parties who bought at late current prices. We beileve that very few are so held. Our observation 78 leads us to believe that nearly all the bonds which the necessities or fears of holders have forced to sale of late years have been absorbed by your railroads for settlement with the State. We find them generally held by original investors, who believe that your State will in the end pay them, principal and interest.

Very respectfully,

E. D. MORGAN & CO.

To Jas. D. Porter's Deposition.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

The State has issued 49,393 bonds, amounting to $49,173,316.66; the number cancelled is 28,385, amounting to $28,163,016.66; the number now outstanding as a liability against the State is 20,219, 80 amounting to $20,221,300. In ten years the State has paid three installments of interest, seven are past due, amounting, after deducting $149,050 paid to educational and charitable institutions, to $4,052,-717, making a debt of principal and interest of $24,274,000.17. The settlement of this debt is paramount to all questions of legislation that can engage the attention of the General Assembly; it involves the honor and good name of the State, the credit and honor of every one of its citizens; it is a liability that was voluntarily contracted, and whether it was wisely created or not, cannot now be questioned. I hold, and have always believed, that in the light of moral and legal duty, as a question of commercial honor and of State pride, the best settlement of the debt for Tennessee would be to pay the entire debt according to the terms of the contract; this would be a heavy burden, but when it became oppressive a temporary suspension of the interest payment could be made, and with a return of prosperity, with a moderate increase of population, and a reasonable development of our resources, now in full fruition, the whole debt could be paid without serious embarrassment to any one. But the creditors themselves have relieved the State of the necessity of providing of the entire debt by offering such an abatement of the principal as to bring its payment within the ability of the State without making it burdensome. In December, 1877, certain creditors of the State proposed to adjust that part of the debt held by themselves upon a basis of fifty cents for principal and past due interest, and offered assurances that the great body of the creditors would accept the same terms; this proposition was submitted to an extra session of the Fortieth General Assembly, and its passage earnestly recommended. I am satisfied that the creditors making this proposition would still make the adjustment; settled at fifty cents the debt would amount to $12,137,000, the annual interest upon this sum, at six per cent., would amount to $728,220. I do not hesitate to again urge the acceptance of this proposition.

DEPOSITION OF M. T. POLK. 1

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS, FOR HIMSELF AND OTHERS vs. THE CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS & NEW ORLEANS RAILROAD COMPANY.	No. 317.

2

Deposition of M. T. Polk, a witness for defendant, taken before me in the above named cause, in the presence of James Fentress, solicitor for defendants, and S. Watson, Jr., solicitor for complainants. 3

Said witness, being first duly sworn to speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, deposes and says:

Q. 1. State your residence, and also what office, if any, you now hold in Tennessee, and how long you have held it?

A. I live in Nashville, Tennessee, and am the present 4
Treasurer of the State; my former residence was in Bolivar, Tennessee, where I am now.

Q. 2. How long have you been Treasurer of Tennessee?

5 A. Since the 7th day of February, 1877.

Q. 3. Has any holder of the bonds of Tennessee, prior to the beginning of this suit, applied to you, as such Treasurer, at any time, to set apart any of the revenues of the State, as provided in section 3 of the Funding Act of 1873: if so, when and who?

A. No one has made such application.

Q. 4. Has any such application been made since the beginning of this suit, or at any time?

A. No.

6 Q. 5. What amount of State revenue has come into the Treasurer's office of Tennessee each year since you have been Treasurer, which might have been set apart under the third section of the Funding Act of 1873? If you have not the exact official figures with you, give your best recollection.

A. I prefer to give exact figures, and can only do so by referring to my books in my office at Nashville, which I will do, and send the sworn certificate next week; if the third section of the Funding Act of 1873 contem-
7 plated appropriating all the revenue received into the Treasury, first, to the payment of interest on the funded and registered bonds of the State, then to the payment of interest on bonds held by educational institutions, and the school fund of the State, the Treasurer received and could have paid out during 1877, $1,320,920.97; for 1878, $656,528.84; for 1879, $491,931.89.

Q. 6. Did any holder of Tennessee bonds, ever claim, prior to the bringing of this suit, so far as you know, that any bond issued by the State of Tennessee was a 8 lien, or secured by a lien on any railroad in Tennessee?

A. Never; the claim was new to me.

Q. 7. State what balance, if any, was in the Treasury of the State of Tennessee on the 24th of January, 1879?

A. On the 24th of January, 1879, there was in the Treasury at the close of business, $411,408.64.

Deposition of James L. Gaines. 1

The said James L. Gaines, a witness on behalf of the defendants in the foregoing entitled causes, who being first duly sworn and cautioned, deposes and says as follows:

My name is James L. Gaines, am aged 39 years, am Comptroller of the Treasury of the State of Tennessee, and have been since 1875. I am familiar with the bonded indebtness of the State of Tennessee. 2

The State had issued first bonds for stock in the Union Bank and the Planters Bank, turnpike bonds. Bonds in aid and to buy stock in the Memphis and LaGrange Railroad. Bank of Tennessee bonds, to buy stock (these were all prior to 1838), other turnpike bonds, bonds to build the Capital of the State were next issued in 1848, and then the bonds issued in aid of the railroads under the Internal Improvement laws of 1851-2.

3 Below I give a table of the amounts and purposes for which all the bonds have been issued for all purposes to-wit:

Amounts issued, grouped according to purpose of issuance:

	Amount.	Total.
Banks,	$3,000,000.00
Railroads,	29,000,000.00
Turnpikes,	1,499,066.66
Capital,	866,000.00		4
Agricultural Bureau,	30,000.00
Hermitage,	48,000.00
Renewals,	697,000.00

5	Funding Bonds, 1866,...	4,941,000.00
	" " 1868,...	2,200,000.00
	New Series, 1873,.......	6,641,000.00

Total amount of Bond issued,.......$49,173,316.66.

Of the bonds issued in aid of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, there are now outstanding 1,422 bonds of $1,000 each.

There are outstanding of the bonds issued in aid of the McMinnville & Manchester Railroad, 360 6 bonds of $1,000 each—$360,000.

There are outstanding of the bonds issued in aid of the Winchester & Alabama Railroad, 479 bonds of $1,000 each—$479,000.

There are outstanding of the bonds issued in aid of the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad, 120 bonds of $1,000 each—$120,000.

The balance have been cancelled; most of them were cancelled in liquidation of the indebtedness of the railroad to the State.

7 All of the bonds mentioned above as outstanding against several railroad companies have been registered under the Act of 1873, except 67 issued to the Nashville and Northwestern, 13 to the McMinnville and Manchester, 36 to the Winchester and Alabama and 9 to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad. And every bond presented for registration, and which had upon it coupons past due, the latter were funded in new series funded bonds of the State of Tennessee.

8 Of the $49,173,316.66 bonds issued by the State, $20,221,300 are now outstanding. The difference has been cancelled by renewal of past due bonds and by liquidation of debts due by the railroads. The bonds issued previous to 1851 bore 5, 5½ and 6 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually. These bonds issued before 1851, were payable some in 15, 20, 25 and 30 years after date.

The familiar designation given the bonds issued by the State was as follows : 9

White A, issued under Act of 1838.
White bond, No Letter, East Tenn. and Ga. R. R. bonds under Act of 1850. Capitol bonds.
White B, issued under Act 1851 and 1852.
" C, issued under Act 1851 and 1852.

These are all ante-war bonds, and were not all issued under Internal Improvement Laws. 10

"Green, no letter," under Act 1851-2 and amendments.
"Green B," under Act 1851-2 and amendments.
"Green C," under the Act of 1868.
"White D," under the Act of 1866.
"Green F," or "New Series Funding Bonds" under the Act of 1873.

The last three series are known as funding bonds. The last five series are post war bonds. 11

Of White B bonds there were issued $11,833,000, and they were all issued to railroads, except 25 bonds to turnpikes, 48 on account of Hermitage purchase, and 30 bonds to Agricultural Bureau.

White C were all issued to railroads; all of the bonds of White B, are known as one series, and so of White C.

There is nothing on the face of the bonds known as White B, to indicate whether issued to railroad company or for other purposes. 12

The further taking of this deposition, by consent of parties, is adjourned until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

TUESDAY MORNING, Sept. 2, 1879.

By consent of counsel, the further taking of this 13 deposition is adjourned until to-morrow morning at ten o'clock.

Wednesday Morning, Sept. 3d, 1879.

Present—Edward H. East, Solicitor for Defendants, and Samuel Watson, Solicitor for Complainants.

The witness, James L. Gaines, being interrogated, deposes further as follows:

14 On examination of cancelled bonds issued for purchase of Hermitage and to the Agricultural Bureau, I find that they were issued on the same plate as the other "White B" bonds issued in aid of the railroads, with the exception that on the face of all the bonds (I have examined), issued to the Agricultural Bureau, the figures 1851-2, printed in the bonds is erased and changed in ink 1855-6, and to "Agricultural Bureau" added in ink, and in case of the Hermitage bonds examined by me, I 15 find they are printed on the same blank as above with the figures 1851-2, erased with pen and ink.

I herewith file a copy of the different specimens of "White B," marked Exhibit A, B and C respectively, attached hereto and made a part hereof. A few of the first numbered of the White B are on blue paper, so are also some of the bonds issued for building the capitol.

There is a separate series of bonds in the case of those issued in aid of the East Tennessee and 16 Georgia Railroad Company, known as white bonds, no letter, but no separate series issued in aid of any other railroad company of which there are any now outstanding. Many different railroad companies received bonds of the same series.

There is nothing in my office showing or identifying what particular bond was issued to any railroad that I know of, except the receipt executed to the Governor by the several companies for the bonds 17 received by them.

The receipts are on file in the office of the Secretary of State, and copies of them I am informed are on file as evidence in these causes.

Since 1875, and while I have been Comptroller, and after the Bank of Tennessee ceased to do business,
the railroad companies proposing to pay interest had to settle with me as Comptroller of the Treasury, and having ascertained the amount due from them if they paid in money, they obtained 18 from me a receivable warrant authorizing the Treasurer to receive from said company the amount so ascertained to be due from them as interest on the bonds issued in aid of their particular road.

If they paid in coupons, they did so in coupons due at the same time the interest was due from them, and for which I executed to them a receipt.

I received as comptroller coupons from any bonds issued by the State in payment of said interest due from the said railroad companies, provided the 19 coupons corresponded, as above stated, in date when due, and such I believe to have been the custom of my predecessors since the passage of the Act allowing payment of interest in coupons, except that they may have received any past due coupons from any State bond.

The State has paid the interest on all bonds presented and falling due July 1, 1875, also the interest falling due January, 1875, and December, 1874, making in all the three payments of interest due on 20
the bonds issued by the State since I have been in office.

Cross-examination:

The Agricultural Bureau bonds were issued under the Act of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, passed in 1856, Chapter 95. The Hermi-

21 tage bonds were issued under Act of February 11, 1856, Chapter 96.

The bonds issued to the Dyensburg & Mississippi Turnpike Company were so issued under the Act of February 5, 1852, Chapter 110, and were payable in thirty years or less, if they conformed to the terms of the Act authorizing their issuance.

The bonds of the State were not in any published reports of comptrollers designated by series until the pubished report of Comptroller Burch, made to 22 the legislature of 1875.

The account of the bonded indebtedness of the State of Tennessee, before the report of Comptroller Burch in 1875, was kept and published in the comptroller's report, as follows:

State debt proper, comprising bonds issued by the State for stock in turnpike and railroad companies, bonds issued to buy the Hermitage and State Capitol, and for stocks in banks, and to the Bank of Tennessee.

23 Endorsed bonds, comprising bonds issued by railroads, and endorsed by the State.

Bonds loaned to railroad companies, turnpike companies, plank roads, and Agricultural Bureau.

Of the bonds now outstanding, issued to the McMinnville & Manchester Railroad (111), one hundred and eleven were issued after the war.

Of the bonds now outstanding, issued to the Winchester & Alabama Railroad (189), one hundred and eighty-nine were issued after the war.

24 Of the bonds now outstanding, issued to the Nashville & Northwestern Railroad (404), four hundred and four were issued after the war.

And of the bonds now outstanding, issued to the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad (34), thirty-four were issued after the war.

The Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company paid me as comptroller about $25,000 in currency, or money on interest account. And the Receiver of the Mississippi Central paid in cash $110,000, and about $90,000 of which was applied to the interest account of said road. 25

I simply know of the existence of a printed statement made by Comptroller Pennebaker, made in 1870, showing the bonds issued to the different railroads, giving the number and amount of the bonds, and who receipted for the same. A loose sheet (comprising same) I found in my office.

And further deponent saith not. 26

DEPOSITION OF JAMES L. GAINES.

IN THE

Circuit Court of the United States,

FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE, AT MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE. 2

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS, FOR HIMSELF AND OTHERS,

versus

THE CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS & NEW ORLEANS R. R. CO., ET AL. 3

No. 317.

The deposition of James L. Gaines, witness for defendant, taken by agreement of parties in the presence of JAMES FENTRESS, solicitor for defendants, and S. WATSON, Jr., solicitor for complainant, on the 24th day of March, 1880, at Nashville, Tennessee. 4

The said witness having been duly sworn to speak the truth the whole truth and nothing but the truth, deposes and says:

Question 1 by defendant. What office do you now hold in Tennessee, and how long have you held it?

Answer. I hold the office of Comptroller of the State of Tennessee, and have held it since February, 1875.

5 Q. 2. Was a Receiver appointed by the State or any of the authorities thereof of the Mississippi Central Railroad; and, if so, when, and who was appointed?

A. Governor James D. Porter appointed R. P. Neely, Receiver of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company, in February, 1876.

Q. 3. How long did said State's Receiver remain in possession of said Mississippi Central Railroad; and what was the gross amount he collected as Receiver for the State during the time the State held said railroad?

6 A. The State's Receiver remained in possession of said Mississippi Central Road from the date of his appointment until the settlement of the said road's indebtedness to the State, on 28th November, 1877; a report of his transactions, as Receiver, was made by him and filed in the Comptroller's office, but the same was delivered on demand to a Legislative Committee of the General Assembly of 1879, and was never returned to the office by said committee; I am, therefore, unable to state the gross amount reported collected by him as Receiver, during 7 the time the State held said railroad.

Q. 4. How much actual money, if any, did the Receiver for the State aforesaid pay over to you as Comptroller; give amounts and date of such payments?

A. The Receiver aforesaid did pay over to me as Comptroller, the total sum of one hundred and ten thousand dollars; the several payments aggregating this total, were made as follows:

	May 20,	1876,	$10,000	Dec. 11,	1876,	$10,000
8	Aug. 10,	"	5,000
	Sept. 7,	"	5,000	Dec. 26,	1876,	10,000
	" 13,	"	5,000	Jan. 10,	1877,	10,000
	Oct. 18,	"	5,000	" 25,	"	10,000
	Nov. 9,	"	5,000	Feb. 14,	"	10,000
	Dec. 4,	"	5,000	" 24,	"	10,000
				Apr. 11,	"	10,000

Q. 5. What was done with said $110,000 in money so paid into the State by said Receiver? 9

A. It was paid into the State treasury like any other funds or revenue due the State on my receivable warrant to the State Treasurer, who gave his receipt to the Receiver.

Q. 6. Was there any proposition to settle the interest past due by Mississippi Central Railroad with the State, or propositions looking to relieving the said railroad from the State's Receivership; if so, did the State authorities accept such proposition? 10

A. Propositions were made to settle the past due interest and the sinking fund account of the Mississippi Central Railroad, but the State authorities declined to accept said proposition or to surrender the road until the settlement of the whole debt due the State by the road.

Q. 7. Were any representations made by the State authorities of Tennessee to the purchasers of the Mississippi Central Railroad, prior to their purchase, as to State's lien, substitution bonds, etc.; was any suggestion made as to how the purchaser might discharge the debt 11 claimed by the State against said railroad under her internal improvement laws; if so, state them?

A. I remember conversations had with Governor Porter in this connection, and we agreed, and it was so represented to the representatives of the purchasers, that the State had an exclusive lien on the road and its property to the extent of its indebtedness to the State, and that on payment of this indebtedness the purchasers would be substituted to the State's lien; that said indebtedness could be paid in any series of the bonds of 12 the State which were then at a discount in the market.

Q. 8. Did said purchasers afterwards buy the Mississippi Central Railroad; and if so, did they act upon the representations of the State authorities aforesaid; if so, state what was done?

A. The said parties did purchase the Mississippi Central Railroad on these representations, and under mort-

13 gage of 8th November, 1877, made by Chicago, St Louis & New Orleans Railroad to Adolphe Schreiber, James Fentress and L. V. F. Randolph, Trustees, issued eleven hundred and ninety-nine mortgage bonds, for one thousand dollars each, which they delivered to me as Comptroller of the State of Tennessee, and they also delivered to me eleven hundred and ninety-nine bonds of the State of Tennessee; these State bonds were canceled by me, and filed in the Comptroller's office; the mortgage bonds were redelivered to the Trustees under 14 said mortgage after having been endorsed by me, on the face of each of said bonds, in the following words:

"State of Tennessee,
Comptroller's Office.

"I certify that the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans "Railroad Company has this day liquidated the indebt- "edness of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company to "the State of Tennessee for State bonds issued pursuant 15 "to law, under the statutes of the said State, to establish "internal improvements, and that this bond is substituted "for the same amount of indebtedness of the said railroad "company to the State, and the holder of the said bond "is hereby subrogated to and secured by the lien held by "said State, and to all the other rights and remedies re- "served by the State in the statutes upon the railroad "and property of the said Mississippi Central Railroad "Company. This bond is one of 1,199 bonds, and is ex- "ecuted and issued, and by virtue of law takes the place 16 "of a bond of the State of Tennessee, and is a First "Mortgage Bond.

"November 28, 1877.

"Jas. L. Gaines,
"Comptroller of the State of Tennessee."

Q. 9. What State officers, if any, decided as to whether the State bonds presented by said Trustees or the defendant, the C. St. L. & N. O. R. R. Co., to you in 17 payment of said debt, were the proper bonds to be so received under the Internal Improvement Acts of Tennessee?

A. By the Governor, Secretary of State, and myself as Comptroller, it was decided that said State bonds were the proper bonds to be received in payment of the said debt, of the Mississippi Central Railroad, and the bonds were so received.

Q. 10. What relation did the Mississippi Central Railroad spoken of above, bear to the Mississippi Central 18 & Tennessee Railroad Company?

A. The railroad was known as the Mississippi Central & Tennessee Railroad, up to the year 1859, and after 1859, the same railroad was known as the Mississippi Central.

Q. 11. Did you, as Comptroller, execute and deliver a receipt for the amount of Tennessee bonds paid you as aforesaid, and in such receipt mention the $110,000 paid the State by the Tennessee Receiver; if so, file a true copy of said receipt with this your deposition, making it 19 an exhibit thereto?

A. I did execute and deliver such receipt, and herewith file a correct copy of the same, marked Exhibit No. 1.

Q. 12. Did the Governor and Secretary of State execute and deliver an acquittance and assignment to said defendant, the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans R. R. Co., or its Trustees, of date 28th of November, 1877?

A. The Governor and Secretary of State did execute and deliver an acquittance and assignment to said de- 20 fendant, the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans R. R. Co., or its Trustees, of date 28th November, 1877?

Q. 13. Do you know Peter Geddes of New York, member of Geddes & Smith, and also member of the "Committee of Tennessee Bondholders?"

A. I do.

Q. 14. Did you receive a letter from said Peter Geddes, 21 dated August 1st, 1877, and one of August 23d, 1877, and one of August 27th, 1877, and one of August 29th, 1877; if so, please fiel each of said letters, and make them part of this your deposition?

A. I did receive letters from the said Peter Geddes, of dates named, and herewith file copies of same, marked Exhibits Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 respectively.

Q. 15. In his letter aforesaid of August 1st, 1877, to you, as Comptrollor, he says:

"The parties in interest will be prepared to pay off the 22 "debts of the Mississippi Central to your State, just as "soon as it is safe for them to do so."

What did he mean by "debts of the Mississippi Central to your State," and who did he mean by "the parties in interest?"

A. By "debts of the Mississippi Central to your State" he meant the amount of bonds issued by the State in aid of said road under the Internal Improvement Acts; and by "the parties in interest" he meant the parties who proposed to purchase the road.

23 Q. 16. In Peter Geddes' letter to you of August 27th, 1877, he says: "I have just had an interview with Mr. "Osborn, who reports that in thirty days the parties in "whose interest the Mississippi Central was bought in "the other day will receive a confirmation of their pur-"chase. It is quite well understood here that so soon as "they can do so with safety they will pay off the lien of "the State of Tennessee on the Mississippi Central, and "that they now think they can safely pay it off sixty "days hence." Who is the Mr. Osborn referred to in 24 said letter?"

A. William H. Osborn is President of the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans Railroad Company, who executed the said mortgage of 8th November, 1877, as such President.

Q. 17. Is Peter Geddes, of whom you have spoken, the Peter Geddes who is a member of the "Committee of Tennessee Bondholders" of New York, of which Committee complainant was the Secretary in 1877?"

A. He is. 25

Q. 18. On the 28th November, 1877, when the State of Tennessee, through its officers, required the payment of $1,199,000 and interest from the purchasers of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company, how many of the bonds claimed to have been originally issued to said road or its predecessor, the Mississippi Central & Tennessee Railroad Company, were before that time paid and then in possession of the State canceled, and how many were then outstanding?

A. I cannot state positively the number of the bonds 26 outstanding November 28th, 1877, which had originally been issued to the Mississippi Central Railroad Company, but I am satisfied that at least half of them had been paid in and canceled and deposited in the archives of the State.

Q. 19. Do you know whether the holders of bonds of the State of Tennessee funded their past due coupons and past due bonds under the terms of the Funding Act of 1865; and if so, were the coupons of different series of bonds, capitol, hermitage, agricultural bureau, turnpike 27 bonds and bonds issued in aid of railroads, kept separate, or were they confused in the new bonds issued therefor?

A. From the number and amount of the bonds issued under the Funding Act of 1865, I am satisfied that nearly or quite all the past due interest on all the then outstanding bonds of the State was funded, including the coupons from all the series of bonds issued prior to the war; the coupons from the bonds issued in aid of railroads were not kept separate from the coupons of the bonds issued for other purposes; as a matter of fact the 28 record of the funding transactions under the said Act of November, 1865, does not show what particular coupons were funded, but simply shows that so many coupons, amounting to a certain sum, say $1,000, or the multiple of $1,000, were funded into one bond or into as many bonds as there were multiples of $1,000.

Q. 20. Please state, if you know, whether the holders

29 of all series of bonds of Tennessee accepted the provisions of the Funding Act of 1873, and funded their past due coupons and registered their bonds under said act?

A. They did.

Q. 21. Please examine the funding books and records of the office of Comptroller of Tennessee and state who had bonds 3623, 3734, 3748, 3826, 3879, 4630, 4652, 4745, 4840, 5511, each issued January 1st, 1856, except last bond, and that January 1st, 1857, registered under the Act of 1873 aforesaid, and the date when each was registerd? 30

A. Below I give a statement showing the date of registration of each of the several bonds mentioned, and for whom each bond was registered:

No. 3623 was registered March 24, 1874, for Miller & Franklin.
" 3734 " Nov. 20, 1873, " Jno. B. Manning.
" 3748 " Nov. 20, 1873, " Jno. B. Manning.
" 3826 " Dec. 18, 1873, " Newton White, Pulaski, Tenn.
" 3879 " Nov. 19, 1873, " First National Bank, Nashville, Tenn.
" 4630 " Dec. 19, 1874, " Carolina Life Insurance Company.
" 4652 " May 1, 1874, " Lord & Taylor.
" 4745 " April 1, 1874, " Whitehouse & Co.
" 4840 " Feb. 11, 1874, " First National Bank, Nashville, Tenn.
31 " 5511 " Jan. 13. 1874, " E. Goodwin, N. Y.

Q. 22. Were there not State bonds authorized and actually issued under several different acts passed at the session of the Tennessee Legislature of 1851–2?

A. There were two or more acts passed at the session of 1851–52 under which bonds were authorized to be issued, and were actually issued.

Q. 23. Please state the amounts of Tennessee bonds and coupons paid by railroads in settlement of their debts under the internal improvement system of Tennessee, 32 beginning with the payment by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company in 1865; I do not mean sinking fund and interest, but final settlement by railroads of the debt and lien claimed by the State; also the assessed values of property in Tennessee in January, 1852, and in 1860, and in 1867; and the amount of bonds of State outstanding in January, 1852; and whole bonded debt of the State prior to settlement with railroads?

A. Following is a statement of the names of the several railroads which retired their debts to the State of Tennessee, and amount of same, exclusive of sinking fund and interest; also the names of the several railroads that were sold by the State, and the amount brought by each: 33

RAILROADS THAT RETIRED THEIR DEBTS, AND THE AMOUNT OF SAME.

The complainant's counsel does not desire to ask any questions, and it is agreed by counsel for complainant and defendant that Col. Gaines may file herewith copies of the letters of Peter Geddes instead of the originals, and that said copies may be used as if they were the 40 I, E. R. Campbell, Commissioner of the Circuit Court, U. S., for Middle District of Tennessee, do hereby certify that the foregoing deposition of James L. Gaines, of 19 pages, was taken before me as recited in the caption in presence of counsel for complainant and defendant, and that witness wrote his own answers, and the said deposition having been read over to said witness, he made oath in due form of law that the same was true.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and 41

E. R. Campbell,
Commissioner U. S. Circuit Court,
for the Middle District of Tennessee.

Exhibit No. 1.

State of Tennessee. } 42
Comptroller's Office. }

Receiver of the Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans Railroad Company by the hands of Adolphe Schreiber, James Fentress and L. V. F. Randolph, Trustees, under the first mortgage of said company, the sum of twelve hundred and ninety-three thousand two hundred and thirty dollars, in the bonds and coupons of the State of Tennessee, which, together with one hundred and ten thousand dollars in money, heretofore received from R.
P. Neely, Receiver, is in full payment and satisfaction 43 of all indebtedness of the Mississippi Central & Tennessee Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee, and also in full payment and satisfaction of all the indebtedness of the Mississippi Central Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee.

The sum of twenty-three thousand two hundred and fifty-six dollars of the $110,000 paid in money as aforesaid, is in full of taxes on said railroad, its property and appurtenances, due said State of Tennessee for the years 1873, 1874, 1875, and 1876; and the sum of nine hundred 44 and thirty-two $\frac{73}{100}$ dollars, is in full of the State tax on said railroad and property for the year 1877.

The payment of the taxes aforesaid, for each of said years is made under protest, the said company insisting that said railroad and property is and was exempt from said taxation, by virtue of the charter of the Mississippi Central & Tennessee Railroad Co., Acts of 1853–4 of 45 State of Tennessee, chapter 1, sec. 13, and it is agreed that the question as to whether such taxation aforesaid, is valid and legally collectable, or whether said railroad and property was exempt from taxation for said years or either of them (in case the Attorney-General of the State does not advise the refunding of said taxes) without litigation, shall be submitted to Chancellor Cooper, or the Chancery Court of Nashville, Tennessee, and if said railroad and property is held by said court to have been exempt for those years, or said taxes improperly assessed, 46 then the money paid for said taxes shall be refunded to said company, and the fact that said taxes have been paid, shall not put said company in any worse position in any litigation as to this matter than it would have been if said taxes had been refused to be paid, until the legal questions above mentioned were settled.

Jas. L. Gaines,
Comptroller of the State of Tennessee.

47 Exhibit No. 2.—J. L. G.

(Private.) New York, August 1st, 1877.

Hon. James L. Gaines.
Comptroller,
Nashville:

Dear Sr,—I think that I may now safely say to you confidentially that the parties in interest will be prepared to pay off the debts of the Mississippi Central to your State just as soon as it is safe for them to do so.

48 I was amused when I read in the American newspaper the other day the very brief notice of the payment of the debt of the Memphis and Charleston road to the State, which it published. A stranger would conclude that it was published solely to account for your being in New York, about which the public might be concerned—to assure the people of Tennessee that you were not here to pay of the State debt, or anything of that kind.

I have not yet heard from Mr. Smith, and am therefore 49 not able to indicate what view he may take of the conditions upon which Governor Porter says he will call an extra session of the Legislature. I have, however, not changed my own views as to what should be done, but I am more firmly convinced than ever that the proposition of the bondholders should be accepted, or one its equivalent, which I think might be gotten up, offering to settle at say 75 per cent. of principal and interest in 6 per cent. bonds, coupons receivable for all taxes and dues to the State. 50 If any hope were held out that a settlement can he effected at the equivalent of our proposition, say 75c., I would do my best to get all the principal bondholders to make a proposition to settle at that, and I think that with careful handling it could be carried. Of course there are always some who hold back, but I think that the great majority would take 75 per cent., under the name of the equivalent of their proposition already made.

The debts of the railroads to the State may now be regarded as practically settled. What remains is simply a question between debtor and creditor. 51

Freed from the complications which grew out of these railroad debts, the discussion of the debt question will be very clear and simple henceforward.

If a few of you men of influence and character would unite in an effort to bring about a compromise on the basis of 75 per cent., I think it could be effected satisfactorily to all, while it is very doubtful if an acquiesced in settlement at a lower figure would ever be regarded as other than a forced one by the public and the bondholders. 52

The intervention of the so-called arbiters of the Clearing House was the most unfortunate thing that could have happened.

Personally, I have worked hard to save the remnant of Tennessee's once good credit, and I make this last effort to complete the job. If it fails, let it be so. Posterity will ever regret a blunder made now.

53 If you think so advisable, you may convey to the Governor, at your convenience, the substance of what I have said, and let me know what he may have to say in reply.

Very truly yours,

P. Geddes,

P. O. Box 936.

Exhibit No. 3.—J. L. G.

54

New York, Aug. 23, 1877.

James L. Gaines, Esq.,

Comptroller:

Dear Sir,—I duly received your esteemed favor of the 8th current.

Since then I learned that the Mississippi & Tennessee Railroad Company have voted to pay off their debt to Tennessee. This practically settles up all advances made 55 by the State to railroad companies, and reduces the whole State debt question to one between the people of Tennessee and the investors in their public debt. What the latter will agree to I cannot say. They may or may not adhere to their proposition of last February.

If the people of Tennessee under any circumstances are liable to do anything disgraceful in regard to their public debt, or permit anything of that kind to be done, of which you seem to entertain fears, should a settlement not be come to this year, and the debt question become 56 one of the issues in the State canvass of next Summer, the inquiry forces itself upon the bondholders, of how much value would the reduced debt of such a people be to the holders of it?

This is a very serious question, in view of the fears you express, and of what I will now only characterize as the extraordinary legislation of last Winter. I shall be happy to hear from you in reply, at your convenience.

Mr. Smith has been travelling since the beginning of 57
July, and hence we do not hear from him.

I am,
Very truly yours,
P. Geddes,
P. O. Box 936.

Respondent's Exhibit No. 4,—J. L. G. 58

(Private.) New York, August 27, 1877.

Hon. James L. Gaines,
Nashville:

My Dear Sir—I have just had an interview with Mr. Osborn, who reports that in thirty days the parties in whose interest the Mississippi Central was bought in the other day will receive a confirmation of their purchase. It is quite well understood here that so soon as they can do so with safety, they will pay off the lien of Tennessee 59 on the Miss. Central, and that they now think they can safely pay it off sixty days hence.

There is thus little doubt that the last of Tennessee's advances to the railroads within her borders will be paid off early in the fall, thus freeing her and her creditors too, for that matter, from a very troublesome disorder.

Although you do not, in your note of the 8th current, give much reason to hope that a settlement of Tennessee's debt on any other than the Coe Committee's plan is now practicable, I still cling to the belief that the honest 60 citizens of Tennessee who must be still in the majority, would much prefer to pay the State debt in full, if some plan were submitted which would make it clearly possible for them to do so.

The outstanding bonds of Tennessee are mainly held by investors, by trustees, and Trust Institutions. The "margins" of speculators in and out of Wall Street have 61 long ago disappeared, and the bonds upon which they were held been sold.

Now, investors, and parties, and institutions holding in trust, prefer much any reasonable reduction of the rate of interest their investments will produce, to a reduction of the principal.

For the past four years they have been receiving lower rates of interest and smaller dividends on their investments than they had been accustomed to. Many of them, judging by the large subscriptions to government four 62 per cents. recently, have come apparently to the conclusion that lower rates of interest than formerly prevailed will hereafter permanently prevail. This is the mood in which they now appear to me to be, and it has suggested the idea that advantage might possibly be taken of so favorable a time and circumstances by the friends of Tennessee to bring about a compromise of the rate of interest on her debt which would enable her with ease to pay it all off.

I will not discuss her ability to pay her debt, but will 63 assume it and pass on to my suggestion, which is as follows:

The State to issue new bonds for the principal and past due interest of her existing bonds, to bear interest at 4 (four) per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, January 1 and July 1, in each year, coupons to be attached to the bonds representing each payment of interest, to be receivable by the State for all taxes and dues to the State and to be free from taxation of any kind in the State. The bonds themselves to be payable fifty or one hundred 64 years hence, and redeemable by the State at any time after six months' notice that the State is prepared to pay them.

The bondholders of Tennessee may object to making such a proposition of compromise; but if I get from you and the Governor encouragement that, if such a proposition were made by the holders of more than half the debt, it would be accepted, I will exert myself, with Mr

George Smith and other well known large holders, to make it. 65

Firmly convinced as I am that a settlement in full, if by any possibility it can be accomplished, will be of immense present and future advantage to Tennessee and Tennesseeans, I hope that you will induce Governor Porter and the other friends of State credit to give my suggestion careful consideration.

I do not dare to mention it to any one yet, but will set the wheels in motion if hope of acceptance is held out, and will, if necessary, go to Nashville for the purpose of an interview with the Governor and yourself. 66

If the friends of Tennessee in Tennessee will extend to her a helping hand, I think that she can still be restored and her honest pride saved.

Let me hear from you on receipt, and write further afterward.

Truly yours,

P. GEDDES.

67

Exhibit No. 5.—J. L. G.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29, 1877.

HON. JAMES L. GAINES,
Nashville, Tenn.:

My Dear Sir.—I thank you for your favor of 25th current, and for the information and suggestion therein communicated.

Seeing by the morning papers that the Governors were to meet yesterday at the Continental Hotel, Philadelphia, 68 I telegraphed to Governor Porter there, asking him where a letter would reach him to-day, and after hearing from him wrote him with a copy of my last letter to you, asking him to let me have the benefit of his views thereon in advance of his arrival here, and saying that if agreeable to him I would with pleasure call upon him when he comes to New York.

69 In case Tennessee wants to pay off her debt, it will be of great advantage to her to arrange for a low rate of interest on it. Bonds bearing a low rate of interest can be with greater ease, or at lower cost, bought for a sinking fund than can bonds bearing full rates.

This is a point I had in view when we made our proposition of compromise, and one which I hope will have some weight yet with you.

Yours truly,

70 P. GEDDES.

Deposition of Charles J. McKinney.

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, } ss.: 1
Eastern District of Tennessee. }

Be it remembered that on the 1st day of September, 1879, before me, Clerk of the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Tennessee, at my office in the City of Knoxville, within said District, and the Sixth Circuit, was produced and personally came Charles J. McKinney, witness on the part and behalf of the defendants in a certain suit now depending and undetermined in 2 the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Tennessee, wherein Calvin Amory Stevens, et al., on behalf of the holders of bonds issued to the East Tennessee & Virginia R. R. Company, are complainants, and East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia R. R. Co. are defendants, to depose and the truth to say in said suit.

And thereupon the said Charles J. McKinney, being of lawful age and sound mind, being by me first cautioned and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth, and 3 nothing but the truth, touching the matters in controversy in said suit, did, in answer to the interrogatories and cross-interrogatories propounded to him, depose and say as follows:

I am 66 years old; my residence is Rogersville, E. Tennessee, where I have lived all my life; I have been a farmer for several years; I was a director of "The Rogersville and Jefferson Railroad Co." for many years before and up to the war, and when the railroad passed 4 into the hands of the State, in the year 186 , I was appointed State Receiver and received from the State, as a loan to this road, under the General Improvement Act of 1852, and several subsequent amendments, thirty thousand dollars in coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, which I sent to , brokers and bankers, New York City, to sell for me. I gave them no instruc-

5 tions to represent these bonds as guaranteed or secured to the purchasers by any lien or mortgage on the railroad or its property, but simply instructed them to sell as Tennessee State Bonds. They did sell twenty-five (25) of them, and I appropriated the proceeds to the completion of the road and the injuries produced by the war. The remaining five (5) I returned to the State. While I was a director the Company received in the same way something near two hundred and fifty thousand of the same 6 class of bonds from the State, which were disposed of in the same way, without any representations of any lien in favor of the bondholder. These bonds were all payable to blank or bearer, and were not endorsed by the Company.

We kept no account of the numbers of the bonds, and had no system of marking or endorsing to identify the bonds of the State loaned to us. In paying the semiannual interest to the State, we paid it either in money or in money and coupons then due, and did not attempt, nor 7 were we required to procure the coupons attached to the bonds loaned to us, with which to make payment of the interest. We just took a receipt for so much interest paid to the State.

After the war the Company was in default for the interest due the State for several years, and that was the reason the State took possession of the road, and neither during the period of such default, nor since, have I ever heard or known of a bondholder presenting to or demanding 8 payment of a coupon from our Company, and I am sure I would have heard of it if such a thing had ever happened.

I am not connected with or interested in any of the railroads of Tennessee, or their stocks, or securities, and further sayeth not.

I, A. R. HUMES, Clerk of the United States Circuit Court for said District, do hereby certify that the foregoing deposition of Charles J. McKinney was taken by and before me, as stated in the caption thereof, on the first day of September, 1879, and was, when taken, reduced to writing by me, in the presence of said witness, and was by said witness subscribed in writing in my presence. 9

I further certify that the reason for taking the foregoing deposition is, and the fact is that the said witness lives, and at the time of taking said deposition did live, in Rogersville, Tennessee, the same being at a greater distance than &c., &c., &c., from &c., &c., &c., where the said Circuit Court for the United States for the Eastern District of Tennessee is held, and where the said cause mentioned in the caption is to be tried. 10

I further certify that I am not of counsel or attorney for either of the parties to the said suit in said deposition and caption named, or interested in the event of said cause, &c., &c., &c. 11

Deposition of Perez Dickinson.

Eastern District of Tennessee.

Be it remembered that on the 27th day of September, 1879, before me, A. R. Humes, Clerk of the United States Circuit Court, for the Eastern District of Tennessee, at my office in the City of Knoxville, within said District, and the Sixth Circuit, was produced and personally came Perez Dickinson, witness on the part and behalf of the defendants in 2 a certain suit now pending and undetermined in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Tennessee, wherein Calvin Amory Stevens, et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co. are complainants, and the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company and the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad Company are defendants, to depose and the truth to say in said suit. 3

And thereupon the said Perez Dickinson, being of lawful age and sound mind, being by me first cautioned, and sworn to testify the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, touching the matters in controversy in said suit, did, in answer to the interrogatories and cross interrogatories propounded to him, depose and say as follows:

I have been a resident citizen and merchant of Knoxville, Tennessee, for more than forty years.

4 On the reorganization of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad in 1865 or 1866, after the war, I became, at the request of the then President, John R. Branner, a Director, and was associated with him for several years up to 1869 or 1870, in the effort to rehabilitate the road and put it into successful operation as a common carrier. We were frequently annoyed by the legislation of the State; and to obviate this difficulty and obstacle to the successful management and operations of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company, I advised Mr. Branner, as President of said Road, prior to the passage of the Acts of 1869 and of 1870, to originate some plan and to adopt some measure by which we could get rid of all obligations and liability to the State, and become entirely independent of the State's assumed control in appointing directors, and other vexatious legislation, and to rid ourselves of our obligations to the State by purchasing in and paying over our liabilities to the State, and thus secure a wiser and more successful management and conduct of the railroad as a common carrier.

And further sayeth not.

PEREZ DICKINSON.

DEPOSITION OF ADRIAN ISELIN.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, 1

WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS et al., on behalf of the holders of internal improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the MEMPHIS & CHARLESTON RAILROAD COMPANY,

vs. 2

THE MEMPHIS & CHARLESTON RAILROAD COMPANY et al.

Testimony and proofs for final hearing taken on the part of the respondents in the above-entitled suit, under and pursuant to the 67th Rule in 3 Equity, as amended, before William H. De Lancey, Special Examiner, duly appointed herein.

NEW YORK, February 14, 1880.

Present.—Mr. W. Y. C. HUMES,
For Respondents. 4
MR. E. L. ANDREWS.
For Complainants.

5 Adrian Iselin, a witness produced on the part of the respondents in the above-entitled suit, being first duly cautioned and sworn therein, deposes and says:

(Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.)

Direct examination by Mr. Humes:

1 Q. Please state your name, firm name, residence 6 and occupation, and how long you have resided where you do now, and done business there?

A. Adrian Iselin, of full age. I am a partner in the house of A. Iselin & Co., in liquidation, and partner in the house of Iselin, Neeser & Co. My residence is in the city of the New York and has been nearly all my life. I was born in the city. My business has always been that of a banker and commission merchant.

2 Q. Did you or not, as a banker, negotiate and 7 buy the substitution bonds of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company, and if yea at what time?

A. I did buy them. I bought $500,000 on 1 July, 1870; $500,000 between the 25th and 28th of July, 1870; $200,000 on the 25th March, 1871, and $840,000 in April, 1871, between the 3d and the 25th of April.

3 Q. Were you before the dates of these purchases or within the period embraced by them, a president, director, or stockholder in said company, or occu-8 pying any fiduciary or confidential relation to this company?

A. I was not at the time of the purchases made in 1870; but I am not certain whether I held any stock or not in the company before the purchases made in 1871. I had no connection with the company at all before the first purchases.

4 Q. What did you give for these bonds, and did you or not consider it the fair value at the time?

A. I paid 82½ per cent for the bonds and accrued 9 interest. I considered it the full and fair value at the time. I paid this amount in money at the time, without any deduction whatever.

5 Q. Were you or not aware at the time you made these purchases that the holders of State bonds of Tennessee, held a large amount of interest coupons overdue and unpaid by the State—that they had funded some of them under the act of 1865, and had never set up any claim of an obligation in respect of them against the railroad companies to whom 10 they were issued, or a lien on the same.

A. I was aware that a large amount of interest coupons on Tennessee State bonds remained unpaid. That a portion of these coupons had been funded previously into new State bonds, and I was not aware that any holder of Tennessee State bonds had brought forward any claim that their bonds were secured by a lien on the railroads to which they had been issued.

6 Q. Did you have anything to do with the negotiation of or did you purchase any of the substitu- 11
tion bonds issued by the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company; if yea, please state the facts?

A. I purchased the Tennessee substitution bonds of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad in conjunction with R. T. Wilson & Co. and Duncan, Sherman & Co. Some bankers in Europe were interested in the purchase made in the name of my house. These purchases were made in December, 1871, at 85 and accrued interest. We paid for them in money.

7 Q. At the time that these purchases were made 12 was your knowledge and information the same or different touching the holders of State bonds and overdue coupons, and the absence of any claims by them of obligation against or lien upon the railroads as it was when you purchased the substitution bonds of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad.

13 A. It was the same.

8 Q. Before you purchased the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad Company substitution bonds did you know of their being offered for sale elsewhere?

A. I knew that the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia substitution bonds were offered to the New York Guaranty and Indemnity Co. before they were offered to me, and my first knowledge of these bonds was derived from a discussion in relation to them at 14 the board of trustees of the above company, of which I was a member.

9 Q. Did you or not by and with the consent of the Memphis and Charleston R. R. Co. purchase from the State of Tennessee, and take an assignment of the lien of the State on the property of said company for the debt due from said company to the State in respect of the State bonds lent by the State to said company; if yea, please give the date?

15 A. I did so purchase the lien which the State of Tennessee held on a portion of the Memphis and Charleston R. R. for the bonds issued by the State to this corporation. This was in the last days of July or beginning of August, 1877.

10 Q. Please state what facts, if any, existed within your knowledge or information, touching the interest coupons of the State bonds of Tennessee from 1865 to July, 1877?

A. I know that during this period the coupons of 16 the State remained unpaid, except after they had been funded in the new bonds, when I believe three coupons were paid.

11 Q. During this period, from 1865 to July, 1877, did the holders of any coupons of Tennessee bonds claim or demand payment of the same, by legal proceeding or otherwise, from any railroad company in the State of Tennessee?

A. I never heard that any such claim was made. 17

12 Q. Do you not now know, and did you not also know in July, 1877, that all the overdue coupons on Tennessee bonds had been funded by the holders thereof, and their bonds registered under the funding act of Tennessee of March, 1873?

A. I do not know whether the coupons on every one of the Tennessee State bonds were so funded, but I do know that all, except a very small number, were so funded, as no bond which had not been re-

On or about the twenty-fifth day of July, 1877, my firm of A. Iselin & Co., consisting of myself and my son, Adrian Iselin, Jr., delivered to the State of Tennessee, Tennessee State bonds and coupons to the amount of $1,736,920 in payment for the assignment to us of the lien of the State upon so much of the Memphis & Charleston Railroad as was situated in the State of Tennessee, which lien was transferred to us by the assignment executed by James D. Porter, Governor of Tennessee, bearing date the 25th day of July, 1877, a copy of which is annexed to my deposition in this case.

Mr. Peter Geddes at my own office, and was present at numerous conversations which took place at the office of R. T. Wilson & Co. on the subject of paying off the debt of the Memphis and Charleston R. R. Co. due the State of Tennessee. In these conversations Mr. Geddes urged Mr. Wilson, as President of the Memphis and Charleston R. R., to pay off this debt with as little delay as possible, as the Governor of the State of Tennessee had told him—Mr. Geddes—that it would very much facilitate the 20

21 settlement of the State debt if its amount had been reduced to the lowest possible point by the railroads who were able to do so paying off the debts they owed the State. Mr. Wilson repeatedly stated to Mr. Geddes that he was perfectly willing and even anxious to pay off the debt due by the Memphis and Charleston R. R. if he could procure the State bonds necessary to do it with, and as few of these State bonds were offered at the time in the market, Mr. Wilson asked Mr. Geddes whether 22 he would not loan him the Tennessee State bonds
he controlled so as to be able to pay off the debt due by the Memphis and Charleston R. R. to the State. This, however, Mr. Geddes refused to do, saying, I believe, that he had no authority for disposing of bonds in that way. In the conversations which I had with Mr. Geddes at my office, Mr.
Geddes urged me to make Mr. Wilson pay off the Memphis and Charleston R. R. debt to the State of Tennessee with as little delay as possible, urging 23 the same arguments as in the conversations held at Wilson's office.

Adjourned till further notice.

Direct-examination resumed :

15 Q. When did the conversations that you have 24 related as occurring between Mr. Geddes, Mr. Wilson and also yourself, occur ?

A. As far as I recollect they occurred in the spring of 1877, whilst the question of the Memphis and Charleston R. R. Company paying off the State lien was being discussed by Mr. Wilson and myself and some other parties interested in the Memphis and Charleston R. R.

16 Q. Will you please exhibit with this your deposition copies of the evidences of your purchase of the State lien on the Memphis and Charleston R. R. and the contracts with the company in settlement thereof. 25

A. I have not those documents with me, but will produce them and file them with this deposition.

17 Q. If you have refreshed your memory, please state accurately when you became officially connected with the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia R. R. Co.? 26

A. I became director of that company in September, 1874, and stockholder in December, 1873.

Cross-examined by E. L. Andrews, Esq., for complainant:

18 x Q. Have you ever heard of the opinion of Judges Davies and Davis to the effect that the Tennessee bonds issued to railroads, constituted liens thereon. 27

A. Yes, I did.

19 x Q. Was it not in the year 1870, and about the time of negotiations with Lombard, Odier & Co., of Geneva, for the sale of East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia R. R. Co. substitution bonds that you heard of that opinion?

A. Yes, it was. The opinion was shown to me by Mr. Odier.

20 x Q. Were you not in some way connected, and if so, how, with the obtaining of the opinion of Charles Tracy, Esq., of the New York bar, in reference to the matter stated in the foregoing question? 28

A. I was no further connected with obtaining that opinion, except that I told Mr. Odier if the opinion of Davies and Davis gave him the least

29 anxiety, he had best have the opinion of some lawyer, selected by himself, on the subject; he said he had known Mr. Tracy in Europe; he would go to him; I personally did not come in contact with Mr.
Tracy at that time.

21 x Q. How about any subsequent time?

A. I am not certain, but believe that I did come in contact with Mr. Tracy in relation to the opinion he gave later about the legality of preserving the lien which the State of Tennessee held on the Mo-30 bile and Ohio R. R. Co., after it had been paid;
after the debt to the State had been paid.

22 x Q. Did you not consult any other counsel in relation to any of these matters at or about any of those times?

A. I consulted personally no counsel at the time
I bought the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia
R. R. substitution bonds, but read over the opinions handed me by Mr. R. T. Wilson of lawyers in Tennessee; one of them was named Baxter. The time the 31 Mobile and Ohio R. R., the consultations with lawyers, concerning the legality of substituting railroad bonds for the State lien, and the way of doing it, were carried on principally by Mr. R. T. Wilson and William B. Duncan, and with the exception of Mr.
Charles Tracy, I do not recollect having asked the advice personally of any counsel. One of the lawyers with whom Mr. Wilson consulted was Mr.
Charles F. Southmayd.

23 x Q. Were you not a director of the Galla-
32 tin National Bank, and if so about what time?

A. I was a director of the Gallatin National Bank for about thirty years, from 1846 to 1876.

24 x Q. Did not the Gallatin National Bank offer Nashville & Decatur substitution bonds for sale?

A. Yes, sir; and also East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railroad bonds.

25 x Q. Was not the opinion of Charles Tracy printed and published in some of the prospectuses 33 of the sale of substitution bonds by the Gallatin Bank?

A. One of the opinions of Charles Tracy was printed in pamphlet form, but was not circulated either here or in Europe.

26 x Q. Why did you not publish, if you did not, or notify intending purchasers of the substitution bonds in America or Europe of the opinion of Davies and Davis, the former having been a Chief-Justice of the State of New York? 34

A. Because as long as the parties to whom this opinion was addressed and in whose interest it was apparently written did not act upon it, it was a proof that they themselves considered this opinion unsound, and did not consider they could maintain any claim against the railroads for the bonds they held from the State of Tennessee. The parties in whose interest this opinion had been written having attached no importance to it I did so neither.

27 x Q. The opinion shown to you of Davies & 35 Davis, was it not printed?

A. It was printed.

28 x Q. Had you not negotiated for Tennessee substitution bonds about seven years before your conversation with Mr. Geddes as testified by you?

A. Yes, I had.

29 x Q. Were you not one of the complainants in the suit of Adrian Iselin and others versus the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Company and others in the United States Circuit Court for the Western District of Tennessee, pending therein during the year 36 1877?

A. Yes, sir.

30 x Q. Were you not present upon the hearing of the appeal of that case, in the Supreme Court of the United States?

A. Yes, I was.

37 31 x Q. Were you not aware that the Supreme Court of the United States took the case under advisement, and so held it after its adjournment for the summer recess of 1878?

(Objected to as wholly irrelevant and incompetent.)

A. I know that some time passed before the Supreme Court gave any decision upon that case.

32 x Q. Had not an effort been made pending 38 this suit to have the substitution bonds of the Memphis & Charleston Railroad placed on the Stock Exchange?

A. I do not know.

33 x Q. At what prices did you sell the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia, the Mobile & Ohio and the Memphis & Charleston substitution bonds if the latter have been sold?

A. The latter were bought by us and other parties, and to my knowledge none of them have been 39 resold, at least we hold all the bonds we purchased.
I refuse to answer what price Mobile & Ohio & East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia bonds were sold by me, because it is a matter which only concerns me personally.

34 x Q. Have not the new first mortgage bonds and debentures of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad been placed on the New York Stock Exchange, and were you not at that time a holder of those securities?

A. Those bonds were placed on the New York
40 Stock Exchange, and I was a holder at that time.

35 x Q. Did you not state to Mr. Peter Geddes that one of the directors of the Memphis & Charleston Railroad, Mr. Cossitt, opposed the purchase of Tennessee bonds to deliver to the State, on the ground that the company would get them cheaper after a time, or words to that effect?

A. I do not recollect whether I stated this to Mr.

Geddes. I do recollect that Mr. Cossitt frequently 41 expressed the opinion to Mr. Wilson when I was present that he ought to be in no hurry to buy the Tennessee State bonds as they would probably go lower.

36 x Q. Have you not been a holder or representative of holders of Tennessee State bonds; if so, please state details?

A. We have always, at least for the last fifteen or twenty years, been representative of Tennessee State bonds, and we have been owners of them at 42 different periods. In the year 1866 we bought for our account seventy-six thousand dollars Tennessee State bonds and sold eighteen of them. In the year 1868 we bought ten thousand dollars and sold sixty-eight, leaving us without any on hand. In 1869 we neither bought nor sold any Tennessee State bonds for our account. In 1870 we bought seventy-five thousand dollars and we sold them the same year. In 1871 we bought $17,000, and we sold them the same year. We owned no bonds up to 1874 since 43 that time. In 1874 we bought thirty-two thousand dollars and we sold them. The next purchase we made of Tennessee bonds was in 1877, when we bought one million six hundred and forty-eight thousand dollars, which we paid over to the State for the lien it held against the Memphis & Charleston Railroad, and in 1878 we bought thirty-two thousand dollars in bonds, and sold them the same year. Since that we have bought no Tennessee bonds. 44

Adjourned to February 18, 1880.

45 February 18, 1880.

Cross-examination resumed by E. L. ANDREWS, Esq., for complainants.

37 x Q. Have you not looked at any of the comptroller's reports of the State of Tennessee.

A. I have seen some of them.

33 x Q. Have you not seen some that contained the list of the numbers and descriptions of State bonds issued to each Railroad Company?

46 A. I have seen some stating the amount of bonds issued by the State to the different railroads, but do not recollect having seen the lists of the numbers of these bonds; I saw the Comptroller's report of 1875.

39 x Q. Have you not seen Pennybacker's sheet of Tennessee bonds?

A. I do not recollect of having seen it.

40 x Q. Did Lombard, Odier & Co., or any firm in Europe that sold the substitution bonds, publish 47 any of the legal opinions that have been referred to in your examination?

A. Not to my knowledge.

41 x Q. Please name the Tennessee substitution mortgages of which you are Trustee?

A. East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia R.R., Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis; I don't recollect whether I am Trustee on the Nashville & Decatur; I was on the Mobile & Ohio.

42 x Q. Did not you or your firm hold by assign-48 ment the lien of the State of Tennessee on the Memphis & Charleston Railroad?

A. In answer I produce all the contracts and arrangements which I or my firm had in connection with the Memphis & Charleston Railroad, and herewith file the same and make it a part of my deposition as Respondents' Exhibit No. 1, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr., & Respondent's Exhibit No. 2, W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.

(Plaintiff's counsel moves to strike out the 49 answer and exhibits as irresponsive to the question.)

43 x Q. When did you become a director of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Co., or any member of your firm?

A. One of my sons, Mr. Adrian Iselin, Jr., has been a director of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad for some time, but do not recollect for how long, but not before 1878. I am a director of the Knoxville 50 & Ohio Railroad; became such in 1877; I have been a director in the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railroad, but am not now.

Re-direct examination by Mr. Humes:

44 Q. When did you first learn that any holder of bonds of the State of Tennessee was setting up a claim that the lien reserved to the State belonged to and was intended to secure the payment of the State bonds issued to the railroad? 51

A. In the fall of 1877.

45 Was it before or after your firm had purchased the Memphis & Charleston lien?

A. After.

46 Q. When was the Mobile & Ohio case argued in the Supreme Court of the United States?

A. In the spring of 1878.

47 Q. Was not the appearance of their counsel in the Supreme Court on that argument the first attempt on the part of holders of bonds of Tennessee 52 to gain admittance into that suit and assert their claim to the lien?

A. As far as I know it was.

48 Q. What has been the effect of the holders of Tennessee bonds legally asserting by these suits their claim to the lien, on the substitution bonds or negotiability in the market?

53 A. It prevented the marketing of the bonds which had not already been distributed. I refer to the Memphis & Charleston Railroad substitution bonds which we bought with the intention of reselling, but when it became known that some of the holders of Tennessee State bonds intended to assert or prosecute a claim against the railroads to whom these bonds were issued, it became impossible for us to sell those bonds, and within a short time Messrs.
Drexel, Morgan & Co. offered the mortgage bonds of 54 the Evansville, Henderson & Nashville Railroad, but notified the public that $800,000 of the bonds being the proportion on the road in the State of Tennessee would not be sold until the suits commenced against the railroads had been settled. The commencement of these suits had also the effect of preventing, till within a short time, any rise in the substitution bonds which had already been distributed, similar to what took place in all other kind of securities. The holders of these bonds in Europe sent back a great 55 many of these bonds and there were sales of East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia substitution bonds as low as 96; whilst railroad bonds considered good were selling at a heavy premium. Since the first of January, however, these bonds are scarce in the market and have advanced in price. Nevertheless, no quantity of them could be sold at prices corresponding with those of other railroad bonds.

49 Q. You stated in answer to cross interrogatory 36 that you were the purchaser and seller of the 56 bonds therein stated, how were they bought and sold?

A. They were all bought and sold in the Stock Exchange.

50 Q. What were the classifications of Tennessee State Bonds, before the New York Stock Exchange from 1865 to 1877?

A. Old Tennessee State bonds and new.

51 Q. Was there any such distinction pointing to the railroads to which they were issued? 57

A. No, there was no distinction of any kind between the bonds except that between old bonds and new, and no difference in price of old bonds.

Re-cross:

52 x Q. Have you not purchased substitution bonds of Tennessee railroads on your own account or others during the years 1879 and '80?

A. I don't believe we have bought any for our 58 own account, and whatever we may have bought for account of other parties was on specific orders given to us to buy the bonds. We bought none of such bonds for other parties when the nature of the investment to be made was left to our discretion.

February 20th, 1880.

Present—Counsel as before.

Re-direct:

53 Q. Had this suit been brought before the sale and purchase of the substitution bonds, what effect would it have on this sale and responsibility?

A. I myself would have had nothing to do with the bonds. 60

Re-cross:

54 x Q. Did you sell any substitution bonds?

A. Yes, I did.

55 x Q. How many?

A. I cannot say how many but quite a considerable amount which were sent back to us from Europe, 61 and also some Nashville, Chattanooga & Saint Louis bonds which we owned.

ADRIAN ISELIN.

RESPONDENTS' EXHIBIT No. 1.

W. H. D. L., Spl. Exr.

An Indenture, made the twentieth day of August, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, between the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company,

and under the laws of the respective States of Tennessee and Alabama and Mississippi, party of the first part, and the Farmers Loan and Trust Company, 66

of New York, and located in the city of New York, possesses, owns, and is operating its main line of railroad, extending from Memphis, in the State of Tennessee, via Corinth, in the State of Mississippi, and Huntsville, in the State of Alabama, to Stevenson, in the State of Alabama, a distance of two hundred and seventy-two miles or thereabouts, 67 together with a branch thereof in the State of Tennessee, known as the Somerville and Moscow branch, extending from Moscow, on the main line to Somerville, a distance of about fourteen miles, thereunto appertaining, embracing all the real estate of the said party of the first part, situate in the State of Tennessee, with the improvements thereon, and the rolling stock or equipment, and 71 and paramount statutory lien, in the nature of a mortgage, originally created and existing in favor of certain Tennessee State Bonds, loaned, or advanced, or delivered to, or in aid of said railroad company, by the State of Tennessee, under and in pursuance of the General Internal Improvement Laws of that State, and for or in respect of the amount of principal and interest, of which State bonds, thus loaned, advanced or delivered the said

the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company 72 became indebted to the State of Tennesse, and which indebtedness of said railroad company to said State, and the lien held by the said State therefor, have been recently, with the consent and approbation of the said the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, and of its Board of Directors, duly assigned and transferred by said State to and are now held and owned by Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, composing the firm of A. Iselin & Co., of the city of New York, in the like position and with the like rights to enforce the same, as the said State had, which assignment and transfer was made and effected under and in pursuance of the Act of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee, entitled "An Act to liquidate the State debt contracted in aid of railroad companies in the State of Tennessee," passed February 25th, 1869, and the other laws of said State in that behalf, 73 and the amount of such indebtedness of said party 74 of the first part, and of the attendant lien therefor upon its said railroad and other property, in the State of Tennessee, thus assigned to and now held by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, including the interest accrued thereon to the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, is seventeen hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents, and the principal thereof bears interest from the said first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy- 75

seven, at the rate of six per cent. per annum.

AND WHEREAS there are now outstanding and unpaid, as debts of the said party of the first part, twelve hundred and ninety-three thousand dollars in amount of the so-called first mortgage bonds of the said The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, issued under and secured by said Company's so-called first mortgage or deed of trust, dated May first, eighteen hundred and forty-four, to James Punnett, G. B. Lamar and Thomas Fearn, as 76 trustees, covering the said Railroad Company's line of railroad, situated in the States of Alabama and Mississippi respectively, with the appurtenances and equipment thereof, as a first mortgage lien thereon, and likewise covering the said Railroad Company's line of railroad in the State of Tennessee, with the appurtenances and equipments thereof,

77 subject and subsequently to the prior and paramount lien and encumbrance thereon of the above-mentioned debt and lien originally existing in favor of the State of Tennessee, and now held by Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, junior, the principal of the said so-called first mortgage bonds, for twelve hundred and ninety-three thousand dollars, falling due and payable on the 1st day of May, eighteen hundred and eighty, and the said bonds in the meantime bearing interest at the rate of seven per cent. per 78 annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of May and November.

And whereas there are also now outstanding and

W. Neal and William C. Rehen, as trustees, covering the same premises as the said so-called first mortgage, but subject to the prior lien and encumbrance of such so-called first mortgage, and in like manner therewith subject, so far as respects the said line of railroad, in the State of Tennessee, and the appurtenances and equipment thereof, to the prior and paramount lien and encumbrance thereon of the said debt and lien, originally existing in favor
80 of the State of Tennessee, and now held by Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, junior, as aforesaid, the principal of the said so-called second mortgage bonds, for one million dollars, falling due and payable on the first day of January, eighteen hundred bearing interest at the rate of senen per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July.

AND WHEREAS the said party of the first part is 81 subject to certain further indebtedness, for the liquidation whereof it needs to make provision.

AND WHEREAS the said Adrian Iselin, and Adrian Iselin, junior, have expressed their willingness in a certain manner, and upon certain conditions, to make a certain eventual deduction or discount from the full amount now due or owing to them, upon the said indebtedness and lien, originally existing in favor of the State of Tennessee, which has been 82 assigned to and is now held by them as aforesaid, provided the said Railroad Company will give to them such additional collateral security for such indebtedness upon the terms and conditions hereinafter mentioned in that behalf, and enter into and carry out such arrangements with them in respect of the eventual liquidation and satisfaction of said indebtedness as are hereinafter stated.

AND WHEREAS, in the exercise of the powers in 83 that behalf possessed by it, under the laws of the respective States of Tennessee, Alabama, and Mississippi, in order to provide for further securing the payment of its aforesaid indebtedness, originally existing in favor of the State of Tennessee, assigned and transferred to, and now held by Adrian Iselin, and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, and also to make such provision as is hereinafter contained or declared, for the eventual liquidation and satisfaction of that indebtedness, with the interest accru- 84 ing and to accrue thereon, from and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, and likewise in order to provide for taking up and discharging its above mentioned, now outstanding, first mortgage bonds, so called, for twelve hundred and ninety-three thousand dollars, with the interest thereon, and its second mortgage bonds, so called,

85 for one million dollars, with the interest thereon, and its other now existing indebtedness hereinbe-fore referred to, and thus to consolidate and arrange its debts, as by law it is entitled to do,and for other lawful uses and purposes of its business, and agreeably to the laws regulating it. The said The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, in accordance with resolutions of its shareholders, and of its Board of Directors, at meetings of such shareholders, and such Board of Directors, respectively, duly 86 and regularly held, has caused to be prepared and thousand dollars of United States Gold Coin, consisting of four thousand seven hundred of such bonds, numbered consecutively from 1 (one) to 87 4,700 (four thousand seven hundred), both inclusive, gust, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, each of such bonds being for the payment to the holder thereof, on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and fifteen, in the City of New York, of one thousand dollars, in United States Gold Coin, and for the payment of interest thereon from the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, and in the meantime, at the rate of 88 seven per cent. per annum, in like Gold Coin, in

And Whereas, the form of such bonds, and of the coupons, or interest warrants to be annexed thereto, and of the trustee's certificate to be endorsed thereon by the Trustee of this mortgage, viz.: the said party of the second part hereto, and 90 to be executed on behalf of the said party of the second part hereto by its president are to be substantially as follows:

part, of, in and to the same and every part and always to the prior and paramount lien now held by Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, upon such part of the said railroad and branches as is situate in the State of Tennessee, and upon all the rolling stock and equipment thereunto belonging or appertaining, and upon all that portion of the said hereby mortgaged premises or property which is situate in the State of Tennessee, for the amount of the aforesaid indebtedness of said party of the first part, originally existing in favor of the State of Tennessee, 114 and assigned by said State to, and now held by Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, which lien it is expressly understood and hereby agreed and declared, is to remain in full force and effect as a lien in favor of said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, and their representatives or assigns, prior and paramount to the lien created by this indenture, until the indebtedness for which such lien is held shall be paid and satisfied or discharged; and the same is, or is to be, 115 expressly confirmed and further assured by the said Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company to the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, and their representatives and assigns, as a good and valid lien prior to this Indenture of Mortgage upon all that part of the hereby mortgaged premises which is situate in the State of Tennessee, including the rolling stock or equipment and other chattel property belonging or appertaining to the portion of said railroad line, in the State of Tennessee, for 116

the above-mentioned amount of seventeen hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents, with the interest thereon accrued and to accrue from and after July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, and with the assurance, confirmation and grant by said Railroad Company to said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin,

117 Junior, of appropriate remedies for enforcing and effectuating said lien and the security thereof, and of the said indebtedness.

To HAVE AND TO HOLD all and singular the said main line of railroad and branches respectively, with their appurtenances and rolling stock and equipment, present and future, and all other the premises,
properties, rights, interests and franchises, immunities, privileges and other things aforesaid, subject 118 to the said prior lien in favor of Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, and their representatives or assigns as aforesaid, unto the said party of the second part, as trustee as aforesaid, and its successors and assigns for ever, in trust for the equal pro rata use, benefit and security of all the persons and corporations who shall become or be the owners or lawful holders of any of the said bonds within the aggregate amount of four million seven hundred thousand dollars, intended to be hereby secured as 119 aforesaid, without preference of any of the said bonds over any of the others by reason of priority in the time of the issuing or negotiation thereof, but with such special rights, nevertheless, to the holders of the fourteen hundred of such bonds, numbered from one to fourteen hundred inclusive,
as are hereinafter in that behalf declared and provided for.

PROVIDED ALWAYS, nevertheless, and these presents are upon the express condition, that if the said 120 party of the first part shall well and truly pay and satisfy the said bonds to the aggregate amount of four million seven hundred thousand dollars hereby intended to be secured as aforesaid, or such of the same as shall be issued, and the interest from time to time accruing thereon, according to the tenor and effect of the said bonds and the coupons or interest warrants accompanying the same, then this indenture and all and singular the estates, rights and in- 121 terests hereby granted to or vested in the said party of the second part shall cease, determine, and become of no effect.

AND IT IS HEREBY UNDERSTOOD, DECLARED, GRANTED, AGREED AND PROVIDED, that of the aforesaid bonds to the aggregate amount of four million seven hundred thousand dollars designed to be issued under and secured by this indenture as aforesaid, fourteen hundred thousand dollars in 122 amount thereof, being the fourteen hundred of such bonds for one thousand dollars each, numbered from one (1) to 1400 (fourteen hundred) inclusive, are appropriated, designed and intended to be used and applied by the said party of the first part for the purpose and in the manner following; that is to say, the same are to be transferred and delivered by the said railroad company, party of the first part, to the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as an additional collateral secu- 123
rity to them and their representatives and assigns for the aforesaid indebtedness of the said railroad company originally existing in favor of said State of Tennessee, and assigned and transferred to and now held by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, and now amounting, as aforesaid, to seventeen hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred dollars and twenty-five cents, besides the interest accrued and to accrue thereon from and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred 124 and seventy-seven, under an arrangement and agreement between said railroad company, party of the first part hereto, and said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, by which such transfer and delivery to them of the said fourteen hundred bonds is not in anywise to operate as a payment of or upon account of the said indebtedness held by them under

125 transfer from the State of Tennessee, nor is the same to diminish, impair or affect the said prior and paramount lien for the amount of such indebtedness, and the interest accrued and to accrue thereon upon the said portion of said railroad situate in the State of Tennessee, with its appurtenances and equipment, and the other property in the said State which originally existed in favor of the State of Tennessee, and is now held by Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, under transfer from said State as aforesaid;
126 but that notwithstanding such transfer and delivery to said Adrian Iselin, and Adrian, Junior, of said fourteen hundred bonds, the said debt against said railroad company now held by them under transfer from the State of Tennessee, and the lien thereof originally existing in favor of said State, and vested in them by transfer as aforesaid, and all the rights and remedies and securities of said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, for the security of such indebtedness originally existing in favor of the State, with the 127 interest accrued and hereafter to accrue thereon, and for enforcement of the lien thereof, are to remain in full force and effect, as if such fourteen hundred bonds had not been transferred and delivered as additional security therefor as aforesaid.

Provided, however, that all sums of money which shall be actually paid by said railroad company on account of interest or principal upon such fourteen hundred bonds, or either of them, either to said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, or to any 128 one holding any of such bonds by or under transfer from them, are, when such payments respectively are actually made and realized in cash, and not before to be credited as payments on account of the said original indebtedness to the State of Tennessee assigned to Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, reckoning for the purpose of such credit such payments made in gold at the value thereof, in United States legal tender currency at the time of such pay- 129 ment; which payments received for interest on such fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, are to be credited on account of the interest accruing subsequently to July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, on said indebtedness originally existing in favor of the State, and assigned to Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, and which payments, if any,

received for on account of principal of such fourteen hundred bonds shall be applied on account of the 130 principal of such indebtedness originally existing in favor of the State, and by it assigned over as aforesaid, and the interest thereon accrued up to July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven; and with the further provision in such arrangement that said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, shall be entitled to sell or otherwise dispose of and to transfer to any person or persons or corporations any of the said fourteen hundred bonds so transferred and delivered to them as they may deem fit, 131
without thereby prejudicing or affecting the said original indebtedness to the State so assigned to them, or the said lien held therefor, or the rights or remedies of themselves or their asssigns in respect thereof, and without subjecting themselves or their assigns to any present credit upon such indebtedness for or in respect of such bonds so sold or so disposed of or transferred, but subject to the aforesaid obligation to give credit on such indebtedness for all payments which shall be made 132 for principal or interest on such bouds so sold or disposed of or transferred when such payments are actually made and realized in cash, qut not before; and under the further understanding and arrangement that said Adrian Ise-lin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, in anticipation of making sales or dispositions or transfers of such

133 fourteen hundred bonds or portions thereof, shall be at liberty to assign and transfer the said original indebtedness of the Railroad Company to the State, and the State's lien therefor transferred to them as aforesaid, and all their present and future rights and remedies in respect thereof to a trustee or trustees, to be held for the equal pro rata benefit of the holders from time to time of such fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred, inclusive, and so as that proportionate beneficial
134 or equitable interests in the said indebtedness originally existing in favor of the State, including the interest thereon accrued and hereafter to accrue, and in the lien which was held by the State therefor, and in the rights and remedies in respect thereof may invest in equitable or beneficial interest in the holders from time to time of such fourteen hundred collateral bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred, inclusive, including the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, themselves, in respect of 135 so many of said fourteen hundred bonds as may remain in their hands untransferred and undisposed of by them, with pro rata equality in proportion to the respective amounts held by such parties respectively of such fourteen hundred bonds, and so that the holder of each of such fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred, inclusive, may be entitled to a proportionate beneficial interest in such amount or proportion of the said indebtedness originally existing in favor of the State, with the 136 interest thereon accrued and to accrue, and the said liens and rights held for the security thereof corresponding with the principal and interest of such bond so held by him, and with the proper proportionate addition thereto by reason of the principal and interest of such bond being payable in gold instead of currency; but the legal title to such original indebtness, with its attendant liens and securities, shall remain in the said trustees to whom the 137 same shall be transferred by the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, in trust for the holders of said fourteen hundred collateral bonds, to the end and intent that notwithstanding any sale or other disposition or transfer which may be made of such fourteen hundred collateral bonds, the said original debt and lien preserved in full force, and the said bonds held as further collateral security may in substance and effect be beneficially held by or for account of the same persons, and that the parties 138 may substantially, in respect of beneficial or equitable interests, be in like positions as if the said original debt and lien and said collateral bonds had all continued to be held by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, or had been altogether assigned over by them to the same person or persons.

And inasmuch as under such proposed arrangement, and in virtue of the terms and conditions of this mortgage and the bonds thereby secured, there will exist a double lien and security for substanti- 139 ally the same amount or indebtedness in favor of the holders of said debt and lien, originally held by the State of Tennessee, and assigned over to Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, and preserved and kept in force in the hands of the trustee, to whom the same is to be assigned as aforesaid, and of the holders of the said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred, inclusive, held as further collateral security therefor, and which double lien, as to a part thereof, will exist 140 upon the same subject matter—viz: The said railroad in Tennessee, with its appurtenances and equipment, and the other property in the State which is subject to the State lien, now it is hereby declared, provided, granted, declared and agreed that such double lien and security is intended to and shall exist, and that neither lien or security

141 shall prejudice the efficacy of the other; that the said State lien, held by assignment as aforesaid, may be enforced, and all rights and remedies in respect thereof may be held and had as fully and completely and effectually as if the lien and security in favor of the holders of such fourteen hundred bonds as further collateral security, as aforesaid, did not exist, and that the holders, from time to time, of such fourteen hundred bonds, so transferred by way of further collateral security for 142 such original debt, shall be entitled as fully and completely and effectually as if the said original lien and security for the original debt, as further security for which said fourteen hundred bonds are transferred, did not exist to their equal pro rata share and proportion in like manner with the holders of the other bonds, numbers (1401) fourteen hundred and one to (4700) four thousand seven hundred inclusive, to be issued under and secured by this mortgage, or such of such other bonds as may 143 from time to time be outstanding, of the benefit of all securities and liens provided by this mortgage, and of the proceeds and fruits thereof, and of any foreclosure or enforcement of the same, including as well the mortgaged premises situate in Alabama and Mississippi as the other mortgaged premises, save and except that if, prior to making apportionment and distribution between the holders of the bonds secured by the indenture of mortgage, of the net proceeds of any foreclosure or other legal en- 144 forcement thereof, any net sum shall have been actually collected and realized in cash by means of legal enforcement of the said lien originally held by the State of Tennessee, and assigned over to Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, by giving proper credit wherefor, after first deducting therefrom all proper expenses and charges incurred in respect of the proceedings for such enforcement and collection, including the compensation of the 145 said trustee, to whom the same shall be so assigned by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, in respect thereof, the then unpaid amount of the said indebtedness of the railroad company, originally existing in favor of the State, and by it transferred over as aforesaid, and as collateral security for which said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, shall be held as aforesaid, shall be reduced below the principal of such fourteen hundred bonds and the interest thereon 146 accrued and unpaid at the time of such apportionment and distribution, having due regard to the circumstance that said bonds are payable in gold, and therefore reducing the amount of such net credits or deductions to the value thereof in gold when collected and realized, then, and in such case, for the purposes of making such apportionment and distribution between the respective bondholders secured by this indenture of mortgage, of the net proceeds of such foreclosure or other legal enforcement of 147 this mortgage, the said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, instead of being reckoned at their face value, with their accrued and unpaid interest, shall be reckoned as being only for an amount equal to such reduced amount, computed as aforesaid, remaining unpaid at the time of such apportionment and distribution upon the said indebtedness of said railroad company, originally existing in favor of the State of Tennessee, and by it transferred over as afore- 148 said, and for which the said fourteen hundred bonds shall stand as security as aforesaid, and such apportionment and distribution between said fourteen hundred bonds and the other then outstanding bonds hereby secured shall be made accordingly; and it being always understood, agreed and provided that the double lien and security, 149 as aforesaid, will not and shall not be allowed so to operate as to produce an actual double payment or satisfaction of the same substantial debt, but that all payments actually received and realized in money, by means of either security, will and shall, to the extent of such actual payments realized, go in reduction of said original debt and of said collateral bonds held as security therefor, but making the proper allowance for difference between gold and currency as aforesaid.

AND IT IS FURTHER DECLARED AND UNDERSTOOD that it will be made a part of the said arrangement between said railroad company and said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, that said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin Junior, shall consent so far to reduce the amount of their said claim and demand against said railroad company and the lien and security therefor, under the said assignment and transfer from the State of Ten-
151 nessee to them, as that, when they or their assigns shall have actually received and realized in cash, by net payments, as on account of the principal of the said indebtedness of seventeen hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents, in United States legal tender currency, due July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, a sum equal to fourteen hundred thousand dollars in United States gold coin, reducing currency realizations or payments to gold values
152 as aforesaid, and shall likewise have actually received and realized in cash, by net payments, as on account of interest accrueing at the rate of six per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July, upon the said currency indebtedness of seventeen hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents, a sum equal to seven per cent per annum in United States gold coin, from 153

the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July, upon such sum of fourteen hundred thousand dollars gold, until payment and realization in cash, as aforesaid, of that principal sum, reducing currency realizations or payments to gold values as aforesaid, the residue of such currency indebtedness of seventeen hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents, and of the interest accruing 154 thereon, from and after July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, shall be thereupon given up, released and discharged to the said Railroad Company; provided, however, as a condition thereof that said Railroad Company shall bear, pay and discharge all the expenses and charges attendant upon the collection and receipt of such monies on account of the principal or interest, or either of such indebtedness originally existing in favor of the State, and of all legal and other proceedings had or 155 taken for the recovery thereof, including the compensation of such trustee in respect of such collection, receipt and legal and other proceedings; and that this stipulation and agreement shall bind the representatives and assigns of said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, including the trustee to whom such original debt and lien is to be so assigned, and that for the purposes thereof all cash payments received and realized for principal or interest upon such fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to four- 156
teen hundred inclusive, or any of them, by parties holding such bonds under transfer from said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, shall be of like legal affect as if such monies were received by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior.

AND IT IS HEREBY FURTHER PROVIDED, DE-

157 CLARED, GRANTED AND AGREED by and between the parties hereto that fourteen hundred and thirty-six thousand dollars in amount of the bonds issuable under and intended to be secured by this indenture, that is to say, such bonds for one thousand dollars each, numbered from 1401 (fourteen hundred and one) to 2836 (twenty-eight hundred and thirty-six), both inclusive, are specially reserved and appropriated for the purpose of taking up and discharging the before-mentioned twelve hundred and ninety-
158 three thousand dollars, in amount of now outstanding first mortgage bonds of said Railroad Company, issued under and secured by its said first mortgage so called, dated May first, eighteen hundred and fifty-four, and said fourteen hundred and thirty-six bonds so appropriated are to be reserved in the hands of the Trustee hereunder, unissued until the same shall be actually applied to such purpose as herein next provided, to which end the said Trustee is hereby authorized to and shall deliver over such 159 reserved fourteen hundred and thirty-six bonds to the said Railroad Company, for use and negotiation by it, when and in proportion as the said Railroad Company shall deliver up to the said Trustee in a cancelled condition such twelve hundred and ninety-three now outstanding first mortgage bonds, the said Trustee delivering over such reserved new bonds to said Company, as aforesaid, at the rate of ten thousand dollars thereof for each nine thousand dollars of principal amount of such now outstand-160 ing first mortgage bonds, so delivered over in cancelled condition to said Trustee. And it is further provided, declared, granted and agreed that a further amount of one million dollars of the bonds issuable under and intended to be secured by this indenture, that is to say, such bonds for one thousand dollars each, numbered from 2,836 (twenty-eight hundred and thirty-seven) to 3,838 (thirty-eight hundred and thirty-six), both inclusive, are 161 specially reserved and appropriated for the purpose of taking up and discharging the before mentioned one million dollars in amount of now outstanding ing second mortgage bonds of said railroad company, issued under and secured by its said, so called, second mortgage, dated January first, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, and said one thousand bonds so appropriated are to be reserved in the hands of the Trustee hereunder, unissued, until the same shall be actually applied to such 162 purpose as herein next provided, to which end the said Trustee is hereby authorized to, and shall deliver over such reserved one thousand bonds to the said Railroad Company, for use and negotiation by it, when and in proportion as the said Railroad Company shall deliver up to said Trustee, in a cancelled condition, such now outstanding one thousand second mortgage bonds, the said Trustee delivering over such reserved new bonds to said Company, as aforesaid, at the rate of one thousand dol- 163 lars thereof for each one thousand dollars of principal of such second mortgage bonds, so delivered to it in a cancelled condition. And it is hereby provided, declared and agreed that said party of the second part must not and shall not permit to be issued as certified or countersigned by it, the said twenty-four hundred and thirty-six bonds, numbers 1,401 (fourteen hundred and one) to 3,836 (thirty-eight hundred and thirty-six), which are reserved for taking up and providing for such outstanding 164 first and second mortgage bonds, as aforesaid, except under and in conformity with the foregoing provisions and limits in respect thereof: PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that, in case said Railroad Company shall arrange with any holders of such now outstanding first and second mortgage bonds for an extension of time of payment thereon, and for giv-

165 ing as additional security therefor, or for the indebtedness represented thereby, such new bonds hereby reserved, for providing for the same at rates not exceeding ten thousand dollars of such new bonds for each nine thousand dollars of such now outstanding first mortgage bonds, and not exceeding one thousand dollars of such new bonds for each one thousand dollars of such now outstanding second mortgage bonds, and for depositing both such old extended bonds, and such new collateral
166 bonds with some responsible Trust Company in the City of New York, or other agreed depository in said City, satisfactory to the party of the second part, under such agreement of trust, or otherwise, as may be fixed upon with a view to avoiding the risk to the Railroad Company, and its other creditors, of a double payment upon such indebtedness thus extended and secured; the said party of the second part hereto shall be, and hereby is, authorized and required to give effect to such arrange-167 ment, and to deliver over in accordance therewith such reserved new bonds to such agreed Trust Company, or other depository, anything hereinbefore contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

IT IS FURTHER UNDERSTOOD, DECLARED AND PROVIDED, That as to the issue and negotiation of the bonds issued under and secured by this mortgage other than the twenty-four hundred and thirty-six bonds so appropriated and reserved for taking up 168 said first and second mortgage bonds, the said party of the second part assumes no responsibility and is to exercise no supervision, but is to countersign or certify and deliver over to the said Railway Company for transfer or negotiation by it without supervision the said other bonds—that is to say, those numbered from one to fourteen hundred inclusive, and those numbered from thirty-eight hundred and thirty-seven to four thousand seven hundred inclu- 169 sive.

And it is further provided, declared and agreed, That the said party of the first part reserves to itself and it shall have and possess the right and privilege, anything hereinbefore contained to the contrary notwithstanding, to agree with the holders of all or any of the said now outstanding first mortgage bonds and second mortgage bonds respectively for an extension of time of pay- 170 ment thereof, at rates of interest not exceeding those which the said bonds now bear, and for preserving, keeping in full force and effect, and if necessary or desirable renewing as a lien or liens prior and superior to the lien of this indenture of mortgage the now existing lien or liens, and security of such first and second mortgage respectively, upon the property and franchises covered thereby;
for the unpaid amount of such bonds, including the interest accruing subsequently to such extension, 171 and it shall be competent for the party of the second part hereto, as Trustee hereunder, to execute any instrument, or instruments, expressing its concurrence as Trustee in, or effectuating such preservation, keeping in force and renewing of such lien or liens as above authorized and provided as a lien prior and superior to the lien of this mortgage; provided always, and it is expressly understood, declared and provided, that nothing above contained is to authorize any inter- 172 ference with, or impairment in any respect of the before-mentioned prior and paramount lien upon the said railroad in Tennessee with its appurtenances and equipment, and the other property of said railroad company in that State, now held by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, under transfer from the State of Tennessee, as aforesaid,

173 and proposed to be transferred in trust for the special security of the holders of said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, as aforesaid.

AND IT IS FURTHER PROVIDED, DECLARED AND AGREED by and between the parties hereto, as follows, that is to say:

First.—In case default shall at any time be made by the party of the first part in the due and punctual 174 payment of any instalment of semi-annual interest at any time becoming due and payable upon any of the said bonds, within the aggregate amount of forty-seven hundred thousand dollars, issued under the security of this mortgage as aforesaid; and if any such interest shall remain in arrear and unpaid for sixty days after demand thereof, then and in such case if, and when thereafter the holders, at the time being, of one-third in amount of the then outstanding bonds, issued under and entitled 175 to the benefit of the security of this mortgage, shall by instrument or instruments executed by them respectively, or their attorneys in fact thereunto duly authorized, and delivered to the party of the second part, or its successor or successors, as trustee hereunder, so elect, the principal sums secured by and payable upon all and singular the said bonds, within the aggregate amount of forty-seven hundred thousand dollars, issued under the security of this mortgage as aforesaid, with all arrears of interest 176 thereon, shall become immediately due and payable, although the time for the payment of said principal, originally stipulated in said bonds shall not yet have arrived, anything in the said several bonds contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Second.—Until the party of the first part shall have made some default in the payment of the principal or interest secured by or payable upon the 177 said bonds hereby intended to be secured, or upon some of such bonds, or some part of such principal or interest, or in the performance of some other of the covenants, stipulations and provisions on the part of the party of the first part in this indenture contained, the said party of the first part shall be entitled to continue in the possession, use and enjoyment of the said railroad and other mortgaged premises, properties, rights, interests and franchises, and in receipt of the income, rents and profits thereof, 178 and while the said party of the first part shall so remain in possession, and there shall be no such subsisting default in the payment of interest or principal, or in the performance of the stipulations, conditions and provisions on the part of the said party of the first part in this indenture contained, the said party of the second part, or its successor or successors in the said trust, shall have full power and authority, to be exercised in its or their own discretion, and not otherwise, to release from the 179 lien and operation of these presents, in such manner as it or they may deem proper, any portion of the premises hereby mortgaged which may be appurtenant to the said mortgaged railroad, or any part thereof, including the branches or which may have been acquired or held for the uses or purposes thereof, but which, in the judgment of the said Trustee, shall be no longer requisite for use in connection therewith, or which shall have been acquired or held for stations, depots, shops or other buildings, 180 or for supplying fuel, gravel or other material, and which in the Trustee's judgment shall be no longer requisite to be kept for such purpose, and likewise any lands not occupied by the track, which may become disused by reason of a change in the location of any station-house, depot, shop or other building connected with the said railroad, and like-

181 wise any land occupied by the tracks, and adjacent to such station-house, depot, shop, or other building, which the said party of the first part, its successors or assigns, may deem it expedient to disuse or abandon by reason of such change, and likewise any part of the original line of track or roadway, and of the depot grounds, buildings or accommodations connected therewith, which may have been thrown out of or ceased to form part of the railroad at the time of such release, by rea-182 son of straitening or alteration of the line of the road or otherwise; Provided, always, that the power of release given by this article is designed to be exercised, and shall be exercised only in case of the said railroad company's selling or contracting to sell the property so to be released, because of its being no longer required for the uses or purposes of said railroad, and requiring the same to be so released in order to give a perfect title to the purchaser or purchasers; and Provided further, that 183 when such released premises shall have been thrown out of use, or ceased to be required, by reason of change of the line of the road, or change of depot grounds, buildings or other accommodations, the substitutes therefor shall be conveyed by appropriate deeds to the trustee, upon the trusts and for the uses and purposes of this indenture, before the giving of such release under the power contained in this article. And provided further that as there are depot grounds in the city of Memphis of much 184 greater extent and value than is required for the uses of said railroad, and which may be advantageously and properly sold and disposed of in aid of the general funds of the said railroad company and without procuring substitutes therefor, it is understood and provided that under the foregoing power the trustee may properly release such surplus depot grounds upon the same being sold, and without receiving any substitute therefor. And the said Trustee shall likewise have full power to allow the said party of the first part, its successors or assigns, from time to time, to sell and dispose of such portion of the equipment, machinery and implements which shall be at any time held or acquired for the use of said railroad, as shall have become worn out or unfit for such use; PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that the same shall be adequately replaced by other equipment, machinery and implements, and all such other equipment, machinery and implements, which may be acquired in substitution as aforesaid, shall, by virtue and force hereof, become and be immediately upon the acquisition of the same, subject to the lien and operation of these presents, without any new conveyance or transfer or other act or ceremony whatever; but such new conveyance and transfer shall be given to the trustee or trustees, if it or they shall require or request the same. 185 186

Third. The said party of the first part doth hereby covenant, promise and agree, to and with the said party of the second part, and its successors in the trust hereby created, that while the said party of the first part shall remain in possession of the said railroad, it shall and will, from time to time, pay and discharge all taxes, assessments, and governmental charges, lawfully imposed upon the said railroad and branches, and other hereby mortgaged premises, or upon any part thereof, the lien of which might or could be held to be prior to the lien of these presents, so that the priority of this mortgage may be duly preserved, and that the said party of the first part shall not and will not do or suffer any matter or thing whatsoever, whereby the lien of this Indenture of Mortgage might or could be impaired, until the said bonds hereby secured with all interest accrued thereon, shall be fully paid and satisfied. 187 188

189 Fourth. In case default shall be made in the payment of any semi-annual instalment of interest, which may have accrued upon the said bonds hereby secured, or upon any of them, when such interest shall become or be due and be demanded, and if such interest or any part thereof, shall remain unpaid and in arrear for the period of sixty days, after demand thereof made according to the tenor of the coupon representing the same, or according to the tenor of the bond ; or in case default shall be made in the 190 due observance and performance of the covenant for further assurance hereinafter contained ; or in case default shall be made by said railroad company in the payment of any taxes, assessments or other governmental charges, which may be lawfully levied or imposed upon the said mortgaged railroad, and premises, or any part thereof, and the lien whereof might or could be held prior to the lien of these presents, and if any such default as last above mentioned shall continue for the pe-
191 riod of sixty days after notification to the said Railroad Company, of the existence of such unpaid taxes, assessments and other governmental charges, and request to said Railroad Company to make payment thereof, shall have been made or given by the Trustee under this mortgage, or by the holders of bonds secured hereby to the aggregate amount of not less than three hundred thousand dollars ; or in case default shall be made in the payment of the principal of said bonds hereby secured, or any of 192 such bonds, when such principal shall be due and payable, then, and in any and every such case of default made, in any particular aforesaid, and provided such default be continued as aforesaid, where such continuance is above called for, the said party of the second part, or its successor or successors in the said trust, may, either personally or by agent or attorney, enter into and upon the said Railroad and other mortgaged premises, properties and 193 rights, and have, hold and possess the same, with the rights, privileges and franchises thereunto appertaining, and operate the said Railroad by such superintendents, managers, receivers, assistants, servants and agents, as the said Trustee shall deem proper, making from time to time all such repairs and replacements, and all such useful alterations, additions and improvements to the said Railroad, and other mortgaged property, as the said Trustee may deem expedient and judicious, and as the income 194 of the said mortgaged premises coming to the Trustees, hands shall be adequate to pay for. And it shall be lawful for the Trustee or Trustees, after entry and possession as above authorized, to collect and receive all fares, freights, issues, profits and income

of the said Railroad and other mortgaged premises, and to deduct and retain and pay therefrom all the lawful expenses or charges of, or incident to, making such entry or obtaining possession of said premises, and the proper expenses and 195 charges of or incidental to the holding, operating and managing the said Railroad and premises and conducting the business thereof, including the expense of all such repairs, replacements, alterations, additions, and improvements as above authorized, and all payments which may be made or be due for taxes, assessments or other charges, or liens prior to the lien of these presents, upon the said Railroad and premises, or upon any part or parcel thereof, as well as just and reasonable compensation for the 196
Trustee's services in the premises, and for the services of such attorneys and counsel as may have been by it or them properly employed in respect thereof; and after making all such deductions and payments as aforesaid, the Trustee or Trustees shall apply the net residue of such fares, freights, issues, profits, and income remaining in its or their hands,

197 to the payment in the first place, of all overdue interest on the bonds hereby secured, or any of them, with the interest accrued on such amount of interest after default in its payment, in the order in which such interest shall have become due, rateably to the person holding the bonds, or coupons evidencing the right to such interest, and without discrimination or preference between them on account of the time of the actual issue of said bonds, and in the next place, to the payment of such interest 198 accruing or becoming due, during such possession of the Trustee or Trustees, in the order in which such interest shall fall due, rateably, and without any preference of one bond or coupon over another, save the said preference accorded to earliest maturing coupons, and if, in any six months of the possession by the Trustee or Trustees, after payment of all matured interest on the said bonds, a surplus of net income arising as aforesaid shall remain in the hands of the Trustee or Trustees, it 199 shall be lawful for the Trustee or Trustees to pay over such surplus to the said party of the first part, its successors or assigns, or as any Court of competent jurisdiction shall lawfully direct, and thereupon to deliver possession of said Railroad and other mortgaged premises to the party of the first part, to be thenceforward possessed by it, subject to the lien of this mortgage, and to the Trustee's right again to take possession in case of future default entitling possession to be taken as hereinbe-200 fore specified.

Fifth. In case default shall be made in the payment of any semi-annual instalment of interest, which may have accrued upon the said bonds within the aggregate amount of four million seven hundred thousand dollars hereby secured, or in the payment of such interest upon any of said bonds, when such interest shall have become or be due, and be demanded, and if any such interest, or any part thereof, shall remain unpaid and in arrear for the period of sixty days after demand thereof made, according to the tenor of the coupon representing the same or according to the tenor of the bond, or in case default shall be made in the payment of the principal of the said bonds hereby secured, or of any of such bonds, when such principal shall be due and payable, it shall be lawful for the said party of the second part, or its successor or successors in trust hereby created, either after entry made upon the mortgaged premises, as aforesaid, or without any such entry, either personally, or by attorney, or agent, duly constituted therefor by the said Trustee or Trustees, to sell and dispose of all and singular the said railroad and other premises, properties, rights and franchises, which shall then remain subject to the lien and operation of this Indenture of Mortgage, at public auction to the highest bidder, either in the City of New York, or in the City of Memphis, in the State of Tennessee, as the said Trustee or Trustees may, in its or their discretion, designate, and at such time as it or they may appoint therefor; provided, however, and it is hereby declared and agreed, that preparatory to such auction sale, as aforesaid, the said Trustee or Trustees shall give public notice of the time and place, when and where the same is to be made, and of the property to be sold, by advertisement in two newspapers, published in each of the States of Tennessee, Alabama, and Mississippi, and in two newspapers of good circulation, published in the City of New York, and that such advertisement shall be published in each of such newspapers, at least twice in each week, for the twelve successive weeks next previous to the day fixed for such sale, with the right, however, to the Trustee or Trustees, after such notice

201
203
204

205 shall have been so published, to adjourn the sale so advertised, from time to time in the discretion of the Trustee or Trustees, giving reasonable notices of such adjournment or adjournments, and after so adjourning, to make the sale at the time to which it may be finally adjourned. And it shall be lawful for the said Trustee or Trustees, and it or they are hereby expressly authorized and empowered, upon making any such auction sale of said mortgaged premises and property, rights and franchises as 206 above authorized, to make and deliver to the purchaser or purchasers thereof, at such sale, upon his or their paying the purchase money therefor, a good and sufficient deed or deeds of conveyance in the law of the same, which auction sale and the deed or deeds thereof made as above authorized, it is hereby granted, declared and agreed, shall be good and valid in the law, and shall operate to vest in the grantee or grantees in such conveyances the said railroad and branches and other mortgaged premises, 207 properties, rights and franchises, in fee simple and absolutely, and such deed or deeds shall operate to foreclose all equity of redemption of the said party of the first part, and its successors or assigns, and shall be a perpetual bar, both in law and equity, against the said party of the first part, its successors and assigns, and against any and all persons or corporations claiming or to claim such premises, properties, rights and franchises so sold and conveyed, or any part thereof, by, from, through or under 208 the said party of the first part or its successors or assigns.

AND IT IS FURTHER PROVIDED, DECLARED AND AGREED, that from the proceeds of such sale made as aforesaid, the said Trustee or Trustees shall be entitled in the first place to deduct and retain or pay for all proper charges or expenses of or incident to such advertisement, foreclosure and sale and con- 209 veyance, including attorneys' and counsels' fees, and any and all unreimbursed advances, expenses, charges and liabilities which may have been properly made or incurred by such Trustee or Trustees in maintaining or operating the said railroad, or in managing the business of the same while it shall have remained in the Trustees' possession, or in arranging for and completing the sale aforesaid; and also all payments which may have been made by the Trustee or Trustees for taxes or 210 assessments, and for charges or liens prior to the lien of this indenture, if any such there shall be, on the said railroad and premises so sold, or any part thereof, as well as the just and reasonable compensation for the services of such trustee or trustees in the premises, and the said trustee or trustees shall apply the residue of the proceeds of such sale, after the deductions and payments above authorized to be first made thereout, to the payment of the principal of the said bonds within 211

the amount of four millions seven hundred thousand dollars, by this mortgage secured, or intended so to be, or of such of said bonds as may at that time remain outstanding and unpaid, whether such principal shall or shall not, by the terms or conditions of said bond, have then fallen due and become presently payable, and likewise to the payment of the interest which shall have accrued up to that time upon the principal of the said bonds hereby secured, and which shall remain unpaid and prop- 212 erly payable with any interest accrued on such interests after default, without discrimination or preference as between principal and interest, but rate-ably according to the aggregate amount of such unpaid principal and accrued and unpaid interest, which payments shall be made to the persons holding respectively the bonds and coupons evi-

213 dencing the right to such principal and interests, without any discrimination or preference between them on account of the time of the actual issuing of the bonds or of the time of maturing of the interest or principal, and always subject to and in accordance with the special provisions hereinbefore contained relating to the said fourteen hundred of such bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, and it being understood and hereby declared and agreed that upon any sale of said rail-214 road and other mortgaged premises which may be made as aforesaid, or upon any sale thereof made under or by virtue of the judgment or decree of any Court of competent jurisdiction rendered in any suit or proceeding for the enforcement or foreclosure of the lien created by this Indenture of Mortgage, the principal of all the then outstanding bonds secured by these presents shall become and be immediately due and payable. And it is further declared and agreed that the receipt of the trustee 215 or trustees who shall make the sale hereinbefore authorized shall be a sufficient discharge to the purchaser or purchasers at such sale for his or their heirs or assignee or personal representatives, shall not, after paying such purchase money and receiving such trustee's receipt therefor be obliged to see to the application of such purchase money upon or for the trusts or purposes of these presents, or be in anywise answerable for any loss, misapplication or non-application of such purchase money by the 216 trustee or trustees.

And the said party of the first part doth hereby further covenant that it will, if and when thereunto requested, make, execute and deliver such deeds or other instruments as shall be reasonably advised by counsel to confirm and assure such title and ownership as aforesaid to such purchaser or purchasers at such sale made as above authorized so as fully to effectuate said sale.

And the said party of the first part for itself, its 217 successors and assigns, hereby agrees to waive, and doth hereby absolutely and irrevocably waive and relinquish the benefit or advantage of any and all valuation, stay, or appraisement, extension or redemption law or laws, now existing or which may hereafter be passed by either of the States of Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, which but for this provision, agreement and waiver might be applicable to the sale hereinbefore authorized to be made by the trustee or trustees of the said railroad and 218 other mortgaged premises, or to any judicial sale which may be made of said mortgaged railroad and premises, or any part thereof, under and in virtue of the judgment or decree of any competent Court in a suit instituted for the foreclosure of this mortgage or for enforcement of the lien by this indenture created, and the said party of the first part for itself, its successors or assigns, agrees to waive and doth hereby irrevocably waive any and all right of redemption which it might or could otherwise have 219 or be entitled to, under any present or future law of either of the three States of Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi, upon or after or in respect of any sale of the said hereby mortgaged premises, properties, rights and franchises, or any part thereof, which may be made either by the Trustee or Trustees under the power hereinbefore contained, or as a judicial sale under order or decree of a court in a suit for foreclosure of this mortgage or enforcement of its lien 220 as aforesaid, and the said party of the first part hereby covenants that it will not in any manner set up or seek to take the benefit or advantage of any such present or future valuation, stay, appraisement, extension or redemption law, to prevent or hinder or delay the absolute and irredeemable sale of said mortgaged premises, properties, rights and fran-

221 chises, as hereinbefore authorized to be made by the Trustees, or as might, but for such law, be directed or decreed by a court of competent jurisdiction.

AND IT IS HEREBY FURTHER PROVIDED, DECLARED AND AGREED, that in case of such auction sale as hereinbefore authorized being made by the party of the second part, or its successor or successors in the said trust, or in case of any judicial sale being made of the said railroad and other premises, 222 properties, rights, and franchises, hereby mortgaged or any part thereof, in enforcement of the mortgage lien hereby created, the purchaser or purchasers at such sale shall be entitled, in making settlement for and payment of the purchase money bidden at such sale, to turn in and use towards the payment of such purchase money, any of the bonds or coupons held by such purchaser or purchasers, to or towards the payment whereof the net proceeds of such sale shall be legally applicable, reckoning such bonds or cou- 223 pons for such purpose, at such sum as shall be payable out of the net proceeds of such sale to such purchaser or purchasers, as holder or holders of such bonds or coupons, for his or their just share or proportion, in that character, of such net proceeds of sale upon due apportionment of and accounting concerning such net proceeds, due receipts and acknowledgments being thereupon given by the holders of such bonds or coupons for the amount thus realized thereon, by means of turning in and using 224 the same as aforesaid, and said bonds or coupons being either delivered up to the person or persons making the sale, and entitled to receive payment of the purchase money, or due endorsement being made thereon of the amount so realized on account thereof.

Sixth. Whenever there shall have occurred such continued default, in the payment of either interest 225 upon or principal of the bonds, secured by this Indenture of Mortgage, or upon, or of any of such bonds as in virtue of the preceding provisions of this Indenture shall entitle the Trustee or Trustees to proceed to advertise and sell the mortgaged premises as aforesaid, it shall be obligatory upon the said Trustees, upon being thereunto requested by the holders of so many as one-third in amount of the then outstanding bonds secured by this Indenture, by an instrument or instruments in writing to such 226 effect, executed by such bondholders or their duly authorized attorneys in fact, to proceed either to assert the power of sale hereinbefore conferred upon the Trustee, or to institute and carry on, with the advice of competent attorneys and counsel, legal proceedings in a court or courts of competent jurisdiction, for the enforcement and protection of the rights of the Trustees and the bondholders in the premises, and for foreclosure of this mortgage, enforcement of the lien thereof, and a judicial sale of said 227 mortgaged premises or properties, rights and franchises, and immunities, it being hereby expressly declared, granted, agreed and provided, that the right to proceed by suit or suits, or other appropriate legal proceedings in a court or courts of competent jurisdiction shall exist, and is and shall be in no wise prejudiced by the power of entry, or by the power of sale, or any of the other provisions hereinbefore contained, and it shall in the event of such request by bondholders as aforesaid, be in the 228 discretion of the Trustee or Trustees, under the advice of competent counsel, to adopt and pursue such one of the two courses above mentioned as to such Trustee or Trustees shall seem most expedient; PROVIDED, HOWEVER, and it is a condition of the obligations of the Trustee or Trustees to adopt either course, or to take any steps for the fore-

229 closure or enforcement of this mortgage or any steps for entry into possession of the mortgaged premises under the power in that behalf hereinbefore contained, that the Trustee or Trustees before actually taking any such steps or proceedings of any kind, shall have the right to require the bondholders calling upon it or them so to do, to furnish to it or them reasonable indemnity for, and provision for the payment, as and when required of the costs, charges and expenses of, or 230 incident to such steps or proceedings.

Seventh. The trustee under this indenture, or its successor or successors, may at any time be removed from the trust, by instrument in writing under the hands and seals of the holders of a majority in amount of the then outstanding bonds secured hereby, or their attorneys in fact thereunto authorized.

AND IT IS FURTHER DECLARED, PROVIDED AND
231 AGREED, that in case a vacancy shall at any time exist in a trusteeship hereunder, by reason of removal, death or mental incapacity of the trustee or trustees for the time being, or either of them, or of the resignation of any such trustee accepted, in writing, by a majority in interest of the bondholders or by a court of competent jurisdiction, or of a vacancy in such trusteeship otherwise lawfully occurring and existing, a majority in amount of the holders of the then outstanding bonds, issued under 232 and secured by this indenture of mortgage, shall have the right and power, by instrument in writing under hand and seal, to appoint a new trustee or trustees, to fill such vacancy; and, in case the vacancy shall be caused by the party of the second part, or any corporation appointed in its place ceasing to be trustee, such vacancy may be so filled by the bondholders by the appointment, as trustee, of another corporation having lawful power to execute such trust, or of one or more individual trustees; and until the appointment of a trustee or trustees, to fill any vacancy, shall have been made by the majority in amount of the said bondholders under the power in that behalf above contained, the Board of Directors, for the time being, of the party of the first part may appoint a new trustee or trustees to fill such vacancy for the time being; and in case of any vacancy being filled by such appointment by the Board of Directors, it shall be competent for any court of equitable powers, having jurisdiction in the premises, upon the application of any of the bondholders holding not less than five hundred thousand dollars in amount of such bonds, to annul such appointment, and appoint a trustee or trustees in place of the trustee or trustees so appointed by the directors, to hold the trust for the like term as he or they would have held the same under the appointment of the said directors, but no longer, and if the directors shall omit to fill the vacancy it may be filled by a court in the manner and with the effect last above provided and upon the like tenure. 233 234 235

And in case of any vacancy occurring and not being filled by a majority in amount of the bondholders, under the preceding provisions in that behalf, it shall be the duty of the president of the said railroad company to call a meeting, on a notice of at least three weeks, published once a week, for three successive weeks, in two newspapers, of good circulation, published in the City of New York, of the bondholders, to be held in the City of New York, to appoint a trustee or trustees to fill the vacancies so existing, or which shall have existed; but, nevertheless, such vacancy may be filled without waiting for and irrespective of any such meeting, by instrument or concurrent instruments, 236

237 under hand and seal of a majority in interest of such bondholders, and any appointment of a trustee or trustees to fill such vacancy existing or which shall have existed, whether made at such meeting, called as aforesaid, or otherwise, provided it be under the hands and seals of a majority in amount of the holders of the then outstanding bonds hereby secured, or their attorneys in fact thereunto authorized, but not otherwise, shall be valid and effectual, and shall supersede any previous ap-238 pointment of a trustee, to fill such vacancy, which may have been made by the board of directors of the said company, or by a Court under any of the preceding provisions hereof.

AND IT IS HEREBY PROVIDED, DECLARED AND AGREED that the due appointment of a trustee or trustees, in any of the modes herein provided, shall be effectual to vest in such truestee or trustees the appropriate estate, rights, 239 powers and duties as herein provided in that behalf, without any new deed or conveyance; but, nevertheless, the said railroad company hereby covenants, in any and every such case, to make and execute, upon request, any such deeds, conveyances or assurances as may be appropriate for more fully and certainly vesting in and confirming to such new trustee such estate, rights, powers and duties, and in every case of resignation of a trustee, the resigning trustee shall, if requested, make and execute such deeds,
240 conveyances or assurances to his successor.

AND IT IS HEREBY FURTHER PROVIDED, DECLARED AND AGREED that whenever, and as often as any occasion shall arise in which the action of a majority in amount of the said bondholders, in pursuance of any power or provision herein contained, shall be called for or be appropriate, a meeting or meetings, from time to time, of such bondholders, to be held 241

in the City of New York, may be called by the trustee under this indenture, or by such bondholders holding bonds to an aggregate amount of five hundred thousand dollars, upon notice of advertisement, published for not less than three weeks successively, at least once in each week, in two newspapers published in the City of New York, and that the expenses of calling, advertising and holding any such meeting, and of any adjournment thereof, shall be a claim against and charge upon the trust 242
funds or property held in trust hereinunder, and shall be paid by the trustee out of any trust funds in its or their hands.

Eighth. The trustee or trustees hereunder shall be entitled to receive reasonable compensation for all services performed by it or them in or about the execution of the trusts hereby created. And it is hereby further provided, declared and agreed that in case of the 243 trustee or trustees hereunder entering upon and taking possession of the said railroad and other mortgaged premises or property in consequence of default made by said railroad company, under or in pursuance of the power and authority in that behalf hereinbefore conferred upon the trustee, it shall be lawful and competent for such trustee or trustees to employ an agent or agents for the performance of any such duties, acts and things in and about taking and maintaining such possession, and using, 244 operating and managing the said railroad, and collecting the income, earnings and profits thereof, and making repairs and improvements as above authorized, as such trustee or trustees may deem fit, and for the performance of any other acts in and about such possession and management, the performance whereof can be properly delegated to an agent; and 245 that such trustee or trustees, provided it or they shall have exercised reasonable prudence and care in the selection and employment of such agent or agents for any such purposes, shall not be responsible for losses or damages in the premises caused by the act, neglect or default of such agent or agents. But this provision is not intended, and shall not be construed, so as to exempt the trustee or trustees, in case of sale being made of the said mortgaged premises, from due responsibility to the bondhold-246 ers hereby secured for the due application of the proceeds of such sale received, either by the trustee or trustees or by any agent or agents whom it or they may see fit to employ to receive such proceeds of sale.

and to accrue thereon, and are and will be entitled to the like rights and remedies for the enforcement been made.

347

Now THIS INDENTURE WITNESSETH, that the said
The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, in consideration of one dollar to it in hand paid by the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, at and before the ensealing and delivery of these pre-

and confirm the holding and ownership by the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, under transfer from the State of Tennessee, as aforesaid, of the aforesaid indebtedness of said Railroad Company originally existing in favor of the State of 349 Tennessee, amounting to seventeen hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents, due as of the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, with the interest accrued and to accrue thereon from that date, together with the lien which the State of Tennessee held therefor, and all the securities, rights and remedies therefor and in respect of the same and the enforcement thereof which the State

350 ton Railroad Company doth hereby covenant and agree to pay such indebtedness, with the interest

And for the consideration aforesaid the said Mem-covenant, grant declare and agree to and with the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, their representatives and assigns, and to and with the said 351 The Farmers Loan and Trust Company, as Trustee under and for the uses and purposes of this in-

including the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as assignee thereof in trust hereunder, and for the uses and purposes hereof, do and shall have and hold, and are and shall be entitled to all the same or the like liens and securities for and in respect of the aforesaid indebtedness of seventeen 352 hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents, and each and every part thereof, with the interest accrued and to accrue thereon from and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, and all the same or the like rights and remedies therefor and in respect thereof, and for the enforcement of the said liens and securities and the collection of the said indebtedness and such interest accrued and to accrue 453 thereon, as the State of Tennessee had or held, or was entitled unto or would have had, held and been entitled unto, if it had continued to be the holder and owner of such debt and of the liens and securities therefor; and that the same shall be paramount, prior, and superior to the lien of the consolidated mortgage dated the twentieth day of August, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven hereinafter mentioned; and that the said The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, and its suc- 354 cessors and assigns, shall and will, at any and all times hereafter, upon reasonable request therefor, make, do and execute all such further and other deeds, assurances and acts as, under the advice of counsel, shall be reasonably advised or devised or required from them in order to confirm and effect-uate all such liens, securities, rights and remedies in and to the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, and their representatives and assigns, including the said party of the second part hereto as 355 assignee in trust as aforesaid, according to the intention and purpose of this indenture.

AND THIS INDENTURE FURTHER WITNESSETH,
That the said The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, simultaneously with the execution and delivery hereof, for good and valuable consideration, it thereto moving has transferred and delivered over to the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as an additional collateral security to 356 them and their representatives and assigns for the aforesaid indebtedness of the said railroad company, originally existing in favor of the State of Tennessee, and assigned and transferred to, and now held by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, and now amounting, as aforesaid, to the sum of one million seven hundred and thirty-

357 six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents, and for the interest accrued and to accrue thereon from and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, fourteen certain consolidated first mortgage bonds of the said The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, bearing date August twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, each for the payment of the sum of one thousand dollars in United States gold coin, on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and 358 fifteen, with interest thereon in the meantime at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable in like gold coin semi-annually, on the first days of January and July in each year, issued under and secured by the said railroad company's so-called consolidated mortgage or deed of trust, bearing date August twentieth, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, to the said Farmers' Loan and Trust Company as trustee, made to secure an issue of consolidated bonds thereunder limited to the aggregate
359 amount of four million seven hundred thousand dollars, which fourteen hundred bonds, so transferred and delivered to the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, and numbered consecutively from (1) to fourteen hundred (1,400) both inclusive. And it is hereby expressly declared and agreed by and between the said The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company and the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, that such transfer and delivery to said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, 360 Junior, of the said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, is not in anywise to operate as a payment of, or upon account of, the aforesaid indebtedness of the said Railroad Company to the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as assignees of the rights of the said State of Tennessee, as aforesaid, amounting to the above-mentioned sum of one million seven hundred and thirty-six thousand, nine hundred and six dol- 361

lars and twenty-five cents, with interest as aforesaid;
nor shall such transfer and delivery of such fourteen hundred bonds in any wise diminish, impair, nor affect the prior and paramount lien for the amount of such indebtedness and interest on the portion of said railroad, situated in the said State of Tennessee, with its appurtenances and equipments, and the other property in that State which originally existed in favor of the State of Tennessee, and which is now held by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian 362 Iselin, Junior, under transfer from said State as aforesaid; but, that notwithstanding such transfer and delivery to said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, of such fourteen hundred bonds, the said debt against said Railroad Company now held by them under transfer from said State of Tennessee, and the lien therefor originally existing in favor of said State, and vested in them by transfer as aforesaid, and all the rights and securities and remedies of the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, 363 for the security of said indebtedness originally existing in favor of said State, with the interest thereon accrued and to accrue, or for the enforcement of the lien therefor, are to and shall remain in full force and effect, as if said fourteen hundred bonds had not been transferred and delivered as additional security therefor, as aforesaid, PROVIDED HOWEVER, and it is hereby agreed, that all sums which shall have been actually paid in cash by said Railroad Company, on account of interest or principal upon 364 said fourteen hundred bonds, or any of them, either to said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, or to any one holding any of such bonds by or under transfer by them are when such payments respectively are actually made and realized in cash, and not before, to be credited as payments on account of said original indebtedness to the State of Ten-

365 nessee, assigned to said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, reckoning for the purpose of such credits such payments made in gold at the value thereof in United States legal tender currency at the time of payment, which payments received for interest on such fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, shall be credited on account of the interest accruing subsequently to July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, on said indebtedness originally existing 366 in favor of the State, and assigned to Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, and which payments, if any, received for or on account of principal of such fourteen hundred bonds shall be applied on account of the principal of such indebtedness originally existing in favor of the State, and by it assigned over as aforesaid, and the interest thereon accrued up to July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven.

367 AND IT IS HEREBY FURTHER PROVIDED, DECLARED AND EXPRESSLY AGREED by and on the part of the said Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company that the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, shall be entitled to sell or otherwise dispose of or transfer any or all of the said fourteen hundred bonds so transferred to them as they may deem fit,
without thereby prejudicing or affecting the said
original indebtedness to the State so assigned to them, or the said lien held therefor, or the rights or 368 remedies of themselves or their assigns for or in respect of the same, and without subjecting themselves or their assigns to any present credit upon such indebtedness for or in respect of said bonds so sold or disposed of or transferred,
but subject to the aforesaid obligation to give credit upon such original indebtedness for all payments made for principal or interest on such bonds so sold or disposed of or transferred, 369

when such payments are actually made and realized in cash, but not before.

AND WHEREAS the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, contemplate, in pursuance of the foregoing authorization and agreement in that behalf, or sell or dispose of or transfer the whole or portions, from time to time, of the said fourteen hundred consolidated first mortgage bonds for one thousand dollars each, now received by them 370
by way of additional collateral security for the said indebtedness as aforesaid, and to accompany such sale or disposal, or transfer of such bonds by transfer, to the holders or takers thereof respectively of beneficial interests in and to a trustee for their benefit of the legal title to a proportionate part of said original indebtedness of the said Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee, and of the liens and securities therefor, originally held by the State, and now vested by transfer in them as aforesaid. 371

NOW, THIS INDENTURE FURTHER WITNESSETH that the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, in consideration of the premises, and to the end aforesaid, and in further consideration of one dollar to them in hand paid by the party of the second part, at and before the ensealing and delivery of these presents, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, and with the consent and approval of the said The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, hereby given and attested by the ensealing 372 and delivery of these presents by the said Railroad Company, have assigned, transferred and set over, and do hereby assign, transfer and set over to the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, party of the second part hereto, as trustee hereunder, and its successors and assigns, the aforesaid indebtedness of the said The Memphis and Charleston Rail-

373 road Company, originally existing in favor of the State of Tennessee, and now vested in the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, by transfer from said State as aforesaid, amounting to the before-mentioned sum of one million seven hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents ($1,736,906.25), with the interest accrued and to accrue thereon from and after the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, and likewise the aforesaid statutory 374 lien, in nature of a mortgage, for the security of such indebtedness heretofore held by the State of Tennessee, and now vested by assignment in said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, and all the liens, securities, rights and remedies whatsoever, for the security and collection of such indebtedness and the interest thereon accrued and to accrue, which the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, now are vested with or entitled to, or at any time or times hereafter, but for 375 the execution and delivery of this instrument, would or might be entitled to have, hold or exercise, to be had and holden by the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company as trustee, under this indenture, for the equal pro rata security and benefit of all such persons and corporations, including the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, themselves, as from time to time shall be the holders of the before-mentioned fourteen hundred consolidated first mortgage bonds, numbered one to fourteen 376 hundred inclusive, and so as that beneficial or equitable interest in the said indebtedness originally existing in favor of the State, including the interest thereon accrued and to accrue, and in the lien which was held by the State therefor, and in the rights and remedies in respect thereof, may (as it is hereby declared and agreed by the parties of the first and third part respectively shall be the case) vest equitably in the holders from time to time of such four- 377 teen hundred collateral bonds, numbered one to fourteen hundred inclusive, including the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, themselves, in respect of so many of said fourteen hundred bonds as may remain in their hands untransferred by them, with pro rata equality in proportion to the respective amounts of such fourteen hundred bonds held by such parties respectively. And so that the holder of each of such fourteen hundred bonds

numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, shall 378 be entitled to a proportionate beneficial interest in such amount or proportion of the said indebtedness originally existing in favor of the State, with the interest there accrued and to accrue, and the said lien and rights held for the security thereof, corresponding with the principal and interest of such bond so held by him, and with the proper proportionate addition thereto, by reason of the principal and interest of such bond being payable in gold instead of currency; but the legal title to such 379 original indebtedness, with its attendant liens and securities remaining, nevertheless, vested in the said party of the second part hereto in trust for the holders of said fourteen hundred collateral bonds as aforesaid, and to the end and intent that, notwithstanding any sale or disposition or transfer which may be made by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, of such fourteen hundred collateral bonds, numbered one to fourteen hundred inclusive, the said debt and lien originally existing in favor of 380
the State, and preserved in full force, and assigned and transferred to the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as trustee hereunder as aforesaid, and the said bonds held as further collateral security therefor may, in substance and effect, be beneficially held by or for the account and benefit of the same persons, and that the parties may sub-

381 stantially, in respect of beneficial or equitable interests, be in like position as if the said original debt and lien and the said fourteen hundred bonds, held as collateral security therefor, had all continued to be held by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, or had been altogether assigned over by them to the same person or persons.

AND IT IS HEREBY FURTHER PROVIDED AND DECLARED, that the party of the second part hereto, as trustee as aforesaid, shall endorse upon said fourteen hundred consolidated bonds, numbers 1 (one) 382 to 1400 (fourteen hundred) inclusive, a certificate subscribed on behalf of the said party of the second part by its President, which shall be substantially in the following form, viz:

"It is hereby certified that Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as assignees from the State of Tennessee of a debt originally due by the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company to the State of 383 Tennessee, amounting as stated, including interest to the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, to seventeen hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents, and of the State's prior lien therefor upon said Company's railroad line in Tennessee and other property in that State, have, with said Railroad Company's consent, executed and delivered an instrument dated the twenty-first day of August, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, assigning said 384 original debt and lien to The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company as trustee, as an additional and special security for the fourteen hundred consolidated bonds of this issue, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, whereof this is one, reference to which instrument is hereby made for showing the securities and rights acquired thereunder by the holders of said fourteen hundred bonds.

"Dated the twenty-first day of August, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven. 385

"THE FARMERS' LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY,
"By R. G. ROLSTON, President."

And the said parties of the first part, with the consent of the said parties of the third part, do hereby covenant, declare and agree to and with the party of the second part, as trustee for the benefit of the holders from time to time of said fourteen hundred 386 bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, and likewise to and with all such persons as shall from time to time become transferees or holders of any of such fourteen hundred bonds, having endorsed thereon such certificate substantially in the form to the effect aforesaid, that all such holders from time to time of any of such fourteen hundred bonds having such certificate endorsed thereon shall be possessed of and entitled to such proportional beneficial or equitable interest as is hereinbefore 387 declared or provided for in the said debt originally due from the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee, and the interest accrued or to accrue thereon, and in the said lien originally held by the State therefor, and in the rights, liens and securities in respect thereof transferred by the State to Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, and hereby vested in the party of the second part as trustee as aforesaid, as likewise to all others their equitable rights as 388 beneficiaries of the trust created by this indenture.

AND inasmuch as under the terms and conditions of this instrument, and under and in virtue of the terms and conditions of the mortgage or deed of trust securing the issue of consolidated first mortgage bonds whereof said fourteen hundred bonds from one to fourteen hundred inclusive form part,

389 as by reference to that mortgage or deed of trust will appear, there will exist a double lien and security for substantially the same amount or debt in favor of the holders of said debt and lien originally held by the said State of Tennessee, and assigned over to Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, and now transferred to the party of the second part in trust as aforesaid, and of the holders of the said fourteen hundred bonds numbered from one to fourteen hundred inclusive,
390 held as further collateral security therefor, and which double lien, as to a part thereof, will exist upon the same subject matter, namely, the said railroad in Tennessee, with its appurtenances and equipments, and the other property in that State subject to the State lien, although, as to other portions of the property covered by the said consolidated mortgage, situate in the States of Alabama and Mississippi respectively, the said State lien now vested in Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior,
391 as aforesaid, has no application or operation. Now, it is hereby declared, provided, granted and agreed by and between all the parties hereto, in conformity with the provisions and declarations in that behalf contained in the said consolidated mortgage securing the issue of bonds, whereof the said fourteen hundred bonds numbered from one to fourteen hundred inclusive form part, that such double lien and security is intended to and shall exist, and that neither of such liens or securities shall prejudice the efficacy 392 of the other; and that the State lien held by assignment as aforesaid, and now vested in the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company as trustee under this indenture, and for the uses and purposes thereof may be enforced, and all the rights and remedies in respect thereof may be held and had as fully and completely and effectually as if the lien and security in virtue of the holding of such fourteen hundred bonds as further collateral security as aforesaid did 393 not exist, and that the holders from time to time of such fourteen hundred bonds so transferred by way of further collateral security for such original debt shall be entitled, as fully and completely and effectually as if the said original lien and security for the original debt, as further security for which said fourteen hundred bonds are transferred, did not exist, to their equal pro rata share and proportion in like manner with the holders of other bonds, numbers 1401 (fourteen hundred and one) to 4,700 394 (four thousand seven hundred) inclusive, to be issued under and secured by the said consolidated mortgage, or such of said other bonds as may from time to time be outstanding, of the benefit of all the securities and liens provided by the said consolidated mortgage, and of the proceeds and fruits thereof, and of any foreclosure or enforcement of the same, including as well the mortgaged premises (situate in Alabama and Mississippi) as the other mortgaged premises, save and except that if, prior to making 395 apportionment and distribution between the holders of the bonds secured by the said consolidated mortgage of the net proceeds of any foreclosure, or other legal enforcement thereof, any net sum shall have been actually collected and realized in cash by means of legal enforcement of the said lien originally held by the State of Tennessee and assigned over to Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, and now vested in the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as trustee under this in- 396 denture, by giving proper credit wherefor, after first deducting therefrom all proper expenses and charges incurred in respect of the proceedings for such enforcement and collection, including the compensation of the said party of the second part as trustee in respect thereof, the then unpaid amount of said indebtedness of the Railroad Company

397 originally existing in favor of the State, and by it transferred over as aforesaid, and as collateral security for which said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, shall be reduced below the principal of such fourteen hundred bonds, and the interest thereon accrued and unpaid at the time of such apportionment and distribution, having due regard to the circumstance that said bonds are payable in gold, and therefore reducing the amount 398 of such net credit or deduction realized in legal tender currency to the value thereof in gold when collected and realized, then and in such case, for the purpose of making such apportionment and distribution between the respective bondholders secured under said consolidated mortgage of the net proceeds of such foreclosure or other legal enforcement of said consolidated mortgage, the said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, instead of being reckoned at their face 399 value, with their accrued and unpaid interest, shall be reckoned as being only for an amount equal to such reduced amount, computed as aforesaid, remaining unpaid at the time of such apportionment and distribution upon the said indebtedness of said railroad company originally existing in favor of the State of Tennessee, and by it transferred over as aforesaid, and for which the said fourteen hundred bonds shall stand as security as aforesaid, and such apportionment and distribution between such fourteen 400 hundred bonds and the other outstanding bonds secured by the said consolidated mortgage shall be made accordingly, and it being always understood and hereby agreed and provided, that the double lien and security aforesaid will not and shall not be allowed so to operate as to produce an actual double payment or satisfaction, but that all payments actually received and realized in money by means of either security will and shall, to the extent of such 401 actual payments realized, go in reduction of such original debt and of said collateral bonds held as security therefor, but making the proper allowance for difference between gold and currency as aforesaid.

And, in consideration of the addition collateral security now given to them as aforesaid, and as part of the bargain and arrangement between the said
Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, and the 402
Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, in respect of the premises which is evidenced by this Indenture, the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, do hereby consent and agree to and with the said, the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, that they will eventually reduce the amount of their said claims and demands against said railroad company, and the lien and security therefor under the said assignment and transfer from the State of Tennessee to them, so that when 403
they or their assigns shall have actually received and realized in cash by net payments, as on account of the said present amount of the said indebtedness of one million seven hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents ($1,736,906.25), in United States legal tender currency, due July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, a sum equal to fourteen hundred thousand dollars ($1,400,000) in United States
gold coin, reducing currency realizations or pay- 404
ments to gold values as elsewhere provided, and when they or their assigns shall have actually received and realized in cash by net payments, on account of interest accruing at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July, upon the said currency indebtedness of one million seven hundred

405 and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents ($1,736,906.25) a sum equal to seven per cent. per annum in United States gold coin, from the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July, upon such sum of fourteen hundred thousand dollars ($1,400,000) gold, until payment and realization in cash as aforesaid of that principal sum, reducing currency realizations or payments to gold values as 406 elsewhere provided, the residue of such currency indebtedness of seventeen hundred and thirty-six thousand nine hundred and six dollars and twenty-five cents ($1,736,906.25), and of the interest accruing thereon, from and after July first, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, shall be thereupon given up, released and discharged to said railroad company.

Provided however, and it is understood as a condition thereof, that the said the Memphis and 407 Charleston Railroad Company shall, as they hereby agree they will, bear, pay, and discharge all the expenses and charges attendant upon the collection and receipt of such moneys on account of the principal and interest (or either) of such indebteduess originally existing in favor of the State, and of all legal and other proceedings had or taken for the recovery thereof, including the compensation of the party of the second part, as Trustee, in respect of such collec-408 tion, receipt, and legal and other procoedings.

And it is agreed that this stipulation on the part of said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, shall bind their representatives and assigns, including the said The Farmers' Loan & Trust Company, as assignee of such debt in trust for the purpose of this Indenture, whereunto the said The Farmers'

Loan and Trust Company, as such Trustee, does hereby assent. 409

It is further understood and agreed, that for the purpose of this stipulation and agreement all cash payments received and realized, for principal or interest, upon such fourteen hundred bonds, numbered from one to fourteen hundred inclusive, or any of them, by parties holding such bonds, by or under transfer from said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, shall be of like legal effect as if the said moneys were received by said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, them- 410 selves.

And it is hereby further provided, declared, granted and agreed that all net sums or amounts which shall be received or in anywise realized by the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as Trustees under this Indenture, for or in respect of, or from or by reason of the indebtedness of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, originally existing in favor of the said State 411 of Tennessee, and hereby assigned to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company as Trustees as aforesaid, or by means of enforcement in any form of the said statutory lien in the nature of a mortgage or of any other liens or securities for such indebtedness held by the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company as Trustees under this Indenture, shall, after first deducting therefrom all proper expenses and charges in the premises, including the compensation of the Trustee in respect thereof, be divided with pro rata 412 equality among all and singular the holders of the said fourteen hundred bonds issued under and secured by the said consolidated mortgage, and numbered from one to fourteen hundred inclusive, in proportion to the amounts of principal and interest due or owing at the time being upon such 413 fourteen hundred bonds; and it being understood and agreed that the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, shall be entitled to participate therein for or in respect of such of the said fourteen hundred bonds as they may retain in their own hands unsold or undisposed of in like manner as holders of any of such bonds under the transfer thereof from them; and it being further understood that the holders of such fourteen hundred bonds are not to receive in the whole a greater sum than the amounts 414 in gold of the principal and interest of their bonds, reducing the currency realizations or credits or payments to the gold values thereof at the time of realization or payment as aforesaid.

And the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin,
Junior, with the assent and concurrence of the said
The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, which is hereby given, do hereby authorize and empower the said The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company 415 as Trustee as aforesaid in any and every case of the occurrence of such default on the part of said railroad company or of the existence otherwise of such circumstances as to authorize any proceedings either at law or in equity, or by entry into possession and receipt of income or otherwise howsoever, for the enforcement of the lien which was originally held by the State of Tennessee for security of the aforesaid indebtedness of the said railroad company to the State, and which was transferred and assigned 416 by the State to said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, as aforesaid, or for the collecting or securing of such indebtedness and the interest thereon accrued or to accrue, or either such principal or interest or any part thereof, to take any and all such proceedings either at law or in equity, or by entry into possession and receipt of income or otherwise howsoever, for any and all of the purposes and ends aforesaid, either in the name and as the attorneys 417 of the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, or otherwise as may be deemed expedient, and to do all acts and things needful or proper to such ends.

AND IT IS HEREBY PROVIDED, DECLARED AND AGREED that the said the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, in case it shall be called upon to take any legal or other steps or proceedings for the enforcement of the lien of for collection of the said 418 indebtedness hereby assigned to it, shall be entitled to receive just and proper compensation for all the services it shall render in and about such steps or proceedings, as well as for any other services it may properly render in the performance of its duties as such Trustee, as also indemnity for its proper disbursement in the premises, which compensation and indemnity shall be borne and paid by the said Railroad Company, and if not so paid by the said Railroad Company directly may be deducted from the 419
sums collected or received by it as such Trustee, in the accounting for such moneys and application thereof to the purposes of this trust. The Trustee, however, shall not be compelled to commence such foreclosure proceedings until the parties requesting the same shall have furnished the said Trustee with satisfactory indemnity for all costs and charges.

AND IT IS FURTHER PROVIDED, DECLARED AND AGREED that in case of a vacancy at any time occurring in the Trusteeship of the party of the 420
second part hereunder or its successor or successors, either by resignation duly accepted by a majority in amount of said bondholders who are beneficiaries of the trust, removal, death or otherwise howsoever, such vacancy may be filled by the concurrent action in writing under seal of a majority in amount of the holders of said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers

421 one to fourteen hundred inclusive, who are the beneficiaries of the trust; and that the party of the second part or any of its successors as Trustee thereunder, howsoever appointed, may at any time be removed from the trust by concurrent action in writing under seal of a majority in amount of the holders of the said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, and in default of filling a vacancy by such majority in amount of such bondholders the same may be filled 422 by the appointment of a new Trustee or Trustees by the Supreme Court of the State of New York, in the City of New York, upon appropriate proceedings for the purpose, which Trustee so appointed shall nevertheless, in like manner with any other Trustee hereunder, be subject to removal by a majority in interest of the bondholders as aforesaid, and further that in the filling of a vacancy in the Trusteeship there may be either one or two Trustees appointed to fill the vacancy, and either another 423 corporation having legal capacity for the trust or one or two individual Trustees may be appointed to fill any vacancy, and that all succeeding Trustees duly appointed shall be vested with the trust and all the estates, rights, interests, powers and duties vested in the said party of the second part as Trustee hereunder in like manner and with like effect as the original Trustee.

AND INASMUCH as there are lands in the City of 424 Memphis which were procured or intended for use as depot grounds, or for sites for depots, shops or other buildings, now belonging to the said The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, and subject to the aforesaid lien originally existing in favor of the State of Tennessee, and assigned to Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, and now assigned to the party of the second part hereto

as Trustee hereunder, and which are partly now in 425 use for such purposes and partly not so in use, and which lands are of much greater extent and value than is required for the uses of the said railroad, and may be advantageously sold and disposed of in aid of the general funds of the said Railroad Company, now it is hereby declared, granted, provided and agreed, that in case the said Railroad Company shall sell, or contract to sell, any of such lands in the City of Memphis which it shall decide no longer to use for the purposes of its said railroad, or the 426 operation thereof, and shall require to have released from the lien held by the party of the second part, or its successors, as Trustee under this indenture, in order to give a title to the purchaser thereof free from such lien, it shall be competent and lawful for the said party of the second part, or its successor or successors, as trustee hereunder, and it and they are hereby authorized and empowered to release by proper deed or deeds, or instruments in the law for the purpose, from the 427 aforesaid lien originally existing in favor of the State of Tennessee, and vested by assignment in the party of the second part hereto as trustee as aforesaid, and from any and all lien thereon of the said party of the second part, or its successor or successors, as trustee hereunder, any and from time to time all such lands in the City of Memphis so disused for the purposes of said railroad, and so sold or disposed of by said railroad company; Provided always, that if at the time of such release the said 428
Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, or either of them, shall be living and not absent from the United States, and not mentally incapacitated, they or one of them so living, and not absent nor incapacitated, must, as a condition of the efficacy of such release, assent in writing to the giving thereof, which assent may be by writing in the release; and

429 provided further, that in case of the sale and release as aforesaid of any of such lands in Memphis so disused, if any other lands shall be procured by said railroad company to be used in place thereof, or substitution therefor, for depot grounds or sites for buildings, or other purposes of such railroad, or its operating, such substituted lands shall be subject to the like lien in favor of the said party of the second part, or its successors or successor, as trustee hereunder, as were such released lands. And the 430 said railroad company shall, by proper deed or instrument, confirm and assure, and, if need be, execute such lien upon such substituted lands, and upon all buildings and other improvements placed thereon, to and in favor of the said party of the second part, as trustee hereunder, or its successor or successors.

And inasmuch as the party of the second part hereto is trustee under the before-mentioned con-
431 solidated mortgage for the benefit of the holders of all the said consolidated bonds, numbers one to four thousand seven hundred inclusive, as well as trustee under this Indenture in respect of the special trust created, and special and additional security thereby given for the special and separate benefit of the holders of said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, it is hereby declared and agreed, in conformity with a provision in that regard contained in said consolidated mort-432 gage, that such circumstances of the said the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company being likewise trustee under the said consolidated mortgage, shall in no wise detract from, affect or impair the special and exclusive rights and securities of the holders of said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, held by them through the said trusteeship of the said party of the second part, under this Indenture, for their separate use 433 and benefit as aforesaid.

AND THIS INDENTURE FURTHER WITNESSETH that the said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, in consideration of the premises, do hereby for themselves and their representatives covenant and agree to and with the said party of the second part, as trustee under this Indenture, and for the uses and purposes thereof, and to and with all such persons and corporations as shall from time to time become or be lawful owners or holders of any of the before 434
mentioned fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, having endorsed thereon such certificate of the party of the second part by its President, as is above provided for, that they said Adrian Iselin and Adrian Iselin, Junior, and their representatives, shall and will at any time, and all times hereafter, upon reasonable request therefor, and at the expense of the party requesting the same, make, do and execute all such further and other acts, deeds, conveyances or assurances, as 435
under the advice of competent counsel shall be deemed necessary or advisable, in order to confirm, assure and make effectual the assignment and transfer hereinbefore contained or intended to be made to the party of the second part as trustee for the benefit and security of the holders of said fourteen hundred bonds, numbers one to fourteen hundred inclusive, in accordance with the true intent and meaning hereof, to effectuate the objects and purposes of this Indenture. 436

IT IS HEREBY FURTHER PROVIDED, DECLARED AND AGREED that in the case of the party of the second part, trustee hereunder, entering upon and taking possession of the said Railroad and other property in the State of Tennessee, covered by the said lien originally held by the State, and hereby assign to

437 the party of the second part, as trustee hereunder, in consequence of default made by said Railroad Company, entitling it so to do, it shall be lawful and competent for such trustee to employ an agent or agents for the performance of any such duties, acts and things in and about taking and maintaining such possession, and using, operating, maintaining and managing the said Railroad, and collecting the income, earnings and profits thereof, and performing the other duties of the trust created 438 hereby, as such trustee may deem fit, and for the performance of any other acts in and about such possession and management, the performance wherof can be properly delegated to an agent; and that such trustee, provided it shall have exercised reasonable prudence and care in the selection and employment of such agent or agents for any of such purposes, shall not be responsible for losses or damages in the premises caused by the act, neglect or default of such agent or agents. But this
439 provision is not intended, and shall not be so construed as to exempt the trustee in case of sale being made of the said premises covered by the lien in enforcement of such lien, from due responsibility to the bondholders hereby secured for the due application of the proceeds of such sale. received either by the trustee or by any agent or agents whom it may see fit to employ to receive such proceeds of sale.

440 And the said the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, Trustee hereunder, and its successors are hereby released from executing the bond required from trustees by the laws of Tennessee and from giving any bond or security as trustee or trustees under this Indenture which may or might otherwise be required by the laws of either of the States of Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama.

And said party of the second part hereby accepts the trust hereby created and agrees to perform the duties thereof. 441

In WITNESS WHEREOF, the said parties of the first part have hereto set their hands and seals, and the party of the second part, in pursuance of a resolution of its Board of Directors, hath hereunto affixed its corporate seal and caused the same to be attested by its President.

And the said party of the third part, in pursuance of a resolution of its Board of Directors, have hereunto affixed its corporate seal and caused the same to be attested by its President and Secretary the day and year first above written. 442

Deposition of Morris K. Jessup.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, 1

WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the MEMPHIS & CHARLESTON R. R. Co.

Testimony and proofs for final hearing, taken on the part of the respondents in the above-entitled suit, under and pursuant to the 67th Rule in Equity, as amended, before William H. DeLancey, Special Examiner, duly appointed herein. 3

52 Broadway,
New York, Feb. 21, 1880.

Present—Mr. W. Y. C. HUMES,
for Respondents, 4

Mr E. L. ANDREWS,
for Complainants.

5 Morris K. Jessup, a witness, produced on the part of the respondents, being first duly cautioned and sworn in the above-entitled suit to testify the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, deposes and says:

(Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.)

Direct examination by Mr. Humes:

6 1 Q. What is your residence and business and how long have you so resided and done business?

A. My residence is New York city, and my business that of a banker, and I have been in business for twenty-five years.

2 Q. Were you a purchaser of substitution railroad bonds of any railroad in Tennessee; if yea, when did you buy them, what amounts, and at what price, and what did you pay for them?

A. I bought substitution bonds of the Memphis 7 and Charleston Railroad Company. I can't give the exact date. I think about three years ago. I bought $50,000. I think the price was about 75. I paid in cash.

3 Q. When you bought them did you or not have any information of any claim by the holders of the State bonds of Tennessee that they had a lien on the road, or did you buy them in the confident belief that these substitution bonds carried and were supported by the lien from the State?

8 A. I bought these bonds with the assurance that they took the place of the State lien on the road, and that all the lien of the State on this road was subrogated to these bonds, and it was that fact that induced me to take these bonds at that price at that time.

4 Q. What was your information as to the holders of Tennessee State bonds, and their overdue unpaid coupons?

A. I had no particular information on that point. 9

5 Q. Did you or not know or have the information that the State of Tennessee during the war and for a number of years after the war failed to pay the interest coupons on her State bonds, and the holders had funded them into new State bonds under the acts of 1865, 1868 and 1873?

A. I knew the general fact that the State of Tennessee had defaulted on her coupons about the time stated, and that the same had been funded into new bonds. 10

Direct examination closed.

Cross examination by MR. ANDREWS.

6 x Q. From whom did you have the assurance that the bonds you were about purchasing were entitled to the Tennessee lien?

A. From Mr. R. T. Wilson; and then I called upon Mr. Southmayd.

7 x Q. What did you discuss with Mr. Southmayd? 11

A. I don't remember now; I knew that he had examined the question of the legality of this matter and the title to the lien.

8 x Q. What did R. T. Wilson say?

A. I can't tell; all I know is the impression I received as to the legality of the bonds; I cannot go into the details; I do not remember them.

9 x Q. Did R. T. Wilson tell you (or show to you) an opinion of Judges Davies and Davis to the effect that those bonds did not have a lien on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, but that the lien belonged to Tennessee State bonds? 12

A. I never saw such an opinion, at least I don't remember it; Wilson (not that I remember of) never told me of that opinion.

10 x Q. Did you ever hear of any litigation con-

13 cerning this matter, and what did you hear, if anything?

A. I heard, in a general way, that the Tennessee bondholders claimed the lien on the Tennesse Railroad, but this was after I purchased the bonds.

11 x Q. When and at what price did you sell the bonds which you have stated you did sell?

A. I sold the bonds September 29, 1877, at 85 and interest.

14 Re-direct by Mr. HUMES:

12 Q. The Davies and Davis opinion in the cross-examination referred to was uttered early in 1870; do you not know the fact that no State bondholder from 1870 to 1878 ever did, under the influence of that celebrated opinion, claim or demand the payment of a single interest coupon of a Tennessee State bond from any railroad company in Tennessee, nor institute any legal proceeding looking toward such a purpose?

15 A. I remember nothing on the subject.

Re-cross by Mr. ANDREWS:

13 x Q. Was not Henry E. Davies shortly before that time the chief judge of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, and was not Noah Davis shortly before that time a Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York?

A. I cannot say.

THE MEMPHIS & CHARLESTON R. R. Co. et al. 2

Testimony and proofs for final hearing on the part of the respondents in the above-entitled suit, taken under and pursuant to the 67th Rule in Equity, as amended before William H. DeLancey, Special Examiner, duly appointed herein. 3

NEW YORK, March 8, 1880.

Present—MR. CHAS. H. TWEED, for Respondents.
MR. E. L. ANDREWS, for Compl't's.

THOMAS DENNY, a witness produced on the part of the respondents herein, being first duly cautioned and sworn in the above-entitled suit to testify 4 the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, deposes and says:

(Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.)

5 Direct-examination by Mr. Tweed :

1 Q. Please state your name, age, residence and occupation ?

A. Thomas Denny; aged 46; I reside in New York City, and am a banker and broker.

2 Q. Are you a member of New York Stock Exchange ?

A. I am.

3 Q. How long have you been a member of the 6 Stock Exchange ?

A. Since 1858 or '59.

4 Q. Were you before that time also employed as clerk in the same business ?

A. I was.

5 Q. During the period of your membership of the N. Y. Stock Exchange and your clerkship anterior thereto, have you been familiar with the manner of conducting transactions on the Exchange in Tennessee Bonds ?

7 A. Yes.

6 Q. Please state how such dealings were conducted before the war, and into what classes Tennessee State Bonds were then divided ?

A. They were bought and sold by open call at the Stock Exchange, and the classes into which they were divided were Tennessee 5s and Tennessee 6s.

7 Q. How were the contracts made between members of the Exchange in regard to those bonds entered into, and how were they recorded ?

8 A. Contracts were made by the members between themselves orally, and such as they desired were recorded by the secretary on his books kept for that special purpose.

8 Q. Did those contracts specify the object for which the bonds dealt in were issued, or the distinctive numbers of the bonds to be delivered under the contracts ?

A. The contracts did not state the object or numbers, but simply to the class, whether 6s or 5s. '9 9 Q. So that a person purchasing Tennessee 5s or Tennessee 6s, at the Stock Exchange, would not, at the time of making the purchase, nor until delivery was made under the contract, know the distinctive numbers of the bonds which he was to receive thereunder ?

A. He would only know until delivery that he was to receive so many thousand dollars of 6s or 5s, without any other distinctive circumstances. No 10 distinction was made on account of the objects for which bonds were issued by the State.

10 Q. What change has taken place since the war in the classification at the Stock Exchange of Tennessee State Bonds ?

A. Since the war the Tennessee 6s have been divided into Tennessee "olds," being the bonds issued before the war; Tennessee "new," being the bonds issued since the war, and Tennessee "new series," being the bonds issued for funding purposes. 11

11 Q. In other respects has the manner of dealing in these bonds at the Stock Exchange continued the same to the present time.

A. It continues the same except that the secretary's record is dispensed with, and in time contracts, written contracts, are exchanged between the members.

12 Q. In the oral dealings or the written contracts between the members is there any specification of the objects for which the bonds dealt in were issued 12 by the State, or the distinctive numbers of the bonds to be delivered ?

A. There is not.

13 Q. So that a broker does not know until delivery is actually made what bonds of the classes "Old," "New" and "New Series" he will receive under his contract ?

13 A. He knows the class, but neither numbers nor object for which the bond was issued.

14 Q. Did you ever know or hear of any contracts being made in the Exchange for the purchase or sale of Tennessee State bonds bearing any particular distinctive numbers, or issued for any particular purpose?

A. No such contracts were ever made on the Exchange.

15 Q. What proportion of the Tennessee State 14 bonds which are bought and sold in New York are bought and sold in the New York Stock Exchange?

A. According to my knowledge they were almost exclusively bought and sold at the Stock Exchange.

16 Q. Did you ever hear of any Tennessee State bond being bought or sold in or out of the Stock Exchange as carrying a lien on any railroad in Tennessee to which the bond was loaned.

15 A. I never have.

17 Q. Have you dealt extensively in Tennessee State bonds since you have been a member of the Stock Exchange?

A. I have.

Deposition of James P. Wallace. 1

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES,

WESTERN DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co., 2

Testimony and proofs for final hearing on the part of the Respondents, taken under and pursuant to the 67th Rule in Equity, as amended, before Willian H. DeLancey, Special Examiner, duly appointed herein. 3

NEW YORK, March 9th, 1880.

Present—Mr. CHAS. H. TWEED, for Respd'ts; 4
Mr. E. L. ANDREWS, for Compl'ts.

JAMES P. WALLACE, a witness produced on the part of the respondents herein, being first duly

5 cautioned and sworn in the above-entitled suit, to testify the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, deposes and says:

(Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.)

Direct Examination by Mr. Tweed:

1 Q. Please state your name, age, residence and occupation?

6 A. James P. Wallace; aged 63; I reside in Brooklyn; I am President of the N. Y. Guaranty and Indemnity Co.

2 Q. How long have you been President of that Company?

A. Since 1870 I think, previous to that I was Vice-President from the organization in 1865.

3 Q. What was the general character of the business carried on by the Guaranty and Indemnity Co.?

7 A. Loaning money on securities and merchandise.

4 Q. In the course of the dealings of that Company did it lend money to large amounts upon Tennessee State bonds?

A. We did so to large amounts and at various times extending through almost all the period of business from 1865 to 1875, when we withdrew from the business of making any loans.

5 Q. In the course of the dealings of the Guarantee & Indemnity Co. in Tennessee State bonds 8 was any discrimination ever made based upon the objects for which the bonds were issued by the State, whether for railroads, banks, turnpikes, the Capitol, Hermitage or the Agricultural Bureau, or did you ever inquire as to which of these objects any bonds presented to you were issued for?

A. After we commenced business, finding that the Tennessee bonds offered to us were of various classes, I went to the Bond Committee of the Stock 9 Exchange and to the Secretary of that Committee for information as to what bonds were a good delivery at the Stock Exchange. The information I obtained led me to consider all the old bonds, bonds issued before the war which were not mutilated by endorsements written upon them, or otherwise mutilated, were a good delivery without respect to the objects for which they had been issued, on a sale of "Old Bonds," and that all Tennessee State bonds issued after the war were a good delivery on 10 a sale of "New bonds" without respect to the object for which they had been issued. And in our receiving Tennessee State bonds as collateral for loans we acted under that information, and we made no discrimination or enquiry in respect to the object for which the bonds had been issued.

6 Q. You have spoken of "endorsements" written upon certain old State bonds; please state the facts in respect to such endorsements.

A. The endorsements were to the effect that the 11 bond was the property of some person or corporation.
Something like a notice to the public that the bond belonged to some particular person. I understood these endorsed bonds were not a good delivery even if there was a subsequent endorsement to bearer, and we therefore rejected them.

7 Q. Did the Guaranty and Indemnity Company, in or about 1870, become the purchasers of any of the substitution bonds issued by the Nashville & Decatur
R. R. Co? 12

A. In December, 1870, the New York Guaranty and Indemnity Company jointly with Drexel, Winthrop & Co., A. Iselin & Co., and R. T. Wilson & Co., agreed to purchase about $1,600,000 of such bonds, participating in the purchase to the extent of one fourth each, and on the 3d of May, 1871, we 13 received our share of such bonds, and paid for them.

8 Q. At the time that your company became purchasers of these bonds had you any knowledge of any claim of any holders of bonds issued by the State of Tennessee, and loaned to the Nashville & Decatur R. R. Co., or its predecessors, that they had any lien or claim upon the property of that company or its predecessors?

A. We had not.

14 9 Q. Did your company, in connection with Drexel, Winthrop & Co., issue the advertisement for the sale of these bonds now shown you?

A. Yes, we did. It is as follows, and it appeared in the leading papers in New York and in a Brooklyn paper; and also a circular:

December 31, 1870.

FINANCIAL.

SEVEN PER CENT. FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS

15 OF THE

NASHVILLE AND DECATUR RAILROAD.

The mortgage is for $2,100,000, or only $17,500 per mile, on an old and completed road, showing an established business, from local traffic, mainly more than sufficient to pay its interest as it becomes due, with prospects of greatly enlarged receipts from new connections which are now in progress.

This mortgage was created for the sole purpose of paying a debt due to the State of Tennessee, on terms which would reduce the liability of the road about $600,000.

Of the bonds issued under said mortgage $200,000 are held in escrow 16 to abide settlement of a claim of the United States; $300,000 have been purchased by the parties in interest, and the balance of $1,600,000 are offered for sale on favorable terms; the security, in the judgment of the undersigned, being such as to entitle them to perfect confidence.

Drexel, Winthrop & Co.,
18 Wall Street.
New York Guaranty and Indemnity Co.,
52 Broadway and Exchange Court.

10 Q. Was there endorsed upon those bonds a 17 certificate of the Comptroller of the State of Tennessee in the form now shown to you?

A. Yes. This is the certificate:

> "I certify that the Nashville & Decatur Rail> "road Company has paid off the debt to the > "State of Tennessee, which was created by > "the loans of the bonds of said State, and
> "for interest thereon, and that this bond is > "secured by a first mortgage, and is issued 18
> "under authority of law, and takes the place
> "of the lien which was held by the State.
>
> "ED. R. PENNEBAKER,
> "Comptroller of the State of Tennessee.
> "By P. C. CALHOUN, Prest. Agent."

11 Q. If the holders of any of the bonds of the State of Tennessee which had been loaned to the Nashville & Decatur R. R. Co., or its predecessors had asserted any lien or claim upon the property of 19 that company by virtue of those bonds, would you have made the purchase?

A. If we had known of any such claim, we certainly would not, nor would we have recommended them nor inserted the advertisement produced.

12 Q. Did any of the directors, or persons connected with your company become purchasers of any of those bonds?

A. Yes, sir. I took some myself, and I think Wm. A. Low, S. D. Babcock, Wm. Allen Butler 20 and Geo. W. Parson purchased some of them.

Present—Mr. CHAS. H. TWEED, for respondents.
Mr. E. L. ANDREWS, for complainants.

5 James A. Roosevelt, a witness produced upon the part of the respondents in the above-entitled suit being first duly cautioned and sworn therein, to testify the truth the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, deposes and says:

(Deposition taken subject to all legal objections of both parties.)

Direct-examination:

6 1 Q. Please state your name, age, residence and occupation?

A. James A. Roosevelt; fifty-four years of age; reside in New York city, and am a banker.

2 Q. How long have you been acquainted with the markets of New York in respect of the securities dealt in, in such markets?

A. More than thirty years; during which time I have been carrying on the business of merchant and banker in New York.

7 3 Q. After the settlement made by the East Tennessee, Va. & Ga. R. R. Co. with respect to its indebtedness to the State of Tennessee, did you become the purchaser for yourself or others of any of the substitution first mortgage bonds of that company which were issued upon such settlement?

A. Yes; I did both individually, and for other parties for whom I had money to invest.

4 Q. After that settlement was made, did you become a purchaser of any of the shares of stock of the 8 East Tennessee, Va. & Ga. R. R. Co.?

A. I did, in connection with my brother, to the extent of $78,000.

5 Q. At the time of the purchase of those bonds or that stock had you ever heard of any claim being asserted by any of the holders of bonds of the State of Tennessee that these bonds were liens upon the roads to which the bonds were loaned by the State?

A. With regard to the stock I had no information 9 of any such claim whatever; with regard to the great majority of the bonds I can say the same thing; I may have purchased recently a few bonds since I heard of this suit.

6 Q. Did you also become the purchaser of any of the first mortgage substitution bonds of the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co., which were secured by the transfer of the State lien to A. Iselin & Co., and by them to the Farmer's Loan & Trust Co.?

A. I have purchased and hold a large number of 10 those bonds at the present time.

7 Q. Did you consider the transfer of the State lien as security for those Memphis & Charleston bonds a material element in respect of the value of those bonds?

A. Most assuredly.

8 Q. At the time when you purchased those bonds had you heard of any claim being asserted that any of the holders of the bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to Railroads had any lien upon those 11
Railroads to which those bonds were loaned?

A. I never heard of any such claim being made.

9 Q. Did you ever hear of any of the bonds of the State of Tennessee being bought or sold as carrying any lien in favor of the bondholders upon the Railroads to which those bonds had been loaned?

A. No; I never had heard of any sales being made in which it was set up that there was any claim upon the railroads; I never heard of any such claim being made until after the commencement of this suit. 12

Deposition of J. W. Thomas.

Witness on behalf of the defendant in the above- 1 entitled causes.

The said witness, being first by me sworn and cautioned, deposes and says:

My name is J. W. Thomas. Have been engaged in the railroad service 21 years. Am 49 years old, and reside in Nashville, Tennessee, and am now and have been since 1868 the Superintendent of the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad Company. W.
P. Innis and D. B. Cliffe were Receivers, appointed 2
by the State, of the Nashville & Northwestern Railroad Company, and D. E. Davenport was Receiver of the Winchester & Alabama, and of the McMinnville & Manchester Railroad Companies in the order named. Said appointments were made since the war. The Nashville & Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway have purchased the three roads named.
The Nashville and Northwestern was purchased at a sale of the Chancery Court at Nashville, and the McMinnville & Manchester road and the Winchester 3 & Alabama Railroads were purchased from the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company. The last-named company purchased the said roads from a company of citizens along the several roads, who had purchased at Chancery sale.

The Nashville Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway gave $2,400,000 in Tennessee bonds for the Nashville & Northwestern Railroad, and gave the Memphis & Charleston R. R. Co. $320,000 in our six per cent. bonds for the Winchester & Alabama 4 and the McMinnville & Manchester Railroads.

The sum paid for the last two mentioned roads was in the bonds of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway, secured by mortgage liens on the two roads purchased. A printed copy of the mortgage is here filed, marked exhibit "A," and referred to and made a part of my evidence in these causes. These several sums have been paid and title given.

Exhibit X to the answer of defendant shows the terms of sale and decree of confirmation, and exhibit "Y," here filed and made a part hereof of the contract of purchase and deed to McMinnville & Manchester, and Winchester & Alabama Railroads.

After the purchase, and in 1872, the two roads, the Nashville & Chattanooga and the Nashville & Northwestern Railroads were consolidated under the name of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway. The consolidated road, the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway, issued the first mortgage consolidated bonds to the amount of $6,800,000, giving a lien on the entire line from Chattanooga to Hickman, Ky., of which exhibit Z, here filed and made a part hereof, is a true copy. The originals of these several mortgages are in the hands of the Trustee in New York. The Nashville & Chattanooga and Nashville & Northwestern, together with their branches, is 341 miles long. The Nashville & Northwestern is 170 miles long, the Nashville & Chattanooga, from Nashville to Chattanooga, is 151 miles, the branch to Shelbyville is 8 miles, and from Bridgeport to Jasper 12 miles, making, as above stated, 341 miles.

The first 35 4-10 miles of the Nashville & Northwestern Railroad, from its western terminus extends from Hickman, Ky., to Dresden, Tenn. The 10 miles, commencing at Nashville, of the eastern division, extends from Nashville to Vaughn's Gap, and the next section, commencing at Vaughn's Gap, extends to Pegram, ten miles. The next section, 9 commencing at Dresden and extending 13½ miles, would bring it near McKenzie. And the next section of 16½ miles from that point, extends to about 3 miles east of Huntingdon. The first section of 10 miles east of the Tennessee River extends from Johnsonville to within two miles of Waverly.

These 12 miles, commencing at Pegram, would extend two miles west of White Bluffs. Commencing 3 miles east of Huntingdon, 13 miles would bring us to within 5 miles of Camden, and then 10 12 miles therefrom would bring us to Johnsville.
The Nashville & Chattanooga Railway Company took possession of the Nashville & Northwestern Railroad under a lease 1st September, 1878. We operated under the lease 16 months, until 1st January, 1870.

I herewith file a true copy of said lease and make it a part of my deposition, marked Exhibit No. 1.

Under this lease the expenditures exceeded the receipts by $13,328.06. 11

We re-leased the said road from the State from January, 1870, to July, 1871. Under this lease the expenditures exceeded the receipts by $377,079.23.
The first year after the purchase we expended in repairs and betterments on said road the sum of $476,937.25 over above gross receipts. The road was in a wretched condition and unsafe to run trains over;
the road was leased from the Receiver, Cliffe

At the close of the war the McMinnville & Manchester Railroad had been stripped of all its iron 12 rails. The Government had taken them. The Winchester & Alabama had very little, if any, iron rails, having been also taken by the Government, and had no rolling stock. The McMinnville & Manchester Railroad had two old engines; the other rolling stock was destroyed down South, except one or two old box cars.

13 The Nashville & Northwestern Railroad had, when we took charge of it under our first lease, seven old engines and no other rolling stock of any consequence, not including the rolling stock purchased from the Government and paid for by the Nashville & Chattanooga R.R. Co.

I think we paid more than the N. & N. W. R.R. was worth, and the operation of the road has not paid the interest on the investment By economical management we may possibly make running 14 expenses and six per cent. interest on the $320,000 paid for the McMinnville & Manchester Railroad and the Winchester & Alabama Railroad, and do not think we can do more.

Cross examined:

I was not connected with the McMinnville & Manchester nor with the Winchester & Alabama Railroads before their purchase by the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad Company, except for a short 15 time. I run the last-mentioned railroad for its President, W. H. Moore.

The Nashville & Northwestern Railroad Company bought from the United States Government a large amount of rolling stock after the war, amounting to $400,000.

My impression is that the rails taken from the McM. & M. R.R. were put down on the N. & C. R. R. This was during the war, and in my absence from the State.

16 The McMinnville & Manchester Railroad was re-ironed before the purchase by the N. & C. R. R. It had also bought two engines and a few cars from the Government.

The Winchester & Alabama Railroad was also re-ironed and equipped with a small amount of rolling stock before the said purchase by the N. & C. R.R.

The Receiver leased the McMinnville & Manchester Railroad to Huggins & Price, but I do not know at what rental. I think the two roads have always paid operating expenses. 17

Re-examination:

Neither the Northwestern, the McMinnville & Manchester ever paid the Government for the rolling stock purchased by them, and the Government claims a lien on the property sold.

The witness being interrogated upon his means of knowledge as to the lien retained by the U. S. Government, answers that his information is derived from having seen the papers containing the contract of sale between the Government and said companies, whereupon the counsel for complainant objects to the answer as being incompetent, the original papers being the best evidence. 18

Since the purchase of the Nashville & Northwestern R.R. by our company, the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway has settled with the Government for the rolling stock purchased by the N. & N. W. R.R. from the United States. 19

In the matter of the purchase by the McMinnville & Manchester of the rolling stock from the U. S., a bill is now pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Middle District of Tennessee to enforce their lien and collect the amount of said purchase.

Deposition of H. L. Claiborne. 1

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,

DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee issued to the RAILROAD COMPANY, 2

versus

THE RAILROAD COMPANY.

Deposition of H. L. CLAIBORNE, witness for defendants, taken in Nashville, Tennessee, March 11th, 1880, before L. W. HUMES, Special Examiner, duly appointed under an order of the United States Circuit Court, Western District of Tennessee. 3

Taken pursuant to agreement.

Present, W. Y. C. HUMES, for defendants.

H. L. CLAIBORNE, being first duly sworn, deposed as follows: 4

I will be sixty-one years old in a few days; I have resided in Nashville, Tennessee, nearly all of sixty years, and reside there now; I was General Book-

5 keeper, acting also for several years as Assistant Cashier of the Bank of Tennessee, beginning in 1849, and continuing until 1853, when I resigned, and was afterwards (I think in 1858) elected again to the same position in the bank, and held the position until the bank was taken possession of by the Government (in April or May, 1865), except for the latter part of 1853 and the years 1854-5-6 and 7, and the early part of 1858 I held that position in the bank; the Bank of Tennessee was the fiscal
6 agent of the State of Tennessee from the passage of the General Internal Improvement Act, in 1851-2, of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee; the funds of the State were deposited in the Bank of Tennessee and its branches, to the credit of the Treasurer of the State; the State had no other treasury to my knowledge; I do not think that the State Treasurer or other State officials had any proper safe or other means provided for the safe keeping of moneys of the State; I do not know of 7 the Treasurer of the State keeping funds in any other bank except the Bank of Tennessee, and branches of the same; it was the duty of tax collectors or any other persons having money, the revenue of the State, to pay the same to the Treasurer of the State, or into the Bank of Tennessee and branches designated by the State Treasurer, and to his credit; I know this fact as to the Bank of Tennessee and its branches, I cannot remember distinctly, after so
8 many years, but think where there was no branch of the Bank of Tennessee, the Treasurer might have directed tax collectors to pay into other banks most convenient to the official thus paying moneys; when this was done, I think the Treasurer generally, if not always, withdrew that deposit by depositing his checks or drafts on such outside banks with the Bank of Tennessee at Nashville, and the bank would collect and credit the Treasurer of the State 9 with the amount so collected. All disbursements from the State Treasury were made as follows: The Comptroller of the State would issue his payable warrant on the Treasurer of the State, the Treasurer would then issue his check on the Bank of Tennessee, which bank kept an account with him, crediting him with all moneys received, and charging him with all moneys paid out on his check. As to the payment of interest of the railroad companies, under the Internal Improvement Act of the State 10 of Tennessee, 1851-2, all railroad companies were required to pay the interest on the amount of bonds issued to them, into the Bank of Tennessee, fifteen days before the coupons of the State for interest, attached to the bonds, and due semi-annually, fell due. The Bank of Tennessee was notified by the State officials of the amount of interest due by each railroad Company, so that when the companies came to settle their interest, the bank officials would know what amount to receive from each railroad company. 11

The interest payments received semi-annually by the Bank of Tennessee, from the several railroad companies during my official connection with the bank, were placed to the credit of an account called "Railroad Companies for Interest," and the amount was afterwards charged off and went to the credit of the Treasurer of the State, subject to his checks, like all other moneys of the State, from whatever source derived; I have heretofore examined the books of the Bank of Tennessee, and find that the 12 interest so paid in by the railroad companies was sometimes during the term of office of another general bookkeeper of the Bank of Tennessee (Mr. Geo. W. Seay) serving as such when I was not employed at the bank, placed to credit of the railroad company paying, but no account was kept, nor attempted to be kept with or in respect of the holders of the 13 coupons of the State bonds issued to the respective railroad companies paying their interest to the State semi-annually, and no attemptwas ever made to my knowledge,and we had no data or information which would enable the bank to apply the interest so paid by the respective companies to the particular coupons of the bonds issued to the respective Companies making the payments. Two accounts of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company for interest are shown me, the accounts are correct, in 14 my handwriting, and I make them part of this deposition (marked A and B, respectively). There are receipts and bills rendered by the Bank to said Railroad Company at their respective dates, during my connection with the Bank as general bookkeeper.

They are in my handwriting, and show the interest payments were made as so much interest owing by said Railroad Company to the State. The bills were rendered on that basis and receipted for accordingly. After the respective Railroad Companies 15 on the 15th of each June and December had so paid the amount of interest so due to the State of Tennessee by deposit in the Bank of Tennessee, the Railroad Companies had no further dealing, control or account of the interest so paid, but left the State to pay its own interest through the Bank, as its fiscal agent, to the creditors of the State.
From 1849 up to the commencement of the war the State of Tennessee invariably paid promptly, as they fell due, all her obligations, and had ample 16 and readily attainable resources to do so. She never did, before the war, go to protest upon or permit to be dishonored or to remain unpaid at maturity any of her obligations, and no one thought of or contemplated the possibility of such a contingency happening so far as I know. The coupons were payable in the City of New York; the correspondent of the Bank of Tennessee in that city was authorized by the bank to pay all coupons of 17 bonds of the State of Tennessee. The Merchants Bank of New York was that correspondent, and when they rendered accounts to Bank of Tennessee would send coupons paid as vouchers of such payment; the coupons were handed over by the Bank of Tennessee to the State Treasurer, who would issue his checks therefor, and his pass-book with the bank was regularly balanced, all his checks being handed to him when the pass-book was so balanced, the checks being cancelled by the bank. 18

The railroad companies were the debtors to the State for State bonds loaned them, and were required, as before stated, to pay the interest due by them fifteen days before the coupons were payable in New York by the State of Tennessee semi-annually, As I have stated another bookkeeper of the Bank of Tennessee (Mr. Geo. W. Seay), kept separate accounts with the railroad companies for interest paid by them to the State, but this course of his amounted to the same thing, the accounts 19 were not kept so as to show the particular bonds issued to any railroad company, or the interest on any such particular bonds. The officials of the Bank of Tennessee and the correspondent Bank at New York did not and could not know the coupons of bonds issued to any particular railroad company; the coupons were paid indiscriminately, all being paid as they were presented, and all being returned to the treasurer of the State as received from the bank which paid them. The Bank of Tennessee, 20 so far as I know, and I think I would have known it, never knew the number of the bonds issued to each particular railroad company; nor did the Bank of Tennessee in any way act as the agent of any of the railroad companies in paying interest for them, on bonds issued to them, but the bank simply received the amount of interest from the railroads as 21 provided by law, as before stated, fifteen days before the interest coupons fell due from the State. I know of no account kept by the Bank of Tennessee with the railroad companies except as before stated, and the bank could only officially know what amount of interest was due from any of the railroad companies by the information furnished by the State officials. The interest payments received by the bank from the various railroad companies were placed to the credit of an account called "Railroad 22 Companies for Interest," or to the credit of the company paying, simply as a matter of convenient reference; it amounted to the same, however, as if directly carried to the credit of the State Treasurer, as all of these accounts had of necessity to appear in said Treasurer's account on the books of the bank of Tennessee when his account was balanced. The money paid was the State's money, as the State was liable for the coupons of all bonds issued by the State, whether to 23 railroad companies or for any other purposes; as I have already stated, the bank paid as the fiscal agent of the State, and on its behalf, the interest on all the State bonds; the amount so paid was charged to the State (in the Treasurer's account) as so much paid for the account of the State. The State got credit on the books of the bank of Tennessee for all moneys paid into the bank, either by railroad companies or by other parties, and payments were made by the bank of Tennessee or by the correspondent 24 of the bank, and all such payments were charged to the Treasurer of the State, and never charged to any of the railroad companies.

And further saith not.

Deposition of G. W. Seay. 1

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,

DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the RAILROAD COMPANY, 2

versus

THE RAILROAD COMPANY.

Deposition of G. W. SEAY, witness for defendants, taken in Nashville, Tennessee, March 11th, 1880, before L. W. HUMES, Special Examiner, duly appointed under an order of the United States Circuit Court, Western District of Tennessee. 3

Taken pursuant to agreement.

Present—W. Y. C. HUMES, for defendants.

G. W. SEAY, being first duly sworn, deposed as follows: 4

My name is George Whorton Seay; I was fifty-two (52) years old my last birth day; I have lived in and near Nashville since May, 1866—from boy-

5 hood; I lived in Nashville with but one or two short intervals up to October, 1858, at which time I moved to Columbia, Tennessee; from January, 1854, as I now recollect, up to October, 1858, I was general bookkeeper of the Bank of Tennessee, at Nashville, succeeding H. L. Claiborne in 1854, and succeeded by him in October, 1858; during that period the Bank of Tennessee was the sole fiscal agent of the State of Tennessee, and all the funds of the State were or ought to have been deposited
6 in said Bank. If the State officials had any safe or other means to keep their money secure; it was, I presume, merely a temporary place preparatory to making regular deposits in the bank; if a tax collector had money deposited in a branch bank, I suppose he would have deposited it in such branch bank temporarily at his own credit, awaiting the time when he would pay it over to the State Treasurer, accompanied by a receiving warrant from the Comptroller, but of this I have no
7 knowledge as payments were made to the Treasurer on a receiving warrant from the Comptroller, the treasurer taking up the Comptroller's paying warrant and issuing therefor to the parties presenting same, his checks on the Bank of Tennessee; I have examined some (possibly all) the accounts kept with the railroad companies of the State which had received the State bonds; I find that I adopted a different plan, but with the same view as my predecessor. He kept his receipts from railroads as 8 "Railroad Companies for Interest on State Bonds," and I kept the accounts with the different railroads separately. My reason for this change was on account of the frequent partial payments made by those companies, and the difficulty in stating the unpaid balances due from those companies if the account had been kept up as it had been commenced by my predecessor under the heading of "Railroad Companies for Interest," &c. The moneys thus 9 paid, whether to credit of the account headed "Railroad Companies for Interest," &c., or to credit of separate railroads, as kept by myself, was merely kept temporarily so until the amounts due by each railroad had been fully provided, and then passed to credit of the Treasurer of Tennessee. The keeping of the accounts by myself separately for the different railroads was not provided for the payment of any specific bonds, but for the payment of so much interest due the State by the railroad companies. 10

The Bank of Tennessee did not keep any account of the separate and particular bonds issued any railroad company, and as an officer of the bank
I did not know and was never furnished with any list of such loans made by the State to the railroad companies, but simply furnished with a list of the
